The tango wave has reached Peterborough. In fact it has been here for some time, and from all indications it is going to be as popular as in the larger cities where it has practically banished the waltz, two step and other steps to the discard of dances. A class of about forty ladies and gentlemen is making good progress under the instruction of Mrs. Montdambert of Port Hope. Several Peterborough people who have attended functions in Toronto and Montreal have stated that they were practically compelled to decorate the walls with the rest of the flowers because of their inability to negotiate the latest steps.

It is understood that the first class was held at the residence of Mrs. Aylmer, but as the number grew the Knights of Pythias Hall was secured. Three assemblies have been held, one each week, but the class will meet twice a week in the future. The new dances requiring a spacious floor, are essentially ballroom features. During the coming winter the tango is bound to receive attention on dance programmes, and it is absolutely necessary that you know something of the steps before you essay them.

From the fact that the tango has the floor just now, and there is no hint of its popularity waning, it is likely that other classes will be formed in the near future.

MISSING STEAMERS ARE SAFE

Special Wire to The Examiner.

LONDON, Ont., Dec. 9. — The steamers McKee and Turret Cape, overdue since Saturday, made Goderich late last evening so heavily crusted in ice they could hardly move. Both Captains say the voyage was the worst they ever made and will take no more chances on being wrecked and go into winter quarters to-day.

MRS. PANKHURST OFF TO PARIS

Special Cable to The Examiner.

LONDON, Eng., Dec. 9.—Watched by Scotland Yard detectives, who made no attempt to stop her, Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst left to-day for Paris where she will visit her daughter, Christobel. She was carried to the train and steamer on a stretcher, and is apparently ill. Technically she is a fugitive from justice, but the authorities will not attempt to re-arrest her so long as she remains in Paris.

Will Not Take Action in England to the Immigration of Hindus into the Overseas Dominions.

AN IMPORTANT QUESTION

Special Wire to The Examiner.

LONDON, Dec. 9.—Inquiries from a member of Parliament in close touch with the ministry elicited an emphatic expression of opinion that the colonial office could not and would not interfere with the immigration of Hindus into the dominions. "At the same time imperial travellers here," said our informant, "feel very strongly that the authorities both in Africa and British Columbia do not realize the tremendous effect their attitude towards the Indians has upon the attitude of India generally towards the British Empire. It is realized that the Empire has more native regular soldiers in India than in all the other dominions combined. The question of the Hindus' position in the Overseas Dominion will be one of the principal items for consideration at the next Imperial conference."

Boys Denied Throwing Stones

Case Against Four Local Youths Dismissed in This Morning's Police Court

Four boys appeared in Police Court this morning, charged with creating a disturbance on Weir street last Sunday. It seems that a "bunch" of boys passed the home of a Weir street woman and drew attention to their presence by throwing a stone at the window. She claimed to recognize three of the boys, who were in court this morning.

They were defended by Mr. G. N. Gordon, and denied throwing the stone. As there was no evidence to show that any of the boys threw the stone, the case against them was dismissed.

REV. FATHER McGUIRE PREACHED THE SERMON

At the Sodality Reception in the Church of the Sacred Heart on Monday Night.

Rev. Father McGuire preached an eloquent sermon at the Church of the Sacred Heart on Monday night on the Immaculate Conception of the Blessed Virgin. The occasion was the formal reception of a number of the young ladies of the congregation as members of the Sodality. His Lordship Bishop O'Brien was present and urged the members of this society to take the Blessed Virgin as their example and to strive to acquire the virtues which she displayed. Father McGuire stated that all the prophets foretold the principal events in the life of the Blessed Virgin, as did Simeon, who lived during her time.

HAVE WE HARD TIMES?

We hear complaints sometimes that Canada is on the edge of a period of "hard times." If this is the case it is what was to be expected. There are people who say, "I told you so"—that if Mr. Borden and his party came to power we should have hard times. We have one of the first indications that this is coming true—a falling revenue, accompanied with the most extravagant public expenditure. Unemployment and the spectre of the "soup kitchen" manifest themselves for the first time in fifteen or sixteen years, and with these we have the cost of living pitchforked to the highest point. Verily the honest elector has increased evidence that he doesn't get what he voted for when he helped elect the Borden Government.

CIVIL SERVICE REFORM.

The Toronto News speaks in terms of approval of the proposed civil service reform measure of Saskatchewan. It says: "It is satisfactory to find Saskatchewan, looking, however, guardedly towards an independent non-partizan civil service," but it doubts the possibility of making the civil service non-partizan. Here the true partizan spirit manifests itself. This doubt is tantamount to an excuse for the inaction of the Borden Government. Mr. Borden made reform, improvement of the civil service one of the main planks in the great work of reform he was to inaugurate when he came to power. He has neglected to even an attempt to carry his promises into effect; on the contrary has done more to complicate reform of the civil service than any other administrator in Confederation history. He has fastened the partizan spirit upon the civil service, and has made partizanship the only condition of preferment or appointment. The News may well lose hope of getting a civil service of a non-partizan character, when its supports the government it supports in a wild and reckless career in the opposite direction.

VOTES FOR WOMEN.

Toronto is to vote at the coming elections upon the question of giving all married women the same voting privileges as now enjoyed by widows and spinsters. This means that married women with property in their own right may vote. Those who favour the vote for married women say that as the municipal qualification is based on property ownership a woman who owns property should have the right to vote. Opponents of the right say that this will lead to fraudulent transfers of property; but no woman in these hard times will want to sacrifice a single frill of personal adornment to the expense of having property transferred to give herself a vote. It is doubtful whether married women want the right to vote. As a rule they can make their husbands express their views at the polls. She rules the home anyway—her home, her kingdom is three hundred and sixty-five days in the year, and in leap year, sixty-six; and she is not likely to excite herself very much to gain or exercise the right to cast a ballot once a year. The only condition under which a woman will want a vote is when it is denied her. When it comes to the point it is doubtful if there are many suffragettes in Canada. It is a notorious fact that the hardest vote to get out at election time is the petticoated vote. If widows and spinsters with no family ties to restrict their action, are hard to get to the polls, what will be the difficulty of separating a married woman from her babies and her baking and brewing? What married women want more than votes is more money to meet the high costs of living. Give her the chance to spend the family income, which now too often the husband wastes in beer and boon companions, and she will cheerfully surrender the ballot to the widow and spinster.

SOUTH LANARK.

Hon. Geo. E. Foster is to take the stump in South Lanark. What can he talk about? Poetical rehashments of his pleasure trip around the world at our expense in a stern chase for trade won't fit in with a rough and tumble election fight, especially as his costly pilgrimages have resulted in nothing. He can't boast of how the Borden Government has kept the promises made by its leader. He can't boast of the prosperity Conservative administration has brought the country. He can't talk navy on the Borden plan, or his old speeches will rise up in judgment against him—he was particularly bitter against contribution, referring to it in his champion sneering style as "buying our naval defence." He can't repeat the splendid speech he made in Parliament in favour of a Canadian navy because that would be playing too much into Mr. Hawkes' hands. But Mr. Foster has a tremendous moral agility. He can turn a corner or turn a coat without turning a hair. There's only one man in Canada—Mr. Borden—who can go back on his professions with the graceful abandon of Mr. Foster. Mr. Foster is, therefore, the very man to have an effect in South Lanark. The people like to be fooled, and South Lanark will prove no exception. It has never had a real political fight. Good old John Haggart carried the riding for forty years with the regularity of a tax collector. South Lanark can have no election excitement except a family quarrel in the Conservative party. There's no question of principle involved. If either Dr. Hanna or Col. Balderson is elected, Mr. Borden is sure of a supporter. As to Mr. Hawkes' chances they are all chances. He is too honest, too straightforward to have much of a show.

A CONSERVATIVE VIEW.

The contest between Col. Balderson and Mr. Hanna in South Lanark is one against machine politics and the rights and independence of the electors. For years past South Lanark has been controlled politically by the Perth machine. They have manipulated and controlled Conservative conventions, they have threatened, maligned and boycotted those who have dared to question their right or oppose their plans. They are a smooth, slick bunch, who hesitate not, even to the invading of a neighbouring town and purchasing votes to carry a local organization meeting. And the same machine is at work today in opposition to Col. Balderson, because Col. Balderson had the courage, the manliness, the independence to defy them, to oppose them, to sneer at their threats, and boldly challenge their crooked methods.—Smith's Falls News (Conservative).

WHAT CANADA CAN AND DOES DO

MONTREAL, Dec. 8.— At a point some 630 feet below the highest point of Mount Royal the two headings of the Canadian Northern tunnel will meet to-morrow evening, almost exactly fifteen months after the first heading in the tunnel was commenced, and on Wednesday the first train will run through the tunnel from the west portal to the Dorchester street shaft.

This establishes a new record for deep tunneling on the American continent, and takes the record from the United States, while, with the exception of certain of the Swiss tunnels, where the headings are much smaller and the rock softer, the achievement of the Canadian Northern engineers is a world's record.

The tapping of the drills could be heard through the dividing rock today, but owing to the necessity for care at this advanced stage of the work no actual forecast of the time for meeting could be made save that it would be between 4 o'clock and midnight to-morrow.

HOW GEORGE DID IT.

A Scotchman visiting in America stood gazing at a fine statute of George Washington, when an American approached.

"That was a great and good man, Sandy," said the American; "a lie never passed his lips."

"Weel, said the Scot, "I prayesume he talked through his nose like the rest of ye."

COUNTY COURT SITTINGS OPENED THIS AFTERNOON

Court Calendar Was Free From Criminal Cases, a Fact Which Entitled Presiding Judge to a Pair of White Gloves---Address to the Grand Jury---First Case Called

The General Sessions of the Peace opened this afternoon with His Honour Judge Huyoke presiding. The calendar was free from criminal cases and contrary to the usual custom, the presiding judge was not presented with a pair of white gloves. The time-honoured custom which is invariably observed, constitutes a tangible indication of the absence of criminal cases.

Three members of the bar were present. They were, Crown Attorney R. E. Wood, Mr. G. N. Gordon and Mr. D. W. Dumble.

A Good Record

In addressing the Grand Jury, His Honour Judge Huyoke commented upon the absence of crime throughout the County. Crown Attorney Wood reported that there were no prisoners awaiting trial, his Honour added: "It is a good record indeed. It is customary and proper when there are no criminal cases on the calendar to place in the hands of the presiding judge a pair of white gloves. That has not been done.

It is the duty and privilege of the Grand Jury to visit the public institutions throughout the City and County and ascertain how the public funds are being expended and whether the inmates of the institutions are being properly cared for.

His Honour also referred to the absence through illness of Crown Attorney Wood. He expressed the hope that his recovery would be speedy and complete. Crown Attorney Wood entered the court room a few minutes later and was greeted by the judge. Ald. J. C. Anderson is foreman of the Grand Jury.

Godfrey Vs. Edwards.

The first case called was that of Godfrey versus Edwards. Mr. G. N. Gordon appeared for the defendant and Mr. D. W. Dumble for the plaintiff.

The following petit jury was empanelled: Messrs. T. E. Whibbs, Dour; F. Finney, Peterborough; J. W. Boorman, Peterborough; Wm. Thompson, Otonabee; A. Harris, Anstruther; W. Harper, Norwood; G. Barrie, Asphodel; A. McIlmoyle, Smith; J. Howden, Peterborough; H. Tighe, Smith; N. Bibby, Peterboorugh; G. Curtis, Otonabee.

In addressing the jury, Mr. Dumble said that the action was instituted by Mr. and Mrs. Godfrey, to recover damages for the wrongful appropriation of goods and chattels belonging to the plaintiff. The relationship between the plaintiff and defendant was that of tenant and landlord. Plaintiff occupied rooms over the meat store of the defendant on George Street. Entrance to the rooms was by way of Chambers Street.

The tenancy commenced on November 15th, 1911, at six dollars a month. About the first week of September, 1912, the husband went to North Bay, where he was employed by a man named Maitland. He remitted money from time to time. About the same time Mrs. Godfrey had occasion to go to Toronto to visit a relative, who was on her deathbed. Following the said relative's death, Mrs. Godfrey went to a small town near Toronto and secured employment in a mill.

Prior to her departure from Peterborough, Mrs. Godfrey alleges that she notified defendant of the intention to be away for a short time and that any back rent which had accrued would be forthcoming. She then left for Toronto and was later advised that the defendant had entered the rooms over his store and cleaned them out.

Plaintiff alleges that more goods was seized than was required to liquidate the claim.

Defendant claims that plaintiff absconded from Peterborough, leaving the chattels and goods to be disposed of in pursuance of an alleged agreement, which empowered him to sell them, and apply the proceeds towards the liquidation of the plaintiff's indebtedness.

The case is proceeding.

SPOKE AT GOSPEL HALL

On Sunday night at the Gospel Hall, Mr. Irving spoke to a very attentive audience on the subject announced, "The Coming of Christ and the Results Which Follow," proving from the Scriptures that all true believers will be translated without seeing death. He also showed the effect this will have upon the world when the restraining influence of Christian people and the restraining power of the Holy Spirit are gone, and the awful conditions that will follow. He spoke last night from the same chart on the three great judgments; the judgment seat of Christ, where Christians will appear; the judgment of the living nations at the second advent, and the judgment of the great white throne for all the wicked who have died in all ages. These lectures are most instructive clearing up much mystery to the common reader.

WHY DO PEOPLE STAND ALOOF?

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Dear Sir,—During this every member canvass in which I took some part, and which met with my hearty approval. Being now a resident of this City, and having perhaps some claim to ask for information through the Examiner, as I took the weekly while on the farm—and now the daily—and through them became acquainted with the late James Stratton, who formerly published it and was drawn to him by hearing him deliver addresses on temperance in which he took a great interest as well as in all moral and Christian work which is in these days so little thought of by many persons.

While walking along the street a short time ago with a stranger, I said, "You do not belong to Knox Church do you?" He said, "No; nor any other," and added he might be in church once a year. I said, "Are you not making a mistake in life?"

Would you kindly let me know what proportion of this fair City or of this fair Province, or of this Dominion, has been reached by this every member canvass, or why do people stand aloof from the church, which has been established by our Lord and Saviour, Jesus Christ and which He purchased with His own blood.

Yours, etc.,
J. H. TAYLOR,

A MILLION DRUG USERS IN THE STATES

Special Wire to The Examiner.

WASHINGTON, D.C., Dec. 9.—There are more than a million drug users in the United States, and the habit is growing by such leaps and bounds that heretofore dormant provision in the pure food law may be utilized by the government to curtail the traffice in narcotics. This was the information given to-day by the Department of Agriculture officials. The provision which may be called into force is that forbidding the importation of any drug dangerous to the health of the people of the United States.

THE ULTRA OPTIMIST

By RUTH CAMERON

Optimism is a good thing.—a grand, good thing. At the same time it may become a bad thing under certain conditions; and those conditions are when it is carried too far.

"Every virtue is half way between two vices," the Romans used to say. Optimism is no exception to the rule. On one side of it is pessimism,—on the other side is ultra optimism.

The nineteenth century has been a century of optimism. Huge business undertakings have been created out of a little capital, a little more trust and a great deal of optimism. The motif of the new religion is optimism.

Everywhere it has been the dominant note. And it is a good note, too, and makes the finest music in the world. Except, again, when it is overworked.

Personally I think I am more inclined to optimism than to pessimism. And yet I must say the ultra optimist irritates me quite as much as the pessimist. He has such a foolish trick of closing his eyes to facts and I never could "thole" that habit. I have no patience with the theory that "when ignorance is bliss 'twere folly to be wise." To my mind it is always better to know. One of my four favourite Bible verses is "Now we see through a glass darkly, but then face to face; Now I know in part, but then shall I know, even as also I am known." I like that idea.

To return to the main theme,—the other day I was disappointed in a long-anticipated outing on account of rain. I met one of these ultra optimists. 'Cheer up!" she said, when she heard of my disappointment. "You know the sun is shining behind the clouds." Now I suppose I ought to have been grateful for that cheering reminder, but I wasn't. We were'nt going to have our outing behind the clouds but right on earth, and on the earth it was raining; and what it was doing behind the cloud didn't matter a particle to me. If she had really wished to cheer me she might have reminded me that I could go some other day. That would have had some sense to it, but she didn't want to cheer me; all she wanted was to get a chance to use some of that conventional patter which the ultra optimist delights in.

The man who is ultra optimistic on the subject of time is a familiar type to most of us. "What's your hurry?" he says, when he sees you allowing a little time for possible delays. 'Half an hour is more than time to get to the station." And so it is if everything goes exactly right, which he optimistically expects. But everything doesn't always go exactly right, as those who depend upon his ultra optimistic calculations are likely to find to their sorrow.

Again, most of us know something of the man who is ultra optimistic about money. He never calculates exactly what his income will cover; instead he buys whatever he thinks he needs, and hopes optimistically to pay the bills somehow or other. Or again, he asks you to join him in a business undertaking which according to his figures must bring in at least sixty per cent. of the money invested. On examining his calculations you find that the risks are all ignored or under-estimated and the profits optimistically exaggerated.

Saskatchewan's area is 250,650 square miles. Large as France, and twice the size of the British Isles. 760 miles long and 320 miles wide.

ALL ALONG BROADWAY

A New York Letter of General Interest by Herbert Corey

NEW YORK, Dec. 8.—Theatre managers call them "wind nuts." They like to pose as members of "the profession" or as managers of producers. They're a good deal like waterbugs—harmless, but annoying. One of them sidewised up to Arthur Keller at the Forty-eighth Street theatre the other night.

"I have a great favour to ask," said he.

Keller looked him over. His dress clothes were not this year's pattern, but they were good. His linen was clean and his boots polished. It didn't look like a touch.

"Shoot," said Mr. Keller, gallantly.

"Two friends of mine will visit the show to-night," said the "wind nut." "They think I am the manager of this company. Will you let me stand at the door—just as if I were manager—until they come in?"

Keller obliged. The old gentleman stood by the ticke-ttaker, puffing at a cigar and scanning the incomers just like a regular manager. Suddenly his face lighted up. He dashed forward with hand outstretched.

"So glad to see you in my house at last," said he.

The couple he hailed chatted with him for a second. They were just ordinary, clean-cut, well-behaved young folks. Then they nodded goodbye and went inside. The "wind nut" pulled his coat over his thin old shoulders and started toward Broadway.

It isn't every volunteer manager who does so little damage. Tom Sharkey, the coin thrower of Fourteenth Street, needed a man at the door in one of his first fights. Tim McGrath, the veteran sporting man, said he would oblige. Sharkey stood near the door, with a blanket over his shoulders, watching the new manager at work.

"Hey, Timmie!" said a voice.

"'Tis all right, boys," said Mr. McGrath. He held up a lordly finger to the doorman. A string of twenty or thirty hard-finished persons galloped heartily in. None of them offered to drop a ticket in the box.

"'N who are thim?" asked Mr. Sharkey, uncertainly.

"They're the seconds and rubbers for the principals in the star bout," said McGrath.

"'N who's goin' to fight?" asked Sharkey. "The north an south"

This is the sort of story that simply doesn't happen except in New York.

Five months ago the hero had $80,000 in cash. The market slipped on him and the next day he had no money at all. He couldn't get a job or in touch with a deposit of large money. By and by, he found himself up against the cushion.

"Many's the time," said an acquaintance, "I've known him to touch friends for supper money. If he couldn't borrow $2 he would borrow $1 and be glad of it."

He heard of a tangle of property in which a downtown bank was involved in West Virginia, and offered to straighten it out. Being a most capable business man, his offer was accepted. Three weeks in West Virginia proved to the bank that the old stuff was still in him. He was wired to return.

"So-and-So," said the banker, "has options on a valuable process. See what you can make of it."

He had no money. But he found out what the option amounted to and reported to the banker. A company was formed, and every penny of the stock subscribed inside of twenty minutes in a meeting at the Belmont. To-day yesterday's down-and-out is the president of a $5,000,000 company with mills actually at work in three or four cities. It isn't so long ago since he sailed for Europe on business. He took the prince's suite on the steamer.

Luck—or lack of it—doesn't enter into that tale at all.

Two years ago Sam Blythe, the writer, elected to mount the water cart. He became boastfully, painfully, selfishly arid. For a time false friends tried to lure him back into the shackles—between 15th September, 1911, and 23rd June, 1913, he received 418 bottles of whisky from 312 persons—but they finally gave it up as a bad job. The other day Blythe was talking with two serfs of the demon at the Waldorf. By and by their mania came upon them. They began to edge toward the bar.

"Well, Sam, see you later," said they.

"No," said Blythe. "Nunno. You may not care to have me in your little party, but I am going right along. I will drink water or buttermilk or ginger ale, or any non-alcoholic thing you say, but I am not going to stay out here all alone."

"Why, Sam, you're welcome," said the bond slaves, feebly.

"No, I am not," said Blythe. "I can tell by the tone of your voices. I spent the best twenty years of my life making a colection of drunken friends and now I have no one to play with."

Simple Home Treatment For Superfluous Hairs

(Beauty Culture)

A very effective and simple home treatment for superfluous hairs is as follows: Mix into a paste enough powdered delatone and water to cover the hair-surface, apply and after 2 or 3 minutes rub off, when the skin and every trace of hair has disappeared. This method is devoid of pain or danger and leaves the skin free from spot or blemish. Best results naturally follow when the delatone is purchased in an original package because its strength and purity are then assured.

BIG DAM TO BE CONSTRUCTED

Special to The Examiner:

OTTAWA, Dec. 9.—The Department of Public Works has called for tenders for the construction of a dam across the South Channel of the French river at the head of Big Chaudiere Falls. This work is in connection with a plan to improve the navigation of French river and will be a part of the Georgian Bay Canal scheme. It is expected that Hon. Robert Rogers will shortly announce the appointment of a commission to inquire into the commercial feasibility of the canal project.

TEMPERATURE WILL DROP

Special Wire to The Examiner.

TORONTO, Dec. 9.—Sunday's storm has commenced real winter weather for Ontario, and the temperature will drop steadily. The storm which passed over the lakes has now reached the sea, bringing heavy gales and snow and leaving cold weather for the Maritime Provinces. The West is fair and mild. There is no outlook for snow for Ontario.

Did She Keep Her Temper.

Mr. Biles is a very hasty tempered man, but he is also one who keeps his promises to the very letter. Therefore Mrs. B. extracted from him a promise always to count twenty before he speaks if he feels rage coming upon him. Last Sunday he rushed into the back drawing-room, spluttering with fury and red in the face. Mrs. Biles rose and laid a gentle hand on his stammering lips.

"M-Mary, I—I—I—I"—

"Hush, dear," said the sweet woman. "Count twenty and conquer yourself, and I shall be more proud of you than if you had conquered the world."

"Eighteen, nineteen, twenty"—

"Now tell me, dear."

"It's that new hat of yours that you paid six guineas for, and the new servant's gone out in, and it's raining hard—that's all."

IS HARD ON THE NEW DANCES

Special Wire to The Examiner.

OTTAWA, Dec. 9.—Rideau Hall officials decline to say anything for publication in regard to the banning of tango and other forms of exotic dancing from the Government House social functions. The Society of the Capital is still making spasmodic efforts to keep up the new craze, but the action of their Royal Highnesses has had a depressing effect, especially on the younger society element.

The Mission Band of George Street Methodist Church will hold a Sale of Fancy Work, and Tea in connection therewith, on Friday afternoon and evening in the Lecture Room of the Church. Orchestra in attendance.

To Sleep Beneath Pure Eiderdown Comforters and Wool Blankets Means Perfect Health and Complete Relaxation for the Body

SCIENTISTS Claim that the weight of heavy Bed Covering is a strain upon the body. They tire the body instead of allowing complete relaxation.

The great warmth derived from Pure Eiderdown Comforters and Wool Blankets depend entirely upon their thickness and heat retaining qualities, not on their weight.

Our Comforters and Blankets contain warmth without weight and, moreover, the filling that enters into the the finished Comforter and the Wool that is woven into the finished Blanket is as pure as freshly fallen snow.

As a Christmas Gift what would equal in merit the Health Giving qualities of an Eiderdown Comforter or Wool Blanket. Some of our Values—

Eiderdown Comforters $8.50—Light weight, but warm as toast, large size 68 x 68 inches, filled with extra quality pure snowy white Eiderdown, nicely covered with rich Sateen (which resembles real Satin), in handsome combination colourings. REV. BYRON H. STAUFFER'S SPLENDID ADDRESS LAST NIGHT

Spoke to a Very Large Audience Under the Auspices of the Epworth League of the George Street Methodist Church--Interesting Remarks on Social Problems of the Present Day

Power and noise sometimes lock arms and deceive us into thinking that they go together, whereas, as a matter of fact noise and power are seldom found together.

The silent Saxon has given us the best element in our blood.

The folks that have a pedigree a yard long—we do allow a few of them to come but we don't like them very well. It is the Englishman, Irishman and Scotchman, with the dash of Danish, and Pict and Scot in their blood that we welcome. It is the "mongrel folk" who are to make this new world the glory of the Anglo-Saxon race.

But as soon as the factories here in Peterborough are preferably open to labourers from the South of Europe, just that soon will the community become divided. The foreigner will multiply faster than the whites, and just as had happened in Buffalo—though no one would have dreamed it 75 years ago—they would come to be the majority. The city will come to be in the power of a slum population.

If you want to deal the saloons a death blow, if you want to give some stinging raps to the poolrooms which in some cases are little less than dives—let your husband and sons and brothers have free access to the whole house. Let the sons receive their guests at home — have their amusements at home. Don't drive them out to the pool rooms and the bars.

The charity that does good is the charity whereby two or three poor persons are taken in charge by you. The easy way to administer charity is by giving a cheque to your minister and then washing your hands of the whole thing. This is the wicked way of giving charity.

I believe in a Christian Socialism, but the day after to-morrow when England shall have gone mad over Socialism and sane again, it will still be that the hand of the diligent maketh rich.

When you see the sands of the desert piled around the ruins of a colossal building, a relic of a power overthrown, a civilization gone out like a light, know too that the day will come when the Anglo-Saxon civilization will have done its work for the world.

"This introduction makes me feel sort of silly," were the words with which the Rev. Byron H. Stauffer greeted a large audience in the George Street Church, last night, after the chairman, the Rev. R. G. Peever, had concluded a short eulogistic address of introduction. And it was with the same humourous clothing of the truth, the same outspoken manner and frankness of style, that the lecturer held his audience for upwards of an hour and a half, and made for himself a lasting impression among the people of this city. Above are given a few examples, and not the best, of his philosophizings to the audience last night.

During the evening a solo was rendered in a charming manner by Miss Pearl McKee. Mr. Jas. Browne also gave a splendid solo, receiving a hearty reception.

After the lecture a hearty vote of thanks was tendered the speaker, on the motion of Messrs. T. W. Robinson and E. Thompson.

In opening his address the Rev. Mr. Stauffer said that he was going to talk about the Pennsylvania Dutchman of which, doubtless the audience had heard but little, for he was only a drop in the bucket of American civilization. And yet, as a drop of blueing, or of concentrated sugar might have an effect upon the whole bucket of water, so the Pennsylvania Dutchman had influenced American civilization.

The Pennsylvania Dutchman hadn't made any noise, but that doesn't mean that he had no power. For power and noise sometimes locked arms and deceived us into thinking that they went together, whereas, as a matter of fact, noise and power are seldom found together. Niagara Falls had been doing nothing but roaring for the last—he didn't know how many—thousands of years, and in the last few years had generated power to light a few lamps and turn the wheels of a few factories.

But out in the ocean there was an old stream, the boundaries of which you cannot discern as you pass through it. It was silent. But that old Golf Stream, throughout the centuries, with its wonderful atmosphere, had given England, with the latitude of Labrador the climate of Pennsylvania; had made the brawny Scot; had given rise to the poetry and song of Ireland; had generated the power into Britain that had made her the mistress of the sea.

The silent Saxon had given us the best element in our blood.

"Yet the Pennsylvania Dutchman is what you might call a mongrel," said the lecturer. "And don't be afraid of the word mongrel, for most of you here to-night are mongrels." The speaker went to to show that the most intelligent, the most effective creatures in "Fowl, dogs, and folk" were the mongrel class.

The folks that come here and have a pedigree a yard long—"we do allow a few of them to come but we don't like them very well. It is the Englishman, the Irishman and the Scotchman, with the dash of Danish and Pict and Scot in their blood that we welcome."

In Pennsylvania the Swiss, Quaker, Hollander, and German, settled side by side, each by some strange chance, having similar beliefs, and each having come to America that they might worship according to the dictates of their own conscience. They intermarried, carried on business with each other, worshipped and associated with each other, with the result that at the end of a hundred years they could not be told apart. These people were called the Pennsylvania Dutchmen.

The lecturer advocated the restriction of immigration into Canada, favouring the immigration from England, Ireland and Scotland, and the United States. This was with the object of producing a homogeneous race, with the knowledge that the Union Jack stood for law and order, and their similar traditions instilled into their lives.

As long as the employers favoured British labour we had nothing to fear. But as soon as the factories are preferably open to the labourers from the South of Europe, here in Peterborough, we will find that the community will be divided. The foreigner will multiply faster than the whites, and just as had happened in Buffalo—and no one would have dreamt it 75 years ago—they would come to be in the majority. The city would come to be in the power of a slum population.

In discussing the social problems that confront us to-day the lecturer said, if they wanted to give a death blow to the saloons, and to the low pool rooms—"let your husband and sons and brothers have free access to the whole house. Let them smoke at will. Let the son bring his chums home. The Puritanical mother and father who said 'you will never bring a deck of cards or a cigar home' is forcing the young men to less healthy places of amusement.

"Let the sons receive their guests at home—have their amusements at home—Don't drive them out to the pool rooms and the bars."

In speaking of the church the lecturer said: "Let not this beautiful George Street Church be the rich man's church—nor the poor man's church. But let it be a church where the rich man and the poor men can meet, for God is the Father of you all."

Dealing with the servant girl problem the lecturer said: "Your servant girl eats at meals alone. If she be recently from the Old Country she will be alone in the evening, unless you allow her to entertain her sweetheart in the kitchen. Fancy! How would you like to entertain your sweetheart in the kitchen. Then she climbs up to the third story guest chamber with the broken springs and hard pillows—you ladies know, you have fixed them up.

"But remember I am not prescribing a cure. I plead guilty to the same offence. But I want you ladies here to-night to go home and think this matter over."

Diligence Maketh Rich.

"I believe in a Christian Socialism," said the lecturer. "But the day after to-morrow when England shall have gone mad over socialism and then gone sane again—it will still be that the hand of the diligent maketh rich."

Diligence and economy were traits of the Pennsylvania Dutchman.

The Pennsylvania Dutchman was a vanishing race, that was to disappear on the horizon of the coming century, to go into the smelting pot with other civilization.

"When you see the sands of the desert piled around the crumbling ruins of a colossal building, a relic of a power overthrown, a civilization gone out like a light, know too that the day will come when our Anglo-Saxon civilization will have done its work."

In conclusion the speaker said: "The world rushes on so fast that we are apt to forget the past. We lack the Oriental custom of ancestor worship. But let us cherish a veneration for our forefathers, who came here as pioneers and who left us this goodly heritage—the Province of Ontario."

The address last night was given under the auspices of the Epworth League of the George Street Church, and the church was filled for the lecture.

"FINE FEATHERS"

To Be Presented Here by the New York Cast

No play of our times has won greater applause or become more a part of our native drama than "Fine Feathers," the humanly gripping drama by Eugene Walter, which H. H. Frazee will present here on Saturday next, Dec. 13, at the Grand Opera House.

It delighted thousands of playgoers in the Corf Theatre, Chicago, where it was first produced by Mr. Frazee on August 12th, 1912, and when presented last season in the Astor Theatre, New York, ran the season out, following which it continued to play during the summer on a special transcontinental tour to the Pacific Coast.

"Fine Feathers" which runs four acts, comes direct from its triumphs in New York and will be presented here by a specially selected company.

GAVE APPROVAL OF CIVIC POLICEWOMAN.

Rev. Father Phelan Passed Favourable Comments Upon Reported Petition.

At St. Peter's Cathedral on Sunday, Rev. Father Phelan stated that he understood a petition was being circulated among the citizens with the object of securing the appointment of a policewoman in Peterborough.

In cities where policewomen have been added to the police staff, their work has been most successful, and Father Phelan recommended the petition to the congregation, suggesting that it be given serious consideration in view of the good results that have been obtained when such appointments were made.

THE PUPILS OF MR. JOHN ALLAN

Gave a Highly Successful Musical Entertainment Last Evening

Another one of those interesting musical gatherings in which opportunity is afforded to the juvenile element to demonstrate their proficiency in instrumental or vocal music when, under the hand of a competent instructor, had its locale last evening in the Hall of the Public Library.

On this occasion some of the pupils of Mr. John Allan, so well known as the able organist of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church in this City, demonstrated to their parents and friends what they could do in the musical line. The concert was by invitation and a considerable number of people were present.

The following is the programme of the various pieces offered:

Part I.—Piano.

Duet—"Dorothy" . . Seymour Smith
Russell and Tom Pogue.
"White Rose" ..... Graham
Isabel Oke.
"Ruby Valse" ..... Englemann
Grace Thompson.
Passe Pied ..... Gillet
Jamie Pogue.
"Narcissus" . . . . . Nevin
Frances Thewlis.
"Soir D'ete" . . . . . Arbelle
Mary Harston
"Intermezzo" . . . . . Therese
Gertrude Kirn.
"Dance of the Shadows" ..Newman
Frances Thewlis and Mary Harstone.
"The Acrobat" . . . . . Gilder
Miss Lily Simpson.
"Valse Brilliante" ..... Durand
Miss Clingscale.

Part II.—Vocal.

Duet—"The Moon hath Raised Her Lamp Above" (Lily of Killarney) . . . . . Benedict
Mr. Maurice Park and Mr. Asa Huycke.
Song—"I Heard a Sweet Song" .... Dorothy Foster
Miss Edith Ferguson.
Song—"The World and You" Hodson
Miss Minnie Squair
Song—"The Slave Song", Del Reigo
Miss Marguerite Sanderson.
Cavatina — "Salut! demeure chaste et-pure' (Faust) ..... Gounod
Mr. Park.
Song—"Awake" ..... Pellisier
Miss Clara Kidd.
Aria—(a) 'Rejoice Greatly' (Messiah) ..... Handel
(b) "The Lass with the Delicate hair" . . . . . Arne
Miss Dorothy Allan
Aria—"Honour and Arms" (Samson) . . . . . Handel
Mr. Hucke.

As Mr. Allan announced there would, for obvious reasons, be no encores, as the pupils were in different stages of instruction, it is equally obvious that to individualize any of the performers in the first part of the programme would be invidious. Suffice it to say that great credit appeared to be due to the majority of the youthful debutantes. One boy in particular struck the "Extminer" representative as being an excellent timist. Good time is an absolute essential; false notes, even if they grate on the educated musical ear, may be overcome. But bad time is a fault which, once allowed to grow, is remarkably difficult to eradicate.

In Part II. all the performers are pupils of Mr. Allan, but as they have been more or less before the Peterborough limelight, a few words may be said:

Messrs. Park and Huycke earned considerable applause for their duet from Benedict's English Opera "The Lily of Killarney." Miss Clara Kidd rendered in a sweet manner the number allotted to her. Miss Dorothy Allan won well-merited applause over the two items over her name, so more especially in Dr. Arnte' sweet ballad "The Lass with the Delicate Hair," which was sung in a very sympathetic style. The other numbers by the Misses G. Ferguson, M. Squair, M. Sanderson and Mr. Park were all creditably offered and well received.

Altogether the evening was an enjoyable one and reflects a large amount of credit on the impressario who has evidently bestowed much care on, and exercised much patience with, his pupils.

Local Drovers Have Been Making Big Money This Season

Christmas Has No Terrors for the Drovers Who Took a Chance on the Removal of Duty.

THOUSANDS OF CATTLE GONE OUT OF COUNTRY

Around the market these days one hears stories of the profits made by drovers as the result of the removal of the United States duty on Canadian cattle. Four or five names were mentioned and according to reports all those who anticipated the tariff movement and bought at favourable prices have cleaned up a nice little roll. They got in at the right time and were prepared for the opening of the markets across the border. Morris and Brown, J. F. Thornton, Elias Lowes and others have all been able to lay away a few extra thousand as the result of their foresight and knowledge of where the cattle were to be obtained. The sums mentioned range from the neighbourhood of $2,000 for solitary dealers, to $4,000 and $5,000 for those who buy in pairs. These amounts may look large, but it must be remembered that thousands of cattle have been shipped from this district, and that a great number of them were bought before the price soared on this side of the line.

HUERTA AT HIS WITS' END

Special Wire to Examiner:

TAMPA, Fla., Dec. 9.—Letters received by the Courier from Mexico City indicate that President Huerta is apparently at his wits' end to uphold his government. His officers are impressing into military duty every man over the age of twelve years and many females to do duty as cooks, nurses, etc.

Fearful tales filter in here of the barbarities of the government soldiers who in many cases are escaped criminals. Many of the rebel soldiers are also equally uncontrollable and atrocities are frequent.

DR. CRAIG ACQUITTED

Special Wire to The Examiner.

SHELBYVILLE, Ind., Dec. 9.—Dr. William S. Craig, the Canadian, was to-day acquitted by a jury on a charge of murdering Dr. Helene Knabe in her apartments. The verdict was received with cheers, and Dr. Craig walked out of the court a free man with his daughter, Marion, clinging to his arm. During the last few days there has been a revulsion of feeling toward Dr. Craig, and his acquittal is quite popular. He may shortly return to his home in Toronto.

Next To Consumption.

There Are More Deaths From PNEUMONIA Than Any Other Lung Trouble.

Pneumonia is nothing more or less than what used to be called "Inflammation of the Lungs."

Consumption may be contracted from others, but as a rule pneumonia is caused by exposure to cold and wet, and there is only one way to prevent pneumonia, and that is to cure the cold on its first appearance.

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup will do this for you if you will only take it in time.

Mrs. Wm. M. Steeves, River Glade, N.B., writes:—"Please allow me to express my gratitude for the presence of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup in the house, for I believe it saved our little boy's life. Three years this fall we were in the lumber woods, and it was very hard to get a doctor to us, and our little boy got pneumonia, and was very ill. The only relief he could get was to take Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, and with the combined use of the Syrup, and your British Troop Oil Liniment, he soon got better, and was around in a couple of weeks. It certainly is a great remedy."

"TEACHING TRUTH" WILL BE SUBJECT

Of Lecture to be Given Before Mother's Club To-morrow Afternoon

The Mothers' Club will hold its regular monthly meeting in the Board Room of the Y. M. C. A. on Wednesday, Dec. 10th, at 3 o'clock, prompt.

A paper ("Teaching Truth") will be given by Mr. Hainsworth.

After reading the little poem below one will understand why this question should be given careful consideration and study:

"The Really Reason Why."

Mamma, why is it that the Sun
Shines only in the day?
Why does he shine so nice and warm
When he's so far away?
Why are the stars so very large?
Each one looks like a spark,—
Why does the moon shine when it's light,
And never when it's dark?
Why are summers always warm,
The winters always cold?
Why is it that each year must die,
When only one year old?
And why can't little children be
As big as their papas?
And when I ask you questions, ma,
Why do you say "BECAUSE?"
Why is it, mamma, when it rains
I'd like to know 'bout lots of things
The really reason why.
And there's some other sorts of things
I'd like to ask about,
Only you always say "Hush, hush!"
And so I can't find out.
The boys at school they tell me tales
That dont seem nice and clean;
I wish you'd tell me, so I'd know
What these things really mean.
Because, you see, I know, mamma,
You never, never lie;
So, if you 'splained it, why 'twould be
The really reason why.

—Mary Wood Allen.

Truth is fair; should we forget it?
Can we sigh right for a wrong?
God, Himself, is the best poet,
And the soul is His song.
Sing His truth out fair and full,
And secure his beautiful.

O, brave poets, keep back nothing,
Nor mix falsehood with the whole;
Look up, God-ward; speak the truth in Worthy song from earnest soul;
Hold in high poetic duty:
Truest truth, the fairest beauty.

—Mrs. Browning.

A vocal solo by Mrs. G. B. Hughes will be given. Mrs. Jas. Rollins will be present to give an outline of the work to be done in the Mothers' Clubs, which are to be formed in connection with the Public Schools. All mothers who have boys in the Y. M. C. A. are urged to be present and all are welcomed.

ON SOWING THE WIND AND REAPING THE WHIRLWIND

How Canada is Harvesting the Inevitable Results of Borden Government Extravagance

"The pendulum has already begun to swing adversely" states Mr. Harrison Watson, Canadian Trade Commissioner at London in his annual report, "which indicates a marked decrease of Canadian exports to England during the past year."

The Customs revenue for October decreased by nearly $1,500,000 as compared with the same month last year, a dropping of $50,000 a day.

During the eight months of the present year the customs revenue aggregated $75,091,109 as compared with $76,035,075 during the same eight months of 1912. These are figures given out by the Customs Department, with every possible effort to minimize their significance.

There is every probability that the decreased revenue for October will be increasingly continued during the winter months, since the bulk of importations occur during the summer navigation season. It is more than probable that the end of the year will witness a decrease in customs revenue of $10,000,000.

The Minister of Finance is now floating in London loan of $20,000,000. Half of this will be used to pay treasury bills—paying debts with borrowed money. The rest will be used to replenish the almost empty treasury, and of course a good slice of it will go to Mackenzie and Mann as part of their $15,000,000 gift.

During the last twelve months Hon. Mr. White has gone to London to borrow the astonishing total of $45,000,000. He has had to pay over four per cent for every dollar of it. The interest on borrowings for this year alone amounts to $1,800,000. The last loan of $20,000,000 at four per cent. had to be sold at 97, which means nearly 4 5-8 per cent. interest. This is practically one per cent. higher interest than Hon. Mr. Fielding ever had to pay. By the end of the fiscal year, Canada's debt will be increased by probably $30,000,000—with a permanent additional charge of $1,200,000 a year for interest.

London financiers comment unfavourably and openly upon the continual raids of Hon. Mr. White on the British money market. The Morning Post, an influential English Conservative paper, friendly to the Canadian Government, scathingly criticises Hon. Mr. White's methods of borrowing huge sums privately, in addition to his public borowings and says:—"It must be impossible for the investor to have any clear idea of the financial position of the debtor." That is exactly what the Borden Government wants—to hide its real financial position from both the British who lend and the Canadians who must pay it back.

In face of these conditions, Hon. Mr. White gaily announces that estimates next year may amount to $250,000,000 as against "only" $200,000,000 last year. This will mean a total expenditure of probably $300,000,000, including statutory items. The absurd explanation is that the Government considers times of financial stress proper season for huge Government expenditure. Such a system applied to any business institution would mean speedy bankruptcy.

After two years of Conservative Government exports and imports have declined; Canada's borrowings have increased; her credit abroad has suffered; her interest rate on English debts has increased; the public debt is growing again; her customs revenue for the first time since the Fielding tariff of 1897 has seriously declined; expenditures have about trebled in three years.

It is time that the pendulum turned. Its swing is already apparent towards the Liberal policy of sane, economical administration which will preserve Canadian credit at home and abroad, together with a revision of the tariff which will give the poor man a chance to live within his income.

THERE ARE IMITATIONS NOW

But Newbro's Herpicide Was the "First Dandruff Germ Destroyer."

A discovery can be made but once. After that all similar acts become emulation, imitation or an attempt at substitution.

Newbro's Herpicide is a discovery. It was the first remedy ever given to science to kill the dandruff germ. Other preparations have since been offered to the public, some similar in appearance, some in odour, but all bringing the daring promise of doing the same things that Herpicide has been doing for years.

Every article of this kind is merely one more instance of vicious emulation, vile imitation or a base attempt at substitution.

The "something just as good" story is old, why give it a thought? Herpicide is the Original Remedy. It destroys the dandruff and prevents the hair from falling. Itching of the scalp stops almost with the first application.

Don't be deceived by "something just as good," If your own druggist does not keep the genuine dandruff germ destroyer, Newbro's Herpicide, go to one who does.

Newbro's Herpicide in 50c. and $1.00 sizes is sold by all dealers who guarantee it to do all that is claimed. If you are not satisfied your money will be refunded.

Send 10c. in postage for sample and booklet to The Herpicide Co., Dept. R., Detroit, Mich. Applications may be obtained at good barber shops.

TWO HOME TEAMS BIT THE DUST IN THE FIRST DIVISION

While Division of Honours Occurred in But One Instance Rovers Comfortably Disposed of the Pensioners From Chelsea--Sheffield United Carved Their Way to Glory at the Expense of Preston.

Only two home teams bit the dust in the first divison of the Engish League on Saturday, while the division of honours occurred in but one instance, the game between Sheffield Wednesday and Everton being the case in point, which resulted in a draw of one goal each.

At Birmingham the Villans were run to a close finish by Liverpool, which occasioned no surprise.

Blackburn Rovers comfortably disposed of the pensioners from Chelsea, which also was much in keeping with what was expected.

The Athletics of Oldham must be awarded the honours of the day for their odd goal victory at Valley Parade, Bradford. In this case, consistency kept well within its own confines, for was it not stated in Friday's Herald that whatever little pull there was judging on past performances, the men of Spindledon had it in the shape of a victory by the odd goal? Yet, the same thing happens again. Verily, history is thus often fascinatingly true.

Derby County and Burnley is just another instance of history's funny methods, and the men, of the peak shire are now slowly climbing toward the summit of the League.

Somehow, Manchester City can never do much with their brethren, the United. What ails the citizens when playing at home should by this time be a desperate circumstance with the club's directors and supporters.

Sheffield United further carved their way to glory at the expense of proud Preston. Now that the Braemall Lane men have secured the services of George Utley from Barnsley they will be warriors worthy of their steel and will be hard to beat.

Middlesboro with Newcastle U. and Clarke of Tottenham against the Throstles of West Bromwich may both be classed on a par as having performed a very smart thing

Everton, in sharing the honours with Sheffield Wednesday at home, and the defeat of the Trotters by Sunderland on Wearside were events that created no great surprise.

In the second division the cities of Hull and Lincoln were rampant, each side running up the lucky seven total. Wolves, against the Tigers of Hull, could only reply once, while Stockport replied on three occasions to Lincoln. Bradford materially strengthened their position by their odd goal victory at Huddersfield, and this brace of points were obtained at a valuable moment.

In the Scottish League Airdrieonians came back at the expense of Ayr United. Dave Graham, late of this City, has made his first appearandy with Airdrie, whose manager is very much struck with his play.

Celtic continued their upward march by vanquishing Third Lanark by three clear goals. The Celts are surely setting a hot pace for the rest.

Dundee were captal markamen at Dumbarton. Five goals to one is going some in that famous old football nursery.

Falkirk piled on the agony against Raith Rovers, and 'twill be funny if the latter wreak vengeance on some unsuspecting victims next week.

GILLESPIE for MAYOR

To the Electors of the City of Peterboro:

Ladies and Gentlemen—At the urgent solicitation of many of my business and personal friends, I have consented to become a candidate for the position of Mayor of your City, and respectfully solicit your votes and influence.

As in the past, I shall not make any rash promises to gain the vote of any elector, but, if elected, my attitude on every question will be to stand firm for the best interests of our Progressive City.

Having been interested in Peterborough all my life, and one of your Aldermen for five years, I may fairly claim to be in close touch with every section and every interest of the Municipality, and familiar with its needs and ambitions.

I believe that in all respects the will of the people should prevail; that a vigorous but economical administration is the best administration, and that if your Chief Magistrate is able to devote a fair proportion of his time to his civic duties, it will not be to your disadvantage if he brings with him the experience and energy he displays in the conduct of a large and successful business of his own.

If my success in the Council during the past five years has in the main met with your approval, I shall esteem it an honour to have your further approval and support in the coming contest.

Yours respectfully,

G. A. GILLESPIE

GREAT RUGBY BY THE "HUMAN LOCOMOTIVE."— Dr. Smirlie Lawson played one of the best games of his career against the Tigers of Hamilton, the Canadian champions, in a testimonial game played in Toronto.

Shag To Have A New Infield

Ottawa Free Press: Realising he can never get by in 1914 with the material left from last year's Canadian League champions, Manager Frank Shaughnessy has made an early start for new material and working his lines specially in the direction of a new infield. Last year Shag had a very promising bunch of infield youngsters at spring training. When the bell rang on the Canadian League season the only one to hold down his job was Cos. Dolan. At Fort Wayne young Strawbridge looked a wonder at short, while Arnfield, the Notre Dame recruit, was almost a certainty for second. Neither delivered when it came to a show-down and were turned loose. Shag floundered along with a hopeless infield till the middle of the season, when he secured Frank Smejkal for second. New Crowder short and Dusty Bullock third. This trio was not brilliant, but made a reliable defence and by some fighting on Shag's part and good pitching by Renfer and Rogers, the team squeezed through to another pennant.

The Terre Haute club of the Central League has offered Ottawa first chance on three men. One is Wheeler, an ex-big leaguer, who is an outfielder of exceptional speed. He is the most likely looking of the bunch, but is not a youngster and will hardly be considered. Terre Haute is anxious to secure Frank Dolan.

Though it looks a futile effort, the Senators will endeavour to bring Artie Schwind back here next year. George Stallings recalled Schwind from San Antonio at the close of the Texas league season, and will take him south with the Boston Nationals next spring. Schwind is not likely to stick with Maranville setting the National league on fire at short, and will be farmed out beyond a doubt. It's a question if Stallings would send him back to a class C league. Buffalo is anxious to secure the youngster, and if he fails to make good there the Ottawas may land him.

Smejkal will not be able to report till June, according to latest word, which means he will have little chance of playing in the Capital next year. Bullock finished the season strong at bat and infield, and if he breaks to the same form at spring practice will no doubt be a fixture at third. Crowder has been given his release at his own request, as he wants to play down south in 1914, and, besides, he is too weak a hitter to be carried along another season by the Senators.

The pitching staff as it looks just now (leaving Lefty Rogers out of it) is practically nil. Tom Kane is a warm weather hurler, and little can be expected from him till July. Donovan showed nothing last year, while Kubat fell down badly. Joe Lill has the goods in his arm, but so far has failed to come across with the grey matter. As one manager put it: "He has a ten thousand dollar arm and a ten cent head." Lill, however, will be given another chance at spring training.

It will be seen that Shaughnessy needs pitchers as well as infielders. So far as the outfield is concerned, there is not much to worry about. Shag expects Petie Powers to develop into a good pasture man, as he is young and looks good at the plate he will be carried regularly. In addition, Petie is a pretty fair backstop to sub with Artie Lage.

GOOD TURNOUT AT THE RINK

The change to cold weather had its effect on the hockey turnout at Brock St. Rink last night, and the biggest squad of the training season was out for an hour's hard work. The opening of the O.H.A. season is only three weeks away, and every player should be on hand at every workout from now on. The schedule for the local junior district will in all probability open three weeks from Friday night, and with no ice yet available, it will be a question of getting into condition by the present training methods. Among the junior candidates out last night were: Halpin, Rose, Richardson, Barrie, Phelan, Legendre, Picard, Regan, Clancy, Legrow, Hogan and Foster.

There will be another workout tomorrow night at 7 o'clock.

CURLING

Nearly one hundred curlers were present at a smoker of the Peterborough Curling Club that was held in the Charlotte Street Curling Emporium on Monday evening. Mr. H. F. Foote, President of the Club, was in the chair.

An outstanding feature of the meeting was the decision of the curlers to uphold the constitution, together with the by-laws hat were enacted a the annual meeting in April last.

Clause six of the by-law enacts that all members who have not paid their fee of ten dollars prior to or on the first Monday in December shall be regarded as non-members. Dilatory members desirous of renewing their membership after that date shall be required to make formal application as new members.

By-law Was Upheld.

It was this particular clause that resulted in the meeting passing a unanimous vote in favour of the by-law.

Mr. Fred Brownscombe, Secretary of the Club, reported that out of a membership of ninety-four a total of seventy-five members had paid their dues in accordance with the terms of the by-law. The by-law also specifies that the names of dilatory members shall be posted upon the bulletin board for a period of one week. It was around this point that the discussion centred. Some of the members were in favour of introducing a motion to extend the time limit one week. The majority, however, declined to support the proposed motion on the grounds that it was contrary to the by-law.

A Technicality.

Mr. W. H. Denham contended that the point raised constituted a technicality and offered that the by-law should be construed so as to imply that members of the previous year be accepted on the same basis as new members, with the exception that their names would not be posted up.

Messrs. Denham, Connal, Renwick, Dr. Greer and a number of others refused to support the resolution to extend the time limit on the grounds that it was contravention of the by-law.

It was finally decided to hold a meeting on Monday evening next, when the skips will select their rinns. Members who have not paid their dues prior to that date will not be attached to a rink.

New Members.

The folowing applications were received and accepted as new members: A. N. Allison, W. H. Baker, Geo. A. Benore, N. H. Campbell, S. Clegg, J. D. Collins, A W. Cressman, F. C. Cressman, A. E. Dixon, F. H. Dobbin, R. F. Downey, J. H. Eastwood, J. Edgar, T. C. Elliott, W. A. Fisher, B. M. Glover, G. Walter Green, E. H. D. Hall, T. M. Howard, W. H. Lytle, C. Gordon Mackay, Herb R. Martin, H. P. Morgan, A. P. Maclean, Chas. D. Nixon, L. A. Potvin, Wm. Tennant, A. M. Tomline, L A. Turner.

The membership fee was raised from eight dollars to ten dollars. The President explained that the orginal fee of eight dollars was inadequate to meet the expenses in connection with the operation and management of the club.

Mr. David Eason withdrew as a member of the club. He contended that the club was legally obliged to accept his membership fee of ten dollars, which he was prepared to tender. He declined to have his name posted up on the bulletin board for the reason that he had neglected to pay his fee prior to or on the first Monday in December.

ULSTER ON THE MAP OF IRELAN D — PREMIEA HOLDS OUT THE OLIVE BRANCH.—At a glance this map shows the Province of Ulster and its proportion to the whole territory of Ireland. Premier Asquith has announced the willingness of the Government to a measure of compromise on Ulster's behalf.

Naval Holiday Strongly Upheld.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 9.—By an overwhelming vote the House yesterday passed the Hensley resolution, requesting President Wilson, so far as he can do so with due regard for interests of the United States, to co-operate with the suggestion of Winston Churchill, Lord of the British Admiralty, for an international naval holiday of one year.

Trying to Corner Market.

OTTAWA, Dec. 9.—Officials of the Department of Agriculture are inclined to the belief that the proposed embargo by the United States on Canadian potatoes because of alleged "powdery scab," is being engineered by American interests, who hope to corner the market in that country.

Municipal Packing Plant.

CALGARY, Dec. 9.—Mayor Sinnett announced yesterday that the municipal packing plant scheme, in which the C.P.R., the G.T.R. and the C.N.R. will be interested, will be made the big issue with the City Council immediately after the first of the year.

To Stop Gambling.

CHATHAM, Dec. 9.—Chief of Police Groves has started a crusade to stop gambling in the city barber shops on Sunday. He has notified all the barbers of the city to keep their blinds up on Sundays.

FIELDING STORY HAS BEEN DENIED

Special Wire to The Examiner.

OTTAWA, Dec. 9.—A report sent out from the Capital that Hon. W. S. Fielding is likely to re-enter Parliament is entirely without any intimation from Mr. Fielding, or from any authoritative Liberal source. The ex-Minister of Finance has already actively re-entered political life by assuming the editorship of the Montreal Telegraph and for the present at least, he intends to devote himself to the duties of his new position.

PROBABILITIES.

Fresh to strong west to southwest winds; fair to-day and on Wednesday with a slightly [illegible] temperature.

OFFICERS ELECTED

The Juvenile Branch of the A.O.F., White Lilly Court, No. 86, held their regular meeting in the S.O.E. Hall, Hunter street, last night. There was a good attendance of members and a great deal of business gone into. According to reports from the boys they are advertising the branch and are striving to get new members. The following officers were elected:

Past Chief Ranger—Bro. Allan C. Boyce.
Chief Ranger—Bro. Wilfred Miller.
Sub. Chief Ranger—Bro. J. J. Ball.
Treasurer—Bro. A. Laws.
Secretary—Bro. W. Head.
Sen. Woodward—Bro. J. Ball.
Jun. Woodward—Bro. Vincent Miller.
Sen. Beadle—Bro. L. Field.
Chaplain—Bro. A. Jackson.
Medical Officer—Dr. Amys.

A very pleasant evening was spent and a suggestion discussed regarding a concert to be held later. The members think that a good concert and entertainment would go a long way to make known their aim and object which is a good one for all boys from the age of five years to seventeen years.

A boy from 5 years and under 12 years pays 20c per month, and receives $1.00 per week for 26 weeks and free medical attendance during sickness, besides funeral benefits. From 12 to 15 years, 25c per month and $1.50 per week. From 75 years to 17 years, 30c per month and $2.00 per week sick pay. These are handsome rates and are a great benefit to the head of a home when sickness comes. The members will be glad to render any advice and information. They meet every second and fourth Mondays in S.O.E. Hall, Hunter street, at 8 p.m., and are dismissed sharp at 9:30 p.m. Parents who have boys would do well to look into this and get their boys enrolled under such a good order as the Ancient Order of Foresters and with benefits such as they offer. The boys are being well looked after by a committee from the men's lodge, and will have every opportunity of the training that goes toward the making of good men.

BIRTHS.

HOWELL.—On Dec. 8th, to Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Howell, 271 Simcoe Street, a son.

CAMERON. — In Peterborough, on Dec. 9, 1913, the wife of Mr. G. O. Cameron, 172 Antrim Street, of a daughter.

Stock Markets

A. H. Stratton & Co., Brokers, report the following:

The stock market opened to-day irregular, with a strong undertone, with the exception of C.P.R. It opened 3 3-4 down from yesterday's close at 225 3-4 and then went up to 227. We think the daily operators will seek buying opportunities in the standard stocks on any recessions.

The technical position of the market is very good, notwithstanding the advance, for reliable signs multiply that general liquidation has run its course. That the short interest has expanded to wide proportions, that European and American speculative interests have no accumulated lines of importance and private borrowing for declines—weak spots still exist. We understand there has been more investment absorption since the president's message, from significant sources, than for some time prior to its issuance.

We favour U.P., S.P., G.Q., L.N., St. Paul, R. & O. and Erie in all recessions.

C.P.R. creates 55 million special investment fund. Common stock holders of Dec. 23 will receive a ratio of 1 to 5 two million 6% note certificates at 90, payable at par in 1914.

J. J. Mitchell, President of the Illinois Trust and Savings Bank, believes the bottom of trade depression has been reached.

CALL TO LIBERALS

Sir Wilfrid Urges Fight for a Lower Food Tariff

MR. FIELDING IS HONOURED

MONTREAL, Dec. 10.—Hon. W. S. Fielding was the guest of honor at a banquet in the Ritz-Carlton last night attended by Sir Wilfrid Laurier and many others prominent in the Liberal ranks.

It was another manifestation that Canadian Liberalism is getting back again to where it belongs. There was a real enthusiasm, the enthusiasm of men united, whole-hearted, eager and militant, men with principles to fight for and their country's welfare at stake. From east and west the incoming Liberals brought messages of cheer and confidence.

Only two toasts followed the honoring of the health of his Majesty the King. They were: "Our Guest," to which Hon. Mr. Fielding responded, and "Our Cause," with which Sir Wilfrid Laurier's name was associated.

"Our Guest" was proposed by Messrs. R. C. Smith and F. Rinfret, the former speaking in English, the latter in French. Both paid tribute to the services of Mr. Fielding.

Hon. W. S. Fielding was received with cheers and was heralded by President Mitchell of the Montreal Reform Association as "the only man in Canada who can effectively grapple with our problem in the high cost of living."

Mr. Fielding was not prepared to believe the defeat of 1911 was because the people of Canada were opposed to better trade relations with the United States. It was inconceivable that intelligent people would condemn any Government for accomplishing the thing that every Government had struggled for since Confederation. It was nothing to be ashamed of if Liberalism had gone down for the cause for which Macdonald, Mackenzie, Blake and Tupper had fought. But he did not believe this had been the issue in question.

Speaking of the record of the present administration, he said: "The time has come now when Canadians can fairly do some comparing and contrasting. We now have the right to measure promises with performances, the right to compare things as they were with things as they were to be and with things as they are."

Turning to the tariff Mr. Fielding described the Government's Tariff Commission as a fiasco. The cement duty had been reduced but the reduction was speedily put on again. He said he believed in purpiness, but he believed more in the prosperity and happiness of the people.

If there was too much taxation they should reduce it. The surplus had reached great figures, and the comfort and well-being of the people demanded the first consideration.

Mr. Fielding concluded shortly after midnight.

The toast to "Our Cause" was proposed by Messrs. Antonio Perrault and A. R. MacMaster in brief speeches, and Sir Wilfrid Laurier followed.

Conditions were not satisfactory, and it was the business of the Government to look after the happiness and prosperity of the people. For the first time since 1896 Canadians are seeking work and not finding it. Unemployment was abroad in the land, there was less work, and there was the higher cost of living. He was amazed to read in a Conservative newspaper a report of the Minister of Labor's speech in Halifax yesterday. According to what Mr. Crothers had declared, there was nothing to do, nothing to change, everything was serene, everything was for the best.

"If the Government will not act, then the Opposition will act," declared Sir Wilfrid. "The Opposition will rise to its duty.

"The tariff as it is operated to-day permits combines to unduly increase the cost of living, and the prices paid the farmers are not the prices paid by the consumers.

"There are higher and better things than fighting for power; that is to fight for the wives, for the children, for the men who upon reduced wages must face the coming cold Canadian winter. And come, let us fight this battle of humanity."

Sir Wilfrid concluded at one o'clock this morning.

Hon. Charles Marcil was the last speaker.

Against Sympathy Strike.

LONDON, Dec. 10.—The trades union council yesterday rejected a resolution in favor of a sympathetic strike of the trade unionists in the British Isles in support of the transport workers of Dublin and instructed the delegates in Dublin to endeavor to resume negotiations with the employers in view of bringing about a speedy settlement of the dispute.

The meeting of the council was a stormy one, the adherents of James Larkin, the strike leader, stubbornly resisting all the proposals of the conservative element which, however, eventually carried the day.

Coming to Save Schmidt from Death.

NEW YORK, Dec. 10.—The aged father and the sister of Hans Schmidt, confessed slayer of Anna Aumuller, are on their way from Germany to New York to save him from the electric chair, if possible, by their testimony that he has been insane for years.

ELECTION ANNULLED

Huerta Appointed President for Seven Months

HE SEEKS FUNDS ABROAD

MEXICO CITY, Dec. 10. — The Mexican Congress yesterday nullified the Presidential elections. New elections are called for next July.

Congress, according to this action, expects Gen. Huerta to remain in the Presidency for a term seven months more and if the time necessary for the selection and installation of his successor is taken into consideration, it will be well toward the end of September next year before he yields his power to another.

In voting last night that the recent Presidential election was null, the deputies decided to fix the first Sunday in July, 1914, as the date for the new election. They also confirm the position of Gen. Huerta as Provisional President until then.

The action of the deputies was accompanied by no debate. The committee report was approved without a dissenting vote as rapidly as the articles could be read. It was not until the last clause was read, referring to Gen. Huerta as Provisional President, that the chamber gave evidence other than that of a well-trained organization. When the reading clerk stopped someone began applauding and then instantly the deputies were shouting "vivas" for Huerta.

The action of the new Congress was no surprise to most people since it was but a reiteration of Huerta's statement made from time to time. There had been, however, a growing impression that the new organization might prove reactionary, but its approval last night of Huerta's program serves to reassure the doubting ones that the acting President retains his grip on the political situation.

A rumor that Huerta may retire from the Presidency owing to pressure from abroad is circulated in the capital.

Huerta Seeking Funds.

PARIS, Dec. 10.—Representatives of the Mexican Government are endeavoring to raise money in Paris. The Mexican financial agent in London, Luis de la Barra, and Manuel Garza Aldape, former Minister of the Interior in the Huerta Cabinet, have opened negotiations with the Banque de Paris at Pays Bas and other members of the London and Paris banking group which took part of the Mexican loan authorized in the spring, with the object of having this group advance $6,000,000 or $7,000,000 more immediately, in order to meet the interest on Mexican railroad bonds and the interest on various loans.

An exchange of views is now going on among the bankers, to whom special inducements have been offered, but they appear to be reluctant to touch the matter and would do so only if they were assured of adequate guarantees.

None of the money, it is said, is to be used for any purpose except payment of interest on national obligations, many of which are held in Paris and London.

Goes Suddenly Insane.

BRANTFORD, Dec. 10—Yesterday morning about 10 o'clock Mrs. Bradshaw of Michigan, while waiting for a train at the Grand Trunk station, became suddenly violently insane, and so terrified the other waiting passengers that the police were called. The police had all they could do to secure the woman and convey her to the police station. She was visiting friends here.

WINTER FAIR OPENS.

Big Crowds Attend Best Show In the History of Guelph.

GUELPH, Dec. 10.—The 13th annual Provincial Winter Fair opened here yesterday with record crowds in attendance, and, according to those who know, it is the best ever held in Guelph and eclipses any live stock show heretofore put on in the Dominion.

That the Federal Department of Agriculture has definitely decided to assist the Provincial Winter Fair by a substantial grant, was the message from Hon. Martin Burrell, Minister of Agriculture, delivered by Mr. John Bright at the civic luncheon.

"For the first time in your history Mr. Burrell is providing for a grant to this fair for the ensuing year," declared Mr. Bright, amid the enthusiastic applause of the guests. The speaker was not prepared to name any amount in connection with the announcement entrusted to him, but gave the assurance that the money would be forthcoming.

The big feature of the fair is the horses now. Nearly four hundred horses of all sizes and breeds are on exhibition.

There is a large entry of cattle sheep and swine. The leading attraction in the cattle stalls was the large Aberdeen Angus steer, Glencarnock, Victor II., the animal that captured the grand championship at the Chicago Show.

Among the new features is the egg exhibit, in charge of the live stock branch of the Dominion Department of Agriculture.

The Holstein cattle won the dairy competition, entirely outclassing the other breeds.

Merchant Dropped Dead.

QUEBEC, Dec. 10.—While waiting for his change from an account which he had just paid in a store on Buade street, about 12.45 p.m. yesterday Victor Lemieux, aged about 55, who keeps a large hardware store on St Peter street, suddenly fell to the floor unconscious. An attendant who saw him fall hastily summoned help and clerks ran to the unfortunate man's assistance. He was still breathing when picked up, but expired before either the doctor or the priest, who had been hastily summoned, arrived on the scene. Deceased had been ailing for some time from heart disease.

RATES ARE REDUCED

Hydro Commission Announces Another Big Cut

ENLARGEMENTS PROJECTED

TORONTO, Dec. 10. — Before leaving the city last night, Hon. Adam Beck, chairman of the Hydro-electric Power Commission, announced a substantial reduction in rates for several municipalities in the power union. These reductions apply to municipalities where the consumption of power has increased to such an extent during the past twelve months that the peak load at Niagara Falls has reached figures that bring the graduated scale of prices into operation.

At the same time the demand for power has grown to such proportions that the commission has decided upon an elaborate program of extensions that will involve a capital expenditure of upwards of three-quarters of a million dollars. "This action by the commission," said Mr. Beck, "is based on the increased consumption of power as well as anticipating a continued growth. We will immediately set to work to duplicate the main transmission line from Niagara Falls to Dundas. This is now a double circuit, and we will double the line from Dundas to St. Thomas, via London, which is a single circuit at the present time. On account of the heavy capital expenditure entailed the commission will delay reducing the price of power to all the municipalities for another year, with the exception of a few, where we feel justified in making a reduction at the present moment."

The reductions in the cost of Hydro power recommended by the commission are as follows:

Hamilton from $16 to $15; Dundas, from $16 to $15; Caledonia, from $29.10 to $25; London, from $24 to $23; Guelph, from $22 to $21; Preston, from $22 to $31; Galt, from $22 to $21.50; Waterloo, from $23.50 to $22.50; Berlin, from $25 to $21.50; Baden, from $37 to $32; Port Credit, from $31 to $28.

All of these municipalities, without exception, may reduce their light rates from Nov. 1.

The building of the new line from Niagara Falls to Dundas, Mr. F. A. Gaby, chief engineer, estimates will cost $500,000. This will mean an entire new outfit of transmission towers and cables with all the necessary appliances. It is altogether likely that the commission will do this work itself, and the line will be built on a private right-of-way to be purchased. The doubling of the Dundas-London-St. Thomas circuit will cost about $100,000. No new towers will be required for this line.

Already a great deal of extension work has been done. The transformer station at Niagara Falls has been enlarged to three times its original size, and foundations are now in for another addition that will bring its capacity to between 120,000 and 150,000 horse-power. The station at Toronto has been doubled twice, and large additions have been made to the Dundas station. The stations at St. Thomas, London, Stratford, Berlin and Guelph have all been enlarged. The present power load on the Niagara system is about 60,000.

The ultimate effect of the cut in the price of power and the handsome profits being shown by practically all the municipalities in the Hydro scheme will mean a further reduction in power and light rates to consumers. "Recommendations have been sent out to twenty or thirty municipalities," said Mr. Beck, "suggesting that new rates be struck for the benefit of consumers."

Should Increase Salaries.

TORONTO, Dec. 10.—The Ontario Municipal Electrical Association, formed of representatives of the group of municipalities to the agreement to unite for using the provincial hydro electric system and to maintain the lowest possible rates for the power, met in the City Hall yesterday afternoon. It was the association's second annual meeting. G. R. Geary presided. He offered a resolution that $25,000 be divided between the three provincial commissioners for salaries, inasmuch as the system is now a well-established going concern and those who manage it should be paid.

George Sutherland, of Ingersoll offered an amendment that the salaries do not exceed $15,000, but the support was small. Then the resolution to pay $25,000 was adopted by a large majority.

These offices were elected: President, W. J. Lyon, Guelph, vice-presidents, E. I. Sifton, Hamilton; Philip Pocock, London; secretary-treasurer, H. N. Ashworth, Toronto; executive, Mayor Carter, Guelph; Mayor Euler, Berlin; Ald. Roach, St. Thomas; Ald. Bradburn, Peterboro; Commissioner Black, Toronto.

KINGSTON, Ont., Dec. 10. — The disappearance of the adopted son of B. H. Newton, near Cross Lake, has caused consternation among the people of the district, who fear the little fellow has been devoured by wild beasts, for wolves and bears abound there. About 20 persons have been searching for him.

MAJORITY INCREASED.

Wick Burghs, Scotland, Support Asquith in By-Election.

WICK, Scotland, Dec. 10.—The bye-election held in the Wick Burghs Monday resulted in the Government candidate, Robert Munro, retaining his seat by a larger majority than he received at the last election. The result of the polling was: Robert Munro (Lib.), 1,677; Mr. Mackenzie (Unionist), 1,134—Liberal majority, 443.

The Liberal majority at the last election was only 211. A new election was rendered necessary by the appointment of Mr. Munro as Lord Advocate for Scotland.

The poll has been an exceedingly heavy one, in fact, the heaviest one since the 1896 election, being fought almost exclusively on the two burning issues of home rule and church disestablishment.

Lloyd George, telegraphing Munro, said: "It is rather sickening to see upholders of sectarian privileges in England profess to be champions of religious equality for Ireland. I wish the English and Scottish Tories would concede the English and Welsh nonconformists the same measure of religious equality and fair play as will be guaranteed to Ulster Episcopalians and Presbyterians under the home rule bill."

"That Affair Next Door"

By ANNA KATHARINE GREEN

She had just said good-night to her lover, and her face recalled to me a time when my own cheek was round and my eyes was bright and—Well! what is the use of dwelling on matters so long buried in oblivion! A maiden-woman, as independent as myself, need not envy any girl the doubtful blessing of a husband. I chose to be independent, and I am, and what more is there to be said about it? Pardon the digression.

'Is Miss Oliver any better?" asked Miss Althorpe; "and have you found ——"

I put up my finger in warning. Of all things, it was most necessary that the sick woman should not know my real reason for being there.

"She is asleep," I answered quietly, "and I think I have found out what is the matter with her."

Miss Althorpe seemed to understand. She cast a look of solicitude towards the bed and then turned towards me.

"I cannot rest," said she, "and will sit with you for a little while, if you don't mind."

I felt the implied compliment keenly.

"You can do me no greater favour," I returned.

She drew up an easy-chair. "That is for you," she smiled, and sat down in a little low rocker at my side.

But she did not talk. Her thoughts seemed to have recurred to some very and sweet memory, for she smiled softly to herself and looked so deeply happy that I could not resist saying:

"These are delightful days for you, Miss Althorpe."

She sighed softly—how much a sigh can reveal!—and looked up at me brightly. I think she was glad I spoke. Even such reserved natures as hers have their moments of weakness, and she had no mother or sister to appeal to.

"Yes," she replied, "I am very happy; happier than most girls are, I think, just before marriage. It is such a revelation to me—this devotion and admiration from one I love. I have had so little of it in my life. My father——"

She stopped; I knew why she stopped. I gave her a look of encouragement.

"People have always been anxious for my happiness, and have warned me against matrimony since I was old enough to know the difference between poverty and wealth. Before I was out of short dresses I was warned against fortune-seekers. It was not good advice; it has stood in the way of my happiness all my life, made me distrustful and unnaturally reserved. But now—ah, Miss Butterworth, Mr. Stone is so estimable a man, so brilliant and so universally admired, that all my doubts of manly worth and disinterestedness have disappeared as if by magic. I trust him implicitly, and—Do I talk too freely? Do you object to such confidences as these?"

"On the contrary," I answered. I liked Miss Althorpe so much and agreed with her so thoroughly in her opinion of this man, that it was a real pleasure to me to hear her speak so unreservedly.

"We are not a foolish couple," she went on, warming with the charm of her topic till she looked beautiful in the half light thrown upon her by the shaded lamp. "We are interested in people and things, and get half our delight from the perfect congeniality of our natures. Mr. Stone has given up his club and all his bachelor pursuits since he knew me, and——"

O love, if at any time in my life I have despised thee, I did not despise thee then! The look with which she finished this sentence would have moved a cynic.

"Forgive me," she prayed. "It is the first time I have poured out my heart to any one of my own sex. It must sound strange to you, but it seemed natural while I was doing it, for you looked as if you could understand."

This to me, to me, Amelia Butterworth, of whom men have said I had no more sentiment than a wooden image. I looked my appreciation, and she, blushing slightly, whispered in a delicious tone of mingled shyness and pride:

"Only two weeks now, and I shall have some one to stand between me and the world. You have never needed any one, Miss Butterworth, for you do not fear the world, but it awes and troubles me, and my whole heart glows with the thought that I shall be no longer alone in my sorrows or my joys, my perplexities or my doubts. Am I to blame for anticipating this with so much happiness?"

I sighed. It was a less eloquent sigh than hers, but it was a distinct one and it had a distinct echo. Lifting my eyes, for I sat so as to face the bed, I was startled to observe my patient leaning towards us from her pillows, and staring upon us with eyes too hollow for tears but filled with unfathomable grief and yearning.

She had heard this talk of love, she, the forsaken and crime-stained one. I shuddered and laid my hand on Miss Althorpe's.

But I did not seek to stop the conversation, for as our looks met, the sick woman fell back and lapsed, or seemed to lapse, into immediate insensibility again.

"Is Miss Oliver worse?" inquired Miss Althorpe.

I rose and went to the bedside, renewed the bandages on my patient's head, and forced a drop or two of medicine between her half-shut lips.

"No," I returned, "I think her fever is abating." And it was, though the suffering on her face was yet heartrendingly apparent.

"Is she asleep?"

"She seems to be."

Miss Althorpe made an effort.

"I am not going to talk any more about myself." Then as I came back and sat down by her side, she quietly asked:

"What do you think of the Van Burnam murder?"

Dismayed at the introduction of this topic, I was about to put my hand over her mouth, when I noticed that her words had made no evident impression upon my patient, who lay quietly and with a more composed expression than when I left her bedside. This assured me, as nothing else could have done, that she was really asleep, or in that lethargic state which closes the eyes and ears to what is going on.

"I think," said I, "that the young man Howard stands in a very unfortunate position. Circumstances certainly do look very black against him."

"It is dreadful, unprecedently dreadful. I do not know what to think of it all. The Van Burnams have borne so good a name, and Franklin especially is held in such high esteem. I don't think anything more shocking has even happened in this city, do you, Miss Butterworth? You saw it all, and should know. Poor, poor Mrs. Van Burnam"

"She is to be pitied!" I remarked, my eyes fixed on the immovable face of my patient.

"When I heard that a young woman had been found dead in the Van Burnam mansion," Miss Althorpe pursued with such evident interest in this new theme that I did not care to interrupt her unless driven to it by some token of consciousness on the part of my patient, "my thoughts flew instinctively to Howard's wife. Though why, I cannot say, for I never had any reason to expect so tragic a termination to their marriage relations. And I cannot believe now that he killed her, can you, Miss Butterworth? Howard has too much of the gentleman in him to do a brutal thing, and there was brutality as well as adroitness in the perpetration of this crime. Have you thought of that, Miss Butterworth?"

"Yes," I nodded, "I have looked at the crime on all sides."

"Mr. Stone," said she, "feels dreadfully over the part he was forced to play at the inquest. But he had no choice, the police would have his testimony."

"That was right," I declared.

"It has made us doubly anxious to have Howard free himself. But he does not seem able to do so. If his wife had only known——"

Was there a quiver in the lids I was watching? I half raised my hand and then I let it drop again, convinced that I had been mistaken. Miss Althorpe at once continued:

"She was not a bad-hearted woman, only vain and frivolous. She had set her heart on ruling in the great leather-merchant's house, and she did not know how to bear her disappointment. I have sympathy for her myself. When I saw her——"

Saw her!! I started, upsetting a small work-basket at my side which for once I did not stop to pick up.

"You have seen her!" I repeated, dropping my eyes from the patient to fix them in my unbounded astonishment on Miss Althorpe's face.

"Yes, more than once. She was—if she were living I would not repeat this—a nursery governess in a family where I once visited. That was before her marriage; before she had met either Howard or Franklin Van Burnam.

I was so overwhelmed, that for once I found difficulty in speaking. I glanced from her to the white form in the shrouded bed, and back again in ever-growing astonishment and dismay.

"You have seen her!" I at last reiterated in what I meant to be a whisper, but which fell little short of being a cry, "and you took in this girl?"

Her surprise at this burst was almost equal to mine.

"Yes, why not; what have they in common?"

I sank back, my house of cards was trembling to its foundations.

"Do they—do they not look alike?" I gasped. "I thought—I imagined ——"

"Louise Van Burnam took like that girl! O no, they were very different sort of women. What made you think there was any resemblance between them?"

I did not answer her; the structure I had reared with such care and circumspection had fallen about my ears and I lay gasping under the ruins.

XXV.

"The Rings! Where Are the Rings?"

Had Mr. Gryce been present, I would have instantly triumphed over my disappointment, bottled up my chagrin, and been the inscrutable Amelia Butterworth before he could say, "Something has gone wrong with this woman!" But Mr. Gryce was not present, and though I did not betray the half I felt, I yet showed emotion for Miss Althorpe to remark:

"You seemed surprised by what I have told you. Has any one said that these two women were alike?"

Having to speak, I became myself again in a trice, and nodded vigourously.

"Some one was so foolish," I remarked.

Miss Althorpe looked thoughtful. While she was interested she was not so interested as to take the subject in fully. Her own concerns made her abstracted, and I was very glad of it.

"Louise Van Burnam had a sharp chin and a very cold blue eye. Yet her face was a fascinating one to some."

"Well, it was a dreadful tragedy!" I observed, and tried to turn the subject aside, which fortunately I was able to do after a short effort.

Then I picked the basket up, and perceiving the sick woman's lips faintly moving, I went over to her and found her murmuring to herself.

As Miss Althorpe had risen when I did, I did not dare to listen to these murmurs, but when my charming hostess had bidden me good-night, with many injunctions not to tire myself, and to be sure and remember that a decanter and a plate of biscuits stood on a table outside, I hastened back to the bedside, and leaning over my patient, endeavoured to catch the words as they fell from her lips.

As they were simple and but the echo of those running at that moment through my own brain, I had no difficulty in distinguishing them.

"Van Burnam!" she was saying, "Van Burnam!" varied by a short "Howard!" and once by a doubtful "Franklin!"

"Ah," thought I, with a sudden reaction, "she is the woman I seek, if she is not Louise Van Burnam." And unheeding the start she gave, I pulled off the blanket I had spread over her, and willy-nilly drew off her left shoe and stocking.

Her bare ankle showed no scar, and covering it quickly up I took up her shoe. Immediately the trepidation she had shown at the approach of a stranger's hand towards that article of clothing was explained. In the lining around the top were sewn bills of no ordinary amount, and as the other shoe was probably used as a like depository, she naturally felt concern at any approach which might lead to discovery of her little fortune.

Amazed as a mystery possessing so many points of interest, I tucked the shoe in under the bedclothes and sat down to review the situation.

The mistake I had made was in concluding that because the fugitive whose traces I had followed had worn the clothes of Louise Van Burnam, she must necessarily be that unfortunate lady. Now I saw that the murdered woman was Howard's wife after all, and this patient of mine her probable rival.

But this necessitated an entire change in my whole line of reasoning. If the rival and not the wife lay before me, then which of the two accompanied him to the scene of tragedy? He had said it was his wife; I had proven to myself that it was the rival; was he right, or was I right, or were neither of us right?

Not being able to decide, I fixed my mind upon another query. When did the two women exchange clothes, or rather, when did this woman procure the silk habiliments and elaborate adornments of her more opulent rival? Was it before either of them entered Mr. Van Burnam's house? Or was it after their encounter there?

Running over in my mind certain little facts of which I had hitherto attempted no explanation, I grouped them together and sought amongst them for inspiration.

These are the facts:

1. One of the garments found on the murdered woman had been torn down the back. As it was a new one it had evidently been subjected to some quick strain, not explainable by any appearance of struggle.

HAD INDIGESTION.

Almost Despaired of Ever Getting Well.

When your food has not been properly digested, your body has not received the benefit it should. The exertions of the gastric juice have been confined entirely to removing the unmasticated, undigested portions of food, which they cannot properly digest as speedily as possible from the body, therefore only giving the blood a small percentage of nourishment with which to feed the tissues. No wonder then that Indigestion and Dyspepsia attack the stomach. No medicine can surpass Burdock Blood Bitters as a cure for this particular disease. It regulates the bowels, promotes perfect digestion, makes pure blood, tones the stomach, and thus restores perfect health to the debilitated system.

Mrs. Mary MacKay, Hunter's Mountain, N.S., writes:—"I was troubled with Indigestion for more than ten years. I tried several Doctor's medicines claiming the power to cure, but all without success. Having heard of the many cures effected by Burdock Blood Bitters, I decided to give it a trial. After taking two bottles I was completely cured. My appetite which was very poor, is now good, and I can eat most everything without any disagreeable feelings. I can strongly recommend B.B.B. to anyone suffering from Indigestion."

ENGLISH PRODUCT ENTERS CANADIAN MARKET.

Ronuk, Ltd., of Portslade, England, has opened an office in Toronto, and is now pushing the sale of its well-known line of Ronuk Polishes. Their preparations are admirably adapted for the Canadian climate, and are now being introduced into the Dominion through the usual channels of trade. Ronuk Polishes are made from the purest vegetable wax, and are entirely free from acid, grit or other injurious ingredients. They are said to be specially suitable for polishing floors, linoleum, furniture, etc., and are also claimed to be valuable antiseptic, many of which are now using them.

SMOKERS IN FACTORIES

Their Carelessness Causes Many Needless Fires

It is an open question whether the careless fool or the deliberate criminal does more damage by fire. Advantage seems to lie with the fool, because he is everywhere gladly bringing down destruction, while the fire bug must go about his deadly work stealthily, at weird hours and in awkward places.

Chief among the fools who carelessly cause fires is the smoker. His blazing match is cast down still alight. His cigarette end falls into piles of paper or shavings. The burning ashes of his trusty pipe descend gently into oil vats and barrels of gunpowder. If the fool destroyed only himself, the world could bear his actions philosophically, but he usually escapes while better men perish.

In England great wealth was accumulated by a man who was shrewd enough to locate small tobacco stores opposite factory entrances, but his fortune represented the loss of many fortunes by his brother manufacturers.

Smoking should be absolutely prohibited in or about every Canadian factory, and employes breaking this rule should be dismissed. If the rule became national, manufacturers could inform each other of these dismissals and could refuse employment to persistent offenders. If it were enforced there would be fewer fires, better work would be done, and the smoker would enjoy his weed more keenly in the evening, after a day's self-denial.—Industrial Canada.

POPULAR SUPERSTITIONS

Some Signs That Most People do Not Disregard

James Russell Lowell, that calm scholarly poet, tells us that "a mythology or superstition broods over us in our cradles and mingles with the lullaby of the nurse; it is in the winter evening legends of the chimney corners and is never entirely eradicated."

From the earliest recollection of the first rehearsal of the "bogie man" down to the day when your sweetheart plucked the petals from the flower, saying "He loves me, he loves me not," there has been a strange, though at times an illogical, sequence to things coupled with superstition.

What politician and candidate would not accept a bunch of four-leaf clovers from a maiden and feel convinced that fortune smiled upon him? We would like his name and we would wish to see his photograph.

What bride, whether of cottage or castle, but would feel slighted if her friends did not shower her with rice as she was helped into carriage or automobile? And what bridegroom, whether of low or high brow, would feel scorned if the old shoe were not flung at him as he drove away with his bride?

Distinguished statesmen, poets painters, orators, inventors, and merchants have attested their consideration of the popular superstitions of marriage, and have paid tribute to the goddess Superstition in their wedding gifts to their brides.

Was Confined To His Bed For Four Months With Rheumatism.

Mr. W. H. Riley, Ruddell, Sask., writes:—"It is with the greatest of pleasure that I can recommend Doan's Kidney Pills to all suffering with rheumatism. I was so bad with this terrible disease, I was unable to get up from my bed for four months, and nothing seemed to relieve me until a friend recommended Doan's Pills. I had my doubts about them, but was so desperate I would try anything suggested to me. After taking half a box I was able to get up, and after taking two boxes could get around quite well. After taking six boxes I was completely cured, and able to work for the first time in five months, and have not had a touch of rheumatism since. Anyone who saw me then would not know me now, as I am strong and active since taking your valuable medicine."

Doan's Kidney Pills help the kidneys to flush off the acid and poisonous impurities which have collected, and thus clean out the kidneys, and dispel the rheumatism from the system.

Doan's Kidney Pills are 50 cents per box, or 3 boxes for $1.25, at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

If ordering direct specify "Doan's."

THE REAL COLUMBUS.

Little Known About Actual Looks of Great Discoverer.

What did he look like? To-day 421 years after he made his world discovering voyage, we are much a sea concerning the great admiral's personal appearance.

Of one thing, however, we may be assured the discoverer bore the likeness to the pictured image which occupies the foreground of Vanderlyn's famous painting of the Landing of Columbus.

It stands to reason that after a voyage of two months and nine days in a 60-foot sailing ship he did not step ashore dressed as though he were going to a court function. Not only are the popular representations of the daring sailor's costume inaccurate, but the sketch of his physical appearance is also all wrong. The whole difficulty with getting a faithful copy of the features of Colombus lies in the fact of the absence of any life-drawn picture.

The portions which are so numerous to-day can nearly all be traced back to an engraving called the Paulus Jovius cut, made from a painting that has been lost. And another factor of inaccuracy, the lost painting was not an original work, but was executed upon what the lawyers term "hearsay evidence." It was painted early in the 16th century by the direction of a Spanish nobleman, who at that time was collecting a gallery portraying famous Spaniards.

There were men living then who had known the great sailor, and it is presumed that the lost portrait was built upon information they gave. In the Paulus Jovius engraving Columbus is drawn without a beard and, therefore, present day artists nearly always represent him as clean shaven. The cut shews him as a man over 50 years of age, wearing the peculiar Spanish tabard, the dress still used by the sailors of Vigo.

In reality the accepted likeness of the admiral is after the manner of being an idealistic conception. We are all familiar with the strong, clean-shaven face from which deep, expressive eyes look out under a broad brow. The heavy lines from the nose to the corners of the mouth are also characteristic of the popular portraits. But this is no picture of the man who discovered America.

Columbus had red hair. Also, as was the almost universal custom of the sailors at that period, he wore a beard. On this point is the evidence of Las Casas, his shipmate and historian. He states that "The admiral was a man of sturdy stature, rather above the average height, of a very ruddy complexion, with freckles and red hair when he was young. The latter soon turned white which was also the color of his beard." This description in no way fits in with the picture of Columbus familiar to Canadians.

It Would Flatter Man.

Few men have deserved and few have won higher praise in an epitaph than the following, which was written by Lord Byron on the tomb of his dead Newfoundland:

"Near this spot are deposited the remains of one who possessed beauty without vanity, strength without insolence, courage without ferocity and all the virtues of man without his vices. This praise, which would be unmeaning flattery if inscribed over human ashes, is but a just tribute to the memory of Boatswain, a dog, who was born at Newfoundland May 3, 1803, and died at Newstead abbey Nov. 18, 1808."

EARLY DAYS IN WEST

FUR TRADERS' JOURNALS GIVE INTERESTING RECORDS.

Big Rewards Awaited the Skill and Daring of the Pioneer White Men Who Went West of the Great Lakes — Privations Were Severe and a Moose Head Fed Seventeen After Three Days Fast.

A lawless country our West has never been since it passed to the jurisdiction of the Government of Canada. True, shortly before the acquiring of possession there was insurrection, and fifteen years later there was a second short-lived uprising, but the strong arm of the Federal Government promptly put down both. With the exception of these few months of disturbance, the sovereign's writs have run in the West, just as they have run in other parts of the Dominion and in other parts of the Empire. Life and property have been protected by means of law, order has been maintained, and justice administered. And for this favorable state of affairs great credit is due that force of which Canada has just reason to be proud—to the Royal Northwest Mounted Police.

But if our Canadian West has not been lawless, it has been wild. For years it was a wild country, such as the hunter and trapper love, where large rewards awaited their skill and daring. It has ceased, however, to be a wild country. Collected on their reservations, the Indians are becoming farmers; and, collected in parks, are the only buffaloes that now crop the grass of the prairies.

The hunter's lodge has given place to the farm-house, and wheat fields, waving like a sea of gold in the September breeze, tell that it is to the soil, and not to the fur-bearing animals that the West now looks for its wealth. There is still a "Northwest" where the trapper and hunter can follow his trade, but the "Old West," has gone for ever.

To learn about the Old West one must now go to books in which are set down the experiences of men who knew it before its first grain crop had ripened, and before dairy cattle had taken possession of the buffaloes' ancient pasture.

Of all the books describing the early West, none are more interesting and instructive than the journals of the fur traders. They are histories of the West, written by men who helped to make history, presenting true pictures of the country as it then was—pictures of its physical appearance, of conditions of life prevailing there, and of the men who were leaders of that wild adventurous life.

Two well-known traders — uncle and nephew, but each bearing the name, Alexander Henry — have left valuable records, out of which it is possible to reconstruct something of the life of the West that has now passed into history.

Few men, who have put pen to paper, have had more extensive, varied and intimate personal acquaintance than Henry the Younger acquired with the Indians in the course of his long experience as a trader among many different tribes. His journal is an absolutely unvarnished tale, in which the results of the writer's experiences and observations are set down.

The winter of 1799-1800 was spent in the West on the Terre Blanche, and the journal for that period shows how hard-pressed the hunters in the wilds were at times. Game was very scarce, and Henry was obliged to hire his hunters on what he called extravagant terms. Besides giving for pelts about three times the quantity of goods that was usually the case, he gave to each man, woman and child a full suit of the best goods in stock, with a nine-gallon keg of "Sauiteur liquor" to each man. "I also furnished them with guns, knives and ammunition, tobacco, other articles necessary for a hunter, and a special allowance of two gallons of liquor for each animal taken."

It was no uncommon thing on the Red and the Assiniboine for an Indian to give five or six prime beaver skins for a quart of "Saulteur liquor"—diluted whisky.

Goods rated at $30 and probably costing $15 were often exchanged for furs, which sold in Montreal for $400. No wonder many fur traders made wealth.

During that winter, animals were so scarce that Henry and his men often suffered from hunger. For example, "on December 19, 20 and 21 we ate nothing till the evening of the last day, when I received a moose's head, which was boiled and divided among seventeen persons."

By April 11, the river was clear of ice, and Henry embarked in his canoe for Portage la Prairie—where to-day three transcontinental railways meet. From that place he forwarded to Montreal, by canoe, the furs taken during the winter—his first winter in the West—and his clear profit was £700 Halifax currency, equivalent to $3,500—not a bad return for one year's work.

In the following July, Henry was at the Grand Portage, at the head of Lake Superior, with his stock of goods to be forwarded to the West for another winter's trade.

On this occasion Henry was going only as far as the Red River, and his cargo was made up of loose tobacco, kettles, guns, iron balls, twist tobacco, leaden balls, leaden shot, flour, sugar, gunpowder, and high wines.

The large canoes that brought up the goods from Lachine at the head of the Rapids, nine miles above Montreal, could go no farther than the Grand Portage on the Pigeon River, at the head of Lake Superior. All the goods had to be carried on men's backs over the Portage, which was nine miles long. The labor of this land carriage was great.

At the western end of the Portage the goods were loaded into smaller canoes, which followed the Rainy River and Lake of the Woods route to Lake Winnipeg and the Red River.

THE GREAT LAKES

We all know in a general way that Lake Superior is the largest and Lake Ontario the smallest of the Great Lakes, but the relative facts are scarcely known to the average person. While Lake Michigan ranks second in size, being forty-five miles shorter than Lake Superior, it is twice as deep as its greatest depth, the figures being 900 feet for Lake Superior and 1,800 feet for Lake Michigan, so that in cubical contents the latter far outreaches Superior. Lake Huron's greatest depth also is a hundred feet more than that of Lake Superior, so that the greatest is not superior to everything after all.

Lake Erie and Lake Ontario are comparatively shallow, with maximum depth of 204 feet and 442 feet, and yet we should not like to fall overboard in either of them. In width—maximum figures—Lake Superior comes first with 160 miles, Huron second with 105, Michigan third with 84, Erie fourth with 60, and Ontario last with only 52 miles of greatest breadth.

In comparison with its area, Ontario leads with a drainage of 29,769 square miles for its area of 6,700, the others being Erie, drainage, 39,680, area 23,000 square miles; Michigan, drainage, 70,000, area, 22,400 square miles; and Superior, drainage, 85,000, area, 22,000 square miles. Drop in elevation is very gradual, Lake Superior being 600 feet above sea-level, Michigan 578 feet, Huron 574 feet, Erie 564 feet, and then comes a big drop to 234 feet for Lake Ontario.

Fatality of Whooping Cough

Many parents think lightly of whooping cough, and treat it as a necessary evil, not giving the child who has it any special attention.

The seriousness of whooping cough was emphasized by the Medical Health Officer in Toronto a few months ago, when he reported 14 deaths during the month from whooping cough, and only ten from scarlet fever, typhoid fever and measles combined.

So many people write to us about the relief and cure of whooping cough by the use of Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine that we can recommend it with the greatest confidence.

It loosens the cough, aids expectoration, and by its soothing influence prevents the terrible paroxysms of coughing which are so distressing to witness, and which wear away the strength of the child. By using this treatment the disease is held in check, and cured in a few weeks, instead of months. Look for the portrait and signature of A. W. Chase, M.D., on the bottle you buy. There are many imitations.

Founder of Sunday School.

Robert Raikes, the man who founded the modern Sunday school, was a journalist with a passion for what he termed "botanizing in human nature," and seems to have had very little in his make-up of the conventional religious reformer. His great experiment is said to have been suggested by the disturbance caused by crowds of little ragamuffins playing beneath his window on Sunday afternoons when he was correcting proofs. "Why should they not be put together, and taught the elements of religion and good behaviour?" he asked himself, and answered the question by establishing the first Sunday school at Gloucester in 1780. It was characteristic of the man that in his school scheme he laid as great stress upon the inculcation of "manners" as on the teaching of the Catechism.

Humor and Philosophy

PERT PARAGRAPHS.

WHEN a politician starts to mending his fences he frequently finds that material comes high.

There is always room at the top, but the top never has elevator service.

In the interest of realism breakfast food people should have Excelsior for their motto.

A bachelor is a lonely man. He has no children to take to the circus nor wife for whom to gather gossip.

There are tricks in all trades except your own. That's why your own doesn't pay.

Get the saving habit. The results will come handy to your relatives.

The ability to forget unpleasant things is more comforting to the soul than an ice cream soda on a hot day.

Some persons believe firmly in the power of the stars over their destinies. It offers such a soothing explanation of their own failures.

Put not your faith in kings. Your opponent may hold aces.

Opportunity often goes unrecognized because it wears the guise of hard work.

Many a woman prides herself upon her charity because she believes only part of the gossip about her dearest friend.

Some Reasons.

A fancy feeling, indistinct,
About my head is floating—
It seems to me I heard a word
Or two concerning voting.
And that reminds me, I must take
My rifle and go gunning
For several special candidates
Who fancy they are running.

Ah, when we amble to the polls
To drop our solemn ballot
For pen with which to make the mark
We often use a mallet!
Instead of striving for the best
And for our country planning,
We look for names we do not like
And only think of canning.

Some man who didn't ask our wife
When his wife gave a party
We will remember, you can bet,
And scratch him good and hearty,
And any one who kicked our dog
Or said our verse was rotten
Will know when listening to returns
His acts were not forgotten.

The good that men can do may out
A figure in the voting
But other things may enter in,
As I just here am noting.
Upon the noble and the great
We may delight in gazing,
But still we never can forget
Our enemies need hazing.

The Best of It.

"My dad's a rich man," boasted the freckled faced boy.

"Is that so?" gibed the redheaded little girl.

"You bet."

"Mine is richer than that."

"How could he be?"

"'Cause he's as rich as a hundred rich men."

Sure Thing.

"Beauty adorned"—

"Oh, I know all about that."

"Do you?"

"Yes; is adorned the most."

"Not on your life!"

"No?"

"No; is due to run a large mouthly account."

Too Fat.

"Why didn't Jack propose?"

"Some one pointed out that I will look like mamma some day."

And He Could Do It.

"She married a count."

"Gladys?"

"Yes."

"Mercy! I wonder how she could do it."

"Oh, she wanted some one to count her dad's millions."

Couldn't Penetrate It.

"Did that hired girl I sent up reach you?" telephoned the employment agent.

"Yes; she got here some time ago."

"She is an angel in disguise."

"Oh, what a perfect disguise!"

Game of Cobbler.

The players form a circle around one of their number, who personates the cobbler and for whom a stool is provided, on which he takes his seat, saying, as he goes in mimicry through the operations of his trade: "Come, ladies and gentlemen, come and let me try on your shoes!" to which the band reply by dancing round him as quickly as possible, singing, "Try, try!" The cobbler, without moving from his seat, strives to seize one of the dancers—a girl by her dress or sash, a boy by his leg—and, if he succeeds, becomes master and remains idle in the middle of the circle while his prisoner pays a forfeit and becomes cobbler.

Worse Than She Suspected.

"You ought to make allowances, Mrs. Weezely, for the eccentricities of genius. If your husband were an ordinary man he would have a placid disposition and be easy to get along with."

"Do you think my husband is a genius?"

"Certainly. Everybody recognizes him as one."

"Dear me! Here I've been hoping all this time that it might merely be indigestion or something he could overcome by dieting."

Life's Romance Hidden in Tales of Unclaimed Fortunes

MYSTERY OF THE VANISHED DESMOND FAMILY

THE disappearance of seven members of one family—a mother, her five children and her niece—is, to say the least, something out of the ordinary. Individuals disappear so often that cases of the kind have come to be looked upon as commonplace, but the case of the vanished Desmond family cannot be so described.

This mystery may be said to date back to 1835, in which year two brothers, Daniel Joseph and James H. Desmond, were sharing an office at No. 99 Spruce street, Philadelphia. James was a struggling merchant and died poor. That is all that need be said about him here, for he has hardly any further bearing on this story. Daniel is of more concern, because he left when he died an estate valued at $20,000, and to this day it remains unsettled because his daughter Mary and the widow and five children of his brother seem to have completely and mysteriously vanished.

Daniel Joseph Desmond was a lawyer, and a prominent one. The records of the Department of State at Washington bear witness to the fact that he was recognized by the President as Consul General for His Holiness Pope Pius IX, by an act dated December 5, 1841, and that he took up the duties of that office on the 21st day of June following. The city directory of Philadelphia for the year 1843 gives evidence that he was then attorney and Consul for Austria, Portugal and Tuscany. The directory for 1844 describes him as "Consul General for the Pope, Vice Consul for Sardinia, Consul for Austria, Portugal and Tuscany," and that for 1846 shows him registered as "Consul General for the Pontiff States." Only in one more Philadelphia directory does his name appear, that for the year 1848, for during an epidemic of cholera which swept the Quaker city in 1849 and 1850 he fell a victim to the disease and died.

Years previously he had married a Miss Pink Blyden. She was the daughter of Governor General Blyden, of the West Indies. Eight children were born to the couple, but five of these died in infancy. Daniel Desmond was survived by his wife and the remaining three children, Mary, Edward and Henry. They and their mother continued to reside in Philadelphia until the year 1864 and then removed to New York, but, with the exception of Edward, definite trace of all of them is lost from that date on.

Unconfirmed report has it that the mother died in one of the hospitals in New York in 1868 and that the son Henry had died the year before. In the light of what is known now, it is safe to accept this report as fact, and so they are not included among the "missing." Traces of Edward's whereabouts were found by pure luck. Without anything to back up their suspicions, the attorneys who have been trying to bring about a final settlement of the estate turned to the records of the War Department in the hope that they would find a clew in regard to Edward. They were rewarded for their pains. The records show that he enlisted in the regular army of the United States on November 12, 1863, and that when his term of enlistment ended in 1867 he re-entered the ranks. He died at was having troubles, too. James died not long after Daniel and he was survived by one of the Western posts. During the entire time that he was in the service he his wife and five children, Clement, was stationed in the West, and so he was not present when either his mother or his brother Henry died. But it is known that at times he made attempts to get into touch with his sister Mary and was not successful.

The House Became a Place of Mystery

While one misfortune after another was thus visiting the family of Daniel Desmond, the family of his brother James were not left in comfortable circumstances by the death of the husband and father, and so, like the family of Daniel, they removed to New York, probably in order to be near their relatives. It is not quite certain just when this migration took place, but it is certain that they were in the metropolis at the time Mrs. Pink Blyden Desmond died, for her daughter made her home with them after the death of her mother.

It was most important that Mary be traced, because she had in her possession her father's will. But in attempting to follow her up those conducting the search ran against an amazing discovery—not only she, but her aunt and five cousins, had vanished without leaving the slightest trace!

The house in which this branch of the Desmond family had lived became a place of mystery, and neighbors found unending interest in peering through the windows, as though expecting to find some solution of the mystery inside.

It hardly seems possible that seven persons could disappear so completely. Mary, it is said, taught school in New York for a number of years previous to her mother's death, but a careful search of the records of the Board of Education fails to show that she was a teacher in the employ of the Board at any time. Acting under the presupposition that she had been a teacher in a parochial school—her father's connections with the Papacy prompted this—the attorneys went through the records of these, too, and they likewise yielded nothing. Her name does not even appear in any of the New York city directories. For that matter neither do those of her mother, brother, aunt or five cousins.

The search has revealed that none of these Desmonds ever owned real estate in New York or Brooklyn, and the records of the Surrogate's office do not show that any of them left wills that were filed. Scores of persons bearing the name of Desmond and living in New York or any of its suburbs from Perth Amboy to Tarrytown have been personally questioned at one time or another, but none of them can give any information concerning this missing Desmond family. Five hundred Desmond families living in the United States and Canada have been questioned by letter, and though replies have been received from members of all of these the results have been equally unsatisfactory. None of the missing seven died in New York or Brooklyn, if the files of the Board of Health are reliable, and none of them was at any time a patient in the public hospitals or an inmate of any of the city prisons or other institutions.

As a matter of fact, none of the above mentioned records show that either Mrs. Pink Blyden Desmond or her son Henry ever lived in New York, but, as has been stated above, they are not counted in the missing seven, because the fact that Mary went to live with the other Desmonds in 1868 shows that some sort of change had taken place in her old home. In all probability the others had died.

Many theories have been advanced in attempting to solve this mystery. Mrs. James T. Desmond might have married again and trace of her is lost perhaps through a consequent change of name, and, with that as a premise it can be deduced that her children took their stepfather's name and also are untraceable. But what of Mary? She could have no reason for taking that man's name. Of course, she may have married and may have thus taken another name herself, but that still leaves the mystery concerning the other six. Both of these theories are probably wrong, because they all dropped out of sight together.

They may have all perished in some marine or railway accident. Attempts have been made to trace them by going through the lists of victims of railway and steamship accidents that have occurred since 1868, but this is manifestly a task that can never be satisfactorily accomplished. It may be that they all removed to some remote part of the country or that they left the United States altogether.

Mary Desmond was born in 1832 and if living is, therefore, a woman eighty years old. If she died and left children who are still living they would by now be middle aged. And inasmuch as her cousins were all about her own age their heirs, too, would be about in middle life. But that is mere speculation.

What became of Mrs. James T. Desmond, of her daughter Mary L., her son Joseph, her son Charles, her son James, her son Clement and her niece Mary?

Some Novel Game Laws.

OHIO and Pennsylvania now require hunters to wear a hedge conspicuously exposed bearing the number of their hunting license, according to Bulletin No. 22 of the Department of Agriculture, setting forth game laws of the United States and Canada for 1913.

Hunters are required by the authorities of Manitoba to wear a white coat or sweater and cap, while those who hunt for big game in Saskatchewan must wear a complete outer suit and cap of white.

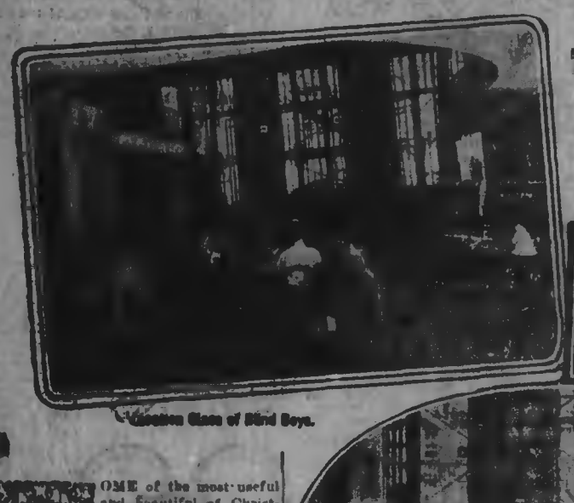
Maine, New Jersey, North Dakota, Washington, Mississippi, Louisiana, Minnesota and Wyoming prohibit the use of silencers. Connecticut has provided that any hunter who shall injure a fence or let down a bar without replacing it shall forfeit his hunting license and the license privilege for two years.

Connecticut, Pennsylvania and British Columbia require persons, applicants under sixteen years of age to present the written consent of parent or guardian. Vermont has a similar restriction for lads under fifteen, and Ontario does not permit children under fourteen years old to hunt except on the premises of their parents, relatives or guardians.

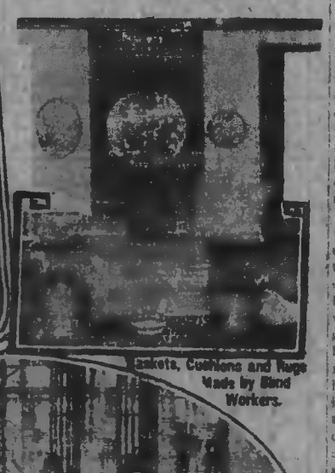
Restriction of hunting and greater uniformity of laws is the general trend of State legislation in the matter of seasons. Florida repealed all local game laws and made the seasons uniform throughout the State, and the passage of a measure in Wisconsin adopting the same opening date for upland game as is in force in Minnesota and North Dakota illustrates the fact.

Delaware shortened the season on ducks a month and on geese two weeks; Indiana curtailed the season six weeks on doves and ten days on quail and ruffed grouse; Michigan, sixteen days on woodcock, and Missouri one month on quail. Ohio shortened the season forty-five days on doves and pigeons, six weeks on shore birds, rail and geese, and west of the Cascades curtailed the season on ducks seventeen days. New Jersey shortened the open season twenty-six days on upland game and nineteen days on woodcocks, while Pennsylvania cut down the woodcock season two weeks. In Utah forty-five days were taken off the open season on sage hens, and Wyoming one month on sage grouse and two months on sage hen and geese.

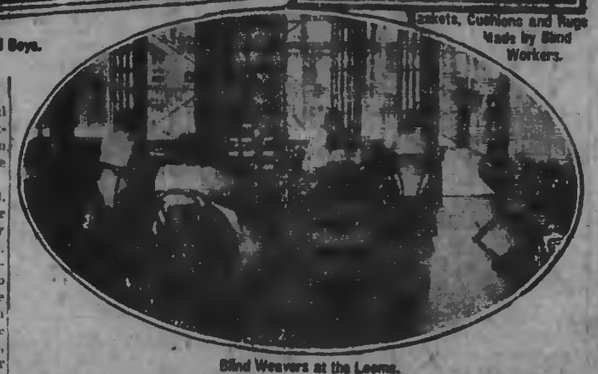
Christmas Gifts the Makers Never Saw



Vocation Class of Blind Boys.



Baskets, Cushions and Rugs Made by Blind Workers.



Blind Weavers at the Looms.

SOME of the most useful and beautiful of Christmas gifts for this season have been made by those who never saw them.

The makers are blind, but they are workers for themselves and for the seeing, and they are happy in proportion to their industry. Their optic nerves are idle, atrophied, useless, and the activities are transferred to quick, intelligent, "seeing" fingers. Some of them say, with a happy cadence in their voices, that they really see more than those who have the faculty of vision, for they have virtually ten eyes in their sensitive, highly trained finger tips, while ordinary persons have but two eyes each.

With their digital eyes the blind sort materials of varied hues, combine them and weave them. The distinctions of form and size that are apparent alike to the blind and to the seeing they seize upon more quickly than their normal brothers and sisters would believe possible, considering the handicap under which they labor.

The explanation of the work of the blind lies all in the training, the long, patient, unwearying instruction by those who make their life work the guidance of the blind. Having eyes, they instruct the sightless, until in time the patient fingers, groping at first, learn to distinguish and to follow the path which leads to usefulness and self-sustenance.

Just how the blind learn to discriminate colors is a mystery to the uninitiated until he learns that the expert, sensitive and sensitized finger tip distinguishes fabrics by the sense of touch. One fabric is green, another red, and so on. To the person who depends upon the finger tips instead of eyes the minute differences in the "feel" of the goods tell the magic story of color. It is a mystery and a wonder until the tale of the years of training and practise is told. Then the seeing really see how the miracles are accomplished and how the spacious, sunny, tastefully arranged show room an astonishing array of handicraft articles, suitable for gifts and for the furnishing of households, is exhibited and offered for sale.

There are toys for the children, personal adornments for the little ones and for adults and gifts for every member of a family. The variety is large, so that choice is not narrowed to any one class or to a few kinds of articles. And all are the work of the blind, who never see the beautiful things they make, save by the marvellous, almost incredible "sight" of the finger tips.

The visitor comes first upon some beautifully colored rag rugs. These have dainty border designs which compare favorably with any to be seen in the city shops. The bleuded hues show a distinct feeling for color. There is a violet colored rag rug with the Greek key border done in burnt orange. It would be a credit to any seeing weaver. In the making of these rugs the rags are torn, sewed and dyed and the looms are warped by the blind. Their work is a lesson in systematization. They depend upon memory and a keen sense of touch. There is much variety of color and border design, and the prices are low when one considers that the rugs are woven slowly, carefully and honestly on small hand looms and are made to last.

When the visitor passes from the rugs and hangings the basketry exhibit is seen. Here are baskets such as the aborigines weave in the Southwest, and others in shapes of which the Indians know nothing. The baskets are of many kinds and forms and colors. There are huge circular baskets and hampers, round, square and tri-cornered; waste baskets, reed trays with colored cretonne and glass covered bottoms, meeting the demand of the present mode; tea and coffee pot stands, small trays and large baskets, with compartments for silver; raffia baskets in the designs and colors known as Indian work. The trays with cretonne bottoms may be ordered to match the hangings of a room.

The display of cushions, with covers woven in color by the blind, is an art exhibit. This is the "rainbow corner" of the institution, for the hues dazzle the seeing eye. Red is neighbor to green, and blue pokes itself impudently into yellow, while brown and purple and pink and golden orange crowd about, impatient to be seen. The gamut of the spectrum is run up and down, with side excursions into bold combinations and delicate shadings that tell of a true sense of color in the seeing finger tips. There are bold contrasts and delicate harmonies as well as pretty nuances. All are woven of unspun silk and hemp and all are delights to the touch as well as to the eye.

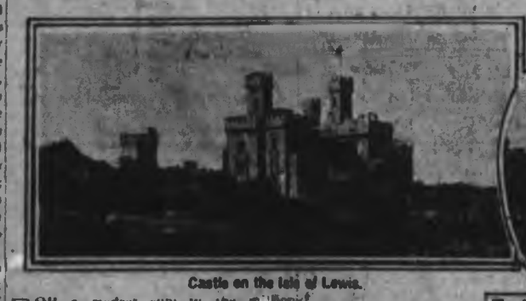
From the sofa and porch cushions the visitor to the "Light House" turns to the linen work, drawn and embroidered, hemstitched and plain, in white and colors. All are hand woven, and here, to delight the eye of the housewife and send her hand with a strong impulse toward her purse, are table scarfs and scarfs for the bureau and sideboard, runners for the dining room table, and the individual doilies with which the fancy of the day adorns the otherwise uncovered dining room tables. Some are bordered with fancy designs and are stunning in color effects.

There are only a few of the exhibits in the "Light House." Others are hand bags woven in gold and silver thread, with colored patterns woven in by hand; shopping bags, calling bags and opera bags. There are portfolios and card cases and there are the sashes which "every one" is wearing now. These are in great demand by the fashionable women who purchase the products of the blind, and the workers in the "Light House" cannot turn them out fast enough. There are collars and cuffs and sweaters and slippers and other articles to wear in seemingly endless variety.

The utilitarian side of life is not neglected. There are grades among the blind workers as there are among seeing toilers. Some of the sightless fill humbler spheres in the making of brooms, brushes, mops, &c. The blind piano tuner has made a place for himself in the city's life long ago, but he is still interesting.

Sitting at a desk in the "Light House" is a smiling woman. She writes quickly and easily and speaks and smiles cheerily. One has to look hard at her to perceive that she also is blind. A stenographer and a telephone operator are both employed in the busy, cheerful army of the sightless.

Lewis Island, the Scene of Romance and History



Castle on the Isle of Lewis.

The Gateway to Castle.

FOR a modest sum in the millions a man may become ruler over 25,000 persons, who occupy a district spreading over 500,000 acres. Nor will he be obliged to seclude himself in savage wilds at great distances from civilization to feel himself thus master of all he surveys. It will only be necessary for him to betake himself to the Outer Hebrides and purchase from Major Duncan Matheson the ancestral estates, which have been placed on sale, for him to become the sole possessor of the Isle of Lewis, off the northwest coast of Scotland, and also Shiant Islands, Flannan Islands and North Rona.

The great castle of Lewis overlooks the town of Stornoway, the principal settlement of the island and an unusually prosperous town for that quarter of the world.

Once the possession of the Macleods, the Isle of Lewis later became part of the great estates of the Earl of Seaforth, and, according to neighborhood legend, it was the exercise by a member of this family of the absolute right of life or death over a tenant of the estates which resulted in one of the most striking examples of second sight to be found in the annals of Scotland.

The prophecy, which came true word for word several generations after it was made, was uttered by that famous seer, Coinneach Odhar, a farm laborer upon the Brahan estate, the seat of the Earl of Seaforth. The island ruler of that day—the incident occurred during the reign of Charles II.—was Earl Kenneth. According to local history, Earl Kenneth found the peat bogs and solitary peaks of Lewis exceedingly wearying at times, so that he betook himself to Paris to seek diversion.

The Earl's device for putting ennui to rout is not the only modern element of the story. His Countess also was exceedingly modern in her ideas, for instead of dutifully concerning herself with the affairs of her household and praying fervently for the well being of her lord, she was as much inspired by an active curiosity as to the Earl's wisdom for prolonging his stay in the French capital as any great or small woman of the present day might be in like circumstances. As the mystery concerning the seer's agency waxing at the other end of a telephone to be called into the case was not to be had in Charles II.'s time, the Countess resorted to the next best thing. She sent for the most famous seer of the countryside and asked him to tell what kind of a time the absent Earl was having and to omit none of the details.

This particular seer had a famous white stone in which he could see marvellous things. As he looked into the stone at the behest of the Countess he saw much that was extremely interesting to her, and that was also, incidentally, highly derogatory to the reputation of her lord. The Countess was greatly pleased to have her worst fears verified. Nevertheless, she had the loyalty to family characteristic of her age and station, and after she had learned all that she wished she bethought herself that it would be a good thing to stop the mouth of the remarkable seer lest his revelations might spread beyond the discreet walls of the castle. Thereupon she sent for her retainers and coolly ordered that the obliging seer be instantly put to a horrible death. Never questioned the word of a countess, those days. The mere matter of disposing of a seer now and then caused no particular comment.

But the seer decided at least to make a record before he died. He instantly looked into the white stone again and prophesied just as fast as he could in the little time that remained to him. His gruesome utterances there are a number of shooting lodges which are let for the season or made over to friends of the owner. A specimen of the average game bag for the year is declared to consist of 200 deer, 1,400 grouse, 1,400 snipe, 300 woodcock, 2,200 salmon, 7,000 sea trout and 2,200 would inherit the last remnant of the estate and that she should kill her sister.

In time all these things came to pass. The title became extinct, as prophesied, and the estates were inherited by Lady Hood, a daughter of the last earl, who was a widow and came from India, which accounted for the white coifed lassie from the East. Returning Lady Hood had the misfortune to kill her younger sister. The property passed from the family bit by bit and the Isle of Lewis came into the possession of the late Sir James Matheson.

The River Creed.

Royalty has been entertained at Lewis. His late Majesty, King Edward, and Queen Alexandra were guests of the owners, and King George has also stopped there. The late Duke of Edinburgh was one of the many distinguished visitors who have enjoyed the hospitality of the Matheson family.

One of the features of the estate of Lewis is the gardens, which is renowned in this part of the country. The gardens, pleasure grounds and woods attached to the castle cover six hundred acres. None of the pleasures of the modern country house are absent from this secluded island possession, for in addition to its many drawing rooms, libraries, &c., the castle has a gorgeous ballroom, billiard rooms curling room, musicians' gallery, &c.

Lewis Island is a sportsman's paradise. Scattered through its deer forests and its grouse moors there are a number of shooting lodges which are let for the season or made over to friends of the owner. A specimen of the average game bag for the year is declared to consist of 200 deer, 1,400 grouse, 1,400 snipe, 300 woodcock, 2,200 salmon, 7,000 sea trout and 2,200

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

HER THANKSGIVING SHOE

Violet Blake had turned over for another nap, when Molly Leighton's head appeared through the curtains. "Do hurry, Vi," she exclaimed impatiently. "I have called you twice." Violet climbed down from her berth rubbing a pair of very sleepy blue eyes. "What shall I do?" she cried, after a moment's searching. "I can't find my other shoe." "Let me look," said Molly, "I know you left them down here with mine."

They continued their search, out into the aisle of the sleeper, and even into the sacred precincts of the neighbouring berths, but to no purpose, for the shoe had been accidentally kicked down the aisle by a hurrying passenger.

"We shall be carried on," wailed Molly distractedly. "What can I do?" cried the angry Violet. "Put on these slippers," said Molly, taking a pair of her own from her suitcase.

It was Thanksgiving morning, and the two girls had come up to Hartford to spend the day and night with Molly's cousin. Violet Blake, with no home save a lodging-house, and clothing which, though is the height of fashion, could in no way equal Molly's, had staked all her small savings on a pair of "stunning" boots, with this result, she was forced to appear at the home of an entire stranger, wearing slippers two sizes too large for her.

"I have a surprise for you, Violet," said Molly toward evening. "We are to have a masquerade tonight, and I had the loveliest gown sent up for you, but I forgot the slippers. Do you suppose you can manage to dance in mine?"

Not wishing to disappoint her friend, Violet agreed to try, and appeared in the ballroom clad in a short-waisted blue satin gown with her red brown curls caught low in her neck with a cluster of white carnations. Even with her face hidden by a mask, Leland Foster (who unknown to the girls had come down on the train with them, the night before) fell a victim to her charms and asked for the first dance, but not another. A girl who so persistently walked on a fellow's feet, who "walked half ways up a fellow's back," as he afterwards expressed it. Ask her for another dance? He guessed not. When she had ventured to apologise for her dancing, he had offered a polite "Don't mention it." She had answered with a pert: "I most assuredly shall," and shut her mouth up like a steel trap for the remainder of their dance. And this was the girl Molly had brought down with her because she was "such a sweet little thing." When the time came for unmasking, Violet was up in Molly's room indulging in a shower of tears. "Oh, no!" she groaned as Molly entered the room. "You tried so hard to give me a good time, but I never spent such a miserable evening in my whole life. All on account of losing my shoe. I might have danced in anything that fitted me and not clumped around, stepping on men's toes."

The following month Violet wished to employ a dressmaker and one of her friends recommended a Madam Blanc, who resided in a downtown lodging house. At Violet's first visit the landlady informed her that Madam Blanc was out, but would return directly, and told Violet to go up to the second floor back. Violet did as she was bade, and, opening the door, entered a dimly lighted apartment. She was too tired to notice her surroundings, and, sinking into a chair, closed her eyes and waited. After a time she felt refreshed, and, venturing to turn up the gas, amused herself with some books and papers. It was a queer room for a woman, with its pictures of football teams, its guns and its pistols. Behind the door hung some boxing gloves and a woman's shoe. Her husband must be very much in love with the madam to hang up her old shoe. Violet examined it with interest. It was not an old shoe after all—it was a comparatively new shoe, and it was very small. Violet glanced out of the window as she resumed her seat. Cars were going by in the street below. Then she could not be in the back of the house. She had made a mistake and got into the wrong room.

She opened the door and was stealing out when a thought struck her. She had lost a shoe in a sleeping car. Suppose it should be her Thanksgiving shoe. She crossed hastily and turned back the uppers.

There, in indelible ink, were her initials, which she usually put in her shoes to distinguish them from those of her roommate. She took down the shoe, turned down the gas, and was about to depart, saying, "I guess my shoe isn't going to stay here for a souvenir," when the door opened and there stood Leland Foster.

Explanations followed amid much laughter. He absolutely refused to part with the shoe, which he declared had been the solace of his bachelor loneliness.

Three months later he parted with the shoe by exchanging it together with a diamond ring for a kiss and the promise of a heart and hand. For Violet agreed to install herself in the place of her Thanksgiving shoe.

TORTURED WITH RHEUMATISM

Could Not Walk, Until "Fruit-a-tives" Completely Cured Him

CHATHAM, ONT., April 3rd, 1913.

"I am a veteran of the Crimean War and the Indian Mutiny, volunteering from the Royal Artillery into the Royal Engineers, and served under Lord Roberts during the Indian Mutiny, and am a pensioner of the British Government. Fierce hand-to-hand fighting and continual exposure, left me a great sufferer from Rheumatism, so much so that my legs swelled up, making it impossible for me to walk. My bowels were so constipated that I only had one passage a week until I got to using "Fruit-a-tives". They cured me of both the Rheumatism and Constipation. In my regular employment, I walk thirty miles a day and enjoy perfect health. No more Rheumatism or Constipation. You are at perfect liberty to publish this letter if it will be advantageous to "Fruit-a-tives".

CITY OF ORATORS

London of a Sunday is Crowded With Public Speakers.

"London is a city of orators," writes Harry Furniss in The Windsor Magazine." There is more public speaking to the acre, especially on Sundays, in this city than in any other. To get the full benefit of this boon, go to Hyde Park on a fine Sunday. By selecting a location advantageously it is possible to listen simultaneously to lectures on Fruiterianism, Socialism, and Christian Science, besides picking up valuable fragments of discourse on Esoteric Buddhism and Mormonism. A movement is on foot to establish a fund for providing Hyde Park orators with voice lozenges—a much needed charity. There is also another society for providing them with muzzles, but this by the way. Visitors to London who wish to orate themselves are at liberty to do so. Stand at a corner of a street talking in a large voice—it is immaterial what you talk about—and a crowd will soon gather round you and as long as you go on orating, nothing but a policeman or a collecting box will move them on."

On the subject of mammoth shops, he says: "There are several big buildings in London called stores or mammoth shops. The idea is to gather under one roof all that the heart of man—and man, in this instance, embraces woman—can desire. If they have a fault, they are too large. The other day I met my friend George, with his wife and son and heir; they were bound for a certain mammoth shop. By invitation I accompanied them. We entered, and left George, junior, in a room devoted to such encumbrances, and parted from Mrs. George, whose objective was gloves, while his was cigars. As they intended to buy a lamp-shade, a purchase needing joint selection, we arranged to meet in the lamp department. We parted lightly, little guessing—But I anticipate. George and I strolled away, and some time later tracked the cigar department to its lair. His purchase made, we strolled onwards, seeking lamps. This entailed using the lift for the third time, for, curiously enough, no two articles one wants are ever on the same floor. The lamp department took a deal of finding. Again and again, as we traversed department after department, we seemed to sight the promised land, but mirage like, it turned to Ironmongery or Haberdashery or Garden Requisites. It was like the story of Diogenes inverted, two (I trust) honest men seeking a lamp. At last, with the kind assistance of a page-boy, whom, we commandeered as guide, we located it. We found ourselves in a wilderness of lamps. But not with the aid of all their radiance—for most of them were lighted—could we discern the familiar figure of Mrs. George. We inquired for her in vain. After waiting a little, we went for the gloves, or, rather to look for her. In brief, we picked up the trail in the glove department, some way between gloves and lamps. We heard of her in perfumery, just missed her in lamps, doubled back for gloves, missed her again. Went to fetch George, junior, but she had been before us. Hours passed. George's hair began to turn gray under the strain. We set all the resources of civilisation—I mean the stores—into activity, and so by this time had Mrs. George, tired of being a grass, or rather, a stores widow. Detectives and department managers were pressed into service. Telephones were used. But the impatience of husband and wife time and again spoiled everything. Suppose George, by telephone, was told his wife was in leather goods, and she was informed at the same time that we were in silverware, she immediately started to join him via jewelry, and he to meet her via games, and so again they lost each other. At last, by dint of great tact and diplomacy — for by this time she was hysterical and he homicidal—both were decoyed simultaneously into boots and shoes. It was a touching scene, like the last act of an old-fashioned melodrama. The three of us were so affected that we had to adjourn to linen and buy new pocket handkerchiefs. And by the way, I don't think they ever bought that lampshade."

Taking Their Turn.

"Why station a policeman beside this park bench?"

"It is newly painted."

"He can't keep people from testing fresh paint."

"No, but he can keep 'em in line."—Kansas City Journal.

SOLDIERS' FUNERALS.

Elaborate Formula Governs the Last Rites In British Army.

"The deceased was buried with military honors." We often read this of the funerals of soldiers and ex-soldiers, although, according to the "King's Regulations and Orders for the Army," only those soldiers actually holding some military command or office at the time of their death are granted the honor of a military funeral. Military honors at the death of an ex-soldier are, therefore, an act of indulgence, which is, of course, never disputed.

The troops detailed for the escort, commonly known as the firing party, and varying in strength with the rank of the deceased, are drawn up in two lines with unfixed bayonets facing the building where the body is placed. When the body is brought out the escort is ordered to "Present arms," and as the procession is ready to move off, to "Reverse arms." The band follows the escort and the drums are muffled. The coffin, covered with the Union Jack, upon which are placed the headdress and side-arms of the deceased, is borne upon a gun carriage.

Pall-bearers, of equal rank with the deceased, march on each side, and the chief mourners follow immediately after the corpse, whilst next to them comes the following party of soldiers, usually comrades of the deceased. The officers, the seniors last, march in the rear.

In the case of mounted officers or men the horse of the deceased is led in the procession, the riding boots hanging reversed—that is, with the toes pointing to the rear—on each side of the saddle.

The strength of the escort is according to the rank of the deceased. It varies from 3[illegible] for the funeral of a lieutenant-colonel to thirteen for that of a private.

While the procession is proceeding in slow time it is usual for the band to play a funeral march, the favorite being Beethoven's or Chopin's, and the more familiar "Dead March in Saul" is commenced at the gates of the cemetery are approached.

In the case of Scottish regiments the pipers are accustomed to play a "lament," most probably "Flower of the Forest" for Highlanders and "The Land o' the Leal" for Lowland battalions. "Lochaber No More" is also selected.

When the head of the procession arrives near the spot where it is met by the clergyman, the escort halts and turns inwards, so as to form a line for the procession to pass through, and it is afterwards drawn up near the grave of their comrade. At the conclusion of the service the escort, previously resting on arms reversed, is called to attention and presents arms, and three volleys are then fired over the grave. It is to this custom that reference is made in "The Burial of Sir John More":—

Not a soldier discharged his farewell shot
O'er the grave where our hero we buried.

After the volleys have been fired bayonets are fixed and arms again presented, and the bugler then sounds the "Last Post."

And so the man who as a soldier has served his country may go to his last resting-place, whatever his rank, in an impressive and solemn manner befitting one who has worn the King's uniform.—Tit-Bits.

An Aged Swimmer.

Mr. John Classey, the oldest racing swimmer in England, recently took part in the "H. J. Phillips Cup" for veterans in the Serpentine, Hyde Park, London. Although he is 64 years old, Mr. Classey went in from the diving-board, and swam the distance of fifty yards in great style.

He was defeated by Mr. John Denty, the president of the Serpentine Club, who is the father of a well-known swimming family, and has himself been bathing all the year round in the Serpentine for nearly fifty years.

London's Smallest House.

London's smallest house, No. 10 Hyde street, visited by tourists from every part of the world, was recently put up at auction. It is built in the passage between No. 11 and 9, and has a street floor guarded by an iron gate leading on to Bayswater. There is, however, only one room in the house, and this is reached by a kind of ship's ladder, which runs up to it from the passage below. The house really goes with No. 9, but it was endowed with a separate existence as a house and a number placed on the street door by the then owner of the house next door, who built it in the early 70's for her maid to live in.

In Luck.

"Mamma, do animals know what they are called?"

"No."

Jack uttered a sigh of relief and remarked. "It would have been so unpleasant for the donkey, wouldn't it?"

LAXATIVE FOR A CROSS, CONSTIPATED, SICK CHILD, "CALIFORNIA SYRUP OF FIGS"

A coated tongue means sluggish liver and bowels—Listen mother!

Your child isn't naturally cross and peevish. See if tongue is coated; this is a sure sign its little stomach, liver and bowels need a cleansing at once.

When listless, pale, feverish, full of cold, breath bad, throat sore, doesn't eat, sleep or act naturally, has sour stomach, diarrhoea, remember a gentle liver and bowel cleansing should always be the first treatment given.

Nothing equals "California Syrup of Figs" for children's ills. Give a teaspoonful and in just a few hours all the foul waste, sour bile and fermenting food, clogged in the bowels, passes out of the system and you have a well and playful child again. All children love this harmful fruit laxative and it never fails to effect a good "inside" cleansing. Directions for babies, children of all ages and grown ups are plainly on each bottle.

Mother, keep it handy in your home. A little given to-day saves a sick child to-morrow, but get the genuine. Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs." Then look and see that it is made by the "California Fig Syrup Company." We make no cheaper size. Don't be fooled.

BRIEFS FROM THE WIRES.

King Alfonso and Queen Victoria of Spain arrived in Paris yesterday for a few days' stay.

With 2,000 union teamsters resuming work yesterday for friendly employers, there was little evidence of a strike called a week ago in Indianapolis, Ind.

J. F. Singleton of the Kingston Dairy School has been appointed to look after the enforcement of the Federal laws in regard to the sale of dairy products.

Damage by the storm Sunday near St. John, N.B., to the new wharf being built by Connolly and Charleson at Sand Point, will reach a quarter of a million dollars.

Milk producers of Berlin and vicinity have taken steps to fight the milk boycott, and it is rumored that they may ship their milk to Toronto by way of retaliation.

Delivery of United States mail by aeroplane may soon be a part of the postal service, according to a statement by Henry Woodhouse, a member of the Aero Club yesterday.

The bodies of fifty dead lie in their homes in Denver, Col., because undertakers cannot get ambulances through the snow to remove them. It is also impossible to reach the cemeteries.

The liner Zulia sank in 25 feet of water in the East River, off Red Hook Point, New York, yesterday, after a steel shaft, weighing several tons, had pierced a big hole in her bottom.

A consignment of 3,000 dozen eggs arrived in San Francisco from China. The shipment was made from Shanghai soon after news reached the orient that eggs were selling at 75 cents a dozen in America.

While a squad of police surrounded the Chicago municipal lodging house at sunrise yesterday to prevent any of the 600 "guests" from departing in haste, physicians vaccinated the lodgers to prevent a possible spread of smallpox.

Free Toothbrushes for Pupils.

STRATFORD, Dec. 10—The public school board of Stratford has fallen in line with the progressive metropolitan schools in the matter of sanitation. At its monthly meeting, it acted upon the suggestion of Miss Emily Loney, the public school nurse, that toothbrushes be supplied to those children who cannot afford to buy them themselves.

During the last three months Miss Loney has made 3,420 inspections.

MILITANT IN PARIS.

Mrs. Pankhurst Reaches French Capital and Meets Daughter.

PARIS, Dec. 10.—Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst arrived here yesterday to pay a short visit to her daughter, Christobel Pankhurst. Although looking very tired and weak, Mrs. Pankhurst expressed her determination to return to London to keep her engagement to speak at a meeting on Monday, whether she was fully recovered or not.

On the arrival of the train the suffragette leader was assisted to a taxicab, in which she drove to her daughter's apartments. Miss Pankhurst says that her mother's health had been greatly benefited by her trip to the United States, and for that reason she was able to stand three days' privations in Exeter Jail better than might have been expected.

A WEAK HEART

When the heart is weak or irregular in action, when the blood is thin and watery, remember the blood-forming qualities of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food and by its use feed the system with rich, red vitalizing blood. This is Nature's way of curing weakness and disease. It is the only way to ensure lasting benefit.

Promoters Well Paid.

NEW YORK, Dec. 10.—Of $1,000,000 worth of stock in four wireless telephone companies sold to the public, less than $350,000 reached the treasuries of the companies themselves; the remaining $1,550,000 and more was paid to agents and promoters, according to evidence introduced yesterday by the Government in the case of officers of the Radio-Wireless Telephone Co., on trial on charges of using the mails with intent to defraud.

This evidence was submitted in the form of tabulations made and sworn to by Government accountants.

Parcel Post Not To Be Delayed.

OTTAWA, Dec. 10.—"The difficulties which we are encountering in arriving at an agreement with the railways will not be allowed materially to delay the introduction of the parcel post," said Hon. L. P. Pelletier with emphasis yesterday.

Mr. Pelletier added that the parcel post would go into effect on Jan. 20 at the very latest, and if difficulties in the way could be more speedily adjusted it might be in operation before the new year was three or four days old.

SCHEME ENDORSED.

Guelph to Georgian Bay Radial Discussed by Delegates.

GUELPH, Dec. 10. Representatives from all the municipalities interested in the proposed Guelph-Georgian Bay Hydro Electric Radial Railway were present at a banquet held in the Y.M.C.A. building here.

A resolution endorsing the scheme and asking the aid of the Hydro-Electric Commission was presented and passed amid cheers.

Hon. Adam Beck was the chief speaker. He said they should investigate the proposed scheme thoroughly in order that all the fine points could be comprehended before the people launched into it.

He then went on to explain the various methods used in bringing the project to an issue. "Hydro will not not only operate your railways, but will also supply power for practically every use," he said. "It will make life less burdensome on the farm so that the young people will not be attracted from the farm, but they will be attracted to it."

Power can be distributed any distance up to twenty miles each side of the lines for electric light and power. There will be a saving of from $5 to $17 per h.p. if the line is run in conjunction with the railway.

Frederick the Great.

Frederick William I., father of Frederick the Great, was a most brutal old fellow, treating his son almost as badly as they treat the exiles in Siberia. Unable to endure such barbarity on the part of his father, Frederick resolved to run away and seek refuge at the court of his uncle, George II. of England. Ready to assist him in his attempt were his two young friends, Lieutenants Katte and Keith. By the imprudence of Katte the secret was found out, and Frederick was placed under arrest. Keith escaped, but Katte was tried by court-martial, sentenced to death and executed. Frederick also was sentenced to death and would have been shot but for the earnest expostulations of the Kings of Sweden and Poland.

VALUE OF RHEUMA FROM THE COURT

Judge Barhorst Was Relieved of Rheumatism After Doctors Failed

If you have tried many other remedies and doctors' treatments for Rheumatism and found they failed, do not be skeptical about trying RHEUMA. Read the testimony of Judge John Barhorst of Fort Loraine, O.:

"After treatment by three doctors without result, I have been cured of a very bad case of Rheumatism by using two bottles of RHEUMA. It is now two years since I used the remedy, and I am still as well as ever. Previously, I was a cripple, walking with crutches."

Such testimony should be convincing, 50 cents of Warne Drug Co., guaranteed.

BODIES COME ASHORE.

Five More Victims of Lake Tragedy Accounted For.

SOUTHAMPTON, Dec. 10. — Four more bodies have been found here —two of them from the Isaac M. Scott and two from the Hydrus. All had life-belts on. One was found about twelve miles north of here, and looked like George W. Palmer of the Scott. The other body from the Scott was found about five miles south, and answers fairly well to the description of Albert W. Wood, second mate of the Scott.

One body from the Hydrus was found just south of the town, and the fact of two front teeth being set in the upper jaw with bridge work, would indicate that he is Fred. Erickson of the Hydrus. The other body from the Hydrus has not been identified.

Another at Kincardine.

KINCARDINE, Dec. 10. — Yesterday morning about 11 o'clock another body from the Isaac M. Scott floated ashore a few miles south of Kincardine. On examination it was found that it was the body of Karl Edward Frederick Rosenberg, a wheelman on the ill-fated steamer.

Fractured Knee and Thigh.

GALT, Dec. 10.—Cyril, the young son of George Cox, Portland street, attempted to hang on to a cab leaving the C.P.R. station and became entangled in a rear wheel. When the lad was extricated it was found that he had sustained fractures of the knee and thigh of one leg, besides lesser injuries.

A Method of Pitting Roots that has Proven Itself Satisfactory

This illustration gives an idea of the way in which Mr. G. A. Brethen, Peterboro Co., Ont., is storing the surplus of his root crop for the coming winter. Notice the ventilating flues and the straw and earth covering. Mr. Brethen finds this method more satisfactory than storing in the cellar. A detailed description of this method of pitting is described in the adjoining article.

OLD FOLKS FIND CROXONE RELIEVES ALL KIDNEY AND BLADDER MISERIES

Drives Rheumatic Pains Away, Few Doses Relieve Backache and Bladder Disorders

Sleep disturbing bladder weaknesses backache, rheumatism, and the many other kindred ailments which so commonly come with declining years, need no longer be a source of dread and misery to those who are past the middle age of life.

Croxone relieves all such disorders because it reaches the very cause of th trouble. It soaks right into the kidneys, through the walls and linings; cleans out the little filtering glands and cells, and gives the kidneys new strength to do their work properly. It neutralizes and dissolves the poisonous uric acid substances that lodge in the joints and muscles, causing rheumatism; and makes the kidneys filter and sift out the poisonous waste matter from the blood and drive it out of the system.

It matters not how old you are or how long you have suffered, Croxone is so prepared that it is practically impossible to take it without results. There is nothing else like it. It starts to work immediately and more than a few doses are seldom required to relieve the most chronic, obstinate case.

An original package costs but a trifle and all druggists are authorized to return the purchase price if Croxone should fail in a single case.

Woman Twice Tried To Escape.

ST. PETERSBURG, Dec. 10. — A second unsuccessful attempt to escape from exile in Siberia was made early this month by Mme. Catherine Breshkovskaya, "Grandmother of the Russian Revolution," whose case at the time of her condemnation in March, 1910, aroused such widespread interest in Europe and America.

Mme. Breshkovskaya was sentenced to perpetual exile, after a trial whose proceedings were followed with revolutionary conspiracy.

Moving Pictures as Evidence.

BOSTON, Dec. 10.—In a court specially darkened for the occasion, a moving picture show was given yesterday as part of the defence of the United Shoe Machinery Co. in the dissolution suit instituted by the Government on the ground that the company has effected an unlawful monopoly.

The "movies" were employed to illustrate the operation of machines manufactured by the company.

Chinese Are Not Barred.

OTTAWA, Dec. 10.—Chinese immigrants are not affected by the order-in-council just passed prohibiting the entry to British Columbia of all classes of labor.

There is a special act governing the Chinamen, limiting their numbers and imposing a $500 head tax.

The order-in-council does not affect this in any way.

EASY WAY TO STOP HAIR FROM COMING OUT

A harmless home remedy, compounded principally from the powerful juice of the Pernambuco shrub of Peru, has been found highly effective in promptly checking the falling of hair from the scalp. Men and women whose hair is growing alarmingly thin and falling out badly every day should try it without fail, as the ingredients are perfectly harmless and very inexpensive and the whole thing can be prepared at home or by any druggist. Merely mix together in an 8 oz. bottle 2 oz. Lavona de Composee, 6 oz. Bay Rum and ½ drachm of Menthol Crystals. Shake well and allow to stand for an hour, when it is ready for use. The Lavona in the above is the pharmaceutical name of the Pernambuco juice as diluted and scientifically prepared for medical purposes. To stop the hair from coming out and to quickly start a fine growth of new hair all over the scalp, rub this lotion briskly into the scalp with the finger tips or a medium stiff brush for about five minutes each night and morning. After three or four days' use in this way you cannot find a single loose or straggling hair. Dandruff will disappear and itching cease and in about ten days you will find your scalp covered with a thick growth of fine downy new hairs, which will grow with amazing rapidity.

WILL NOT INTERFERE.

But Exclusion of Hindus Worries the Colonial Office.

LONDON, Dec. 10—(C.A.P. Cable)—An inquiry by the Canadian Associated Press from a member of Parliament in close touch with the Ministry, elicited an emphatic expression of opinion that the Colonial Office could not and would not attempt to interfere with the emigration of East Indians into the Dominion.

"At the same time, Imperial travelers here," said our informant, "feel very strongly that the authorities, both in South Africa and British Columbia, do not realize the tremendous effect their attitude towards the Indian has upon the attitude of India generally towards the British Empire.

"Let us realize that the empire has more native regular soldiers in India than in all the other dominion combined.

"The question of the Hindus' position in overseas dominions will be one of the principal items for consideration at the next Imperial Conference."

Chancellor Defies House.

BERLIN, Dec. 10.—The Imperial Chancellor, Dr. Von Bethmann-Hollweg, yesterday defied the Imperial Parliament to pass amendments to the constitution proposed by the Socialists making the Imperial Chancellor responsible to the House for the acts of the Emperor and providing for his dismissal upon the demand of the House.

Philipp Scheidemann, one of the Socialist leaders, at the opening of the budget debate yesterday, moved the adoption of the amendments put forward by the party and appealed to the House to refuse to vote supplies until the Chancellor had either resigned or been dismissed. The Chancellor said he did not intend to resign.

Dr. Craig Acquitted.

SHELBYVILLE, Ind., Dec. 10.—Judge Blair yesterday instructed the jury to dismiss the case against Dr. Wm. B. Craig, charged with the murder of Dr. Helen Knabe at Indianapolis, Oct. 23, 1913. The motion to dismiss the case was made by Attorney Spaan, for the defendant, Monday, when the state concluded its evidence.

Dr. Craig is dean of the Indiana Veterinary College at Indianapolis.

Terrific Weather Encountered.

HALIFAX, N.S., Dec. 10.—The Uranium liner Campanello, from Rotterdam, arrived here late yesterday afternoon, two days overdue. The steamer encountered terrific weather and the captain reports that his ship ran into a seventy-mile gale off the Nova Scotia coast Monday night. After landing 358 passengers and some cargo here, the steamer proceeded to New York early this morning.

THE MARKETS

CHICAGO, Dec. 9.—Heaviest fly dancer, rank growth and fear of injury from cold had much to do today with a buying flurry in the wheat pit. The close, was firm, which left prices ¼c to 3-8c above last night. Other gains finished at a net loss—corn 1-8c to 3-8c, and oats 1-8c to ¼c. In provisions, the outcome was unchanged to 5c down.

Liverpool wheat closed ¼ lower; corn, ⅝ to ¾ lower.

CATTLE MARKETS

UNION STOCK YARDS.

TORONTO, Dec. 9.—Receipts of live stock at the Union Yards were 66 cars, consisting of 1166 cattle, 102 calves, 734 hogs and 491 sheep.

An excellent market with all offerings, with cattle especially strong. Low priced stuff was slow of sale. Hogs were strong at last week's close and 5c to 10c higher than Monday. Selects, fed and watered, sold at $8.30 to $8.40.

H. P. Kennedy sold 11 loads of live stock as follows: Good butchers' cattle, $7.50 to $8; medium, $7 to $7.50; choice butchers' cows, $6 to $6.75; medium, $5 to $6; canners, $3.50 to $3.75; stockers and feeders, $6.25 to $6.50; 2 milkers, at $85 each; sheep, $4; lambs, $8.85; calves, $6.25 to $10; 100 hogs, $8.50, weighed off cars, and $8.25, fed and watered. Mr. Kennedy bought on order 200 stockers and feeders, at $5 to $7.25.

The Swift Canadian Company bought 350 cattle; Choice steers, $8.25 to $8.75; medium to good butchers, $7.50 to $8; common to medium butchers, $6 to $7.40; good to choice cows, $6 to $7; medium to good cows, $5 to $6; cutters, $3 to $4; good to choice bulls, $6 to $6.25; medium to good bulls, $5.25 to $6; bologna bulls, $4.50 to $5.25. The same company bought 126 hogs from $8.30 to $8.40 per cwt.

The Gates of Paradise.

Once in a year and at one place in the world there is a crush that surpasses anything else of its kind in the world. It is the great fair of Baws Farid, which is annually held in the town of Pak Pattan, in British India. It is held in honor of the famous Sh. Farid ud Din, surnamed Shakar Ganj, or sugar store, from the fact that his body had become so pure by continual fasting that whatever was put into his mouth, even earth and stones, was instantly changed into sugar. The principal ceremony consists of passing through an opening made in a wall adjoining the shrine measuring 5 by 2½ feet and always fervently called "the gates of paradise." Whoever between noon and night is able to pass through this opening is assured of paradise, and when there are 50,000 striving to pass through at the same time the crush is something terrific. Women faint, bones are broken, and the beat of drums

Sage Tea Darkens Hair To Any Shade

Don't Stay Grey! Here's an Old time Receipe That Anybody Can Apply

The use of Sage and Sulphur for restoring faded, grey hair to its natural colour dates back to grandmother's time. She used it to keep her hair beautifully dark, glossy and abundant. Whenever her hair fell out or took on that dull, faded or streaked appearance, this simple mixture was applied with wonderful effect.

But brewing at home is mussy and out-of-date. Nowadays, by asking at any drug store for a 50 cent bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy," you will get this famous old recipe which can be depended upon to restore natural colour and beauty to the hair and is splendid for dandruff, dry, feverish, itchy scalp and falling hair.

A well-known downtown druggist says it darkens the hair so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied. You simply dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one strand at a time. By morning the grey hair disappears, and after another application or two, it becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and abundant.

Burglaries Numerous.

LONDON, Ont., Dec. 10.—No city has been freer from burglary than London for many years, but within the past few weeks several minor cases have been reported, and the police are now making a special effort to watch for robbers of houses and stores.

Samuels Refuses Raise.

LONDON, Dec. 10.—The prospect of a strike of the postal employes in the Christmas season was increased by the announcement yesterday of the Postmaster-General, H. L. Samuel, that he would not concede the demand for a 15 per cent. increase in wages.

The Speeder's Excuse.

I met a wild eyed motorist,
Who drove at frightful speed.
His hair was streaming in the wind,
He was a sight indeed.

I called and asked him to explain
The reason for his haste.
He said: "My gasoline is low.
No time have I to waste.

"If I should jog sedately on
My journey, you must own,
My fuel would all be used up
Before I got to town."

Severely Practical.

"I feel that it is my duty to scatter sunshine," said the man who is laboriously cheerful.

The Difference.

'Twixt modest man and egotist
The difference is wide.
One thinks he never would be missed
If he tomorrow died.
The other thinks when he sheds tears
That every scene is blank
And fancies that the whole world hears
When he wears shoes that squeak.

Head-Work Wins

But mental activity is dependent for its success-making results, upon the way both body and brain cells are fed.

Right feeding isn't a matter of quantity—most persons actually eat too much. But the selection of the right kind of food helps wonderfully to make men and women active and successful.

The fact is, some every-day articles of food are so lacking in certain food values as to make their common use more or less a menace to physical and mental well-being. (Constipation and a run-down physical condition are readily traced to this lack.)

Particularly is this true of food made from white flour, which is robbed of most of the mineral phosphates of the grain when the bran-coat is thrown out in the milling process. Scientists have long recognized this menace to health, and many people are waking up to it.

Grape-Nuts

FOOD

made from the whole wheat and malted barley, retains the mineral phosphates, as well as all other nutritive values of the grains. Grape-Nuts, as the cereal part of one's diet, perfectly supplies what white flour food lacks.

Grape-Nuts is long baked, most easily digested, and is ready-to-eat direct from the package—fresh, crisp and delicious.

PETERBOROUGH, WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 10, 1913

COUNCIL WILL SUBMIT A BY-LAW TO THE PEOPLE FOR A $78,000 BRIDGE.

As Dalhousie Street---Were in Favour of a $116,000 Bridge To Provide For Street Railway Traffic But Some of the Aldermen Feared the Sum Was Too Large and the Cheaper Structure Was Favoured--Will Be Voted on at January Elections.

ALD. LANGFORD OPPOSED TO EXPENSE

Of two expenditures choose the less, was the attitude of the Council at a special meeting last night, when it was decided to submit a by-law to the people authorizing the borrowing of $78,000 for a new bridge across the river from Dalhousie Street to Maria Street.

Really, this was an after thought. Engineer Parsons prepared plans for two bridges, and the other one was a trifle more expensive. On its price tag was marked $115,641, but this sum did not stagger the most of the City Fathers—at first. No, not at first. Nearly all the members wanted the bridge big enough for street car traffic. In the early stages of the discussion they saw broad visions of the Peterborough of ten or twelve years hence, and they said we will prepare for the future. It was a beautiful little dream while the influence of the drug of hope was felt, and the City Fathers were taking abroad outlook of the situation and were going to give the south end of the City one of those ne plus ultra bridges that would stand against the tooth of time and the demands occasioned by the future growth of the City.

Then fell a cloud, cold and clammy. And it deposited the aldermen back on mother earth. Imaginations that have been travelling into conditions ten years hence were reminded that they had skipped one very important day, namely, election day, when the by-law would either live or die.

That settled the fancy $116,000 bridge, and the pearly dreams of street railway loops in East City. Hence the Council selected the less expenditure, with a silent prayer that even that would not be jumped on.

Description of Bridges.

The bridge which the people will be asked to approve is 18 ft. wide from centre to centre of trusses; six foot sidewalk on each side; beginning at the west side the spans are 100 ft., then 110 ft. swing and 125 ft. span; embankment to east channel and then a 125 ft. span. It will be 200 feet above the C.P.R. bridge with a passage of 37 feet clear for boats.

The dimensions of the $116,000 structure are practically the same except that the swing span would be 125 feet and there would be 30 ft. from centre to centre of trusses.

Ald. Langford Opposed.

Mayor Bradburn and all the aldermen, with the exception of Ald. Langford, expressed themselves in favour of sending the by-law to the people, and Aldermen Duncan, Green, Gordon and others dwelt on the advantages of the higher-priced bridge and the street railway accommodation it would provide.

Ald. Langford—I have purposely allowed the other members of the Council to discuss this question in the hope that I might find one who would agree with me. I am entirely against this matter of spending $80,000. The bridge will not serve more than 10% of the people. A cheaper idea would serve you just as well. We should do only the things that are necessary. I would move that we take no action regarding the new bridge at Dalhousie Street, but that next year's Council agree to take up at the beginning of the year some means of providing accommodation for pedestrian traffic near Dalhousie and London Streets.

Ald. Gordon—Do you object to the by-law being sent to the people.

Ald. Langford—I do. I want it understood that I am against this expenditure.

Ald. Gordon—You think that people will not do their own thinking? That they will act simply on the endorsation of the Council?

This was practically what Ald. Langford suggested. The endorsation of the Council would be regarded as a strong point in favour of the bridge. If it is defeated it would mean that the ability and foresight of the Council would be questioned.

Mayor Bradburn—Not at all. We are safe on that point. Have you not voted against it?

Ald. Langford had suggested that arrangements be made with the C.P.R. for accommodation for pedestrians, and Mayor Bradburn replied that this was absolutely impossible. Three times had he approached the company and they have replied that they will not consider the question.

Might Try a Ferry.

Ald. Langford was long on suggestions and included a ferry, but Mayor Bradburn said this would cost too much to keep it going.

Ald. Langford—There are no more people who would cross at Dalhousie Street than at London Street.

Ald. Anderson— I certainly think there are.

Ald. Green—When we take over the street railway system in a year or two we would have to pay them the amount they might have given towards the more expensive bridge. I think it would be an asset to have the better bridge.

Ald. Gillespie—I think Ald. Green's point is well taken. The first cost is the cheapest in the end.

Ald. Gillespie moved, seconded by Ald. Buller, that the by-law call for the $116,000 bridge.

Then Came the Change.

At this stage in walked the ghosts of defeated by-laws. Ald. Anderson was presiding and called for the vote.

Ald. Johnston—I think we ought to be cautious, to tell you the God's truth. When you get over the $100,000 mark I feel doubtful that it will carry.

Ald. Langford—If you keep on you will be around on my side.

Ald. Johnston—I don't know. That ferry business looked good to me.

Mayor Bradburn said he had fears for the by-law as it stood. Then the retreat became a rout.

It was finally moved by Ald. Buller, seconded by Ald. Gillespie, that the $78,000 bridge be submitted to the people.—Carried.

MR. HILL TO RETIRE

Member of Water Commission Announces That He Will Not Be a Candidate for Re-election

TWELVE YEARS' SERVICE

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Sir,—As the time of the annual municipal elections is drawing near, and especially as I have been asked by a number of ratepayers to again be a candidate for the position of Water Commissioner, will you kindly permit me to say in your columns that I have decided to retire from that Commission? I regret doing so very much, and one of my chief reasons for regret is that it will end the relations that have existed so long and so pleasantly between myself and the other Commissioners. I have been on the board with Mr. Matthews and Mr. Moore for ten years, and I am thoroughly satisfied that two abler or more conscientious administrators of the works could not have been obtained. I still feel a deep interest in this part of the City's business, but my personal business requires much more attention, so much that I would not be able to give the time that I should to the duties of the office, and I do not wish to ask to be returned knowing that I could not give the time that it will require.

I have served eighteen years on the board of management of the waterworks, six years as a director of the Peterboorugh Water Company and twelve years as a Water Commissioner for the City, and I desire to heartily thank the ratepayers for their generous support during those twelve years.

Very respectfully yours,
W. H. HILL.

NEW ENTRIES ARE NOW IN THE FIELD

Ald. Duncan Will be a Candidate for the Mayoralty and Mr. Robt. Hicks for Water Commissioner

ANNOUNCED TO-DAY

Mr. W. H. Hill to retire from the Water Commission.

Ald. Geo. H. Duncan to be a Candidate for the Mayoralty.

Mr. Robert Hicks in the field for the Water Commission.

Mr. J. W. Worth to run as Alderman in the West Ward.

These announcements are the latest developments in the arena of municipal politics. Mr. Hill's retirement is announced in a letter in another column. Simultaneous with its receipt came an announcement from ex-Ald. Robert Hicks that he had decided to offer himself as a candidate for the position of Water Commissioner and Hydro-Electric Commissioner.

Ald. Duncan stated to the Examiner to-day that as far as he knew now he would be a candidate for the mayoralty.

"You can say that I am in the field now, and unless something happens to cause me to change my mind, I will be a candidate.

Mr. J. W. Worth of the Bonfer-Worth Company, has asked the Examiner to state that he is definitely in the race for the Aldermanic Board as a candidate for the West Ward.

CHOPIN WAS DISCUSSED

The Morning Musical Society met recently when Chopin was studied, Mrs. Rollins reading a very able paper on the life and works of the above composer. The following is the programme presented:

Paper—Mrs. Rollins.
Solo—Nocturne No. 11, Mrs. Fesenden.
Violin Solo—"The Maiden's Wish," Mrs. Boyd.
Solos — "Prelude in B major," "Waltz in E minor," Mrs. Porter.
Song—Miss Richardson.
Duet—Polanaise No. 1., Mrs. Wood, Mrs. Buchanan.
Song — "Lithauisches Lied," Mrs. Boyd.

The next meeting will be held at Mrs. Wood's, 366 Simcoe street, on Thursday, January 8th, 1014, at 10:30 a.m. sharp.

SIR WILFRID VERY ACTIVE

Special to The Examiner:

OTTAWA, Dec. 10. — Sir Wilfrid Laurier will return to Ottawa from Montreal this evening. The next trip which the indefatigable leader of the Opposition will make, will be to Toronto, where he will address the University College Literary Society on December 15th.

WILL THE OTONABEE POWER USERS BE LEFT IN DARKNESS

Council Cancels Company's Franchise to Take Effect Dec. 31—How Are Present Customers to Secure Power for Home Lighting

WILL ANYONE TAKE IT UP?

The cancellation of the Otonabee Light and Power Company's franchise takes effect on January 1st, 1914.

Does this mean that the users of this Company's power will have to dig up the old lamps and leave orders for supplies of coal oil?

At any rate, that is the present prospect.

Mayor Bradburn states that the Council's motion on Tuesday night means that the Company must remove their poles and wires from the streets. Electricity must not be delivered by the Company to its customers.

The only relief in sight is the purchase of the Company's transmission lines by the City's Utilities Commission. There has been no suggestion of this proposal, but it seems to be the only method by which electric lighting can be given to the present consumer of Otonabee power.

The question arises, however, as to when this could be accomplished. There are from 600 to 800 consumers of Otonabee power and for that reason, is a serious one.

Mr. Ferguson stated to the Examiner this afternoon that the Company would not commit themselves for the present in regard to the sale of their transmission equipment, that is, their poles, wires, transformers, etc.

In any case, it is understood that the interest of the citizens concerned must be represented by the Council. But the meetings for the year are practically concluded. There may be another special meeting, but the Council is not preparing to take up the question and the year will probably close with nothing done.

Hence there seems to be no alternative for many householders, but that for an indfinite time they will be without electric power in their homes. No other prospect looms above the civic horizon just now.

The City's Utilities Commission is not in a position to take up the interest of the citizens concerned, and the Council has stated that they have no responsibility. Yet, it is hardly to be expected that every householder would have foreseen the darkness that apparently is about to settle upon them.

How long will it be before the Council does take up the question?

A type-written motion passed last night, indicates that the Council was all prepared for the dissolution of the Otonabee Power Company's franchise. But many citizens will be surprised to learn that their convenience has received no consideration whatever. The Council's claim of irresponsibility is more or less of an evasion. They knew months ago what action they would take. The citizens did not, although a handful or two might have had an idea of what was coming off.

A present consumer of the Otonabee power stated that he considers the Council should take this question up at once.

A VERDICT FOR $100.00

Plaintiff is Successful in Action Before Judge Hoycke in County Court Yesterday

FURNITURE WAS SOLD

In the case of Godfrey versus Edwards, which was heard in the County Court yesterday afternoon, the jury brought in a verdict of $100 for the plaintiff.

Mr. D. W. Dumble appeared for the plaintiff, and Mr. G. N. Gordon for the defendant.

The case was one in which the plaintiffs, Mr. and Mrs. Godfrey, were suing Mr. Edwards, the local butcher, for the sum of $200. The plaintiff, Mrs. Godfrey, occupied part of Mr. Edwards' premises as tenant, on November 15th, 1911, at the rental of $6 per month. In September, 1912, Mrs. Godfrey left for Toronto and did not return for four months. She claims that she told Mr. Edwards she was going away on a visit, and that he promised to look after her goods until she returned. Her husband at that time was in North Bay.

But while she was away her furniture was taken and sold in payment for the accruing rent. The furniture was valued at over $200, and neither Mr. or Mrs. Godfrey were notified before the goods were sold. When Mrs. Godfrey left she owed only $6.

The defence claimed that Mrs. Godfrey told certain neighbours she was going to "skip out" because she couldn't pay her rent. They also claimed that the goods were sold without any authority from the landlord, who was seriously ill in bed, by his son, and consequently Mr. Edwards, Sr., was not responsible.

In her evidence yesterday Mrs. Godfrey explained that she left to visit her sister in Toronto, then to visit relatives in Bolton. While there she heard her property had been sold, so did not return for four months. She gave a list of the goods that were sold, and said she had told Mr. Edwards she was just going away on a visit.

John Godfrey, husband of Mrs. Agnes Godfrey, said that when the goods were taken from the house he was working in the roofing business at North Bay. His employer, Mr. Maitland, came to Peterborough and when he returned to North Bay he told witness that his goods had been sold. He wrote Mr. Edwards, who replied that he had sold his goods, but not all of it. Mr. Godfrey did not get a bill from Mr. Edwards.

Some of the quilts and curtains were produced in court and were identified. Mr. E. J. Waterman said that the curtains would be worth about $2 and the quilts about 50c. In the claimants' price list they were valued at about $20.

Called as a witness for the defence, Mrs. Milliken, who keeps a boarding house near the place in question, said that in July, 1912, before Mrs. Godfrey left the city, she told her (witness), that she was going to leave town because she owed rent. Witness said she would not want to give more than $25 for the furniture in Mrs. Godfrey's place.

Mr. Edwards was the next witness. He said that he was talking to Mrs. Godfrey the night before she left town, and at that time she assured him she had no intention of leaving town. Mrs. Godfrey did not give him her husband's address, nor made any arrangements that he should keep the furniture for her. About the 13th or 14th of September witness took sick, and for nearly two months no business matters were attended to by him. During that time his son arranged for the sale of the goods in question, all unknown to the witness. His son had no authority to sell the goods.

To Mr. Dumble he admitted that he had never let Mrs. Godfrey know she could have the remainder of the goods if she called for them. A receipt was produced signed by J. W. Edwards, showing that the rent had been paid from June 18 to July 18. The witness had previously sworn that this money was not paid.

"So at the time Mrs. Godfrey left she only owed $6?"

"Yes."

"And your memory was wrong and your books were wrong?"

"Yes."

In summing up the case for the defence Mr. Gordon said that the evidence showed that Mrs. Godfrey left for Toronto, and she stated that she told Mr. Edwards that she was going for a couple of weeks. She denied to Mr. Edwards that she was getting ready to move out, but the next day she left and didn't return for months.

The case he characterized as a scheme between Mr. and Mrs. Godfrey to get money out of Mr. Edwards, and to make him responsible for something he didn't do, nor didn't know was being done. Mr. Edwards was not responsible or liable for the sale of the goods. He did not in any way acquiesce or ratify the transaction.

The jury that sat on the case were: Messrs. L. E. Whibbs, F. Finney, W. Boorman, Wm. Thompson, A. Harris, W. Harper, G. Barrie, A. McIlmoyle, J. Howden, H. Tighe, N. Bibby, G. Curtis.

THE CATTLE MARKET

Special Wire to The Examiner.

TORONTO LIVE STOCK, Dec. 10.—Receipts heavy, trade brisk, prices higher. Choice butchers' cattle, $8.00 to $8.40. Medium, $6.50 to $7.00. Fat cows, $4.50 to $5.75. Good veal calves, $8.75 to $10.00. Spring lambs, $8.50 to $8.90. Hogs, fed and watered, $8.60 to 8.65; off cars, $8.70 to $8.75; f.o.b., $8.10 to $8.15.

HALLELUJAH WEDDING AT THE TEMPLE

One of the biggest events that has taken place in Salvation Army circles for some time, is being held in the Temple to-night at 8 o'clock.

One of the bandsmen and one of the soldiers are being united in matrimony by Adjutant McElhiney. Following the service there is to be a great wedding feast and all may partake of it if they put up the price. If any have not the price they will be made welcome, too. The young couple will take up their residence on George Street. The high esteem and respect in which they are, held by both their comrades and friends ensures a good crowd.

Sued For $19.50 Wages

In this morning's Police Court suit was brought against Mr. Blastorah, of the Palace Hotel, for $19.50. The complainant, whose name was Wescott, claimed that that amount was due him in wages, which he had earned in the employ of Blastorah, and which he had not been paid.

The case was settled by the two parties agreeing on $15 as the amount to be paid the plaintiff, and the costs of the court to be divided between them.

Mr. T. R. Darcy, of Lakefield was fined $5 and costs, amounting in all to $7.87, for driving his auto at night, without the necessary lights. He pleaded "guilty" to the charge.

Robert Keegan, a young man, 19 years of age, was charged in Police Court this morning with having been found "drunk in a public place." He pleaded not guilty, saying that while he had a couple of drinks, he was not drunk. Because he was a minor he was put in the witness box, and questioned as to where he got his liquor. He said that he found it in the pantry of his own home, and appropriated it. He and a friend drank the liquor, but neither of them were drunk as a result.

Keegan was allowed to go on suspended sentence, on his promise to become a member of the T.A.S. Society.

John Bell, of Smith, was assessed $2 for being drunk.

Encouragement From Canada For Carson

Special Wire to The Examiner.

NEW COMMISSION TO INVESTIGATE THE H.C.O.L.

Special Wire to The Examiner.

OTTAWA, Dec. 10.—There will be no commission appointed by the government to inquire into the high cost of living. Such is the conclusion gathered generally here from the speech of Hon. George E. Foster, Minister of Trade and Commerce at Smiths Falls last night, and from that of Hon. T. W. Crothers, Minister of Labour at Halifax recently. "The Lord knows we have enough commissioners wandering around the country already," said Foster last night. "The government intends to come to some extent with the unemployment problem by increasing the expenditures of money on large public works throughout the Dominion.

Labour Situation Improved

Special Wire to Examiner:

LONDON, Eng., Dec. 10.—The labour situation to-day was decidedly improved. Jim Larkin is hammering away for a general strike throughout the United Kingdom, but with Christmas near at hand and winter right on the job, most of labour unionists are turning to their own leaders and are prepared to accept compromises. The postal employees have negotiations on with the government to-day.

HENS AND EGGS.

The hen's to blame. Combines have been accused of cornering eggs, and making the prices high, but the humble hen has been officially cornered as the chief offender. The Experimental Farm, Ottawa, whose function is to make two blades of grass grow where one grew before, and make hens lay two eggs where one was laid before, has to confess failure, in the matter of eggs. At this time last year the expert hens at the Experimental Farm were, it is semi-officially stated, laying five eggs to one laid to-day. A drop of five hundred per cent. in one year is a serious slump in egg production. But the official bulletin gives one comfort. The pullets, whose development in early spring, was retarded by bad weather, are beginning to lay. There's some hope that before long, eggs will be eggs, and not inaccessible luxuries.

MUNICIPAL OWNERSHIP.

Both Toronto and Ottawa are exercised over the purchase by the respective cities of the street railways. It is pointed out that nine years ago Ottawa could have purchased its street railway for three million dollars. Since the company made this offer in 1904, it has made a clear two million five hundred thousand dollars, so that if Ottawa had then made the deal it would now have its railway nearly paid for out of profits. Toronto is using this argument as a reason why Toronto should buy the street railway. Under such circumstances, why, on general principles should not Peterborough make a clean up and add street railway ownership and operation to water works and light and power ownership? If municipal ownership is a good thing, who not extend it? No one now seriously propose the purchase of the street railway, but on principle, if the advantages of public ownership are admitted, why should it not be proposed? It may be argued that it does not pay well enough, but if Ottawa's experience is worth anything its profit yielding can be developed. If the company does this, it will naturally expect consideration of this fact in the sale price, unless, in these days of swift, and not always considerate, expropriation, advantage be given to the expropriating municipality. But perhaps it is as well to go slow, till we know what our electric enterprise is to cost us. The street railway is now giving us an excellent service, which might not be improved under civic management.

THE BETTER WAY.

The Port Arthur News advocates encouragement of the development of our iron ore deposits by means of liberal bounties on iron production. The wisdom of paying bounties for such a purpose is debatable. It is evident that the most effective development is not artificial, but intrinsic. Healthy development is preferable to hot-house development. One effective mode of stimulating development would be increase of demand. If governments are to aid in adding to the importance of our iron-producing industry this can be done in a direct way by establishing the business of ship building. If Canada, as was at one time unanimously agreed, should undertake to build the ships for a Canadian navy in Canada, by Canadian workmen, with Canadian material, a splendid beginning of a great ship-building industry would be made. Mr. Borden once eloquently advocated this plan. His abandonment of this idea, in favour of shipping Canada's money to Great Britain, to be spent there, strikes a blow at the development of a great Canadian industry. If we should establish a naval ship building plant, that would require measures to develop our iron deposits in a way more effective and healthy than bounties. The production of our own material would encourage commercial shipbuilding, which, in Canada, becomes a more important matter every year. Our lake shipping is expanding immensely and our passenger shipping requirements are growing rapidly. With proper means adopted Canada could be made to be a great shipbuilding nation. But we shall never achieve such a position by hesitating, by showing unfaith in our own capacity, or by sending our good money into another country, to be spent out of the country. We must show self reliance and faith in our own capacity for achievement and faith in our own resources.

ANOTHER MACDONALD INFAMY.

The Borden Government insists on playing the game with loaded dice. And the favourite green board is Macdonald, Manitoba. It was the scene of unexampled and confessed electoral debauchery and now it is to furnish another horrible example, the rushing on of the bye-election after only a month's vacancy, through admitted corruption.

After delaying previous bye-elections anywhere from six months to nearly a year, the Borden Government has suddenly developed such an indecent haste to get the second bye-election for Macdonald over that it cannot even wait for the voters' lists. The first notorious bye-election was voided on November 11th, when the Conservative member, Mr. Alex. Morrison, confessed that he had been elected by corrupt means. On November 24th, the date for the next bye-election was fixed for December 13th, with nominations on December 6th, the election to syncronize with that in South Lanark, which had been vacant since March 13th. Macdonald was allowed to remain vacant two days over a month. South Lanark was kept empty nine months.

There are two obvious reasons for this sudden determination to get the Macdonald bye-election over without delay. The government wishes to end the matter and try to have the Macdonald infamy forgotten before parliament meets in January to receive the report of the election court which unseated Mr. Morrison by reason of the corruption of the Rogers-Roblin outfit.

The second reason for this haste is yet more sinister and makes it evident that the same crooked course which marked the Macdonald bye-election No. 1 will be used in bye-election No. 2. There are no legal voters' lists for Macdonald.

The Dominion lists for federal elections are made from the provincial lists, covering the same area as the Dominion riding. Where the Dominion riding over-laps provincial districts, the lists have to be gone over by the county court judges and printed as revised by them. The law demands that this be done before October 1 in each year. This year no such revision was made and the Borden Government is the administration responsible for the neglect.

The result is that a rush order has gone out to fix up the Macdonald voters' lists. There not being time to have the work legally done by the county judges, the allocation of names will be made by the returning officer. Then the lists will be printed, with scarcely two weeks for the whole work.

Thus the voters' lists will be prepared by the returning officer appointed by the Rogers-Roblin combination, probably under the indirect supervision of Mr. Rogers himself. The lists can scarcely be ready until polling day or as near that date as they can be withheld. The Conservatives will thus secure to themselves the direct advantage of the preparation of the voters' lists, a knowledge of what is being done with them, and the withholding of such knowledge from the Liberals until it will be too late to do any good.

In years gone by the Dominion lists were prepared by returning officers from the provincial lists in just the manner adopted now, the returning officer running a red line through the names of voters outside the Dominion riding. This gave rsie to the famous "thin red line" cry of the Conservatives in 1904. Immediately after that election, Sir Wilfrid Laurier and Sir Alan Aylesworth, then Minister of Justice, prepared an act providing that a revision of the voters' lists should be made by county judges in each year before October 1. Mr. Borden, then leader of the opposition, hastened to claim the credit for this Liberal legislation. The law has been observed from that time to the present year. Now under Mr. Borden's own administration for the first time it has been evaded and the county judges' voters' lists are not available when most needed.

Mr. Borden is doing fairly well in sustaining his reputation as a professed political purist.

THE BOY AND THE FARM.

He told his twelve-year-old son to milk the cow, feed the horse, feed the pigs, catch the colt, and put it in the stable, hunt the eggs, feed the calves, cut some wood, split some kindling, stir the cream, pump some fresh water into the creamery after supper and be sure to study his lessons before he went to bed. Then he went to the Farmers' Club to discuss th question "How to Keep the Boys on the Farm."—Saranac (Mich.) Advertiser.

A FARMER SPEAKS UP FOR FARMERS

Demands a Square Deal for the Farmer and the General Conditions Will Improve

To the Editor of the Globe: Is it not about time to call a halt in the tirade of abuse that is being poured out on the farmer? First he is blamed for the decrease in rural population, in that he uses his family so badly that they will not remain at home. Next he restricts his output to such an extent that prices have gone to a point where only tariff-fed magnates can procure the necessaries of life. Next, his wife can't cook, and if she could she is too mean to use anything in her own kitchen that she can sell to someone else. And so on, ad infinitum.

I have no doubt there are mean farmers, but after a long life spent as a farmer and among farmers I am convinced there are more straightforward, upright, high-principled, obeyers of the golden rule among farmers in proportion to their number than among any other class in the country. This is not simply my opinion, but is a statement that is susceptible of easy proof. Look back over the history of Canada, since the adoption of the N. P. (national plague) and what do we find. At its inception there was hardly a millionaire in this country, now there are hundreds of them. And how have most of them been made? Not out of air, but out of the taxes they have been enabled to levy mostly upon the farmer. They now ride in their automobiles, but denounce the farmer because he does not spend more taxes in fitting the roads for their purposes.

When the farmer's boy and girl and hired man see those gentry flying by and hear father say: "I knew that man when he wasn't worth $5, now he is a millionaire," these young folk look at the gent shoulders and horny hands of father and mother and determine to abandon the farm. There is no thought of father and mother's meanness, but in the majority of cases a desire to find an opportunity to more easily smooth their parents' declining years. To secure their share of this unearned increment which our laws now give certain classes. These take our young folks away from the farm, they are not driven away by any abuse other than that conferred by our Government upon certain classes to confiscate their hard earnings, so they go to get in the swim. Who can blame them?

From all sides we hear complaints as to the cost of living with suggestions for relief. Two years ago was the time to have considered this matter when the United States offered us reciprocity. At first all classes said it was too good to be true, the Yankee must have a card up his sleeve, Hawker and his allies the capitalists called annexation. It served their purpose. The Yankee has now displayed the card he was holding and Hawkes' dupes are now paying the shot with no possibility of relief, except through reciprocity.

Now, as to keeping the young folk on the farm and increasing the output of farm products. All that is necessary is to give the farmer a square deal. He asks no special favours. Give him a tariff freeing the necessaries of life from taxation, abolish all special legislation in favour of the professional classes. Give him a system of tax reform that will compel the capitalist who owns a one-half to a three-quarter interest in his farm, to pay his proportion of the direct taxation on that farm. Compel the railways also to pay their share of municipal taxation. Stop the centralizing system that prevails and is being increased each year in the administration of our public school laws, the inference being that the farmer cares nothing for the proper education of his family. The man who said the farmer in Ontario cared more for his live stock, their proper housing, etc., than he did for the school accommodation and education of his family lied. The enormously increased cost of living must soon seek a solution, which will be found in the removal of the burdens of taxation that have been imposed upon the farmer in the past, thus giving him a larger return for his labour and investment. With increased income from the farm and the removal of the glamour of the bounty-fed industries and professions of the towns and cities the young folk will remain on the farm helping to increase the product and gradually securing a return to normal conditions in prices of food.

A FARMER.

St. Vincent, Dec. 6.

THE FARMER AS A CITIZEN.

The letter of "A Farmer," which appears above, is well worth the careful consideration of the town dweller who is groaning under the steadily increasing cost of living. The farmer feels that he is being blamed for conditions over which he has little or no control. Two years ago, when an opportunity presented itself of removing the taxes on foodstuffs in both Canada and the United States, it was the town dweller who was stampeded into opposition by the loyalty cry. Now he finds that the people of the United States have secured some measure of relief by wiping out most of their food taxes, with the result that Canadian products are going over the border in constantly increasing volume while famine prices pervail at home.

The farmer, when asked why he does not produce more, points to his sons and daughters and his hired labourers enticed to the city by its glamour, and by the tariff and the system of taxation that breeds millionaires. He asks that town and country be placed upon an equal footing. He does not seek protection for the food producer. But if food is to be duty free he claims as a matter of right and equity that the tools and implements used by the farmer shall not be enhanced in price by tariff taxation.

There is no answer to his argument. If those who live in cities and who regard the present cost of living as intolerable would find a lasting remedy it can only be by making the production of food a more desirable occupation. The rush to the great centres from the farms would not be lessened but increased by the removal of the food duties were that most necessary measure of reform not accompanied by compensation of a like sort to the farmer.

When confronted with this issue President Wilson and the Democratic leaders courageously tackled it, and when they swept away most of the food duties they wiped out also the duties on farm implements and tools, on harness, boots and shoes, waggons, and many other things used in the production of food. In Canada city population grows with far greater rapidity than farm population. The stimulus of tariff readjustment is needed to restore the balance just as it was needed in the United States. Against the glamour of city life and the lure of "big money" must be set the substantial advantage of being one's own master and of an anchorage in the soil.

Governments in this country must base their policies upon securing what "A Farmer" speaks of as a "square deal" for the farming community. The food producers of the Dominion, save in a few unimportant lines, do not want tariff protection. They are determined, however, to insist upon the unshackling of industry, not in one department, but all along the line, as a measure of justice to the consumer in both town and country.

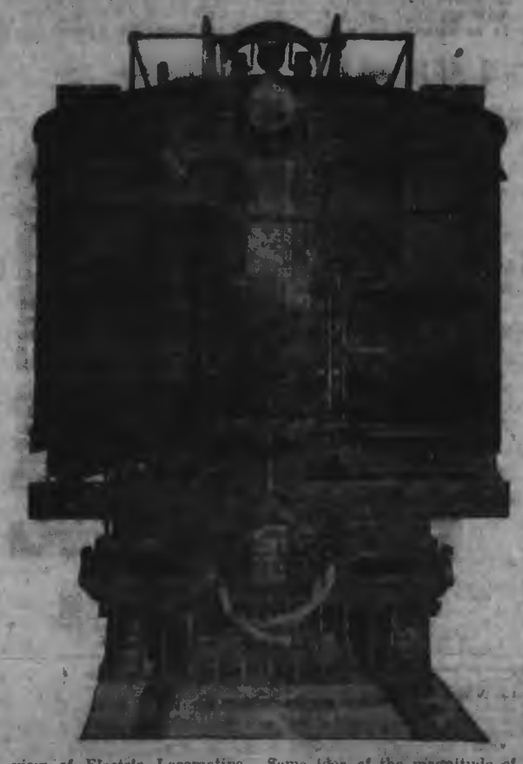
TYPE OF LOCOMOTIVE TO BE MANUFACTURED BY CANADIAN GENERAL

Eight-Wheel Freight and Passenger Electric Locomotives Will Be Seen in Operation on the Montreal Road in Event of City Granting Right-of-Way---Proposed Extensions Will Involve an Investment of $150,000 ---Local Firm Secures Large Contracts.

The appended article contains points of special interest with respect to the design of the electric locomotives selected by the Canadian Northern Railway. The locomotives will be used in connection with the electrification of the Mount Royal Tunnel, Montreal. Several other contracts for electric locomotives have been secured by the Canadian General Electric Company, in addition to the one referred to in this article. The locomotives will be manufactured in Peterborough providing the Canadian General Electric Company succeed in obtaining permission from the City Council, to construct one mile of track for testing purposes. Otherwise the contracts will be turned over to the Schenectady plant of the General Electric Company.



End view of Electric Locomotive. Some idea of the magnitude of these Locomotives can be gathered from the dimensions given in the accompanying article.

Mr. Frederic Nichols, General Manager of the Canadian General Electric Company, is authority for the statement that the company will expend $150,000 in extensions in event of securing the aforesaid mentioned concession from the city.

The following article was taken from the Canadian Engineer of Dec. 4th:

The Equipment.

The equipment for the electrification of the tunnel and terminals, for which the Canadian General Electric Company, Limited, Peterborough, has the contract, includes six electric locomotives designed for an operating potential of 2,400 volts with overhead trolley construction. Two of these locomotives, operated and controlled as a single unit, will have ample capacity and suitable speed requirements for handling the heavy transcontinental passenger trains — 1,130 tons trailing load — within the Montreal terminal zone. A single locomotive will successfully handle the freight trains—1,000 tons trailing load—and the local passenger service —500 tons trailing load.

The Locomotives.

The general type of the locomotive proposed is that known as the box cab, articulated running gear type of frame casting of the truck, this type of construction restricts the hauling and buffing stresses of the truck side frames and articulated joint, instead of through the cab centre plate. This relieves the cab and apparatus from the effect of severe shocks.

Both the box cab and platform are built of plates, sheets, angles and heavy channels, and are thoroughly reinforced throughout. The box cab is divided into three compartments: the apparatus compartment in the centre and the two operators' compartments at the ends. Each operator's compartment has a full complement of apparatus, consisting of controller, control switches, meter, air brake control apparatus, air gauges, pantagraph control and heaters, thus providing the locomotive with a complete double-end control. All apparatus subject to 2,400-volt potential is located in the centre apparatus compartment and properly screened to protect against accidental contact. The location and general arrangement of this apparatus is such as to provide easy access from all sides for inspection, cleaning and repairs.

Control Equipment.

The Sprague-General Electric Type "M" multiple unit double-end control equipment is proposed for the locomotives, all the control points being proportioned and adjusted so as to secure a smooth and even acceleration, at all times, corresponding to a current consumption near the slipping point of the wheels. The transition between series and series-parallel is effected by a specially electro-pneumatically operated change-over switch and the motor fields will always be on the ground side of the armature.

A motor generator set will supply 125-volt energy for the operation of the control and a 2,400-volt air compressor of 100 cubic feet free air piston displacement is provided as part of the air brake equipment. Two air-operated roller pantagraphs and a properly insulated bus line are located upon the roof. The bus line will supply power to two or more units from the pantagraphs of any of these units.

The motor equipment consists of four C.G.E. -229 commutating pole type motors wound for 1,200 volts and insulated for 2,400 volts, so that two may be connected permanently in series and operated on a 2,400-volt circuit. These motors are geared to the wheels through twin gears, there being one pinion on each end of the armature shafts. The C.G.E.-229 motor is especially designed for locomotive service and is provided with forced ventilation by a blower located in the apparatus compartment. The locomotives are geared for a free running speed on tangent, level track of approximately 45 miles per hour and will be operated as two-speed machines with ten points in series and nine points series-parallel.

The air brake equipment will be the straight air and automatic type so as to combine the desirable features for train operation through an equalizing reservoir and the independent operation of the brakes upon the locomotive. Provision is made for the multiple operation of the compressors upon all locomotives when operating in multiple so as to distribute the duty upon all the compressors in the train.

Operation of Motors.

The motors will be operated by the Sprague-General Electric Type "M" two-speed control arranged to operate the motors in series and series-parallel. The external regulating resistance is divided into two parts, each part being directly connected to a pair of motors permanently connected in series. The two pairs of motors, with their resistance, are all connected in series on the first point of the control, the resistance being varied through the first nine points on the controller and finally short circuited on the tenth, or running point. The two pairs of motors are then similarly operated in series-parallel and all resistances cut out on the last or full speed running point.

A special electro-pneumatically operated change-over switch is used to make the transition between series and series-parallel so that there will be no appreciable reduction in tractive effort during the change. A smooth transition between all points, both rheostatic and transitional, insures motor operation close to the slipping point of the wheels and a steady, gradual acceleration at all times.

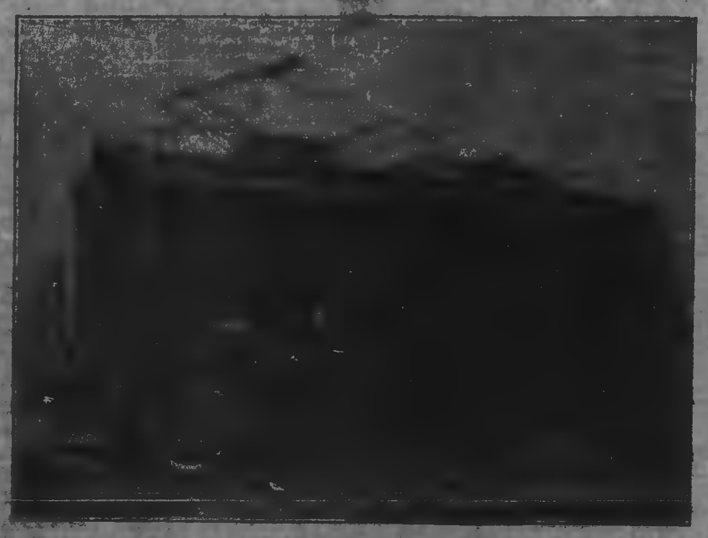
The motors have sufficient capacity to slip the wheels, the slipping point serving as a current limit to prevent overloading. Either pair of motors may be cut out, in case of emergency, by means of a special handle on the change-over switch.

The Controllers.

The master controllers receive their energizing current at a potential of 125 volts from the motor generator set and provide for operating the contactors so that they close the motor circuits under different combinations and regulate the external motor resistances to give 10 points series and 9 points parallel. The controller is of the non-automatic type and has two handles: one regulating the applied voltage at the motors and the other for controlling the direction of rotation of the motors. Each of the above handles control a single cylinder.

The overhead trolleys are of the pantagraph type, mounted on insulated bases and pneumatically operated. A hand pump is provided for raising the trolley in case a locomotive has been standing some time and has no air supply.

Provision is made for automatically opening the control circuit and cutting off all power from the locomotive, in case the engineer over-runs a signal set against him. At the same time a special valve is opened which will set the emergency air brake.



Electric locomotives similar in design to the above will be constructed at the Peterborough Works of the Canadian General Electric Company, providing the City Council agrees to permit the Company to construct one mile of track for testing purposes.

Thrift.

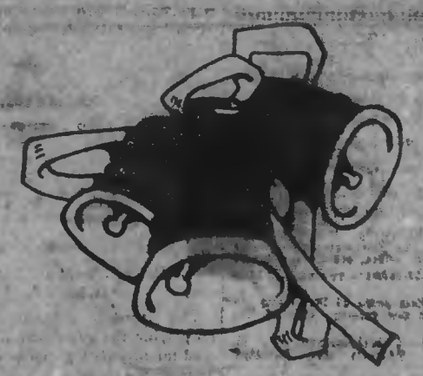
This story of a thoughtful boy perhaps might be no less applicable to certain adults, says a contemporary.

The sermon had "Thrift" for its subject, and the minister waxed eloquent concerning thrift of the real and mistaken kinds. Noting that Jim watched and listened with all his eyes and ears he spoke to the lad as the latter was leaving the church.

"I think the sermon interested you, Bonnie," he said kindly. "I was glad to see that you seemed to like it. Are you going to put the lesson into use?"

"Oh, I have," answered Jim earnestly. "I was going to put my nickel into the collection plate, but after you said so much about putting money to the best uses, I made up my mind I'd save it for some real need."

CHRISTMAS SUGGESTIONS



Dainty Jewelry

NEVER before have we been able to offer such a pleasing variety of novel and exclusive designs as we show this season. They must be seen to be properly appreciated. The following descriptions are, however, suggestive of their worth-while nature:

Pendants are quite the vogue. Those we show are charming in design and follow the latest Parisian styles in mounting or setting. One in particular composed of emeralds and pearls, makes a most attractive and beautiful gift. Prices from $9 up.

Silverware—Knives, forks, spoons and flatware in Rogers 1847 starting at $1.

Cut Glass—New designs in water bottles, bowls, water jugs, vases, bon-bons, sugar and creams, salad dishes, pepper and salts, &c.

Lockets—Large oval and round plain lockets, bright and Roman finish, round pearl set, hand engraved, plain, squares and heart shaped. Plain lockets hand engraved without extra charge. Priced $3, $4, $5 and $10.

Novelties—There is such a bewildering array of good things in this department suitable for father, mother, sister, brother, and even the baby, that it would take more space than we can spare to describe them. Let it be one of the first of your Christmas duties this week to call out for Christmas shoppers.

DEVELOPMENT OF IRON ORES IN CANADA

Plea for Immediate Development of Vast Deposits of Iron Ore in Canada

In the provinces of New Brunswick, Nova Scotia, Quebec, Ontario and British Columbia there are more than seven different iron ranges and about 200,000,000 tons of iron ore proven to exist and expensive plants have been erected in Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and Ontario for the necessary treating of the ore before the same is shipped to the blast furnaces.

For many years, in order to secure the development of the coal mines in Nova Scotia, Alberta and British Columbia, a duty of about fifty cents per ton on bituminous coal has been imposed on coal imported from the United States and Central Canada now pays annually about $5,000,000 in customs duties for such coal imported for her consumption, but through this policy our coal mines have been developed until the yearly product amounts to about 12,000,0000, worth about $30,000,000.

The iron mines of the United States in the Lake Superior district produced in 1912 over 48,000,000 tons worth about $150,000,0000. The ore requires no treatment, and is mined and transported for less than half the cost of handling most of our Canadian ores and is imported into Canada free of duty.

If one-third of the $5,000,000 paid by Central Canada annually to protect the coal mines in eastern and western Canada was paid each year in bounties at the rate of fifty cents per ton on each ton of iron ore mined and smelted during the next ten years, Canada would probably be able to produce 12,000,000 tons of iron ore worth about $40,000,000, giving employment to about 72,000 men directly and indirectly, who would receive about $30,000,000 in wages and pay $3,600,000 in customs duties annually and place Canada fourth among the nations of the world in the production of iron ore.

The United States in 1912 produced 30,000,000 tons of iron and steel products worth about $1,250 million dollars, while Germany produced 15,000,000 tons, Great Britain 9,000,000 tons and Canada about 1,000,000 tons.

With Canada now receiving immigration at the rate of 100,000 people annually from the United States and with the ever-increasing tide of immigrants from other lands, which have for years past poured over a million each year into the United States, and has turned towards Canada, it is quite possible that in twenty years Canada may have a population of nearly 20,000,000.

How can Canada spend her surplus millions better than by stimulating the development of her iron mines, and furnish one of the most important raw materials used by our manufacturing industries and develop steel plants and shipbuilding yards equal to anything in the world?—Port Arthur Daily News.

Sunday School Conferences

Since the Twin Conventions of the Ontario Sunday School Association held the closing days of October, two other conferences of older Boy Workers have been held under the joint auspices of the Provincial Sunday School Association and the Interprovincial Y. M. C. A., one at Brockville, and one at Brantford. The members of those conferences for the most part were Older Boys—(ages 16-20). At Brockville 495, at Brantford 592, total 1087, were enrolled. This enrollment represented 121 different points in 33 counties. One strong feature of these conferences is a Sunday afternoon Mass Meeting to which only boys and boy leaders are admitted. The age limit is strictly drawn at 15, none under that age are admitted. A careful presentation of life problems and clean living is made. At the two conferences 169 young men declared, by public appearance, as giving their lives to Christian service. 775 others, registered some forward step in the direction of more wholesome living. It is conservatively estimated that these conferences through the delegats, will rach 20,000 boys, directly and indirectly.

Already four local conferences on a smaller scale are planned before New Years, following up the work of the two larger conferences, and it is expected that before Spring half a dozen others will be planned and carried through. The movement is significant as a prophesy of a Twentieth Century method. Among the many things suggested by the boys as the task to be undertaken, in addition to those who attempt the Christian life, are such things as the following: "Teach English to immigrant boys"; "Join the Church"; "Train for Y.M.C.A. Secretaryship" "Teach a Sunday School Class"; "Promote Pocket Testament League" "Enter Christian Ministry," while score upon score indicated, "Cut out bad habits"; "Clean speech"; and "Clean Living."

AFTER SICKNESS

Mrs. Gardner Tells How to Restore One's Strength.

So many people are asking how to recover their strength after severe sickness that we are publishing this information for their benefit.

After grippe, pleurisy, pneumonia or any illness what you need is new strength and better blood.

The most certain way to get this is by taking Vinol, our delicious cod liver and iron preparation.

Mrs. M. Gardner, Chicago, Ill., says: "After a very serious operation I was a total invalid for nearly a year and a convalescent for months thereafter. I gave the remedies of a number of eminent specialists a thorough trial, but without deriving the slightest benefit. Vinol was recommended. Without the least faith in the merits of the medicine, I took it faithfully, and it seemed to bring back the old colour to my cheeks and the elasticity to my step which I had despaired of ever recovering. I can say, conscientiously, that for nervous, run-down people, Vinol is an excellent remedy."

Try a bottle of Vinol. Your money will be returned if it does not restore your vitality and strength. McDermid & Jury, druggists, corner George and Charlotte Streets; also Payne's drug store, corner George and Simcoe Streets.

ENTERTAINMENT AND DANCE GIVEN BY THE "NOMADS"

Shield and Medals Were Awarded to the Winning Team

At the Hall of the Woodmen of the World, last evening, some two hundred guests of the "Nomads" Football Club assembled to participate in a social evening, consisting of a musical programme, the presentation of prizes and a supper, followed by a dance.

Mr. J. H. Burnham, M.P., occupied the chair.

The proceedings commenced with the musical portion of the programme, which was presented as follows:

Programme.

Song—Miss Greenhalgh.
Song—Mr. Bartley.
Banjo duet—Messrs. Perkins and son.
Recitation—Mr. Johns.
Song—Mr. R. Dickson.
Comic song—Mr. C. Coleman.
Song—Miss Greenhalgh.
Recitation—Mr. T. Williams.

The audience were so well pleased with the performances of Messrs. Bartley, Dickson and Coleman that encores were vociferously demanded and acceded to. Mr. Williams' recitation also elicited a round of applause.

At the conclusion of this portion of the entertainment the President of the Club—the genial "Tommy" Moffatt thanked the performers for their various offerings in a few well-chosen remarks. The members of the Glaziers' team were then called to the fore and Mr. Burnam presented the shield to the winning team, Mr. H Smith (the Secretary), following with the medals for each member.

The Glaziers, who stated they were not gifted with oratory, expressed their thanks by singing a solo with a chorus entitled "At the Football Match last Saturday."

Refreshments were then served to the guests, following which the Hall was cleared for dancing, which salutary exercise was kept up till 2 a.m. Messrs. McCabe and Bartley acted as Masters of the Ceremonies.

The "Nomads" Club desire to thank all their numerous patrons for the hearty support received by them during the past summer and express the hope that during the next season, they will be able, if it be in their power, to put up still better play.

The line-up of the "Glaziers" team is as follows:

Pellow—Goal.
Grubb and Perry—Backs.
Gamble, Mason and Knight—Halfbacks.
Irwin—Outside right.
MacKinley—Inside right.
Hetston (Captain) — Centre forward.
Edwards—Outside left.
White—Forward.

The dance music was provided by the Turner and Tucker's combined orchestra. The dances were English and Canadian. A "turkey-trot" was performed by Mssrs. Austin and Edwards.

CONGRATULATIONS FROM KINGSTON

Peterborough has a completed sanitary system—an active inspector, a garbage collection, and a consumption of this garbage by a modern incinerator, which is capable of disposing of nine tons of garbage in an hour. It is time Kingston had an outfit quite as good and equally as efficient. Peterborough is to be congratulated upon its progressiveness. — Kingston Whig.

Starting the Day Right

Do you begin the day with a "grouch"? Are you tired in the mornings? Do you fail to benefit by the restorative influence of sleep, which should make good the energy and vitality consumed by the day's work?

Then you are rapidly becoming bankrupt so far as health is concerned. You should look to your habits of eating, make sure that you get lots of fresh air in your sleeping apartments, and restore wasted vitality by using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

This great food cure does not induce sleep by any drugging effect, but when you have been using it for a few days and get the nervous system into condition you find yourself resting and sleeping naturally and healthfully. By keeping up this restorative treatment you will be able to make good the waste and fill the exhausted nervous system with new vigour and energy. This means thorough cure of such symptoms as headache, sleeplessness, indigestion and tired, listless feelings.

ALD. GREEN SOUGHT INFORMATION REGARDING THE CITY'S POSITION IN COMING LIGHTING CHANGES

Power Committee Could Not Answer His Questions — Hydro-Electric Commission Have Given Their Assurance, But West Ward Representative Wanted Something Material in the Form of Evidence

NO NEED TO WORRY

Ald. Green tried to give the City's Hydro system a microscopic examination last night, but did not meet with a great deal of success.

Where is the power coming from? What is it costing us? What position are we going to be placed in at the first of the year? These were some of his questions.

Ald. Johnston, chairman of the Power committee—We have every assurance from the Hydro Commission. They are making every arrangement for the turning on of the power.

Ald. Green—I want to know where it is coming from. Some people on the street seem to know all about it. Have you got anything written that power will be provided for us?

Have No Written Assurance.

Ald. Johnston—We have the verbal, but not the written assurance. Hon. Adam Beck has given it to us.

Ald. Green—Are we ready and will we be in a position to have power? My opinion is that you are not. Take the motors of 50[illegible] direct current motors. I understand that there is no provisi[illegible]

Ald. [illegible] that matter was taken u[illegible]mission.

Ald. [illegible] e not entitled to have s[illegible] than that? We should know [illegible] the power is coming from [illegible]fair to the manufacturers [illegible]ght users.

Mayor Bradburn—In any event the Peterbo[illegible]ough and Power Company w[illegible] supply power if the arrangem[illegible]ngs are not completed by the [illegible] this year.

[illegible] Co.

Ald. [illegible] people on the Otonabee lines going to do?

Mayor Bradburn —We are not responsible for the people who have been taking power from the Otonabee Power Company. What would you do with the company.

Ald. Green—I would allow the Otonabee Company to do business until we are in possession of the Peterborough Light and Power Company's plant.

Mayor Bradburn— The people did not suffer when the Otonabee Company's dam, No. 5, was shut down for four months.

Ald. Buller—I did not know there were any direct current motors in the City. We are told they would have to go, and we threw one worth $250 on the scrap heap.

Ald. Langford—Would it not be wise to write the Hydro Commission for the information Ald. Green is seeking?

Mayor Bradburn— I have already asked Mr. Gaby to do this.

Ald. Johnston—No committee has worked harder than your Power committee. The people in Toronto assured us that we were being cared for. We have asked that the power be turned on in the centre of the City next Tuesday, and we have been told it will be ready.

Ald. Gordon— I suppose it will be from the Peterborough L. and P. company?

Ald. Duffus—The Council is unanimous that the committee has done well, but I think that Ald. Green's contention is right that we should have something in writing.

No Need of Fear.

Ald. Gordon —There is no question of doubt or fear. Any failure on the part of the Commission would be so discreditable to them that they could not take the risk of anything going wrong here.

Ald. Green—I am still under the impression that a lot of people will be in trouble, particularly manufacturers using direct current motors. For instance we have three of them, and I would like to know if I am going to be protected.

Mayor Bradburn stated that Mr. Gaby, Chief Engineer of the Hydro-Commission had assured him on Monday that everything was all right. That was the only detail the City [illegible], and there the matter ended, except that an attempt will be made to find out what provision has been made for [illegible] current users.

The Council Decides Not To Renew The Franchise Of The Otonabee Power Company

It Will Expire on Dec. 31 of Present Year—Mr. W. G. Ferguson and Mr. D. O'Connell Asked For a Renewal, But City Fathers Said It Was Too Late.

MR. O'CONNELLS REMARKS

Moved by Alderman Duncan, seconded by Alderman Johnston, That the request of the Otonabee Power Company for a continuation of the right to maintain poles and wires on the streets be not granted and that as its right to maintain the same will expire on Jan. 1, 1914, the company be notified that the Council will insist on the said poles and wires being removed as provided by its agreement with the city.

The above motion was passed by the Council at a special meeting on Tuesday night, as an answer to the application from the Otonabee Light and Power Company for a ten-year extension of their franchise which expires on the last day of the present month.

Mr. W. G. Ferguson, president of the company, and Mr. D. O'Connell were present.

Has Given Good Service.

Mr. O'Connell addressed the Council in support of the application. When the Council granted the franchise in 1902 and extended it for ten years in June of 1904, the city was held practically in the hands of a monopoly. Competition was introduced and a reduction of light rates followed. The flat rate system carried on by the Otonabee Power Company has proved very satisfactory to consumers who prefer it to the meter system. There are from 600 to 900 users who have been well satisfied up to the present. Many of them have contracts with Otonabee Power under the flat rate system and want them continued with that company.

Competition Is Desirable.

Mr. O'Connell said there was no reason why the proposed municipal lighting system should interfere with the renewal of the company's franchise. The competition of the Otonabee Power Co. alongside the Municipal Lighting System will have an undoubted benefit for the latter system. It will compel an economic and efficient management of the Municipal Lighting System which would be a benefit to the users of light from both systems.

Would Be An Injustice.

To take away the franchise at the present time would be an injustice and injury to the company. The Council and the city has no complaint against the company which is largely composed of citizens of Peterborough and a great part of the capital would be taken out of the pockets of citizens. Over $51,000 has been expended on the plant, and equipment and it would be an injustice to impair the value of the investment of many citizens.

Alderman Gordon's Reply.

This case is analogous, Alderman Gordon said, to the expiration of a lease and the request that its time be extended. Conditions have changed since the franchise was granted. The shareholders must have got their profits or they would not have carried on the business. They had full knowledge that the lease would expire on December 31 of this year. If the company seriously considered the position they should have brought the matter to us before this. Three years ago the city tried to purchase the Otonabee Power plant, but was told that it was not for sale. The city was given no opportunity to buy it. Had it been done there would have been none of the present steps to acquire the Peterborough Light and Power Company's plant.

Regarding Competition.

The question of competition arises. I was told that the flat rate has been refused to some people.

Mr. Ferguson—That's not true.

Alderman Gordon—It appears to me that competition would simply cause an increase in the present tax rate. If by reason of competition, the municipality were to lost profits which should accrue to their municipal system but otherwise which would go to the Otonabee Power Co., the sum represented by those lost profits would have to be made up from the taxes. Consequently such consumers as might benefit by the company's flat rates would, in common with other tax payers, have to pay an increased rate of taxation to balance the loss of profit, which would otherwise have gone into the coffers of the municipal system. Competition would have the direct effect of imperilling the municipal enterprise, which enterprise the citizens have, by their vote, themselves asked for.

The Mayor's Questions.

Mayor Bradburn—What amount of common stock was there in the Otonabee Power Co.?

Mr. Ferguson—$110,700.00.

Mayor Bradburn—And preferred?

Mr. Ferguson—$112,600:00.

Which had the voting power?

The common.

Who controls it now?

It is mostly by the Electric Power Co.

Mayor Bradburn—That is by the Electric Power Co. who control the Peterborough Light and Power Co. You are here to try to help the poor preferred holders?

Mr. Ferguson—To help both.

Mr. O'Connell stated that an offer had been made the city to sell the plant.

Mayor Bradburn—That was after we had gone into the municipal plant.

Mr. O'Connell stated that people who invest money expect that a franchise will be continued as long as the work is done satisfactorily. Widows were included in those affected.

Mayor Bradburn—Did the common stock holders think of the widows and orphans when they sold to the Electric Power Co.? The Council asked if the plant would be sold to anyone other than the city and were told no, but at the same time the Electric Power Co. had control of the company.

Mr. Ferguson emphatically denied this statement. Mayor Bradburn read letters dated May 16, 17 and 21, of 1911, between Mayor Morrow and Mr. Ferguson, in which the latter wrote that the company decided not to offer the property for sale.

Mr. Ferguson—There was no stock sold before August, 1911.

Motion for No Action.

Alderman Duncan—To bring the question to a head I will move that no action be taken.

Alderman Buller—The Otonabee Power Co. in the first place did give us a promise that they would sell, but as the question developed it was called off.

Alderman Johnston—Why did the shareholders not give the city the preference?

Mr. O'Connell—The company did not sell.

Mayor Bradburn—$110,000 of common stock is held by members of the Electric Power Co. so there must have been a lot of stock sold.

Aldermon Johnston — Apparently the Electric Power Co. controls the Otonabee Power Co., and it would be folly for us to give a franchise to those with whom we are trying to do business.

We don't want to see anyone lose a dollar but we would be laughed at if we gave this franchise.

Alderman Johnston seconded Alderman Duncan's motion which carried. The discussion lasted nearly an hour.

MAYOR BRADBURN IS A MEMBER OF THE EXECUTIVE Committee of the Ontario Municipal Electrical Association

TORONTO, Dec. 10.—The Ontario Municipal Electrical Association, which is composed of officials representing the various municipalities using Hydro-electric power, decided at its annual meeting in the City Hall yesterday to pay the members of the Ontario Hydro-electric Power Commission $25,000 a year. The amount is to be divided between the three Commissioners, but the details of the division have been left in abeyance until the Lieutenant-Governor in Council is enabled by the Legislature to authorize the remuneration.

Mr. P. W. Ellis, chairman of the Toronto Hydro-electric Commission, in the course of an address, made the announcement that the local Hydro system will have surplus profits of [illegible] this year after making generous provision for depreciation and sinking fund.

He also made the interesting statement that soon there will be placed on the market lamps that will burn only half a watt of energy per hour. While these will materially reduce the cost of light to the consumer, Mr. Ellis remarked that they would also make serious inroads on the revenue of the Hydro-electric system. "We will have to prepare to offset the effect of these improved lamps on our receipts," He added, "and the matter is already under consideration."

Take Commission Out of Politics.

The question of the direct representation of the municipalities on the Provincial Hydro Commission was discussed when the proposal to pay the present Commissioners $25,000 a year came up for consideration. Mayor Price, of St. Thomas, thought the municipalities should have something to say about the personnel of the Commission. It would prevent the Commission being made a political football. No action was taken.

A sub-committee was appointed to consider the advisability of giving an exhibition of electrical equipment in connection with the annual convention, and a motion by Controller Church, of Toronto, was adopted urging the municipalities to co-operate in financing legal battles in which the Hydro Commission may engage.

Officers were elected as follows: President, J. W. Yyon, Guelph; First Vice-President, Chief Engineer Sifton, Hamilton; Second Vice-President, Philip Pocock, London; Secretary-Treasurer, Edward M. Ashworth, Toronto; Executive Committee, Mayor W. H. Bradburn, Peterborough; Mayor Carter, Guelph; Mayor Euler, Berlin; Alderman Roach, St. Thomas, and Commissioner R. C. Black, of Toronto.

WINNIPEG'S FINE NEW HOTEL WAS THROWN OPEN TO-DAY

THE FORT GARRY, WINNIPEG, MANITOBA

WINNIPEG, Man., Dec. 10.—This magnificent hotel was opened for the reception of guests to-day.

Adjacent to the ruins of that historic monument "Old Fort Garry," memorable in the early history of Canada's now Western metropolis, has been erected the Grand Trunk Pacific Hotel, The Fort Garry, a magnificent edifice, one of the world's finest hotels, embodying in its construction the most advanced, scientific and architectural ideals. Located in the very heart of Canada's greatest of western cities, to which all lines of traffic converge, it is readily accessible to the railroads and electric car lines and the leading theatres, the great stores and a "stone's throw" from the new terminal station of the Grand Trunk Pacific.

The Fort Garry is built of the finest of Canadian granite and buff limestone, in the style of the old French chateau of Normandy and Touraine, and rears its stately heights to fourteen stories.

The keynote of The Fort Garry, as judged from the design and interior arrangements, is to be "homelike comfort." From basement to roof every detail of construction and furnishing has been worked out in perfect accord with this one idea and would seem to assure the largest measure of personal enjoyment and restfulness to its guests—a place where comfort-loving people might enjoy life to the utmost and feel thoroughly at home.

The main entrance of the hotel faces on Winnipeg's most beautiful thoroughfare, "Broadway," and opens upon an imposing rotunda which suggests in its decoration and refinement the cheer ad comfort provided within its walls—and from which one may enter the spacious dining and tea rooms, also the cafe and bar.

The central feature of the main floor is the circular tea room of impressive and beautiful Adam design, unbroken by columns, lofty in height and finely lighted by broad windows and circular domed ceiling.

The Mezzanine gallery is also a novel feature, and is obtained by the introduction of a storey midway between the office floor and the parlours. It is reached by a broad marble staircase from the main entrance lobby and is finished and decorated in white and delicate shades of colour. It overlooks the entrance lobby, dining room, cafe and tea room and will be used as gentlemen's writing room. It commands a splendid view of those portions of the house where the most life occurs, and yet at the same time affords a quiet sense of retirement. On this floor is also located the ladies' parlour and drawing room and the executive offices of the management.

The ball room, banquet hall and foyer have been located on the seventh floor. These rooms are of the richest of the public rooms and, have been so arranged with separate kitchen service, reception and dressing rooms, so as to in no way interfere with the privileges of the guests of the hotel. The banquet room, with its stage and dancing floor, and on account of its location, will be particularly attractive for concerts and meetings.

Immediately in front of the foyer of the ball room and banquet hall is a beautiful loggia forming a promenade the entire width of the building and commanding a view of the city of Winnipeg.

The building as a whole forms a fine example of what modern science can do in the eliminations of fire risk; every girder, beam and rafter is of non-expansive steel, every partition of terra-cotta, every floor of marble, tile or cement, and the stairways of iron. It is absolutely fireproof, and while every precaution has been taken to insure absolute protection to life and property, an equal measure of attention has been devoted to its sanitation and the safeguarding of health. Seventy per cent. of the bedrooms are outside rooms, all are lighted and ventilated with adequate window areas, and each room has its own private bath. No treatment of the interior which effects garishness has been used. The colour tones are in perfect harmony and the furniture has been made to order from special designs such as one would ordinarily find in private homes of refinement.

On the first floor are the state apartments, consisting of parlour, bedrooms and dining room, beautifully decorated and furnished in the Adam period. There are also four private dining rooms on the first floor, each one of different size and character, and furnished to suit the needs of the most fastidious. On each floor there are parlour suites consisting of two or more rooms.

CHARLOTTE ST. CHURCH CANVASS WAS A GREAT SUCCESS

The returns of the every member canvass in the Charlotte Street Methodist Church, handed in at the meeting of the Official Board of the Church last night, were most encouraging.

Although all the canvassers were not present, and consequently full returns could not be given, yet the facts and figures given at last night's meeting demonstrated beyond a doubt that the canvass has been a gratifying success.

As well as creating a more general spirit in the Church work, the canvass has resulted in a very considerable increase in the contributions to the general expenses fund, and to missions.

MR. T. E. BRADBURN TO BE A CANDIDATE

It is understood that Mr. T. E. Bradburn, ex-M.P.P., is being urged to stand as a candidate for the Water Commission, and that he has practically decided to place his name before the electorate.

MAPLE LEAF BAND'S NEW UNIFORMS ARRIVE

Local Musical Organization of Fourteen Members Are Making Good Progress—Have a Number of Engagements.

The new uniforms for the Maple Leaf band have arrived. They are navy blue trimmed with black braid, and look decidedly neat. They were secured from the Crown Tailoring Co. through Mr. L. LeBar, and the members of the band desire to thank the citizens whose generous donations made this purchase possible. A number of new instruments were also secured. There are now 14 members in this new band under the direction of Mr. A. Armitage, 196 King street. The officers are:

President—Geo. Jewell.
Treasurer—A. Alton.
Secretary—N H. Dunford.
Committee—Messrs. Kearsley, S. Armitage and F. Sanderson.

The other members are: V. Naples, H. G. Dunford, M. Armitage, A Trethewey, M. Drysdale, E. Walton, A. Simmons and Mr. Briggs.

The band has a number of regular engagements and are looking forward to a busy winter and continued growth.

A SOCIAL EVENING.

A social evening will be held under the auspices of St. John's men's Bible class and Athletic Association on Thursday night at 8 p.m. in Coleman's parlours. All members of these societies are requested to attend.

The Consular Mass.

It is not generally known that in all the large cities in the Levant wherever there is a French consul or agent, a special mass, called "the consular mass," is celebrated once a month. "At this mass," says Le Cri de Paris, "all the diplomatic corps attend, as well as the representatives of orthodox Russia, and Protestant Germany. But the mass is always presided over by the French consul."

Reception Given For Young Men Of Sunday School

A large number of the young men of the George Street Methodist Sunday school spent a very enjoyable evening at the home of the Rev. and Mrs. R. G. Peever yesterday. The young men of Mr. Logan's Sunday school class, as well as a number of others connected with the school, turned out in force and were pleasingly entertained.

Mr. and Mrs. Peever established their popularity with the young bloods of the congregation last night and demonstrated in a manner very agreeable to the guests, their ability as host and hostess. The invading company of young men spent the evening in games and music.

Customs Officer Is Killed

Special to the Examiner.

SUSPENSION BRIDGE, N. Y., Dec. 10.—At noon to-day, when Jas. Mowat, aged 60, a Canadian Customs Officer, in the Pere Marquette yards, was on his way to dinner, he was struck by a G. T. R. engine and badly mangled, death being instantaneous. He leaves a widow and three grown-up children.

MRS. BROWN PASSED AWAY IN CHICAGO

The death occurred in Chicago, yesterday, of Mrs. Brown, formerly of this City. The deceased lady was 81 years of age and was born in this City, where she lived for many years. Her husband, who lived here some years ago, predeceased her by several years.

Mrs. David Allison of Water street, north, is a daughter of the late Mrs. Brown.

The remains will be brought to Peterborough on Friday next.

STEEL FOR THE TURNBULL BUILDING

The structural steel for the Turnbull building has arrived, together with Mr. Douglas of Toronto. The latter will supervise its erection. The actual work of placing the steel in position commenced yesterday, with the result that the proposed four-storey building at the corner of George and Simcoe Streets is beginning to assume material form.

IN THE WORLD OF SPORT

BIG INTERNATIONAL BETWEEN ENGLAND AND SCOTLAND

Will be Played at Hampden Park, Glasgow, on April 4th --Old Country Soccer News

Hampden Park, Glasgow, has been chosen as the venue of this season's big international between Scotland and England, on April 4, 1914. The press box is to be situated above the centre stand and will accommodate 100 reporters and 60 special telegraphers. The arena will accommodate 140,000 people. Celtic Park will house the Welsh International.

During the week Charlton, whose transfer Burnley obtained last March from Scotland County, was transferred to Blackpool. The Turf Moor club have signed W. T. Richmond, the amateur inside right of Blackburn.

As the result of the unpleasant incident which occurred during the match between Manchester United and Aston Villa, at Aston, Hamill, the Manchester United half-back, has been suspended for three weeks by the Football Association, and Humphrey, who was ordered off the field during the game between Birmingham and Barnsley, for a fortnight.

During the last few days there has been quite a rush of inquiries after Ingham, the Norwich City forward, but the rumour which gained currency that he had been transferred to Millwall was rather premature. Millwall were first in the field, but applications for the services of the clever inside right have also been received from Tottenham Hotspur, Hull City, Brighton, and Middlesborough. Both Middlesbrough and Hull City had previous oportunities of appraising Ingham's work in Norwich Hospital Cup matches.

Hall, the young half-back secured by Mr. Brown from the Manchester district, has made a highly satisfactory start for Portsmouth, and was largely instrumental in the team beating Brentford. He opens out the game wel, and his heading is a feature of his play.

Cambridge Defeat Oxford.

London, Dec. 9.— Cambridge University to-day won its annual Rugby football match against Oxford University by 13 points to 3. The match was played at Queen's Club.

Waterfall of West Bromwich Albion, is an American by birth.

Sunderland have been granted more penalty kicks than any other team in the English league.

Aston Villa and Manchester City have agreed to pool their gates this season.

Utley, late of Barnsley, has a five-year contract with his new club, Suffield United.

McAulay of Huddersfield, and an Irish international and ex-Ranger to boot, has been transferred to Preston North End.

Willie Reid has scored 116 goals since joining Rangers in 1909-10.

Albion Rivers, a Scottish second division team, are the only undefeated club in the United Kingdom.

Andrew Wilson, the old Clyde forward, has played in 389 league games and scored 121 goals. Andrew has seen fourteen years service with Sheffield Wednesday.

Whilst Jocky Simpson has not once found the net this season, his understudy, McGhee, has scored against Everton and Derby County.

The two Reids are again level in the matter of scoring goals, and Dawson is right on their heels.

Burnley have taken a point from four Lancashire teams: Everton, Liverpool, Bolton and Oldham, at their respective headquarters.

The first of the international trial matches resulted in a win for the English team, the South going under at Fulham by 3 goals to 1.

In the five old country leagues on Saturday, 25 teams failed to score, 25 only counted once, 13 twice, and 19 clubs registered three goals apiece. Hull, with seven, held the high card. The losing teams in the first division of the English league only scored five goals.

City League Will Meet

A meeting is to be held to-morrow (Thursday) evening at the rooms of the Y.M.C.A. with the object of re-organizing the Mercantile Hockey League of this city.

The teams already entered are the Tool Room and the Draughting Department of the C.G.E.; the Brinton's Carpet Factory, and a team from "The Examiner" newspaper offices.

The management of any other team desiring to join this organization is hereby requested to send two delegates to this meeting, which will be held at 8 o'clock sharp.

Music & Drama

THE GLAD EYE

"The Glad Eye," presented by Louis Meyers' all-star British Company, at the Grand Opera House, last night, proved one of the funniest farce-comedies ever seen here and won the hearty favour of a fair-sized audience. Nothing more amusing than this sparkling comedy, with its side-splitting situations, has been staged at the Grand, and it is seldom that more hearty laughter has been heard from an audience. The adventures of the two philandering husbands kept the house in gales of laughter, and during the hilarious second act the merriment of the audience was unrestrained. The Company was one of uniform excellence, not a weak spot being in evidence in the entire cast.

LIGHTNING BUG EXPLAINED.

At last the lightning bug secret has been laid bare. A scientist has come forward with an explanation of how the lowly lightning bug manufactures its light. He imparts the valuable bit of information that "lucifrase oxidizing on another chemical compound, called luciferin, produces zymosis of which the light is the outcome."

So it is to be seen that the zymosis is what really causes the light. But we should like to ask the learned man who has given us this childishly simple explanation, what would the poor bug do if he went out into the night from home and suddenly discovered that he did not have any zymosis in his tank? And what would he do if he were out on a lonely road and his luciferin went dry and his lucifrase blew up?

THE WHAT AND WHY OF "SALOME"

There has been so much talk of all kinds relative to the production of "Salome," which comes to The Grand on Monday next, Dec. 15th, that the management takes this means of stating in a few words exactly what it is and hereby puts itself on record, pertaining to the same.

"Salome," conceded to be the greatest opera ever composed by Massenette, the gifted French Master, is an entirely different thing from the "Salome" composed by Strauss, around the story of Oscar Wilde.

Massenette's "Salome," which is to be heard in this City on the above date, is one of the highest types of he modern school of opera. It fairly sparkles with some of the most beautiful music of modern times; its story is fascinating and intensely dramatic, but absolutely free from anything which might prove suggestive or objectionable to anyone. It is a performance to which any man may bring his wife or sweetheart and to which any mother might bring her daughters, secure in the knowledge that there will be absolutely nothing to occasion any embarrassment.

From a scenic standpoint it is positively the most pretentious and elaborate production ever taken on tour; its four acts and seven scenes are marvels of oriental splendour.

What perhaps is of greater importance than anything else is the cast to be heard in this beautiful work. Headed by Joseph F. Sheehan, the greatest of all American tenors, the cast includes such world-renown artists as Madame Antoinette Le Brun, Mlle. Lydia Sturtevant, Mr. Charles Swickard, Mr. Harold Geis, Mr. Lawrence Wallace, Mr. William Young, Miss Grace Doxsie and others of like calibre.

The augmented Orchestra will be under the direction of Chevalier Theodore Stearns, a pupil of Massenette. The premier danceur, Mlle. Sophia Benucci is one of the greatest artists this country hase ver seen and has been especially engaged for this production.

SOLAR PHENOMENA.

Hear Rev. Dr. Marsh's Great Address On Tuesday Evening, Dec. 16, in the Collegiate Institute.

This will be an advanced address for the thinkers and students of Peterborough. Dr. Marsh is one of Canada's distinguished astronomers. He has been honoured by the parent society by having conferred upon him the degree of doctor of science, and he has honoured the society by reason of the knowledge he has acquired.

In his intensely interesting addresses he drops the plummet of his knowledge far into the secrets of nature's great laboratory and he breaks up the truths he brings to the surface into mentally digestible pieces with the easy flow of a natural eloquence.

In the twilight days of this wonderful system so many of use make the mistake of supposing that when this world was formed it was created. To create is to make out of nothing. The matter in our solar system doubtless formed other systems that lived out their eons of time to be reformed into binaries and into larger and smaller systems depending upon the causes of fusion.

Sometimes we are apt to think that the sun is very different from the earth and we are surprised when we learn that it differs from the earth in degree of development only.

When the great wisp or gas began to condense and throw off smaller wisps which in time formed planets and these smaller wisps to throw off still smaller wisps to become moons as they began to condense and solidify they all possessed the present phenomena of the sun. They were all suns. They shone by their own light but by reason of their smaller bulk they have cooled while the sun still shines.

The earth is still in a condition of fertility. The moon because of its being so very much smaller is now a burnt out cinder. Mars not being so small as the moon it is rapidly tending towards the same condition.

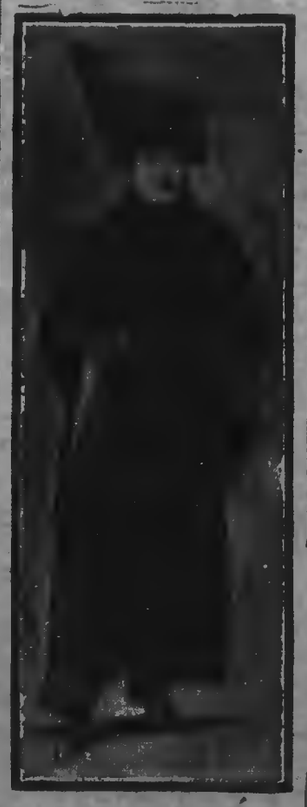
Jupiter being nearly fourteen hundred times larger than the earth has not yet cooled and still continues to give a sensible degree of heat to its family of moons, its heat supplemented by the heat of the sun may make its moons habitable. The sun which is over eight hundred thousands of miles in diameter though glowing with great heat is aging, in its present state it illustrates a former page in our earth's history and just as surely will the sun become as the earth now is, with one exception. The sun when it cools will have no sun to give it light and heat.

At one time our forefathers were afraid of the spots on the sun, fearful that they might have dire effects, but now we know that these dark spots are but great accumulations of cooled gas possessing less luminosity than their surroundings.

The learned doctor will unfold to us the various layers of the sun and explain the great waves of heated gas that look so much like flames during a total eclipse.

It is a great privilege to listen to these lectures, doubtless every thinker in Peterborough will make it a point to be present at the Collegiate Institute on Tuesday evening, Dec. 16.

There will be no charge. Every citizen in Peterborough is invited to come and bring their friends.



MRS. CHARLES BECKER, wife of the convicted ex-lieutenant of police at Albany, N.Y., where her husband's appeal is being conducted. She is a school teacher by profession.

HIS EXPLANATION.

She: "I could have married either Whipper or Snapper if I'd wanted to and both these men whom I refused have since got rich, while you are still as poor as a church mouse."

He: "Of course. I've been supporting you all these years. They haven't."

Some Conceit.

Senator Burton L. French of Idaho smiled when one of the speakers at a banquet referred to the conceit of some young men. He said he was reminded of a certain Eastern youth.

The youth had proposed to a charming young girl, with every assurance of ordering out the wedding bells, but the fair one gently told him that she could only be a sister to him, and not much of a sister at that. Very much disappointed was poor Percival.

"Tell me," he angrily demanded, "why you spurn me this way after having led me on?"

"Led you on?" exclaimed the girl with a freezing glance. "What do you mean?"

"I mean just this," answered Percival, "didn't you tell me that the fortune teller predicted that you would marry a handsome, brilliant young man, with the face of a Greek god, and a voice sweeter than silver chimes?"

MERRELL & MEREDITH

375 GEORGE ST. PETERBOROUGH

GILLESPIE for MAYOR

To the Electors of the City of Peterboro:

Ladies and Gentlemen—At the urgent solicitation of many of my business and personal friends, I have consented to become a candidate for the position of Mayor of your City, and respectfully solicit your votes and influence.

As in the past, I shall not make any rash promises to gain the vote of any elector, but, if elected, my attitude on every question will be to stand firm for the best interests of our Progressive City.

Having been interested in Peterborough all my life, and one of your Aldermen for five years, I may fairly claim to be in close touch with every section and every interest of the Municipality, and familiar with its needs and ambitions.

I believe that in all respects the will of the people should prevail; that a vigorous but economical administration is the best administration, and that if your Chief Magistrate is able to devote a fair proportion of his time to his civic duties, it will not be to your disadvantage if he brings with him the experience and energy he displays in the conduct of a large and successful business of his own.

If my success in the Council during the past five years has in the main met with your approval, I shall esteem it an honour to have your further approval and support in the coming contest.

Yours respectfully,

G. A. GILLESPIE

ALLEGED BANDIT IS CAPTURED

Examiner Special:

WINNIPEG, Man., Dec. 10.—John Pratschenko, alleged to be the bandit and murderer who murdered the bank manager at Plum Coulee, was captured this morning by twenty police in a house on College Avenue. He made no resistance.

At ten minutes to ten this morning the party of 20 officers entered the house together and went to John Kralschenko's suite of three rooms on the second floor. They rapped on the door and he, apparently thinking it was his friend, jumped out of bed in his pyjamas and opened it. He was immediately covered from all sides, and seeing that resistance was useless he said. "It's all up I guess. I will come quietly. I didn't intend to shoot anyway." The rooms were searched, but nothing more than a gun was found.

Nothing But Mild Weather Is In Sight

Special Wire to The Examiner.

TORONTO, Dec. 10.— The outlook, the observatory says, is fine, mild weather, with much the same temperatures for some days. In the west, mild weather prevails, with temperatures over 50 in many parts of Alberta and Saskatchewan. There is no prospect of a change and Canada may enjoy fine weather for some time yet.

MAN OF MYSTERY IS IDENTIFIED

Special to The Examiner:

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y., Dec. 10.—The "Man of Mystery" who collapsed in the vestibule of St. Paul's M. E. Church Sunday night, and who suffered a complete lapse of memory, has been identified as George E. Glasser, of Muskegon, Mich. The identification was made by his mother, Mrs. George Glasser of Lackawanna, N.Y., who visited him at the Memorial Hospital last night. The young man did not recognize his mother. His memory is still a blank.

WEDDING BELLS

SMITH—GARBUTT.

A quiet, but very pretty wedding was celebrated in the Showers House this afternoon, when Miss Margaret Garbutt was united in marriage to Mr. Grant Smith of Burlington, Ont. The ceremony was performed at 2.30 o'clock by the Rev. R. B. Grobb of All Saints' Church. The bride and groom were unattended.

Mr. and Mrs. Smith left to-day for New York on their wedding journey. They will reside in Burlington.

OBITUARY

MRS. WM. FOWLER.

The death occurred at Elba, Ont., on Tuesday, December 9th, of Frances Spilsbury Boswell, in her 70th year. Deceased was the widow of the late William John Fowler, formerly of Peterborough. She was the daughter of the late Walter W. Boswell.

The late Mrs. Fowler is survived by two sons and three daughters, namely: Captain W. G. Fowler of Toronto, F. W. Fowler of Saskatoon, Miss Bertha Fowler, graduate nurse of New York, Mrs. George Smith of Elba, Ontario, and Mrs. J. M. Bryan of Jacksonville, Florida.

Interment took place at Port Hope.

THE LATE WILLIAM TULLY.

The death occurred at his home in Smith township at 6 o'clock this morning of Mr. William Tully. The late Mr. Tully was a native of Smith, and was not only one of the township's oldest residents, but a farmer who was highly respected by all with whom he came in touch, either in a business or social way. He was 73 years of age.

The deceased gentleman is survived by a sorrowing wife, five sons and two daughters.

The funeral will be held at 1.30 o'clock Thursday afternoon from family residence, lots 1 and 2, concession 4, Smith, to the Little Lake Cemetery. Service will be conducted at the house by the Rev. H. Pogue at one o'clock.

MRS. MARY A. AUSTIN.

There passed away late yesterday afternoon one of the aged residents of our City, in the person of Mrs. Mary Ann Austin, the beloved mother of Mr. Walter Austin and Miss Phoebe Austin of Weller Street. Born in the neighbouring county of Prince Edward, of one of the early pioneer families of that famous county, she had passed her 94th birthday by some three months.

Soon after her marriage, Mrs. Austin came with her husband to Northumberland County, settling in Murray Township, when it was a wilderness. Here thirty years of her early married life was spent. Afterwards for a number of years she lived in Belleville and Brockville, coming from the latter place to Peterborough some ten years ago. The last five years the deceased had been confined almost entirely to her home, through weight of years.

In religion Mrs. Austin was a Methodist, and during her early years her home was always a centre of activity, the Minister and Church workers being always welcome guests. Her husband, Mr. Benjamin Austin, predeceased her some twelve years. She leaves to mourn her loss three sons and one daughter: Rev. Dr. B. F. Austin of Los Angeles, California; Manley Austin of Theodore, Sask.; Walter C. Austin and Miss Phoebe Austin of this City.

The remains will be taken to Belleville on Thursday morning for interment.

WILL MEET ON FRIDAY.

A meeting of the Central Ontario Water Conservation Association will be held in the Bank of Montreal chambers on Friday night next. The members of the Council have been invited to attend.

The shrine of St. Anne de Beaupre, Quebec, is visited by 200,000 people each year.

SCHMIDT ON TRIAL.

Former Priest Unmoved by Evidence Against Him.

NEW YORK, Dec. 11. — Hans Schmidt sat unmoved for three hours Courts building, and heard from the lips of witnesses the story of the murder of Anna Aumuller.

The ex-priest remained unmoved when a stenographer read the confession he made to the police, and when a physician told minutely of the manner in which the victim's body had been dissected. The only expression of interest manifested by him was shown when Anna Hart, friend of the girl Schmidt is charged with slaying, said that Anna Aumuller told her Schmidt wanted to marry her.

"We will get married," Schmidt told the Aumuller girl, according to Miss Hart, "and go to some far off country, and I will hang my cassock on a high hook."

Schmidt told the police in his confession that he had married Anna Aumuller, acting as both bridegroom and priest. The witness knew nothing of this so-called ceremony.

Young Man Confesses.

ALBION, Neb., Dec. 11.—Hugh M. Fins, 20 years of age, arrested two days ago on suspicion of being the man who robbed the bank at Primrose, Neb., last Thursday, confessed the crime yesterday, according to Sheriff Sutton of Greeley County.

His confession is said to have implicated Paul Carston, a farmer living six miles from Primrose, and on whose farm the officers found $3,700 of the $4,000 taken from the bank by Fins. The money was hidden in corn shucks. Carston was arrested.

ACTUARY EXPLAINS

A. E. Rusher Says H. Pollman Evans Deceived Him

PROSPECTUSES NOT ALIKE

TORONTO, Dec. 11.—That he was duped and deceived by the pretensions of the Union Life Assurance Co. was the statement made yesterday in a letter from E. A. Rusher, former actuary for the Prudential Insurance Co., placed in evidence before the court yesterday in the inquiry into the collapse of the Union Life. It was Mr. Rusher's eulogy of the company which is said to have sold most of its stock in Great Britain.

Not only does Mr. Rusher state that he was blinded to the facts of the financial condition and that his name and connection with the Prudential were improperly used, but he declares that Mr. Evans was conscious of his illegitimate practice. The only prospectus which he (Rusher) received was one carefully expurgated and vastly different from that which appeared. His hasty order to stop the issue when he learned of its contents was ignored till the effect was manifest. In disgust at the position in which he was placed, he resigned at once from the Prudential.

In court yesterday, Mr. Evans said in reply to Mr. Rusher's statement that Mr. Rusher must have known that his report was going to be used that way.

Mr. D. A. Burns, vice-president and treasurer of the Canada Provident Corporation, was unable to answer most of the interrogations definitely.

"Would you be fairly characterized as a 'Dummy Director?'" asked Mr. Masters.

"I might be called that," answered Mr. Burns.

"Just a case of doing whatever Mr. Evans requested," put in the official referee.

The inquiry will be resumed to-day.

Temperance Workers In Capitol.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11. — Under the dome of the capitol two thousand men and women, representing the Anti-Saloon League of America and the Woman's Christian Temperance Union, assembled yesterday for a demonstration against the liquor traffic. In two phalanxes, the men and women marched from the down-town section of the city to the east front of the capitol. Each bore petitions demanding national prohibition by constitutional amendment.

RECORD IS BROKEN

About 25,000 Have Attended Winter Fair Thus Far

HOME BRED HORSES BEST

GUELPH, Dec. 11.—With two days of the thirtieth annual Provincial Winter Fair passed into history the little city of Guelph has abundantly demonstrated her claim to the proud title, "The Smithfield of Canada." For the two days the total attendance approximates 25,000. No fewer than 16,327 people passed through the turnstiles yesterday, two thousand more than on the corresponding day of 1912.

The string of thoroughbreds was an eye-opener to many a blase Fair goer, while the sight yesterday afternoon of a score of towering draught horses in magnificent harness and dexterously handled was a spectacle probably unequalled in a Canadian show ring. This show has brought out the finest exhibit of young Canadian-bred horses that ever faced judges in Canada, in fact the home bred this year, for the first time eclipse the showing of imported animals.

The annual public meeting in connection with the Provincial Winter Fair was held last night in the armories, when several distinguished speakers, including Hon. W. J. Hanna, Provincial Secretary; ... Lockie Wilson, superintendent of fall fairs; Hon. J. S. Duff; John Bright Dominion live stock commissioner; Dr. J. Rutherford, ex-Dominion live stock commissioner; H. C. Schofield M.P.P.; Mayor Carter, Guelph; Maj. Wm. Smith, M.P., vice-president of the Winter Fair Board; Dr. G. C. Creelman, president of the Ontario Agricultural College, and Hon. Duncan Marshall, Minister of Agriculture, Alberta.

The judging of the sheep was finished in the afternoon and the championship prizes awarded.

The grand championship was won by James Bowman of Guelph, who exhibited a Shropshire and Suffolk wether.

Justice Moves Slowly.

WASHINGTON Dec. 11.—It may be three years before Supreme Court settles the Thaw case, court officials estimated yesterday. Unless Attorney Jerome asks and the court grants a motion to advance the questions certified by Judge Aldrich at Concord, the case cannot sooner be reached for hearing in its regular order on the congested court docket.

Even if the case is advanced there could be no final decision for about a year.

MURDERER CAPTURED.

John Krafchenko o Winnipeg Admits Plum Coulee Bank Crime.

WINNIPEG, Dec. 11.—John Krafchenko, for whom a warrant is out in connection with the murder of H. M. Arnold, manager of the Bank of Montreal at Plum Coulee last week was arrested yesterday morning in a house on College avenue, in the north end, and taken to the police station.

Krafchenko was captured without bloodshed. The police received a tip that he was within the place, and 4 of them surrounded the house early yesterday afternoon and effected the arrest without difficulty. Krafchenko was taken to the police station in an automobile. He made no resistance.

During his stay at the house on College street, Krafchenko passed as a student named Andrews. When arrested the murderer made no denial of his identity nor of his guilt, but exclaimed:

"It's all up, I guess. I'll come quietly. I didn't intend to shoot any way."

On searching the apartments an automatic revolver was found lying on the bureau beside the bed, while under the pillow was another fully loaded revolver.

Arriving at the police station, the prisoner asked for a private interview with the chief of police, in which he made a long statement regarding the crime with which he is charged.

Krafchenko admitted to Chief Macpherson the holding up of the bank and informed the police that they would find $1,500 in bills under a fence at the rear of the house in which the arrest was made. The money the police have since recovered.

Of the money recovered, a considerable amount is bloodstained. In addition to that found under the fence behind the College street house, were further rolls in the southwest of the city and other in a northwest suburb.

REBELS REPULSED

Mexican Federals Victorious at Tampico, Says Government

HUERTA TO BE DICTATOR

MEXICO CITY, Dec. 11.—Tampico was attacked at eleven yesterday morning by large bands of rebels, supposedly under Pablo Gonzales, possibly with the co-operation of Candido Aguilar. The latest despatch received by the Government indicated that the rebels were repulsed in several assaults against the place.

The rebels advanced from Altamira, where they reported Tuesday. In view of the alarming reports reaching Vera Cruz regarding Tampico Tuesday the scout cruiser Chester left there shortly after noon at full steam, shortly folowed by the Tacoma. The British cruiser Suffolk also left for Tampico. Troops under Gen. Joaquin Maas, jr., stationed at Tuxpam, left Tuesday to reinforce the garrison at Tampico, anticipating an attack.

A fight took place yesterday at Coco, seventy kilometres north of Tampico on the line to San Luis Potosi.

Much alarm is caused here because of the fighting at Tampico owing to the large number of foreigners there, also to the belief that this may possibly be made a pretext for landing marines. Rebels are reported to be active northward, cutting the line and dynamiting military trains on the Peadrasnegras and Laredo lines. The casualties are not reported.

A bill has been introduced by Huerta asking Congress to grant him an extraordinary, practically dictatorial, recess. The measure, sent to committee, probably will be reported before the end of the week, and undoubtedly favorably, which will give Huerta power to authorize another series of interior bonds.

Rebels Coil Around Ojinaga.

PRESIDIO, Mex., Dec. 11.—Like a great snake the rebel line is gradually coiling itself around the little town of Ojinaga, which sits on a mesa overlooking the terrible Camargo desert, across which the refugees recently came from Chihuahua. The rebels who followed the Federals from Falomir are waiting in the mountain passes for the command of their leader, Sancho Villa, to begin the attack on the fatigued Federal garrison, which is trying to fortify itself in Ojinaga with nothing more than sundried bricks and small trees to build earthworks with. Villa has left Chihuahua for the new rebel front between Paso La Mula and Ojinaga, and will take personal charge of the final effort to crush the Huerta power in northern Mexico. Maclovio Herrera, the bravest man in the rebel army except Villa, is second in command, and Tomas Urbina and Trinidad Rodreguez are also on the ground.

CANADIANS DINE.

New York Banquet Is Occasion For Expressions of Amity.

NEW YORK, Dec. 11. — Cabinet Ministers and leading citizens of both countries, and some three hundred Canadian residents of New York, attended last evening the 17th annual dinner of the Canadian Society. Wm. Jennings Bryan, Secretary of State, represented the Wilson administration, while Hon. W. T. White, the Canadian Minister of Finance, was the Canadian Government's envoy. In addition, Sir John Willison, Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, Justice W. R. Riddell and F. B. Featherstonehaugh, of Toronto, and Alex. D. Fraser, of Montreal, came to the city for the occasion, while Governor Taylor, of New Jersey; Bishop Courtenay, and representatives of the St. George's, St. Patrick's, St. Andrew's, St. David's and other societies formed the American representation.

The British embassy was represented by Viscount Campden and Consul-General Courtenay and Walter Bennett.

Mr. Bryan delivered an eloquent plea for international peace.

Hon. W. T. White referred to the coming peace celebration. That celebration would usher in a thousand more, a millenium between the two great English-speaking races.

"Why should it not be so?" he continued. "Neither nation seeks further territory. The bounds of our physical dominion are set. Both are interested in the peace of the world. No two peoples understand each other better than the American and Canadian."

He spoke of the love and loyalty, unchanged and unchangeable, of Canada for the Empire, of which they symbol was the throne and crown.

Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, former Minister of Labor at Ottawa, said in part: "If to international peace we on this continent can add industrial peace, in the furtherance of which beginnings have already been made, so that men's minds may be liberated and men's energies freed to give to the problems of humanity the consideration they deserve, to what joint service for mankind may we not yet be called?"

French Aviator Killed.

BARBERIEUX, Charente, France, Dec. 11.—Leon Letort, the French aviator, who on July 14 last made a record non-stop flight by accomplishing the 590 miles from Paris to Berlin in eight hours, was killed here yesterday. He was about to land when his biplane turned over and crushed him beneath the motor.

PEACE PRIZES AWARDED.

Elihu Root and Belgian Senator Get Nobel Awards.

CHRISTIANIA, Norway, Dec. 11.—The Nobel peace prize for 1913 was conferred yesterday on Senator Elihu Root of New York, and that for 1912 on Senator Henri La Fontaine, Belgium, who was formerly president of the Permanent International Peace Bureau of Berne, Switzerland.

As no Nobel peace prize had been awarded last year there were two for disposal this year, each of them worth $40,000.

The report of the committee, which was read by the secretary yesterday refers to Elihu Root's eminent merits in the pacification of the Philippines and Cuba, and in the handling of the American-Japanese dispute. It praises his high political and international ideals, his prominence as a statesman, and his constant efforts to promote pacifist ideas.

WHOOPING COUGH

Mrs. Charles Lovell, Agassiz, B.C., writes: "Seven of our nine children had whooping cough the same winter and we attribute their cure to Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine. We always have it in the house, and recommend it as the king of all medicines. I was also nearly completely cured of protruding piles by using Dr. Chase's Ointment."

"That Affair Next Door"

2. The shoes and stockings found on the victim were the only articles she wore which could not be traced back to Altman's. In the re-dressing of the so-called Mrs. James Pope, these articles had not been changed. Could not that fact be explained by the presence of a considerable sum of money in her shoes?

3. The going out bareheaded of a fugitive, anxious to avoid observation, leaving hat and gloves behind her in a dining-room closet.

I had endeavored to explain this last anomalous action by her fear of being traced by so conspicuous an article as this hat; but it was not a satisfactory explanation to me then and much less so now.

4. And last, and most vital of all, the words which I had heard fall from this half-conscious girl: "O how can I touch her! She is dead, and I have never touched a dead body!"

Could inspiration fail me before such a list? Was it not evident that the change had been made after death, and by this seemingly sensitive girls own hands?

It was a horrible thought and led to others more horrible. For the very commission of such a revolting act argued a desire for concealment only to be explained by great guilt. She had been the offender and the wife the victim; and Howard—Well, his actions continued to be a mystery, but I would not admit his guilt even now. On the contrary, I saw his innocence in a still stronger light. For if he had openly or even covertly connived at his wife's death, would he have so immediately forsaken the accomplice of his guilt, to say nothing of leaving to her the dreadful task of concealing the crime? No, I would rather think that the tragedy took place after his departure, and that his action in denying his wife's identity, as long as it was possible to do so, was to be explained by the fact of his ignorance in regard to his wife's presence in the house where he had supposed himself to have simply left her rival. As the exchange made in the clothing worn by the two women could only have taken place later, and as he naturally judged the victim by her clothing, perhaps he was really deceived himself as to her identity. It was certainly not an improbable supposition, and accounted for much that was otherwise inexplicable in Mr. Van Burnam's conduct.

But the rings? Why could I not find the rings? If my present reasoning was correct, this woman should have those evidences of guilt about her. But had I not searched for them in every available place without success? Annoyed at my failure to fix this one irrefutable proof of guilt upon her, I took up the knitting work I saw in Miss Oliver's basket, and began to ply the needles by way of relief to my thoughts. But I had no sooner got well under way than some movement on the part of my patient drew my attention again to the bed, and I was startled by beholding her sitting up again, but this time with a look of fear rather than of suffering on her features.

"Don't!" she gasped, pointing with an unsteady hand at the work in my hand. "The click, click of the needles is more than I can stand. Put them down, pray; put them down!"

Her agitation was so great and her nervousness so apparent that I complied at once. However much I might be effected by her wilt I was not willing to do the slightest thing to worry her nerves even at the expense of my own. As the needles fell from my hand, she sank back and a quick, short sigh escaped her lips. Then she was again quiet, and I allowed my thoughts to return to the old theme. The rings! the rings! Where were the rings, and was it possible for me to find them?

XXVI.

A Tilt With Mr. Gryce.

At seven o'clock the next morning my patient was resting so quietly that I considered it safe to leave her for a short time. So I informed Miss Althorpe that I was obliged to go down town on an important errand, and requested Crescenze to watch over the sick girl in my basence. As she agreed to this, I left the house as soon as breakfast was over and went immediately in search of Mr. Gryce. I wished to make sure that he knew nothing about the rings.

It was eleven o'clock before I succeeded in finding him. As I was certain that a direct question would bring no answer, I dissembled my real intention as much as my principles would allow, and accosted him with the eager look of one who has great news to impart.

"O, Mr. Gryce," I impetuously cried, just as if I was really the weak woman he thought me, "I have found something; something in connection with the Van Burnam murder. You know I promised to busy myself about it if you arrested Howard Van Burnam."

His smile was tantalizing in the extreme. "Found something?" he repeated. "And may I ask if you have been so good as to bring it with you?"

He was playing with me, this aged and reputable detective. I subdued my anger, subdued my indignation even, and smiling much in his own way, answered briefly:

"I never carry valuables on my person. A half-dozen expensive rings stand for too much money for me to run any risk with them."

He was caressing his watch-chain as I spoke, and I noticed that he paused in this action for just an infinitesimal length of time as I said the word rings. Then he went on as before, but I knew I had caught his attention.

"Of what rings do you speak, madam, Of those missing from Mrs. Van Burnam's hands?"

I took a leaf from his book, and allowed myself to indulge in a little banter

"O, no," I remonstrated, "not those rings, of course. The Queen of Siam's rings, any rings but those in which we are specially interested."

This meeting him on his own ground evidently puzzled him.

"You are facetious, madam. What am I to gather from such levity? That success has crowned your efforts, and that you have found a guiltier party than the one now in custody?"

"Possibly," I returned, limiting my advance by his. "But it would be going too fast to mention that yet. What I want to know is whether you have found the rings belonging to Mrs. Van Burnam?"

My triumphant tone, the almost mocking accent I purposely gave to the word you, accomplished its purpose. He never dreamed I was playing with him; he thought I was bursting with pride; and casting me a sharp glance (the first, by the way, I had received from him), he inquired with perceptible interest:

"Have you?"

Instantly convinced that the whereabouts of these jewels was as little known to him as to me, I rose and prepared to leave. But seeing that he was not satisfied, and that he expected an answer, I assumed a mysterious air and quietly remarked:

"If you will come to my house tomorrow I will explain myself. I am not prepared to more than intimate my discoveries to-day."

But he was not the man to let me off so easily.

"Excuse me," said he, "but matters of this kind do not admit of delay. The grand jury sits within the week, and any evidence worth presenting them must be collected at once. I must ask you to be frank with me, Miss Butterworth."

"And I will be, to-morrow."

"To-day," he insisted, "to-day."

Seeing that I should gain nothing by my present course, I repeated myself, bestowing upon him a decidedly ambiguous smile as I did so.

"You acknowledge then," said I, "that the old maid can tell you something after all. I thought you regarded all my efforts in the light of a jest. What has made you change your mind?"

"Madam, I decline to bandy words. Have you found those rings, or have you not?"

"I have not," said I, "but neither have you, and as that is what I wanted to make sure of it, I will now take my leave without further ceremony."

Mr. Gryce is not a profane man, but he allowed a word to slip from him which was not entirely one of blessing. He made amends for it next moment, however, by remarking:

"Madam, I once said, as you will doubtless remember, that the day would come when I should find myself at your feet. That day has arrived. And now is there any other little cherished fact known to the police which you would like to have imparted to you?"

I took his humiliation seriously.

"You are very good," I rejoined, "but I will not trouble you for any facts,—those I am enabled to glean for myself; but what I should like you to tell me is this: Whether if you came upon those rings in the possession of a person known to have been on the scene of crime at the time of its perpetration, you would not consider them as an incontrovertible proof of guilt?"

"Undoubtedly," said he, with a sudden alteration in his manner which warned me that I must muster up all my strength if I would keep my secret till I was quite ready to part with it.

"Then," said I, with a resolute movement towards the door, "that's the whole of my business for to-day. Good morning, M. Gryce; to-morrow I shall expect you."

He made me stop though my foot had crossed the threshold; not by word or look but simply by his fatherly manner.

"Miss Butterworth," he observed, "the suspicions which you have entertained from the first have within the last few days assumed a definite form. In what direction do they point?—tell me."

Some men and most women have yielded to that imperative 'tell me.' But there was no yielding in Amelia Butterworth. Instead of that I treated him to a touch of irony.

"Is it possible," I asked, "that you think it worth while to consult me? I thought your eyes were too keen to seek assistance from mine. You are as confident as I am that Howard Van Burnam is innocent of the crime for which you have arrested him."

A look that was dangerously insinuating crossed his face at this. He came forward rapidly and, joining me where I stood, said smilingly:

"Let us join forces, Miss Butterworth. You have from the first refused to consider the younger son of Silas Van Burnam as guilty. Your reasons then were slight and hardly worth communicating. Have you any better ones to advance now? It is not too late to mention them, if you have."

"I will not be too late to-morrow," I retorted.

Convinced that I was not to be moved from my position, he gave me one of his low bows.

"I forgot," said he, "that it was as a rival and not as a coadjutor you meddled in this matter." And he bowed again, this time with a sarcastic air I felt too self-satisfied to resent.

"To-morrow, then?" said I.

"To-morrow."

At that I left him.

I did not return immediately to Miss Althorpe. I visited Cox's millinery sore, Mrs. Desberger's house, and the offices of the various city railways. But I got no clue to the rings; and finally satisfied that Miss Oliver, as I must now call her, had not lost or disposed of them on her way from Gramercy Park to her present place of refuge, I returned to Miss Althorpe's with even a greater determination than before to search that luxurious home till I found them.

But a decided surprise awaited me. As the door opened I caught a glimpse of the butler's face, and noticing its embarassed expression, I at once asked what had happened.

His answer showed a strange mixture of hesitation and bravado.

"Not much, ma'am; only Miss Althorpe is afraid you may not be pleased. Miss Oliver is gone, ma'am; she ran away while Crescenze was out of the room."

Where It Happened.

During a large dinner party a young Frenchman was seated next to a fine looking young woman who was wearing a gown which displayed her beautiful arms.

"I came near not being here tonight," said she. "I was vaccinated a few days ago and it gave me considerable annoyance."

The young foreigner gazed at the white arms of the speaker. "Is that so?" he replied. "Where were you vaccinated?"

The girl smiled demurely and said, "In Boston."

Famous "Pint of Cough Syrup" Recipe

No Better Remedy at Any Price. Fully Guaranteed.

Make a plain syrup by mixing two cups of granulated sugar and one cup of warm water and stir for two minutes. Put 2½ ounces of pure Pinex (fifty cents' worth) in a 16-ounce bottle, and fill it up with the Sugar Syrup. This gives you a family supply of the best cough syrup at a saving of $2. It never spoils. Take a teaspoonful every one, two or three hours.

The effectiveness of this simple remedy is surprising. It seems to take hold instantly, and will usually stop the most obstinate cough in 24 hours. It tones up the jaded appetite and is just laxative enough to be helpful in a cough, and has a pleasing taste. Also excellent for bronchial trouble, throat tickle, sore lungs and asthma, and an unequaled remedy for whooping cough and croup.

This recipe for making cough remedy with Pinex and sugar Syrup (or strained honey) is a prime favorite in thousands of homes in the United States and Canada. The plan has been imitated, though never successfully. If you try it, use only genuine Pinex, which is the most valuable concentrated compound of Norway white pine extract, and is rich in guaiacol and all the natural healing pine elements. Other preparations will not work in this recipe.

A guaranty of absolute satisfaction, or money promptly refunded, goes with this recipe. Your druggist has Pinex, or will get it for you. If not, send to The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

NEW CONVENIENT TRAIN TO WINNIPEG.

CANADIAN PACIFIC

The popularity of Canadian Pacific service, and the excellence of that road's equipment, has ben so greatly appreciated by the travelling public that it has been found necessary to put into service an entirely new Through Standard Express Train between Toronto and Winnipeg.

Commencing Sunday, October 26th, the "Gate City Express" will leave Toronto at 2.30 p.m., and will run daily thereafter, arirving Winnipeg at 8.25 a.m. second morning. The train will consist of the highest-class modern equipment; Observation Compartment Car, Standard Sleeping Cars, Tourist Sleeping Car, Dining Car, First-class Coach and Colonist Car. This will be found the most convenient and best train between Toronto and Winnipeg on account of the daylight departure from Toronto at an hour when the Union Station is not badly congested, and also on account of the early hour of arrival at Winnipeg.

The present "Vancouver Express" will continue to leave Toronto at 10.20 p.m. daily and will consist of the same equipment as the "Gate City Express." This train is the best to take for points west of Winnipeg, but for Winnipeg and east the "Gate City Express" is the right train to travel by.

Indian Matrimony, Old and New.

The matrimonial advertisements accepted by the Indian papers occasionally bring out the contrast between the old order of things and the new. Here, for example, is an invitation from a paper in the Punjaub illustrating the old: "Wanted, a suitable match for a Bareen boy of 13 of a highly respectable family. The girl must be between 7 and 8 years of age, and should be well-connected." By the side of this may be put an example of the other kind, an advertisement inserted in the same paper by one Ram Singh Bay, of Dharamsala: "My good friend, an educated, young, possessing robust health, wealth and independent livelihood, aged 32, bachelor, wants to marry a girl decorated with education, civilisation and sound health; no distinction between Hindu castes."

Victimising Mr. Winston Churchill.

The old "bogus laundryman" trick has just been performed successfully at the Admiralty House, Whitehall, and the wife of the First Lord (Mr. Winston Churchill) has lost articles of clothing to the value of $250.

A young, neatly-dressed man called at the First Lord's official residence recently, represented that he came from the firm which deals with the Admiralty House laundry, and asked for the week's linen. The maid saw no reason to be suspicious, and a large number of articles of personal clothing belonging to Mrs. Churchill were handed over to the man with two tablecloths worked with a rose, shamrock, crown and anchor. Within less than an hour the genuine laundryman arrived, and the trick was discovered.

MADE OVER FROCKS.

Good Results When Last Season's Gown is Altered Intelligently.

It is very often true that the made over frock is prettier, more stylish and becoming than it was in the original, provided—mark well the provision—that sufficient care and thought are taken in the making over. First of all, many a frock that seems far gone, silk or wool, may be ripped apart, washed well in soap and water, dried and pressed and look like new. Wash a little sample first and see if it can be managed. Some woman, in fact, buy material with an eye to its washability, for washing is more satisfactory and cheaper than dry cleaning.

Then let the design chosen be quite up to date and, of course, adapted to the size of the pieces on hand. The very latest sash or vest, for instance, gives an ultra style that will take the eye entirely away from any possible recognition of last year's dress. Again, choose new trimming of such a kind that it will not make an unsightly contrast of new goods with old. For instance, button molds self covered, since buttons are a leading trimming this season, will give an unusual chic and can be used in as large a quantity as wanted. White wash net or tulle, made into one of the fluffy little vests and trimmed with small fancy buttons, adds a delightful style and daintiness, and the vest may be removed often for washing. Net edging to match also makes a very freshening addition. It may be run around revers and collar, on edges of the vest and is especially effective standing up medici-collarwise about the neck.

But, as any good dressmaker will tell you, the main thing is the care in making, for what is worth doing at all is worth doing well—careful designing, careful sewing, thought as to the most effective manipulation of the trimming, for it is the little touches, as the French designers will tell us, that are often the making of a frock. Then, above all, if the general becomingness of the frock is considered, the making over is sure to be a success.

Illustrated is a Parisian gown that suggests a number of new ways in which last season's frock may be brought up to date. Bands of skunk fur trim the dark blue velvet model, and the drapery is looped up over a skirt of chiffon hemmed with velvet and banded with fur. A broad sash of black satin divides skirt and bodice.

A Birthday Cake.

In a family where the members are all adults, instead of having a tiny candle for each year, when a birthday is celebrated, there are put only three candles on the cake, one for past birthdays, one for the present birthday and one for the future birthday. These candles are about the size of Christmas tree candles and are always very fancy and elaborate.

In fact, each member keeps on the lookout for any novelty in candles in the shops, and the souvenirs from the out of town trips and vacations always include candles for some member's birthday cake. Once bayberry candles were used and the cake iced with white and delicate green icing. This method of lighting a birthday cake is both novel and interesting.

True Philosophy.

A lady was standing on her back porch one bright spring morning. She did not appear happy or contented, and was confided her restlessness to her negro housekeeper. "Oh, I wish I could go away! I do so need a change!"

"Now, chile," said the old negro, "wot you want git 'way fum? Dis yere beau'ful house? Now, wot you want git 'way fum? Dese yere lubly chillums? Now, wot you want git 'way fum? You gotta lug yo'se'f 'long whereber you go!"—Youth's Companion.

'Julia, you have the prettiest mouth in the world," sighed young Van Winkle.

PAT IN THE BANK.

An Irishman once went into a bank. The clerks were all out at dinner but one, who seemed busily engaged making up accounts. Pat strolled up and down the floor for some time. At last he looked over to the clerk and said: "What do you sell here?" The clerk made no reply. Pat asked the question again several times. The clerk, getting irritated, yells out to him: "We sell fools here." "Well," sez Pat, "yez must have had a very big 'clearance sale' lately, when there's only one left."

To While Away an Idle Moment

PHANTOM SHIPS THAT HAUNT SEAS

PHANTOMS of the deep—strange shapes that come in the darkness on missions of terror and death—these are among the visions that haunt the brain of every old sailor man. It is when the few remaining sailing vessels come into port from their long voyages that these tales are usually forthcoming. The bark Annie M. Reid is the last vessel to bring in a tale of experience on route which proves that the great steamships have not robbed the ocean of its mystery and that spirits still haunt the watery wastes, conveying their potent messages by their dread looks or their more fearful speech in the very face of the modern calls of the wireless that are flashing through the air.

It was when the Annie M. Reid was in great difficulty, during a violent storm, that her mate beheld the curious ship go past them—a phantom ship according to the tale of some of the sailors on board, who stuck to their belief that they had beheld an apparition, even in the face of the laughter of their mates.

A heavy squall struck the bark just at dusk, on the 3d day of the storm, according to the mate, who told the tale when the Annie M. Reid got into Erie Basin. The squall blew the fall masts and carried away the mizzen topsail yard. For a moment the very life of the ship was threatened.

"We were standing by the mizzen topsail halyards when the shackle broke and the yards crashed down," said the sailor. "We came up into the wind and here we said it was at that moment that we saw the strange trader—at least we thought it was a trader—probably to the Western Islands, off which we were. We signalled for help for we did not know how we were coming out of the squall. The strange steamship, a tramp we took her to be—was not more than an eighth of a mile away, but she made no reply whatever and kept right on her course. If there had been anybody alive on the tramp he certainly would have seen us, as there was no fog to interfere. There are only two things to think of it; either every man on board was dead or we had seen one of those phantom ships they tell about. It couldn't have been a warning of death, however, for we came out of it all right."

A ship that sails by in the moonlight and does not answer when spoken, nor show any light or sign of life on board, is an even stranger apparition of the deep than those many phantom vessels which have loomed into the sight of sailor men from out the fog or darkness. The crew of the Hengist, out of Liverpool, Captain Thexton, of Liverpool, in command, once saw this spectral sight. Captain J. C. Norton, who was first officer of the bark Hengist when the phantom ship passed her by, tells the story of the weird vision:

"It was in the Indian Ocean that we saw her—the strange ship that I have never forgotten," said Captain Norton. "We were out of Calcutta, bound for New York, and although there was a haze the moon shone and the haze was so light that we could see perfectly well across the water. The haze was just enough to make a nice, pretty silvery veil that made everything look sort of mysterious and interesting without closing us in at all.

"There were no lights on the vessel and we couldn't see a soul on board. We spoke her, but she didn't answer. She passed right under our stern about a biscuit's toss away, and we thought she was going to foul us. She was so near that we could feel the wind of her sails as she passed, but not a sign did she make to all our signalling; just sailed away into the hazy moonlight. Next day we had a terrible gale, one of the worst that I remember while I was at sea, and everybody thought the phantom ship had come to give warning. Why we should have been favored I don't know, but of course there is always a reason why these ships are seen by one vessel and not by others. Sometimes they mean harm for everybody on board, and sometimes they come simply to give a friendly warning. There was one man on board who believed that our phantom ship came to warn us of the gale because her captain had been a friend of our own captain, and when his ship went down with all on board he continued to haunt the sea. Naturally, as he felt friendly, he would show himself or his ship before a storm. I can't say I believed all this myself. All that I know was that the phantom ship did come just as I've described it.

One of the most thrilling tales of the fateful appearance of phantom ships is told by a retired first mate, who in his youth sailed under Captain John Stebbins on the steel tramp Marietta, bound from Madeira to Brazil.

"Captain Stebbins was a bluff, direct, matter-of-fact person," said the mate, "and he had little tolerance for what he declared was merely superstition, so the crew were not apt to speak over loud of their supernatural experiences. That they had them, however, was sure enough, and as I was a bit more approachable than most men in my position, they were very wont to tell their stories to me.

"There was one fellow among them, named Gould, whom I could not help watching because of the strained and almost hunted look on his face. I made friends with him on purpose to get at the reason for his queer look, and one day when I caught him white and shuddering on the forward deck I got it out of him.

"It seemed that a couple of years before he had been on the bridge of a passenger vessel running between Kingston and New York when they had run down a ship in a fog. The ship had gone down with all on board before anything could be done to save them, and this man had seen the last of her crew leaning over the side and cursing at him horribly, just before he was sucked into the water.

"'He promised to find me out, and to do for me wherever I should go,' said the shuddering wretch, 'and he'll do it, too. I look for him every night and I know he'll get me before long.'

"I warned him to keep quiet about his fears and not mention his story to Captain Stebbins nor to any of the crew, for as luck would have it with such a captain, we had on board about as superstitious a lot as I have ever seen. Italians most of them, and so bound to tell their stories of apparitions that the captain had already caught one of them at it and had him flogged as an example to the others.

"My man didn't look any more contented as the days passed and I caught him more than once whispering with some of the Italians. I asked him what they were talking about, and at first he mumbled that it was nothing, but at last he admitted that several of the sailors had seen strange sights during the night watch. They all declared that again and again they had seen a figure with wildly waving arms appear from the darkness. The man was always cursing horribly, but he was gone in a second and they could not tell exactly what he said.

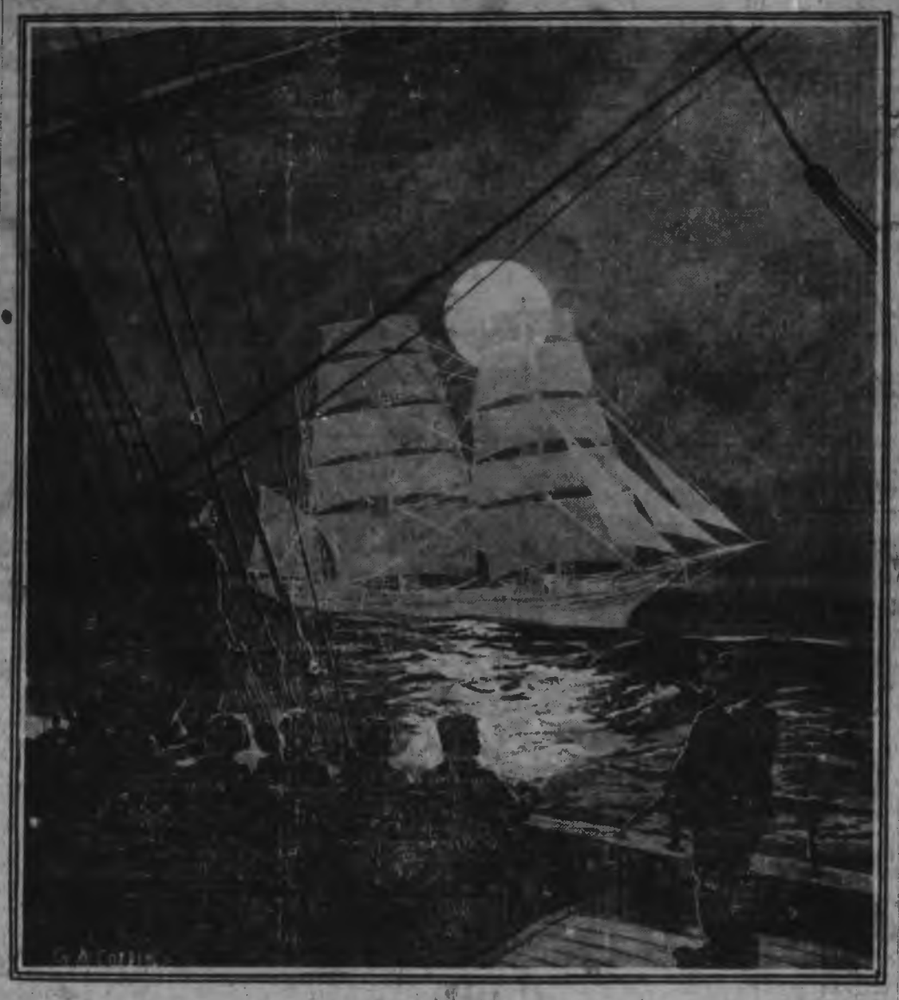
"I tried to comfort Gould with the idea that since the man had not appeared to him there was no reason for him to regard the apparition as that of the man he had run down, but he would not let this ease his mind in the slightest. It was just the night after our conversation when he was on watch that the climax of the thing came.

"I heard a terrific scream from the bridge and so did everybody else on board. I was the first up there, but the poor fellow, who was whiter than any human being I have ever seen, could not tell me what had happened before Captain Stebbins had run up on the bridge and was shaking him, declaring that he had a relapse of the fever, which we all new he had suffered after coming off the voyage when he had run down a man.

"The fellow had been too much startled, however, this time to be managed even by Captain Stebbins.

"'I did see him,' he declared, 'and he was cursing and waving his arms at me just as he did when he went down. The ship came up just like it did out of the fog. There it was all of a sudden, a great, gray thing, and there was he waving his arms and screaming curses at me. And then we kept right on running straight through the ship.'

"That was all of it, and so far as I know he never saw the apparition again and he had no harder time than falls to the lot of most sailors. But here was the remarkable part of the thing. If he had been the only one to know that anything strange had happened, then you might think it just the figment of a brain overwrought with fever. But it wasn't only his scream that brought captain and crew running to his side. Just at the time when he saw the phantom ship and as our own vessel went through it, every man on board felt a peculiar sensation. It was something like an earthquake and something like the shock that might come from running a vessel down."



THERE WAS NO SIGN OF LIFE ON THE PHANTOM SHIP.

Phantom ships are not the only phantoms that haunt the seas, for there are many ghostly visitors to the great bodies of water who do not come on their own vessels. But appear on board of perfectly mundane vessels and make a ghostly addition to the crew or passenger list.

It was on board the Marianne Nottebohm, a freighter, sailing between New York and Liverpool, that spectre appeared with such persistency that for a long time, until the vision vanished forever, no member of the crew ever consented to make a second voyage. The Nottebohm was one of the old Liverpool packet ships, which carried steerage passengers as well as freight. During one of her previous voyages the captain and several of the crew had had a terrific struggle, in the course of which the captain had been so injured that he had died as a result of his wounds. No matter what the skeptical might say, crew after crew which shipped on the Marianne Nottebohm after this tragedy left the vessel at the end of the voyage swearing that every night a spectral figure appeared from the pilot house and wandered over the vessel, seeking everywhere apparently for something or somebody that was not there. Nothing came of these visits except the frightening off of successive crews, until one night when the spectre seemed to find what it was looking for. One of the members of the crew was a big Swede, who looked to be about as rough a citizen as even the sea in those days could have any use for. His chum, with whom he joined, was a little Italian, dark and desperate enough for any deed and strong as an ox, in spite of his small size. The new crew had heard nothing of the spectre, but of course the captain knew all about it, which information he kept to himself. The spectre appeared as usual on the fourth night out, and every member of the crew saw it, every member except two, that is, and these two were the big Swede and the little Italian. When the spectre came upon them it vanished immediately. They caught not a glimpse of its grewsome form, and when other members of the crew came to them with shuddering tales of it they laughed uproariously and said that they were not afraid of spectres or real men either.

"There was a terrific storm that night and the apparition was for once in a way pretty well forgotten in the more pressing perils of the moment. The night was very black and no one felt any too secure as they slipped on through the darkness. Suddenly they felt the ship come about as swiftly that they knew something strange must have happened.

"'Unusual as it was,' said Captain M. C. Norton, who tells the story, 'we could not stop to find out about it that night; for every man was too hot on his own part of the work to pay much attention to any others.

"After everything was all over and we could take time to talk about it the next day the helmsman told us his strange experience. He had been intent on his task when he suddenly became aware that a figure was standing back of him. He supposed it to be the captain; why, he could not tell, but by one of those strange and subtle messages which come to us from the very air itself, and without the aid of wireless, it was borne into his consciousness that the master spirit of the vessel was there. At once he also became aware that he was a few points off the course. He made this right and held her steady again, when once more there came to him the same conviction that he was off his course. Afterward he could not be absolutely sure from the figure behind him had spoken, but at the moment he thought that it had and that the knowledge that he was off his course had come from this figure, which he thought to be the captain. This happened once more, and again he thought he heard the voice of the shadowy figure back of him speak and warn him again to watch out, that he was not holding the helm to the course.

"More or less confused by this constant supervision and troubled by the actual danger of the situation, the helmsman again corrected his course, but somewhat doubtfully. He was an able man, well used to his task, very reliable in times of danger, fearless as any man who ever followed the sea and with all this deep childlike and cherishing an earnest belief in certain mild superstitions. He had a little daughter at home whom he fondly believed to be his mascot. In that disturbed moment, worried by his own strange uncertainty and half afraid that he was running the vessel into danger, he reached up and grasped a tiny horseshoe which he wore on a cord inside his shirt. His daughter had given him the horseshoe to keep him safe on his voyage and he was never without it.

"Somehow the touch of the homely token seemed to steady his nerves. He resolved that captain or no captain he must do his own job as he saw it. He turned around to state the case to his superior as respectfully as he might, and saw for the first time that it wasn't the captain at all. It was a strange being that he looked upon, a tall and menacing figure, a figure of command, no doubt, but none that he had ever seen, and it bore all the marks of a ghastly visitor. Its burning eyes and pale face and the ghastly smile with which it returned the gaze of the helmsman instantly infected the man that he looked upon a spectre. With a loud shout that the thunder of the waves drowned out the steersman turned and brought the helm about so violently that the quick turn of the vessel was felt by every man on board. It was barely in time, too, for just ahead of them and directly in the course upon which they were driving the steersman now thoroughly awake to the situation, saw the cruel points of an uncharted reef. For a moment, forgetting even the ghastly visitor, he was too much occupied in trying to get back on the course from which he had wandered to note whether the spectre had vanished or not. When he did look it was gone and there was nothing but a strange little mocking sound that might have been the wind in the sails to suggest that the vessel carried any uncanny passengers.

"But the Swede and his Italian mate must have seen something of the visitor that night also, for in the morning they looked like dying men and they could not be persuaded to ship again for the next voyage. Afterward we heard that they had been members of the crew which attacked the former captain of the Marianne. No doubt the murdered captain came back looking for some of his old assailants and when he found them sought to drive the vessel on the reef."

"But the Marianne wasn't lost," questioned the gatherer of phantom tales.

"No," said Captain Norton who was one of the many who saw the ghostly captain of the Marianne, "it takes more than one murdered man to bring a ship to its doom. At least three, they always say."

SOCIETY MAN WHO IS RUNNING A PUMPERNICKEL BAKERY AS A HOBBY

PUMPERNICKEL is the latest society craze in New York. It promises to eclipse even the waffle fad of last year. A considerable impetus was given to the new fashion by Dr. Norburne B. Jenkins, who is running a pumpernickel bakery as a hobby. Dr. Jenkins is a well known sixth avenue eye specialist and he is finding that his love for the ancient black bread is giving him more thrilling and amusing experiences than he bargained for.

Now and again he has to take off his bakery garb for a day or two to recover breath after some adventure of a sort he never anticipated. Rising at four A. M. to be in the bakery by five o'clock is one of the least of the doctor's novel forms of pleasure.

His hobby is declared by his friends the most serious ever taken up by a busy professional man as a means of recreation and relaxation. Dr. Jenkins says the only trouble about it is that it is proving too exhilarating. He can never shut down, however, for a two day spell of rest but along come appealing letters from Germans all over New York, who have been given back their taste for the old bread, asking what has happened, hoping he is all right, telling him they cannot live without their pumpernickel and imploring him not again to deprive them of it. So once more the doctor gets up at four A. M., nonchalantly slips his check book into his pocket, puts on his apron and cap and again begins to learn more of the difficulties of baking pumpernickel as a hobby.

Some of his friends have the notion that some day there will assuredly be millions of dollars in that pumpernickel bakery, the only one of its kind in America, and, as the pet hobby of a doctor, probably the only one in the world. Dr. Jenkins has no illusions of that sort. He is not finding that his amateur rivalry in likely to cause any considerable alarm to the Biscuit Trust, however this newest fashionable fad may grow. One of the first surprises his old hobby gave him was the discovery that to turn out a can of pumpernickel, the selling price of which is eight cents when it does sell—costs him fifty cents. He is beginning to find that baking pumpernickel is nothing like as simple as it looked—is almost as hard, in a little story in sight to turn their usual fact, as the bread is to eat to those who have not acquired the pumpernickel taste. He said to the writer:

"You see, I'm learning things by degrees. I'll know it all in time, I suppose. I've already learned that there is an awful lot to know about baking pumpernickel which I did not know. I fancy I've been taught most of it now, though. But you never can tell apparently. Sometimes I get a bit scared and wonder if I will keep on. This little experiment is only a few weeks old, and already its cost has run into thousands of dollars, but my worst scares have been accidental. I think I must be over most of them. At least, I hope so.

"One morning, for instance, as I went into the bakery alone I was attacked by cats. Hundreds of them. No, I think they had gone into the bakery for warmth rather than for the pumpernickel. My, but how fierce they were! They came at me before I had time to reach the electric button, and I had no light to see them by but the glow of the fire through the grating under the oven.

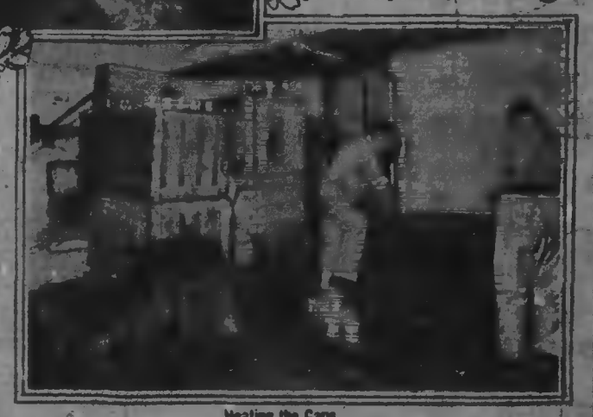
"I tried to drive them out and forgot that there was only a wall in front of me, and that the only way they could get out was by passing me to a hole in the door behind me. And, then, I had no weapon except my pumpernickel loaves until I stumbled over the coal shovel. It was really an awful experience. It was a terrible loss of some most excellent bread, too. I think that particular batch which was lying ready to go out that day was one of our finest. Oh, I had to run in the end, of course. What else could I do? I never saw so many cats. It must have been a regular State convention of cats.

"Another morning one of my men threatened to kill me. We had had a little financial discussion. That is the one part of my hobby which I don't like. If we could give the bread away it would be all right. But you can't do that. If you did you wouldn't get the pumpernickel into the hands of the people who want and appreciate it. You have to appreciate it, you know. At least, you like it better if you do. My man had been out with the horse and van selling the pumpernickel all the day before, and when he handed over to me the money he had collected from the sales I found it left me have gone around without any cash in my clothes. One gets up in a hurry, rather, of course, at four A. M.

"Dear me, how very angry with me that poor man did get! For a while I had visions of being mauled up in my own pumpernickel guns, and perhaps even sold for pumpernickel. Men can get so dreadfully angry in a big city. But I have a very good cab driver now. He likes the bread. I tell him to eat it all day long. Sometimes I think he does. Some days, though, he sells quite a number of loaves."

Dr. Norburne B. Jenkins Drawing the Pumpernickel Batch.

Canning the Output.



Heating the Cans.

Dr. Jenkins discovered pumpernickel during a tour in Europe and immediately realized that the ancient black charity bread which used to be given away by the monks in the dark ages was a thing felt want in this country. He could not understand why America had managed to make shift so long without it. He became so taken up with it he could no longer rehab white bread.

By those who like it pumpernickel is said to be one of the finest breads upon which the "pumpernickel is a very heavy, coarse rather dry right away. It is also said to be a cure for dyspepsia, diabetes and several other diseases. Those who do not appreciate its virtues declare that a man who has to eat pumpernickel doesn't have to have other ills and troubles, because he has already so much as it is good for any man to suffer.

Pumpernickel is a very heavy, coarse fuel that involves a peculiar treatment of the dough and the proper management of the oven during the comparatively long baking. Just what the secret is Dr. Jenkins will not disclose. Its name comes from "puntre," to fart, and "nickel," short for Nicholas. The poor who could not afford it so named it. To them the name meant "Heavy as the Nick," or "Heavy as the devil." It is not a [illegible] King Edward VII. of England used to persist no mould would form. But pumpernickel would not stand even for the narrow band.

"Finally we have solved the two-year trouble. We have now only a small label like the date label on ordinary bread. We don't put the date on. Why should we? Pumpernickel is always fresh. That pure male smell it has, that's the goodness of it. I wanted the driver to wear white gloves. He said he thought black would be better. Oh, I get along fine and well as pumpernickel out of my hobby!

"But the real solution of our difficulty was the can. We installed a canning machine and began practising. Before we had perfected ourselves, men decided that the help of power was needed. So an electric motor was put in to run the canner. After that practising was easy. We used up two thousand cans just showing one another how easy it was. Once we had acquired the knack we could seal three tons as many as forty satisfactory cans out of one hundred. It was only after we began putting in the bread that we thought it best to have had enough practise. By that time I myself could can almost as expert. Yes, it was a loss. But one of my hobby, as we have something to be thankful for.

"The canning gave rise to a new necessity, as we soon discovered. We had to lay in a plant for sterilizing the cans after filling. The plant is an all boiler. Oil has to be used. Water won't get hot enough. The beauty of a hobby is that it shall grow its problems. mine is proving interesting in that direction.

"Next we thought it would be better if the bread were dried before being canned. One of my friends said the bread did not seem so nice after being dug out of the cans with a chisel. So we purchased a slicing machine. Learning as one learns not on cards. [illegible] were now only the bread to count, you see.

"After my encounter with the cats we stopped up all the places by which they could get in. Then we were overrun with rats. One of my patients, who has no taste for the bread, suggested we stop up all the rat runs with pumpernickel. Why, it was also pumpernickel that attracted the beggars. They took their whole batches. Then I sent for workmen and we made the place absolutely copper fast—tested, rat proof.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

HANDSOME MR. SLATTE

"I should think you would read more," suggested the girl in the grass green linen gown as she came upon the porch.

"Oh, I don't know," responded the young woman in the wicker chair, who was busy embroidering. "This is just as satisfactory as most of the popular novels."

"It's every woman's duty to improve her mind," declared the girl in the green linen. "I feel that I have done so much since the corner drug store put in its circulating library. Mr. Slatte has been such a help."

"Mr. Slatte?" queried her friend. "What has he to do with it?"

The girl in the gren linen sighed faintly. "You know," she said, "I am not the sort of girl to rave over a man's good looks. I prefer brains any time. But, really, you never in your life saw any one who looked like Mr. Slatter. He"—

"He might look like anything with that name," commented the young woman who was embroidering. "Do you mean to say he is handsome?"

"More than that," said her friend. "He has the sort of eyes that pierce with their brilliance, and such a chin! My dear, every time I see him I am reminded of that stunning portrait of Lord Byron! I am certain there is a mystery about him! He has the most perfect manners!"

"Where"—

"Why, he's recently taken charge of the drug store," explained the girl in the green linen. "I had just picked out a book when he came up and said he couldn't bear to see me waste my time on such a tiresome story. He said he'd be only too glad to help me find something worth while that he knew I could appreciate. I thought it so kind"—

"Kind!" said the girl who was embroidering. "I think he was impertinent. I guess if I wanted a book I'd get what I wanted.

"You don't understand at all," exclaimed the girl in green linen, patiently. "Mr. Slatte is writing a novel himself, so of course he knows perfectly what"—

"My goodness! A drug clerk and a novelist!" said the girl who was embroidering.

Her friends bristled at this. "He's not a clerk!" she said. "He's a sort of—er—manager. People generally don't know he is so literary. You don't suppose that he wastes time on everybody who comes in to get a book, do you? Not that he is especially interested in me, of course—only I suppose he realizes that I have more than average intelligence. I never saw such eyes in my life! Sometimes when he smiles in that slow, sad sort of way of his, I"—

"Who puts up prescriptions while he is engaged in smiling sadly?" inquired the young woman who was embroidering.

"You are perfecly horrid!" said her friend. "If you knew Mr. Slatte, you'd think differently. We have had some of the most inspiring talks since we met. He always drops whatever he is doing and helps me select my books. I'm a rapid reader and have to exchange books so often."

"I'm on my way there now to get another book. I do wish I could make you see what an opportunity it is, now that Mr. Slatte is there. He has such a cultivated mind—many times he has remarked what a treat it is to him to have someone come in who is different from the average careless reader."

"There comes Dorothy Maye," said the girl who was embroidering. "Come in, Dorothy," she called across the railing.

"I can't just now," said the girl in question, pausing at the steps. "I'm on my way to the drug store to take back a book. There's such a nice man in charge there now—perfectly stunning and so kind. He's writing a book himself, too. He always stops whatever he is doing to come and help me pick out something good. He says it is a treat"—

"How nice!" enthusiastically interrupted the girl who was embroidering. "Alicia is here and she is going there, too"—

"No," said the girl in grass green linen shortly. "I am not going to the drug store! I am too busy to waste time over those trashy books and to hang around a silly clerk."

EARLY DAYS IN THE GREAT NORTH-WEST

LAKEFIELD, Dec. 10.—Mr. H. J. Sutton left on Thursday last for Washington, D.C., to attend the funeral of his brother-in-law, Mr. J. W. Bates.

Mrs. Fitzpatrick of Peterborough, spent the week end in the village visiting her parents, Mr. nad Mrs. Richard Crawford.

Miss Vanderwater of Peterborough, was the guest of Miss Elsie Sherin for a few days last week.

Mrs. Clinton Atwood, who has been the guest of Dr. and Mrs. Lingwood at East Toronto for the past month, returned home on Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Cawthard left on Monday last to spend a few weeks visiting relatives at Rodney, Ont.

Mr. L. H. Grahame of New York, was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Fitzgerald for a few days last week.

Miss Pearl Demill returned to Toronto on Saturday after spending a few days in the village visiting her mother.

Mrs. Bonnycastle, who was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. E. Cassan for a few days last week, returned to her home in Campbellford on Friday last.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Brumwell of Plunkett, Sask., arrived on Saturday last to spend the winter in the village and vicinity.

Mr. Charles Crawford, who has been engineer on the Lintonia during the past summer plying between Lindsay and Sturgeon Point, returned to the village on Wednesday last.

Miss K. Atwood spent a few days last week in Millbrook, where she was the guest of Miss M. Thompson.

Next To Consumption.

There Are More Deaths From PNEUMONIA Than Any Other Lung Trouble.

Pneumonia is nothing more or less than what used to be called "Inflammation of the Lungs."

Consumption may be contracted from others, but as a rule pneumonia is caused by exposure to cold and wet, and there is only one way to prevent pneumonia, and that is to cure the cold on its first appearance.

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup will do this for you if you will only take it in time.

Mrs. Wm. M. Steeves, River Glade, N.B., writes:—"Please allow me to express my gratitude for the presence of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup in the house, for I believe it saved our little boy's life. Three years this fall we were in the lumber woods, and it was very hard to get a doctor to us, and our little boy got pneumonia, and was very ill. The only relief he could get was to take Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, and with the combined use of the Syrup, and your British Troop Oil Liniment, he soon got better, and was around in a couple of weeks. It certainly is a great remedy."

Price, 25 and 50 cents.

Be sure and get "Dr. Wood's" when you ask for it. Manufactured only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

Messrs. Charlton Bros. have disposed of their grocery business to Mr. J. A. Porter, formerly to Centreville.

A very interesting lecture on "Early Days in Northwest Canada" was given in the Town Hall on Friday evening last by the Right Reverend W. D. Reeve, D.D., assistant bishop of the diocese. His Lordship having lived the greater part of his life among the Indians and Esquimaux, was quite at home with his subject and gave many interesting and striking incidents of the change Christianity has made in the lives of the natives. During his short stay here the Bishop was the guest of Rev. and Mrs. H. A. Ben Oliel at the Rectory.

Mr. George Hilliard of Peterborough spent the wek end visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. B. Hilliard, at "Cowley."

Mr. Leonard of Peterborough spent the week end visiting his daughter, Mrs. Hewitt at "Uplands."

Mr. T. B. Marling was in Peterborough on Friday last.

His Lordship Bishop Reeve preached at St. John Baptist Church on Sunday morning.

Miss Dorothy Hilliard is spending a few days this week in Peterborough.

Mrs. E. R. Tate left on Monday to spend a few days in Toronto.

Disheartening Effect of Piles

It is not only the itching and stinging of piles that is to be dreaded but also the depressing and debilitating effect on the whole system. The victim of piles cannot do efficient work. There is an uneasiness and discomfort by day and at night the distress from the itching prevents sleep and rest, and undermines the general health.

From almost the first application of Dr. Chase's Ointment you get relief from the annoying itching and burning, and gradually the ulcers are healed up and the disease thoroughly cured. Do not make the mistake of discontinuing treatment as soon as relief is obtained. Dr. Chase's Ointment is a proved cure but it depends on you to apply it persistently until a cure is effected.

Even the most severe cases of long standing yield to the soothing, healing influence of Dr. Chase's Ointment. Surgical operations are no longer necessary for, as a matter of fact, Dr. Chase's Ointment has cured cases that were not cured by operations. No sufferer from piles can afford to delay the use of Dr. Chase's Ointment.

FARMERS' INSTITUTE AT KEENE

Examiner Special:

KEENE, DEC. 10.—The annual Farmers' Institute was held last Thursday afternoon and evening. The attendance at both meetings, noticeably larger than has ever been here before. The meetings were presided over by Mr. Charles O'Reilly, of Norwood. At the afternoon session Mr. F. McRea was the first speaker and gave a very interesting talk on Selection of Seeds and the Percentage of Hull in Oats.

An address by Mr. G. N. Paget on Dairying, emphasizing the using of business principles, weighing of milk and selecting best cows for milking purposes.

An address was given by Rev. P. J. Kelly of Norwood, on Poultry. Fr. Kelly emphasized the importance of having plenty light, pure air and a dry floor in the houses. When marketing eggs have them gathered every day and marketed at least twice a week. He touched on the result of stale eggs to invalid consumers.

An address was given by Mr. Denys on Development of Agriculture, especially dairy cows and horses, and the relation existing between the farm, home and nation.

An address by Rev. Fr. Kelly, on Keeping Poultry for Profit and Marketing of eggs, was given.

Messrs. F. D. Kerr and Cowan of Peterborough were present and gave a few minutes' interesting talk.

At the evening meeting a programme was presented which was greatly enjoyed, and which was as follows:

Quartette—Robert McIntyre, H. McFarlane, Harold Weir and W. Drummond.

Solo—Miss Margaret Bryce, Mouth organ solo.

Piano duett—Misses Bryce and L. Macfarlane.

Misses Katie and Bella Macfarlane were in Peterborough on Monday.

Mrs. Harry Burnham and children who have been spending the summer at the home of Mrs. Burnham's father, Mr. Wm. Miller, left on Tuesday for their home at Vancouver.

Mr. William Connell and Albert Fletcher returned on Saturday from Harvey, where they have been engaged in cutting timber for Mr. A. Weir of Peterborough.

Mr. W. G. Wood spent the week-end at Toronto.

Mr. W. Oliphant of Lorin Park was in the Village on Monday on business.

Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Montgomery and family of Villiers spent Sunday at the home of Mrs. Montgomery's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Wedlock.

Mr. George McIntyre has rented the skating rink for the coming season and is busy getting ready to make ice.

Miss Amy McFarlane spent Monday and Tuesday with Peterborough friends.

Mrs. John Edwards spent a few days the past week with her daughters at Peterborough.

Messrs. Wm. Wedlock and James Secord were at Belmont a few days last week.

Dr. W. T. Harrison spent Thursday and Friday of last week at Toronto.

Mrs. Bert Howson of Peterborough visited friends in the Village last Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. L. Burley were in Peterborough on Friday last.

Mr. Duncan McGregor of Toronto was calling on friends on Thursday.

Mrs. T. B. Sharpe and little daughter, Dorthea of Prince Albert, are visiting at the home of Mrs. Sharpe's parents, Dr. and Mrs. W. T. Harrison.

Mr. J. J. Dickson is visiting Toronto friends.

Mr. John A. Trotter of Peterborough, was in the Village on Friday.

Some of our local trappers have been busy the past two weeks trapping muskrats. They report the rats very plentiful, but that the fur is not as nice as the fur from rats trapped in the Spring.

Rev. Edminson and family spent the week end with friends in Cavan.

The Ladies' Foreign Missionary Society will hold their regular monthly meeting at the home of Mrs. (Dr.) Harrison on Thursday afternoon, Dec. 11th. Christmas contributions will be received and boxed for the Deaconess' home at Toronto.

Miss Jean Minife returned last Wednesday from Kingston, where she has been visiting friends.

Mr. and Mrs. John Plunket of Bowmanville spent the week-end at the home of Mrs. Plunket's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Nelson, near Laing.

Messrs. Anderson and Skinner have just completed the work on an underground tank for gasoline with a capacity of one hundred and fifty gallons, with a special hose filter, and pump, which, no doubt, will be a great convenience to the owners of automobiles, etc. The hose permits the discharge of gasoline from the underground tank into the reservoir of the car without coming into contact with the air. The pump is self-measuring. This apparatus has been accepted by the insurance companies as the only safe way of handling gasoline.

Mr. James Bryce of Peterborough visited friends in Keene on Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Howson visited friends at Peterborough on Saturday.

Mrs. Alex. Stewart and son Harry, spent Tuesday in Peterborough.

INDIAN RIVER

Examiner Special:

The Indian River cheese factory meeting was held 5th Nov. 1913. The following is the report of the year's work:

Pounds of milk received during season, 1,050,000; pounds of cheese manufactured, 95,484; cost of manufacturing at 2 3-8c. per lb., $2,267.04; price per standard net to patrons, $99.25.

The patrons were well pleased with the result of the season. The amount of milk was small, owing to the fact that the former part of the season was very dry weather. The three largest patrons were:

David Tucker, 78,500 lbs—16 cows.

Bartholomew Condon, 45,700 lbs.—12 cows.

John Boland, 45,600 lbs.—11 cows.

Mr. Tucker is an excellent patron, owing to his having but the one farm, where he resides.

Rev. Father Kelly of Norwood, spoke at some length on the profits from keeping and caring of pure-bred poultry and also of marketing nothing but fresh laid eggs.

Mr. Cowan of Peterborough, spoke on the different land values and also on provincial tax.

A Guest for Dinner.

"I'm bringing Mr. Wilson up for dinner."

When there's a telephone in the home, the thoughtful husband calls up his wife and tells her of the unexpected guest he is bringing home with him for dinner. Thus the housewife is not taken at unawares, but has time to prepare.

This is only one of the thousands of ways in which a telephone in the home is a boon, saving time, effort, worry, and often life itself.

With a telephone in the home, the housewife is prepared for any emergency, and her social and household burdens are immensely lightened.

Have you a telephone in your home?

GIRLS! HAVE BEAUTIFUL, CHARMING HAIR AND NO DANDRUFF--25 CENT DANDERINE

Try This! Doubles Beauty of Your Hair and Stops it Falling Out

Your hair becomes light, wavy, fluffy, abundant and appears as soft, lustrous and beautiful as a young girl's after a "Danderine hair cleanse. Just try this—moisten a cloth with a little Danderine and carefully draw it through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. This will cleanse the hair of dust, dirt and excessive oil and in just a few moments you have doubled the beauty of your hair.

Besides beautifying the hair at once, Danderine dissolves every particle of dandruff; cleanses, purifies and invigorates the scalp, forever stopping itching and falling hair.

But what will please you most will be after a few weeks' use when you will actually see new hair—fine and downy at first—yes—but really new hair growing all over the scalp. If you care for pretty, soft hair and lots of it surely get a 25 cent bottle of Knowltons Danderine from any druggist or toilet counter, and just try it.

BRIEFS FROM THE WIRES.

Hon. George E. Foster will leave on Christmas afternoon for London to attend the meetings of the Imperial Trade Commission.

Ralph Worthington, a chef, formerly of Toronto, was sentenced yesterday in Rochester to ten years in prison for robbery.

Jacob Lehrer, a newsboy, of 62 Walton street, Toronto, was struck down by an automobile on Tuesday evening and died yesterday.

Over a special telephone line President Wilson addressed the members of the Chamber of Commerce at Rochester, N.Y., at a banquet last night.

The funeral took place yesterday in St. Mary's, Ont., of Mrs. Agnes Barbour, relict of the late Robert F. Barbour, who died in her 91st year.

Government ownership of telegraph and telephone lines throughout the United States is being seriously considered by President Wilson.

James Mowat, a Canadian customs officer employed in the Pere Marquette yards at Suspension Bridge, N.Y., was killed by an engine yesterday.

Col. Grey Carleton, the new commandant of the Royal Military College, arrived in Ottawa yesterday from England. He will take up his duties at Kingston at once.

Following the proclamation forbidding the importation of arms to Ulster, all passengers' luggage was searched at Belfast yesterday, but nothing incriminating found.

The ten-year-old lad who has been missing from his home at Cross Lake, near Kingston, since last Friday was located at Kalader yesterday, several miles away, where he had tramped to see the sights.

The dredge Fundy and the tugs Bartlett and Alice, which put into Port Hope for shelter while en route from Quebec to Fort Dalhousie, started out again yesterday, but were driven back by heavy weather.

Chang Hsun In Revolt.

LONDON, Dec. 11.—Chang Hsun, commander of the Chinese Government troops at Nanking, who, in September last, was compelled to apologize to the Japanese consul at Nanking, has proclaimed the independence of the Province of Kiangsu, according to a despatch received yesterday by the Central News from Shanghai.

Thirty thousand troops have been despatched by the Pekin Government against the city of Nanking, and Chang Hsun is reported to be retiring in the direction of Shanghai.

Great unrest, the message adds, prevails in the southern provinces.

Just One Application And The Hairs Vanish

(Helps to Beauty)

Here is a very simple and effective way to banish objectionable hairs or fuzz: Mix into a stiff paste enough powdered delatone and water to cover the undesirable hairs, apply and after about 2 or three minutes remove the paste wash the skin and every trace of hair will have vanished. This method is quite harmless and leaves the skin soft and spotless. Be sure, however, to get the delatone in an original package, otherwise it may not be of the desired strength and purity.

SUBMARINE RAMMED.

For First Time Such an Accident Is Without Fatalities.

LONDON, Dec. 11—The submarine C14 was sunk in collision with the barge Plymouth last night. The officers and crew were rescued. This is probably the first time that a submarine has been rammed and sunk without loss of life. The submarine was returning to headquarters at Devonport with other submarines following to the third flotilla.

While traveling on the surface a short distance from the entrance of Devonport harbor the hoppers of the barge struck the C14 on the port side aft, causing a rent in the plating. The submarine began immediately to fill with water. Splendid discipline was maintained. The officers and crew climbed out of the conning tower and endeavored to stop the inrush of water. Finding this impossible the officers and the crew of nineteen men were taken aboard a coastguard boat. Endeavors to keep the C14 afloat were unsuccessful. She gradually went down, stern first, and a quarter of an hour after the collision disappeared altogether.

Needn't Add To Fleet.

LONDON, Dec. 11.—No request for the strengthening of the British naval forces in Mexican waters has been made so far as is known here where it is considered that the two vessels already there, the cruisers Berwick and Suffolk, are quite sufficient for all purposes.

It is stated that if the cruisers Lancaster and Hermione have been ordered to proceed to the Mexican coast it is a local matter which has been decided by Rear Admiral S. Christopher Cradock, the commander of the cruiser squadron.

C.P.R. Earnings Will Be Reduced Declares Counsel Chrysler.

OTTAWA, Dec. 11.—F. H. Chrysler, K.C., and E. W. Beatty, counsel for the C.P.R., submitted their argument in the western freight rates case before the Railway Commission yesterday afternoon, in rebuttal to the evidence and arguments put in principally in opposition to the company.

Mr. Chrysler reminded the board that the opening of the Panama Canal is likely to affect railway conditions in Canada very considerably.

"The solitary position of the C.P.R. in the west is at an end, two rival companies being ready to share the traffic that has entirely gone to the C.P.R. in the past," said counsel. "It is impossible to say what the effect of this will be on the C.P.R. earnings.

"The rates charged by the C.P.R. in the west are fair and reasonable charges for the service performed for the shippers." he insisted.

So long as the railway keeps its charges within the realm of reasonableness, the board has no jurisdiction to interfere with such rates except on the one ground of discrimination, and discrimination does not exist under the circumstances of this case.

He proceeded to discuss the effect on C.P.R. earnings of the approaching competition of the G.T.R. with its enormous connection in Ontario and Quebec. The same, he said, was true in a lesser degree of the C.N.R.'s prospective place in Canada.

Counsel said that these circumstances must inevitably result in a greater loss of through tonnage on the part of the C.P.R. than would ordinarily result from competitors entering the field.

F. H. Phippen, K.C., for the C.N.R., and Eugene Lafleur, K.C., for the G.T.P., will be heard to-day.

Gunsel to Major Leonard.

KINGSTON, Ont., Dec. 11. — The announcement yesterday that Major R. W. Leonard, chairman of the National Transcontinental Railway Commission, has made a handsome donation to Queen's University of property for the erection of students residences was received with great satisfaction there. The entire scheme is in connection with the Canadian officers' training corps, and will include a drillshed and armories with gymnasium equipments.

Another Body Recovered.

KINCARDINE, Ont., Dec. 11.—Another body came ashore at the powerhouse here yesterday. It is that of an engineer or oiler and $70 in American money was found in the pockets. There were no papers of identification, but on the overcoat were the initials "N.A.D." and inside the pocket was the name N. A. Duelle. The body had on a life belt of the steamer I. M. Scott.

Conference on Church Union.

TORONTO, Dec. 11.—A conference of the church union committee of the Methodist, Presbyterian and Congregational bodies begins to-day at the Wesley Buildings. The conference will include ten Methodists, ten Presbyterians and five Congregationalists.

The object of the conference is to decide whether it will be necessary to re-open the consideration of the basis of union.

Rev. Dr. Chown, speaking for the west, says that "on every hand large enterprises for good are being held up and the work of the church partially paralyzed by reason of the uncertainty as to what the future may bring forth."

Schooner Is Wrecked.

PORTLAND, Me., Dec. 11. — The New York schooner Laura M. Lunt was drifting helplessly off the New England coast yesterday, her sails torn to ribbons, her deck load of lumber washed away and ten feet of water in her hold.

Captain Johnson, her commander, Tuesday night refused to abandon the craft when she was spoken, 92 miles southeast of Cape Elizabeth Lightship, by the steamer O. A. Knudson. The revenue cutter service has been asked to send a cutter to the Lunt's assistance.

Row In Austrian Parliament.

VIENNA, Austria, Dec. 11.—Such a din was created by the Ruthenian deputies in the Austrian Imperial Parliament yesterday that the sitting was suspended by the Speaker. For over an hour the Ruthenians, as a protest against the alleged passive attitude of the Government in the matter of electoral reform, blew shrill whistles and bugles, rang electric bells and trumpeted with motor horns, at the same time wrenching the lids from their desks and beating the pieces furiously together.

GLASS OF SALTS CLEANS KIDNEYS

If Your Back Hurts or Bladder Bothers You, Drink Lots of Water

When your kidneys hurt and your back feels sore, don't get scared and proceed to load your stomach with a lot of drugs that excite the kidneys and irritate the entire urinary tract. Keep your kidneys clean like you keep your bowels clean, by flushing them with a mild, harmless salts which removes the body's urinous waste and stimulates them to their normal activity. The function of the kidneys is to filter the blood. In 24 hours they strain from it 50 grains of acid and waste, so we can readily understand the vital importance of keeping the kidneys active.

Drink lots of water—you can't drink too much; also get from any pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast each morning for a few days, and your kidneys will act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate clogged kidneys; also to neutralize the acids in urine so it no longer is a source of irritation, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone should take now and then to keep their kidneys clean and active. Try this, also keep up the water drinking, and no doubt you will wonder what became of your kidney trouble and backache.

CLOTHES CAUGHT FIRE.

Deseronto Man Is Fatally Burned Playing With Baby.

DESERONTO, Dec. 11—A very sad fatality occurred here yesterday morning when Mr. Wilson Peterson died from the result of burns received Tuesday night. The Peterson family were moving from one house to another, and had lighted a fire in a small heater. Mr. Peterson was employed as sifter in the chlorate of potash building at the Olympic Powder plant, and on his return home neglected to change his clothing.

About seven o'clock he was sitting near the stove playing with the children, when the gas burst out of the stove in flames which soon found an easy prey in the chemical-saturated clothing of Mr. Peterson. Half crazed with the pain, the unfortunate man rushed from the house. A meeting was in progress in the adjacent Gospel Hall of the Plymouth Brethren, and the minister, seeing the occurrence through the window, at once took several pails of water from the baptistry, and poured them on the afflicted man and extinguished the flames. Mrs. Peterson and the baby were severely burned.

Noted Physician Dead.

TORONTO, Dec. 11.—Dr. John Cavan, B.A., University of Toronto, F.D.C.M. Victoria College, and L.R.C.P., London, Eng., died at his home, 66 West Bloor street, of Bright's disease, at noon yesterday.

Although the doctor had been suffering for almost a month, it was not known until last Sunday, that his condition was serious. Dr. Cavan was for many years a consulting specialist of wide repute. He was a Liberal in politics, and was a member of the Westminster Presbyterian Church.

Seeks Social Legislation.

OTTAWA, Dec. 11.—Rev. T. Albert Moore and Rev. Dr. Shearer of Toronto were in Ottawa yesterday interviewing members of the Government with the object of making the penalties attached to social crime more severe. They also asked that racetrack gambling in every shape and form be ordered stopped. The Minister of Justice promised consideration.

U. S. Officials Seek Chinamen.

BOSTON, Dec. 11.—A search for nine Chinamen supposed to have been smuggled into the United States from Canada was made yesterday by the police of Boston, Lowell and all places between the two cities. The Boston police were notified early yesterday that two automobiles containing the Chinamen had raced through Lowell from the north at sixty miles an hour.

The Double Work of the Blood

The circulation of the blood is one of the most perfect pieces of mechanism in the universe. Besides carrying nourishment to every part of the body, the blood collects the waste products and passes through the kidneys in order that these poisons may be eliminated.

Hence you see the tremendous importance of keeping the kidneys in healthful working order so that they free the blood of these impurities before they find lodgment in some weak spot and set up serious disease.

Aching back and aching head, troubles with the digestion, deposits in the urine, constipation and biliousness—such are the symptoms which indicate the need of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. The liver is awakened to action, the bowels regulated, and the kidneys made vigorous in their work of purifying the blood.

In the great majority of homes Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills are kept at hand for use in just such cases. They save many doctor bills, and by keeping the digestive and excretive systems in health do much to prolong life and bring comfort in old age.

CATTLE MARKETS

UNION STOCK YARDS.

TORONTO, Dec. 10.—Receipts of live stock at the Union Yards were 87 cars, 1614 cattle, 245 hogs, 972 sheep and lambs, and 168 calves.

Butchers.

Choice steers, 1,100 to 1,250 lbs., [illegible] to $8; medium, $7.50 to $7.75; common, $6.50 to $6; cows, choice, $6 to $7; good, $5.50 to $6; medium, $4.50 to $5; canning and cutters, $3 to $4.50; bulls, $4.25 to $7.25.

Stockers and Feeders.

Choice feeders sold at [illegible] to $6.75; medium feeders, $5.75 to $6.25; common, $5 to $5.50; canner Northern, $4.75 to $5.

Milkers and Springers.

Receipts of milkers and springers were not large and prices were firm at $65 to $90 each.

Veal Calves.

Receipts of veal calves were light and prices firmer than at any time this year. Choice calves sold at $10.50 to $11.50; good calves, $9 to $10; medium, $7 to $8.50; common calves, $5 to $6.50.

Sheep and Lambs.

The market was very firm for sheep and lambs. Sheep, ewes, sold at $5 to $6; culls and rams, $3.50 to $4.50; lambs, $6.75 to $9.

Hogs.

Selects, fed and watered, sold at $8.50; $8.25, f.o.b. cars, and $8.75, weighed off cars.

MONTREAL LIVE STOCK.

MONTREAL, Dec. 10.—At the C. P. R. live stock market the offerings this morning amounted to 2200 cattle, 300 sheep and lambs, and 750 hogs.

There was no further change in the condition of the market for cattle today; prices being firm at the advance noted in the early part of the week, owing to the fact that the supply was smaller than expected and choice stock continues to be scarce. In fact, there were no choice animals on the market. The weather was more favorable, it being colder with a fair fall of snow, consequently the demand from local buyers was good and a fair amount of business was also done for shipment to the United States. Best steers sold at $7.60, but the bulk of the trade was done in cattle, ranging from $6 to $7 and the lower grades, including rough stock, at from $4 to $5 per 100 pounds. The trade in butchers' cows was fairly active at prices ranging from $4.50 to $6.65, and bulls sold at $5 to $6.50, while canning stock brought $2.50 to $4 per 100 pounds.

The tone of the market for small meats was very firm on account of the limited supply available, for which there was a keen demand, and sales of lambs were made at $8 to $8.25, and sheep at $5 to $6.50 per 100 pounds.

6 BOXES CURED PSORIASIS

Mrs. Nettie Harvey, Cayuga, Ont., writes: "Three doctors described my trouble as psoriasis and one said I could never be cured. The disease spread all over me, even on my face and hands, and the suffering was more than I can describe. I used about 6 boxes of Dr. Chase's Ointment and am entirely cured—not a sore to be seen. I can hardly praise this Ointment enough."

HASTINGS ITEMS

Examiner Special:

HASTINGS, Dec. 10.—The funeral of the late Mrs. R. C. Doxsee was held from the family residence on Wednesday last and was largely attended. The floral tributes were numerous, testifying to the esteem in which the deceased lady was held. The remains were laid to rest in the T. V. Cemetery, beside those of her only son, who pre-deceased her some few years ago.

The ladies of the W. M. S. in connection with the Methodist Church, met in the basement of the Church on Thursday last for the purpose of packing a box of bedding and clothing which is to be sent to some needy station.

A number of our people attended the fowl supper at Roseneath on Monday evening and report a good time.

Rev. Mr. Richards of Westwood, occupied the pulpit in the Methodist Church on Sunday and preached two interesting sermons in aid of the forward movement in missions.

Quite a number followed the remains of the late Mrs. Casey to their last resting place in the Norwood Cemetery on Sunday last. The late Mrs. Casey, who had reached an advanced age, had resided in Norwood until about a year ago. Since that time she has made her home at Mr. B. Scrivers', where she died, and from where she was buried.

Rev. Garbutt of Roseneath gave us a call on Saturday.

Miss M. McConnel spent the week-end with Mrs. (Rev.) Anderson at the Parsonage.

We regret to learn that little Miss Helen Wilcox is confined to her bed, suffering from an attack of bronchitis.

Mr. G. Mikel of Colborne was in Town on Wednesday last, attending the funeral of the late Mrs. R. C. Doxsee.

Miss Luella Archer of Campbellford, spent Sunday in Town, the guest of Miss Myrtle Hess.

Mrs. C. Jones spent Saturday in Peterborough.

Prices for poultry have taken a decided drop for this week, owing no doubt to the continued mild weather.

Mrs. M. Baker has been a recent visitor to Warkworth.

News came to Hastings last week of the death, at Sarnia, of Mr. Samuel Mirfield, a former resident of this place.

Mrs. Wm. Tate, of Town, is a daughter of the deceased.

Warden Garbutt of Smith, and Reeve Shaw of Harvey, were in the vicinity on Tuesday of last week, inspecting bridges.

Mrs. Newton, of Peterborough, has been a guest at the home of Mr. R. C. Doxsee.

Mrs. Smith of Cobourg, spent a few days here last week, renewing old acquaintances.

Signs of the approach of winter are now in evidence and the Christmas season is rushing on.

GILLESPIE for MAYOR

To the Electors of the City of Peterboro:

Ladies and Gentlemen—At the urgent solicitation of many of my business and personal friends, I have consented to become a candidate for the position of Mayor of your City, and respectfully solicit your votes and influence.

As in the past, I shall not make any rash promises to gain the vote of any elector, but, if elected, my attitude on every question will be to stand firm for the best interests of our Progressive City.

Having been interested in Peterborough all my life, and one of your Aldermen for five years, I may fairly claim to be in close touch with every section and every interest of the Municipality, and familiar with its needs and ambitions.

I believe that in all respects the will of the people should prevail; that a vigorous but economical administration is the best administration, and that if your Chief Magistrate is able to devote a fair proportion of his time to his civic duties, it will not be to your disadvantage if he brings with him the experience and energy he displays in the conduct of a large and successful business of his own.

If my success in the Council during the past five years has in the main met with your approval, I shall esteem it an honour to have your further approval and support in the coming contest.

Yours respectfully,

G. A. GILLESPIE

WEAK WAS SO BAD

Could Not Do Her Housework

Many women get run down and are unable to look after their household duties owing to the heart action becoming impaired or the nervous system unstrung. To all such sufferers Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills will give prompt and permanent relief.

Mrs. Thomas Melville, Saltcoats, Sask., writes:—"I thought it my duty to write and tell you how much your Heart and Nerve Pills did for me. My heart was so bad I could not sleep, eat nor walk about the house. I could not do my housework at all, and what my husband could not do had to go undone. I had two small children depending on me besides three men to cook for, and it worried me to not be able to do anything. My husband had taken some of your pills some years ago, and insisted on me trying them, so I started, and before I had taken them two weeks I was considerably better, and before I had taken two boxes I was doing my own work again. Any one suffering from heart or nerve trouble should just give your pills a trial. If anyone cares to write me I will gladly give them all the information I know concerning your wonderful medicine."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50 cents per box, or three boxes for $1.25, at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

The concert in the Town Hall on Wednesday night of last week, under the auspices of the Fire Brigade, brought out a full house and the programme was well rendered.

IMMIGRATION QUESTION IS CANADA'S BIG PROBLEM

Mr. W. W. Lee, Y. M. C. A. Secretary of Immigrants, Deals With Subject in Lucid Address Before the Canadian Club.

SOME OF THE FEATURES

Mr. W. W. Lee, Canadian Y.M.C.A. Secretary of Immigrants at Quebec, and a close student of the immigration problem as it is developing in the Dominion of Canada, addressed the Canadian Club last evening.

From his address alone it was evident that Mr. Lee was familiar with every phase of this vital question, and he laid it before the fifty members present last night in a form which no Peterborough audience has heretofore been privileged to hear.

Mr. G. C. Wainwright, President of the club, presided at the meeting, which was held in Coleman's Palm Parlours. In a brief speech, Mr. Wainwright introduced the speaker of the evening.

The immigration problem was one of the most vital and pressing questions affecting the national life of Canada, declared Mr. Lee in opening his address. In the Government returns, immigrants were divided into three classes:

1. The newcomer from the British Isles or other part of the Empire.
2. Those from the United States.
3. Those from other countries than are included in the preceding two classes.

I believe the time is past, said the lecturer; when we should class as an immigrant the man who comes to Canada from other parts of the British Empire. It was unfortunate, and yet undoubtedly true, that we as a nation had minimized and almost overlooked the fact that there was an immigration problem confronting Canada.

Some claimed that because the number of immigrants coming into Canada was so much smaller than the United States, our problem was not nearly so great as theirs. As a matter of fact, Canada's problem was at present three times as great as that of the United States ever was or ever would be.

The lecturer wished to have three statements accepted as axioms:

1. That immigration is Canada's most vital problem, because the strength of a nation depends on the character of its people.
2. That the question of immigration problem is at the present time, and will be in the future, principally an economic one.
3. That the non-English-speaking foreign element is possibly of greater development than they have heretofore under gone in Canada or the United States.

The immigration into Canada in 1903 was 34,000 souls, and in 1912, 112,000 souls had entered our Dominion. In the past ten years 525,000 immigrants had invaded this country, and it was estimated that in the year 1928 there would be an influx of people into Canada greater in number than the population of the largest city in the Dominion.

Here the speaker emphatically wished it to be understood that when he referred to the "European" immigrant, he referred in each case to those from countries other than the Motherland.

Economically speaking, the Southern European immigrant was inferior to the Northern European. But just to the extent we blinded our eyes to the capabilities of assimilating the natives of Southern Europe, to that extent would that assimilation be delayed. Of the European immigrants already in this country, 79 per cent. were natives of the South and 21 per cent. hailed from the Northern countries.

The European immigrant, most of whom come to Canada unaccompanied by their wives and families, split his pay envelope into three funds: The first for his own support, the second for the maintenance of his family in his old country, and the third a sinking fund that would ulti-

NEW FORM FOR CIVIC ASPIRANTS

Statutes Regarding the Declaration of Qualifications Are Changed

SHOULD BE NOTICED

For the benefit of aspirants for municipal honours at the coming elections, it might be well to make it plain that the 1913 statutes provide a new form of declaration for qualification, which is quite clear and leaves no room for doubt.

The new form is:

1—I am a British subject by birth (or naturalization) and not a citizen or subject of any foreign country.

2—I have to my own use and benefit in my own right (or my wife has, as the case may be) as owner (or tenant, as the case may be) such estate as qualifies me for the office of (naming the office) for which I am a candidate.

3—Such estate is (state the nature of the estate as a legal estate of freehold or otherwise, as the case may be) in ..... (designate the land by its local description or otherwise).

4—The land is assessed in my own name (or in the name of my wife, as the case may be) on the last revised assessment roll of this municipality at the sum of $..... (b) which exceeds by at least $..... the amount of all liens, charges and encumberances thereon (c).

5—I am not liable for any arrears of taxes to the corporation of this municipality.

6—There are no arrears of taxes against the land in respect of which I qualify.

Another change in this year's statutes is the definition of a leaseholder, which appears under the heading of "Qualification for Municipal Council of the Local Municipality," section 52, sub-section 5 and reads:

"Leasehold and leasehold estate" shall mean a tenancy for one year or more, or tenancy from year to year.

Candidates for municipal honours must have in their own right, at least one thousand dollars worth of property or be assessed as leaseholders for a minimum amount of two thousand dollars.

RACE AGAINST DEATH DEATH WAS VAIN

Special Wire to The Examiner.

LANDISBURG, Pa., Dec. 11.—After racing across the continent in a special train from Texacana, Texas to marry her lover, Charles M. Stewart, before he died from heart trouble, Miss Josie Arnold, a prominent Texas girl, found him too weak to answer the marriage questions, and the ceremony was impossible. Stewart died one hour later.

THE BOSS OF CANADA

Sir Wilfrid Laurier is boss,
Of Canada at her great loss,
And boss of Sir George W. Ross
And Senate of Canada.
Our great commerce is sailing free
Without price or one penny fee,
Just like a sponge upon the sea,
Sucking our British navy.

Canada must not be a sponge,
On our Empire we should not lounge.
Our three dreadnoughts should make a plunge
To help our British navy.
In politics we should not jar,
And we must be ready for war,
Hand in hand with the British tar,
To help our British navy.

PROMINENT FARMERS TO SPEAK HERE

Three Representatives of Great Farmers' Organization in the West Will Visit Petecboro'

A BANQUET ARRANGED

Arrangements have been completed for the visit in Peterborough on Saturday afternoon, December 20th, of a deputation of leading farmers from Western Canada. On Tuesday next representatives of the three great farmers' organizations in Western Canada and of The Dominion Grange will wait on the Dominion Government in Ottawa and ask for certain legislation on behalf of the farmers. The members of this deputation will later attend some meetings in Toronto, following which several of their leaders will come to Peterborough to address our local farmers on Saturday, Dec. 20th.

Arrangements have been made by the local committee to give a banquet in honour of the visitors in the Oriental Hotel at 1 o'clock, following which those present will be addressed by the speakers from the West. As these Western farmers are the men who are leaders of the 52,000 organized farmers in Western Canada and who are behind the great Grain Growers' Grain Co., which last year did over $60,000,000 worth of business, it is felt that our local farmers are fortunate in having a chance to hear them.

The local Committee of Management consists of Warden J. H. Garbutt, chairman; S. Matchett, Stewart Hall; J. O. Ball, Springville; G. W. Mann, Bridgenorth; H. C. Garbutt, Lakefield; A. McGregor and C. Moore of Central Smith; Reeve W. A. Anderson, Keene; Walter Garbutt, T. D. Young and G. M. Hunter, Peterborough; and H. B. Cowan, Peterborough, Secretary.

It is rumoured that the farmers from the West who now control hundreds of the grain elevators in the prairie provinces and the flour mills, would like to enter into an arrangement with the farmers of Ontario by means of which the Western farmers could forward ship loads of mill feed to lake points in Ontario for distribution among Ontario farmers and take in return, cheese, butter eggs, apples, and other products of Ontario farms for the farmers of the West.

PARCELS FOR THE OLD COUNTRY

May Arrive on Time if Posted Before December 13th

Monday was the last day for posting parcels to the Old Country with the assurance that they would arrive in time to be delivered before the festive day; although it is a reasonable certainty that parcels posted before Saturday, December 13th will reach their destination on time.

With Christmas but fourteen days off, the Post Office staff is beginning to feel the effects of the holiday rush. The amount of mail matter has almost doubled. To cope with the difficulty a number of extra men will be employed.

TO THE ELECTORS OF THE CITY

In the Field for Water Commissioner

Ladies and Gentlemen,—The retirement of Mr. W. H. Hill from the board of Water Commissioners has decided me to offer myself as a candidate for the vacancy made by his withdrawal.

Realizing that the Board of Water Commissioners to be an efficient and business-like organization and that the local Hydro-Electric will be an addition to the duties of the Commission for the coming year it will be my aim if honoured with a seat at the board to co-operate with the present members of that commission and to assist in continuing the success already achieved by the Waterworks Department, and help, so far as in my power, with the organization of the local Hydro-Electric system, (which has had in our City since its advent, my loyal support), to make this public utility of the greatest possible service to the citizens of the municipality.

The qualification which I present to you in suport of my candidature is service in your interest for five years on your board of aldermen.

On this record I ask your support at the polls.

Respectfully,
ROBERT HICKS.

WAS NEARLY IN GRASP OF WHITE SLAVERS

Young Peterborough Girl Succumbed to the Wiles of a Plausible Port Hoper of Doubtful Character

DISCOVERED IN TIME

The fact that the organized White Slave traffic is penetrating even the smaller places of Eastern Ontario was brought home in an alarming manner to a local family within the last few days. The case is one in which a local girl was very nearly drawn into the meshes of the Slaver's nets, by a young man of good appearance who said that he intended to make her his wife.

For some months previous to his exposure, the young man, who lives in Port Hope, had been paying attentions to the young lady, who resides in the west end of the city. Their acquaintance progressed until the man made an offer of marriage to the young lady, which was accepted. For several weeks they were engaged, and the relatives of the girl, as well as the bride-to-be herself, were looking forward to the marriage.

Had it not been for an uncle of the girl having some comment as to the man's character everything might have moved according to his plans. But, becoming suspicious that the young man was not of a character worthy of his niece, the uncle got into communication with some friends in Port Hope.

They carried on an investigation into the man's character, and discovered that he was supposed to be an agent for White Slavers in Port Hope. The irate uncle wrote the young man that all contracts as to his future relation to the girl must be considered cancelled, and stated the reasons. As a result the young man decamped before prosecution against him could be commenced by the authorities, who up to that time knew nothing of what was being done. The man in question is said to have been implicated in similar cases, previous to the one here cited.

Freight Cars Were Derailed

Four or five cars of a G.T.R. freight train, east bound, were derailed near Madoc Junction last night. The auxiliary from Lindsay passed through Peterborough last night to clear the track. The 9 o'clock passenger train from the east was two hours late, the passengers having been transhipped. The wrecked cars were laden with grain.

THE POSTAL TROUBLE IS NOT YET OVER

Postmaster-General Receives Committee From the Employees Today and Refuses Their Demand

TELEGRAPHERS CLAMOUR

Special Cable to The Examiner:

LONDON, Eng., Dec. 11.—Things looked somewhat doubtful again today in connection with the postal employees' troubles and in some quarters it was believed that a post-office strike, as a feature of the Christmas rush, was inevitable. The Postmaster-General again received a committee representing 90,000 members of th postal clrks' unions, and again refused the demands for a fifteen per cent. increase in pay. The postal telegraphers are also clamouring and that service, too, will be disrupted if to-day's threats of the unions are carried out.

FAMOUS ATHLETE AT THE PRINCESS

"SALOME" WHICH COMES TO "THE GRAND," A COMBINATION OF WEIRD MUSIC, SOUL STIRRING CLIMAXES, BEAUTIFUL COSTUMES AND SCENERY

With a company of sixty people, including an augmented orchestra, Massenet's beautiful "Salome" will be heard in this City at "The Grand" on Monday next, Dec. 15 and it is safe to say that greater novelty or more elaborate production has never been witnessed in this City. In presenting to the public this mamouth production of "Salome," expense seems to have been thrown to the wind. The company embraces such famous stars as Joseph F. Sheehan, Madame Antoinette Le Brun, Miss. Lydia Sturtevant, Miss Connie Glynn Cocklin, Miss Grace Dorsee, Charles H. Swickard, Harold J. Geis, Nelson Shanley, William Young, Lawrence Wallace and others. The chorus of singers and dancers is supplemented by an augmented orchestra under the baton of Chevalier Theodore Stearns and thrown in for good measure is the most famous of all interpreters of the great "Salome" dance, Mlle. Sophia Bennecci. This is Mlle. Benucci's first appearance in America and her work is without doubt the most artistic thing which has ever been attempted on an American stage. It is probably owing to the dignity and impressiveness of the general production of "Salome" that Mlle. Benucci has been able to continue with her dancing without any interference. All in all the production of "Salome" is the finest thing ever attempted in this country, that is a subject upon which critics agree. It is said to be breaking box office records everywhere and playing to the biggest business of any attraction on tour this season.

GIVEN SIX MONTHS IN THE CENTRAL PRISON

WILL YOU BE A BIG BROTHER?

Club to Help to Throw Some Brightness Into the Lives of Poor Children Organized Last Night

ITS AIMS AND OBJECTS

The "Big Brother" Club, as advocated by Dr. Frederick in the "Examiner" of Monday last is now un fait accompli.

Last evening as previously announced, an influential meeting was held in the Bank of Montreal chambers. Among those present were Drs. E. V. Frederick and Burnham; Messrs. C. E. Jamieson, Travers, F. Russell, Downey, Primeau, Helson, Hamilton, Warne, etc. etc.

Dr. E. V. Frederick, the originator of the scheme, was voted to the chair by acclamation. The chairman's remarks were to the effect that this meeting had been called for the purpose of ascertaining whether there were any men in the City who were calculated to show an interest in child life, more especially among such men as had no children of their own, but who were willing to assist poor or neglected children to whom happiness and comfort might be an almost unknown quantity. There were, said he, in this City always a number of children to whom Christmas and other occasions, when other children were happy and enjoying themselves, do not come over and above comfortable. There were probably many children in orphanages or shelters in whose way but few Christmas presents and but little good cheer come. Then again, there were the children of needy or improvident or of drunken parents to whom Christmas was not the time of joy it might be.

Again during the summer months there were those poor children whom the Health Association would look up; children who were delicate or tuberculous, living in poor houses, who might be sent out into the country for a few weeks under proper supervision into clean, healthful surroundings and who would come back much benefitted. Then again, there were paralyzed and deformed children to whom proper surgical instruments might be provided. Parents, continued he, often will not make any sacrifice to provide these and there is no society in existence in the City to take up such work. There are also cases where children are kept from school owing to the inability of parents to purchase the necessary books and here again the "big brother" could be of help.

These were just some outlines of work which might be productive of great good. The chairman further stated that the suggestion had been well met and that he had received many offers of membership from persons not present at the meeting, if some definite plan of campaign were down.

Some discussion then arose.

Dr. Burnham agreed with the chairman and thought it advisable to organize at once even although it was so close to Christmas.

Mr. Downey thought the summer fresh air scheme would be good. Growing, especially if underfed, children required fresh air and open spaces and it might be a good plan to see if some cottage might be obtained on the lakes or elsewhere, where children in batches of ten, twenty or even thirty might be sent under proper supervision. He suggested that children who are not reached by any church organization should be especially looked after.

Mr. C. E. Jamieson strongly supported the idea of surgical appliances and of the summer home school.

Dr. Frederick here made the suggestion that there were always a number of boys looking for work who are unable to obtain really suitable employment. But some "big brother" might, by his influence, get suitable employment for such a lad.

Mr. Helson supported the project and advocated a start, as there was a big field open.

Mr. Hamilton suggested that as Christmas was so near that the club should co-operate with the King's Daughters and similar societies, by granting them pecuniary assistance so as to avoid any clashing.

Several useful suggestions were also made by others present.

The chairman then proposed that a "big brothers" club be formed with officers, and that steps be taken to collect promises of assistance as a nucleus.

Dr. Burnham then moved that it was expedient to form the club. This was seconded and unanimously carried.

The following officers were then nominated and elected:

President—Dr. E. V. Frederick.

Committee—Messrs. Travers, Kerr, T. Barrie, Hamilton, F. Linton, Primeau, Kent.

Secretary and Treasurer—Mr. C. E. Jamieson.

Subscriptions to a practical extent were forthcoming in the room and the President stated that he had promises of further support.

The Examiner is asked to state that any voluntary subscriptions towards the objects of the club will be thank-

John Sweeney Sentenced for Non-Support of His Family—William Hill Given One Month in Gaol For Theft.

DAVIS HILL ACQUITTED

Davis Hill of Dummer, faced a charge of receiving stolen goods in this morning's police court. He was defended by Mr. G. N. Gordon, and the prosecution was conducted by Mr. V. J. McKilderry, in the absence of Crown Attorney Wood, who is ill.

After hearing considerable evidence all of which was offered by the prosecution, Magistrate Dumble dismissed the charge against Hill.

His brother, William Hill, was charged with stealing a fur-lined overcoat, valued at $16, from the hall of the Munro House. Mr. Gordon defended the prisoner, and Mr. McKilderry conducted the prosecution.

In a former hearing, Hill had admitted his guilt, and pleaded 'not guilty' to the crime, but at this morning's hearing his counsel entered a plea of 'guilty,' so that a hearing of the case was unnecessary.

In spite of Mr. Gordon's effective plea for suspended sentence, Magistrate Dumble sentenced Hill to one month in the county gaol with hard labour.

In arguing that a sentence be imposed, Mr. McElderry said that the theft of overcoats from local hotels had been bothering the men of the community for some time, and now that an offender was caught, he should not be allowed to go without serving as an example for other thieves. Otherwise the stealing would continue with impunity.

Case of Davis Hill.

Howard McGowan, of Otonabee, the young man from whom the coat was stolen, was the first witness. By several marks and the general appearance of the coat produced in court he recognized it as his. He paid $16 for it at a local second hand store.

On Saturday, the 22nd of November, witness went into the Munro House about 3 o'clock and hung up his coat. About 5.30 he returned to get it and found it had been taken. He at once notified the police.

The next time he saw it was in the police station, after it had been found in Hill's home in Smith.

Detective Newhall was the second witness for the Crown. He said that their investigation into the theft of the coat led to the arrest of Hill, and a search of Hill's home in Smith township by County Constable Cochrane, Detective Meagher and himself. When they went to the house and read the search warrant, there was Mr. Robert Hill, their son Davis Hill (prisoner) and the two Hill girls. The family brought out a fur coat. (One in court) and laid it on the table. All said it was Robert Hill's. When questioned, Davis Hill said: "There is no coat in this house except what belongs to us, and we can prove where we bought them."

When the witness went to search the house, the whole Hill family assumed a hostile attitude and blocked the way. It was only after threats of handcuffing the two men that the police officers were allowed to search the house. They found four fur lined coats, but these belonged to different members of the family.

Davis Hill was arrested as a result of the stolen coat being found in the house, and on the way back he admitted to the detectives that he got it from his brother William. William had told him that the coat had just been bought by him.

Wm. Zinston, who resides at the corner of Smith and Water Streets was the next witness. Wm. Hill boarded at his place at the time of the theft. His evidence was not satisfactory, and did not seem to have much bearing on the case in hand.

Robert Munro of the Munro House was the next witness. On Saturday afternoon, November 22 he saw William Hill in the hotel. He was wearing a raincoat. Between four and five o'clock that afternoon he saw Hill leave the hotel with a fur-lined coat over the rain coat. He saw them on Hill in the hotel that afternoon.

To Mr. Gordon he admitted that Davis Hill was often around and in the hotel.

High County Constable Cochrane corroborated Detective Newhall's evidence.

In dismissing the charge the Magistrate said that while there were some suspicious circumstances, it had not been satisfactorily proved that Davis Hill knew the coat was stolen when he received it.

John Sweeney was charged with neglecting to support his family. Mr. Cochrane testified that he knew Sweeney and that he didn't support his wife and children. He said he met him noon some mornings, while the wife who was an industrious woman, laboured to support the children. Sweeney was a heavy drinker.

Mr. Patrick Kane, financial secretary St. Vincent de Paul Society of this City, said that they had contributed much relief to the family. Mr. Sweeney was willing to work, but was not in good health.

Sweeney, who had often been before the court on similar charges, was sentenced to six months in Central Prison.

THE HEN ARRIVES.

The humble hen need be humble no longer. Her products are classed with the elect of elegance. On Saturday in Toronto fresh carnations, fresh roses and fresh eggs were sold at one uniform flat rate—75 cents per dozen. It's a pity the hen can't crow—she has a right to do so; she's in society.

ABSURDITY.

The United States is frankly protective; that is, duties are levied for the purpose of excluding competition. On this ground only a protective tariff charge can be defended. A consignment of rare books from England to a United States dealer, included a lock of Dickens' hair, valued at $200 on account of association with the great head it once adorned. The customs officials insist on collecting $70 duty on the lock of hair. Even on the doctrine of protection this charge cannot be justified. Nobody in the United States is engaged in, or proposes to go into, the manufacture of Charles Dickenses and the accompanying locks of hair, so that admission of the Dickens' curl would not interfere with any "infant industry." The incident serves to show the absurdity of tariff imports levied for the purpose or, at least, with the effect, of interfering with the rights, privileges and wishes of the people. A revenue is necessary and high for the benefit of the people and this purpose is not served if its production is made at the expense of the people; if it interposes obstruction to the enjoyment of popular rights; if it is made the medium of advancing prices of the necessaries, or even luxuries, of life; if it helps the establishment and maintenance of combines, and the oppression of the consumer by the high prices combines produce.

WATER COMMISSIONER.

Mr. Hicks, in this issue of the Examiner, announces his candidature for the important position of Water Commissioner, or Public Utilities Commissioner, made vacant by the retirement of Mr. Hill. Mr. Hicks seems to be the man needed for the position. We have had the benefit in the past of efficient business administration of our Water Works and we need to keep up the standard, especially as the duties of Hydro Electric administration have been added to the Water Commission. To establish this system on a firm and good basis needs the application of the best business ability. To this Mr. Hicks could be trusted to contribute largely. He not only has the business ability but the disposition in the matter of city ownership of electricity. It is a matter of municipal record that Mr. Hicks, when in the City Council, was a moving spirit in conditioning the franchise to the Light and Power Company, and was the author of the clause in it that made it easy, or far easier, for the city to adopt the ownership of a utility like electric power. In this was exhibited a keen foresight and grasp of situation, two of the most important elements in business ability which Mr. Hicks evidently possesses. He has made a success of his private business and during his five terms of good service in the City Council, demonstrated himself as one of our best aldermen. We need a good, alert, live, level-headed business man to take the vacancy on the Board of Water Commissioners, to be hereafter known as the "Public Utilities Commission"; in this regard Mr. Hicks meets the conditions, and his candidature, in this regard, is commended to the earnest consideration of the electors.

WHO IS RESPONSIBLE?

At the meeting of the City Council on Tuesday night, Aldermen Green very properly brought up the question of the position of the users of electricity for light and power as supplied by the Otonabee Power Company, which the majority of the Council voted for putting out of business on January 1st. Mayor Bradburn, voicing the sentiment of the majority of the Council, is thus reported:

"We (meaning the City Council) are not responsible for the people who have been taking power from the Otonabee Power Company."

This is an extraordinary, not to say cynical, view to take of the responsibility of the representatives of the people to the people who elected them. Here we have eight or nine hundred users of light or power threatened with the inconvenience of having light shut off from their homes at the beginning of the year. They are anxious to know from what source will be supplied a substitute for the conveniences of which they are to be deprived by these representatives, and they are coolly told that their anxiety is no matter of the Council; that the Council is not responsible. Who is responsible, if not the Council? No doubt a majority of this eight or nine hundred voted for Hydro Electric. In doing so they trusted to the City Council to keep the promise of better and cheaper light they voted for. The responsibility of providing Hydro Electric power rested upon the City Council. Nearly a whole year has elapsed and the Hydro Electric service is not ready. Whose fault is that? It is not the fault of the people who voted for it, and they should not be made to suffer for their confidence, misplaced it seems, in the City Council. It was incumbent upon the Council, if they could not supply the people with Hydro Electric service, to keep faith by supplying a substitute, instead of shutting off the users of Otonabee Power Company light. Surely some arrangement could have been made by which the power now threatened to be withdrawn should be supplied till the City service became effective. It is plainly the duty of the Council to take some steps to reassure, if that can be done, the users of electric light, whose discontinuance is threatened the first of the year. Who will be looked to, if not the Council? Who, if not the Council, is "responsible for the people who have been taking power from the Otonabee Power Company?" Are they to be penalized for patronizing a good service? The question to be answered, is a simple one. Where are those users of light and power to get their supply after January 1st?

THE GOOD OLD DAYS.

In the early days of the French regime in Canada, under seigniorial tenure, the habitants rented the lands they occupied. In the Public School History now in use in Ontario it is interesting to read: "The rental varied from half a cent to two cents for each acre, and was paid, part in money, part in wheat, eggs or live fowl." At the lowest rental named one good fresh egg to-day would pay the rent of twelve and a half acres for a year, while one goo dchicken would pay the rent of four hundred acres.—Toronto Star.

"CAN'T" AND CANT.

Mr. Borden and Mr. Churchill declare that Canada can't build battleships. Yet the news despatches tell us that Canadian engineers have wormed a railway tunnel for the Canadian Northern Railway, through the rocky base of Mount Royal, Montreal, in the short space of fifteen months after the first blow of he pick. It is added that this establishes a new speed record for deep tunnelling on the American continent—putting Canadian engineering skill and Canadian executive force in the front rank. We have lately beaten the United States in cattle breeding and sheep breeding contests. We have beaten the United States in maintaining a high tariff as a factor in the high cost of living. We have shown our capacity to stand even a Conservative Government; and yet we are told that we can't build battle ships. Such a spirit tends to devour, instead of develop, Canada's great resources. "Canada can't" is the most humiliating form of cant.

16TH ANNUAL MEETING OF THE WOMEN'S MISSIONARY SOCIETY

OMEMEE, Ont., Dec. 10. — The sixteenth annual meeting of the Women's Missionary Society of the Lindsay District, was held in the Omemee Methodist Church on Wednesday, Dec. 3rd. The day was an ideal one for the function, and as a result the village was quite alive with visitors.

Delegates were here from the different auxiliaries throughout the district.

The afternoon session began at 1:45 with Mrs. (Dr.) Irvine, of Lindsay, the President of the District, in the chair. The opening exercises were in charge of Mrs. Jeffers, of Lindsay.

Mrs. Nesbitt, of Lindsay, was then appointed as Secretary of the District.

Splendid reports were then given from each auxiliary and mission band showing the good work that has been accomplished.

The work of the Mission Band was then taken by Mrs. Blackwell, of Lindsay.

What is a Mission Band?—A band of little folk gathered together to study and to increase the desire in their minds for missions. Mrs. Blackwell gave some splendid ideas of how to get the young mind interested in missions, and while young is the proper time, and then they will be more useful in the work as they grow older.

Mrs. W. E. Reesor, of Lindsay, then rendered a solo in fine voice, "The Name of Jesus Is So Sweet."

A paper on the duty of the Auxiliary to (1) The New Member; (2) The Indifferent Member; (3) The Aged and Shut-in Member, was given by Mrs. S. J. Shorey. First we ought to create an atmosphere in our meeting such as would make each new member feel welcome, not as a hostess would be sociable to her guests, but as partners of equal rights. The Auxiliary is the property of all, the exclusive rights of none, and whatever helps one member helps the society. Our duty is to plan to organize and execute our plans that every member may have a chance to do her duty. To the Indifferent Member — What shall we do with her? Give her something to do, either in the meeting or for it, a part taken by herself. To the Aged and Shut-in Member—Let us think of the pleasures she is denied and try to suit her circumstances. She cannot attend the meetings. We may give her literature, receive in return any fund she may give, but we should go soon and tell her of the meetings, the general attendance, and also what was said and done. Let the measure of our being be "She hath done what she could," and "As much as ye have done it unto one of the least of these, it will be unto Thee." So shall it be our reward.

The collection was then taken, followed by music.

Worker's Conference—Two minutes' talk on the following subjects:

1. Religion in the Home, by Mrs. McMullen, of Lindsay:

"The light that shines farthest shines brighter nearer home." God approves of family worship. Joshua and Cornelius served God with their families. Job offered family sacrifices, and often. God has given many commandments for each of us to worship with our children. Never before has there been so much to draw our minds away from prayer, as in this age.

"Train up a child in the way he should go and when he is old, he will not depart from it." Learning the Scriptures and praying daily make strong Christians in the home. John Wannamaker prayed twice a day with his family. President McKinley set aside some time each day for prayer, and many other noted men, and if they had time, why haven't we? "They that wait on the Lord, shall not want any good thing."

2. Upon what does the success of mission work in the Local Auxiliary depend, by Mrs. Birchard:

Why should we pray? When we do we enter into good motives and are led to see things as God would have us. The missionaries ask us to "Pray for us, oh pray for us." Jesus has arranged that His work should be done by human hands. Let us not say, no one will miss us at the meetings, but let each one do her part. We need to have our hearts filled with love and be able to tell of it.

3. How can we best interest ourselves in the work of the W.M.S., by Mrs. R. J. Mulligan, of Omemee:

By knowing about the work, know the names of our missionaries and where they are stationed, also we may interest ourselves by reading a leaflet handed to us at the monthly meeting, canvassing for the Outlook, etc. If absent from one meeting we are apt to forget the next, therefore, a verse of Scripture should be sent. Money given to the missionary cause is money well spent. We should pray for the W.M.S. especially in the quiet evening hour of Sunday, between five and six o'clock, so that we may each enter into the work with renewed zeal.

4. How can we best awaken interest in our Missionary Literature and secure its being read, by Mrs. Thos. Brown, of Lindsay.

5. Best plans for raising money, by Mrs. Jos. Thurston.

6. Mrs. Gould, of Fenelon Falls, gave a short talk on, "How Can I Be An Ideal Member?"

Mrs. Bishop, of Toronto, then took charge of the question drawer, which granted each person the privilege of writing a question pertaining to missionary work on a slip of paper, and receiving the answer.

Mrs. Reesor and Mrs. Blackwell then favoured us with a duet.

Consecration service in which delegates and visitors were requested to consider the question, "Does the Auxiliary Work Help Me in My Spiritual Life?" by Miss Miller, of Lindsay, brought the afternoon session to a close. Refreshments were served by the ladies of the Omemee W.M.S., and a social hour spent.

The evening session opened at 7:15 with Rev. J. F. Chapman in the chair, by the singing of that rousing hymn, "There's a Royal Banner Given for Display." This was followed by Scripture lesson and prayer by Mr. Chapman. The report of the Courtesy Committee was then given. It is the desire of the committee to express their warmest thanks, 1st—For the music which has been supplied.

2nd—For the kindness of the Omemee people in entertaining us.

3rd—For the kindness of Mrs. Bishop, who has been an inspiration to us all.

A solo by Mrs. Blackwell was much appreciated.

Mr. Chapman then delivered a short address.

It is not merely an idle fancy when I say we are living at the greatest opportunity that the world has ever seen since Christ came to earth. There never were so many bold and advanced men as are meeting in the Assemblies to-day. We are living in a critical time. To-day there is a call forward. There is no work that means so much as the sending of the Gospel to those who know Him not. The nominal Christian is not going to win the world for Christ. I speak not as a pastor, but as one interested in your work. If the Methodist Church is going to advance, it must get a mighty grip of God. Mr. Chapman emphasized the two messages from the Board meeting.

1st—A call to prayer.

2nd—Send a revival and let it begin in my heart.

Greetings from sister societies were given by Mrs. Clarke of the Anglican Church, and Mrs. White, of the Presbyterian Church.

A solo was given by Mrs. Reesor, after which a collection was taken.

Mrs. Bishop, who has been in the Deaconess Home for about a year and a half, gave a delightful address on their work. Every student, who enters has to spend one year in training at the Deaconess Home to get acquainted with community life. The Women's Missionary Society is closely connected with the Deaconess Home. With its school is the natural training school of the Methodist Church. Lecturers, who give their time free, doctors, etc., come to our school. The students take up a course in Bible study, Old and New Testaments, their writers, church history and dicipline, general history, etc., also domestic science and sewing. The girls go out teaching in order that they may get a knowledge of the charitable work done in the city. They spend one year in the training school and then they go, it may be to the foreign fields, or deaconess work, or some go home to work in their own church, now that they have a better idea of the missionary work, there is to be done. It costs $125 for one year, which includes tuition fee and board.

We notice that people pay respect to the earliest deaconess. They are always busy helping the children, sorting the goods which is being sent in, etc. They are now out gathering the names of the poor children for the Star fund and any child, who is helped by the Church does not receive anything from the Star. Are we willing to do the little things to help on the Kingdom of Christ? Some of the greatest people are those that have done the little things.

Many times we have passed by people in need and have not ministered to them. Have we got the vision, "The harvest truly is great, but the labourers are few." "Pray ye, therefore, the Lord of the harvest that He may send forth more labourers." It is your prayers we want for our deaconesses. Men ought always to pray. May the missionaries get the clear vision and be able to take with them the right message to China and Japan. Every day should bring us something new to pray for. Remember the Lord when he spoke to the blind man, "What would yet that I should do unto you?" He answered, "That my eyes might be opened."

Mr. Chapman then spoke a few closing words. "If we place ourselves in God's hands," he said, "nothing can move the world but prayer. May we each do our little part to make our lives sublime and perform the daily tasks for Christ."

The meeting was then brought to a close by the singing of the Missionary hymn, "There Is Work to Do for Jesus," after which Rev. Mr. Currie, of the Presbyterian Church pronounced the benediction.

THE BOY SCOUTS

An Appeal for Men From the Provincial Secretary

Boys, boys everywhere are keen to do the right thing, ready to work, ready to play the game, and ready for the right men to lead them.

In the Scout Movement it is not any trouble to get boys. Our problem is to get the men to lead and there are thousands of men who would be willing to help if they realized the importance of boy life upon the future of Canada. A little sacrifice, the giving of a few hours a week—for what? to assist in moulding good citizens for Canada. Men, why not give a little time to the boys of your community? You will be the stronger and feel better for having devoted some little time to the training of the boys along lines which tend to better citizenship and a clean generation of boys.

The Scout Movement is trying to take care of the boys during their play, each part of the training tending towards making manly men. No greater asset can we give to the Empire than a race of Up-right, Manly, Clean, Canadian boys.

You have men who are helping your boys to become better citizens. Are there not others who will say, "I will also help in this work." Will you help? If you will take time to look into the work and training of the Boy Scouts your answer will be "Yes." Show your interest in the Movement and encourage those who are working for the boys of your community.

Any information in connection with the Movement will be gladly forwarded upon application to the Secretary, Provincial Headquarters for Ontario, Bloor and Sherbourne Sts., Toronto.

THE WOODMEN OF THE WORLD

Held Their Annual Ball Last Evening—Many Guests

The bright dresses of the ladies and the happy faces generally, made a gay and lively scene last night in the Hall of the Woodmen of the World. This was the occasion of the annual ball given by this friendly society.

To do justice to the occasion some one hundred couples had assembled shortly after 8 o'clock to devote six or seven hours to the Terpsichorean art, accompanied by the strains of music, which were well supplied by the combined orchestra of Turner and Tucker.

The ancient Greeks possessed a god dess who was the Muse presiding over dance and choral song and her very name Terpsichore is compared meaning to gladden and to dance. And judging from the many glad faces last night, the goddess evidently reigned supreme among the dancers.

Shakespeare writes, "To dance our ringlets to the whistling wind." Well last evening this was certainly to be seen as well as another couplet by the same poet, "To dance attendance on their lordship's pleasure"; for many bright glances passed between partners.

About the "witching hour of night" a halt was called and supper was served, after which necessary and important function dancing was resumed until between two and three o'clock this morning.

Mr. A. Vass efficiently carried out the duties of master of ceremonies.

NEW FUDGE RECEIPE

If you like fudge, and want a new treat in this delicious and easily made confection, just try the following recipe:

Mix 2 cups granulated sugar, two tablespoons FRY'S Chocolate Icing Powder and a piece of butter size of a walnut. Stir in one cup of milk and boil very slowly from 20 minutes to a half hour—until it forms a ball when dropped into cold water. A few nuts make a pleasant addition. Remove from fire, beat until stiff, pour into pan, and when cool cut into squares.

FRY'S Chocolate Icing Powder makes fudge of an exquisitely delicate and rich flavour. Try it.

Small fruits—197 acres.
Vineyard—15 acres.
Garden—1,108 acres.

Horses, Cattle, Etc.

The following figures are for stock on hand on July 1, 1913:
Horses 12,057, milch cows 18,440, other cattle 29,722, sheep and lambs 14,837, swine 19,868.

Poultry.

Poultry on hand on July 1st, 1913: Turkeys 12,725, geese 6,556, ducks 6,958, other fowls 188,685. Total 214,724.

Other Figures.

The number of live stock sold or killed in Ontario during the year ending June 30, 1913 is given as follows:
Horses 1,451, cattle 14,372, sheep 7,880, swine 29,179, poultry 97,149.
The clip of wool for the county was 55,189 lbs.

General Remarks.

Correspondents in the various counties have forwarded interesting remarks of which a few are quoted:

Vespra, Simcoe: We have just sold a batch of turkeys at 24c a pound. This is three times the price we received some years back.

Walsingham N., Norfolk: As long as a farmer expects the hired man to do as much as three do, men will keep away from the farm.

London, Middlesex: We want more competent agricultural labour. If farmers could get it wonderful results could be had. Our system of high school education seems to be to the detriment of our calling. It seems that once a boy leaves the farm he does not want to work at manual labour.

Tilbury W., Essex: The present conditions in Tilbury West are that farmers are making money faster than those in any other part of Canada. rainage, more drainage, is the key of success here.

Dorchester S., Elgin: Butter and cheese are losing ground here, giving way to the powdered milk factory and condenser.

Raleigh, Kent: A number of canning factories have been built in this county during the past two years, and farmers have supplied them with tomatoes, beans, corn, peas, raspberries, strawberries, etc., and have found it remunerative in nearly all cases.

Plums Were Wasted.

Stanley, Huron: Plums were so plentiful this year that bushels went to waste upon nearly every farm.

Have Quit Going West.

Warwick, Lambton: Farmers generally are trying to handle too much land. If they were to woak less land and do it better it would be just as profitable and more satisfactory. There is also too much land used for grazing only, and from $2.00 to $2.50 per acre for pasture is a very poor return. Such land should give back ten times that if cultivated properly. People have about quit going to the west, and we may look for higher Ontario land values, with smaller farms and better tillage.

Easthope, No. Perth: In my estimation no farmer should do business without a silo. He is better off still if he has two, one for summer and one for winter.

Peel, Wellington: I think farmers are making a great mistake in not going more extensively into sheep raising. They are a very profitable stock when meats of all kinds are soh igh; and the cost of keeping is lower than other kinds of live stock, for they will eat what otherwise would be wasted, and they are a great factor in keeping down weeds.

Social Facilities Needed.

Haldimand, Northumberland: Farmers should have rural public halls, equipped with facilities for social gatherings, agricultural libraries, etc. We need addresses on drainage at our Institute meetings this year. We also need electric power on our farms. Farmers' homes must be better equipped.

Fredericksburg S., Lennox and Addington: The Salvation Army seems to supply the best immigrants for farm labour and domestic service.

Hired Man's Board.

Emily, Victoria: It is not fair to blame all farmers who do not raise first class crops, as many of them know how to do better than their capital will permit them to do. It takes considerable courage for the farmer on one hundred acres to undertake to pay a man $30 a month for eight months, with board included. Most men think that board in the country is not worth anything, but all the same it is nearly as costly to the farmer as to the town man. Consequently many farmers do without help. I heard one good farmer say that those who hire help lose money, and that the one who does without help loses money too; and he said he did not know who was the worse off.

Rainfall.

The rainfall from April to September was 14.21 in. as compared with 22.12 in. for the same period in 1912. May and September were unusually dry months this year, being far below the average for the past 30 years.

The Mission Band of George Street Methodist Church will hold a Sale of Fancy Work, and Tea in connection therewith, on Friday afternoon and evening in the Lecture Room of the Church. Orchestra in attendance. 2d-135-t-t

IMMIGRATION QUESTION, ETC.

mately be used either for bringing his family to this country or taking him back to his native land. This threefold burden accounted for the unusual economy of the foreigners.

"The true significance of immigration is its proportion to the receiving population." The percentage of Canada's incoming population to the receiving population was 6.5. That of the United States, at the time when its immigration was largest, was 1.5. So it can be seen that our problem is far greater than that of the United States, and its solution vastly more difficult.

The primary motive of the foreigner who came to this country was the desire to better his economic condition. Formerly immigrants came here to escape religious or political persecution, but of late years that did not enter into the question.

The causes of their coming were three in number:

1. The success of their fellow-countrymen who had already located in Canada.
2. The artificial advertising and inflation by transportation companies.
3. Cheaper transportation.

The motive was economic, the cause was economic and the effect was economic. The inpouring of the European immigrant resulted in the industrial expansion of the Dominion. Cut off this element from coming into this country and industrial expansion would be dealt almost a deathblow, because the number of British-born labourers was not sufficient.

The displacement of labour resulting from the incoming of the Europeans, was a racial and not an economic one. Fifteen years ago British labourers were laying the rails and digging in the streets. To-day 90 per cent. were Southern Europeans. But the effect had been to drive the British labourers to more skilled work. Thus the displacement was purely racial.

Standards Lowering.

One of the surest standards of a nation was the standard of the life of the industrial labourer. And the tendency was for the standard to degenerate to the lowest type of life. Owing to the three-fold burden borne by the foreigners, they live in a way we would never think of living, they eat as regular articles of diet what would never think of eating. It was a deplorable but indisputable fact, that owing to that, the industrial life in North America was steadily deteriorating.

Describing some conditions under which foreign labourers existed, the speaker said that in a room 13 by 12 by 8 feet thirteen men lived—cooked, ate, washed, and slept. In ten such rooms in one Canadian city, 156 labourers lived, day and night shift, so that the beds were in constant use. In the one room where thirteen men existed, the vermin on the walls were so thick that the original pattern on the wall-paper could not be distinguished.

Those were the conditions with which English-speaking people must compete, and the inevitable result was the lowering of the standard of our industrial life.

"Is it logical," asked Mr. Lee, "to bar people suffering from tuberculosis and other diseases from entering the country, and then force the immigrants who are allowed in to live in conditions which breed those very diseases?"

Some false statements had been issued as to the ratio of European criminals, to those of the English-speaking classes. The truth was that the latter have only 50 per cent. less crime credited to them than the former. Some statistics for one section of the Dominion showed that 10 per cent. of the criminals were foreign settlers, and they comprised 12 per cent. of the total population. So they had a 20 per cent. better showing than the English-speaking people.

It was the cry of some that even though were were not assimilating the present generation we are the coming one. This was untrue. Forty per cent. of delinquent children were from the foreigners, whose children comprised 14 per cent. of all of the community. Thus there were three times more delinquents among them than among the English-speaking children. This was due to our attitude to the children. We were, by our attitude to their parents, making criminals of the children. The foreign boys learn to disguise their parents—their parents' ideals and religion. As a result they finish their education on the street. It was our duty to restore the home relations to these foreigners.

Law Condemned.

The present naturalization law provides that anyone residing 3 years in Canada shall have the full franchise and rights of citizenship. The speaker pictured President Faulkner of Toronto University going into a polling place to cast his vote. Following him he drew up in imagination an uneducated foreigner, who knew nought of the questions he was about to help decide. The vote of the former might be cancelled by that of the latter. Was that a fair state of things?

In a great many cities the balance of power was held by men who knew nothing of the questions of the day.

The remedy for that was to be found only in amendment of the naturalization law. The speaker said the terms of residence should be five years, and the foreigner should have at least a working knowledge of English.

The first amendment was wise, because foreigners usually spent about four years in the country. Thus the franchise was often given to men not concerned in the future of the state. A knowledge of the English language should be required as a means of promoting its use among foreigners, for the learning and use of the language was the first step towards their naturalization.

"Just so long as we believe the foreigner cannot be assimilated, just so long will they not become assimilated. Just so long as we segregate them apart, just so long will they remain apart from the rest of the people. The time will come when you will have a foreign population here, and every man who helps to solve the problem evolving therefrom is helping to make the future of the most glorious Dominion in the greatest Empire this world has ever known," concluded the speaker.

A hearty vote of thanks was tendered the speaker on behalf of the club by Mr. G. C. Wainwright.

Amsterdam is considering the conversion of the 140,000 tons of combustible street refuse that is gathered every year into fuel briquets for boilers.

NEW STREET LIGHTING SYSTEM

Will Be In Operation on Tuesday Next

The new street lighting system will blaze forth in all its glory on Tuesday evening next. This morning, Alderman Johnston, chairman of the Power Committee of the City Council, reiterated his former statement that the Hydro-Electric street lighting system would be in operation by the fifteenth of December.

Workmen are engaged to-day in the erection of the Magnetite Arc lights on Hunter and Simcoe streets. Mr. Greer, foreman on construction, expects to have everything in readiness for the formal inauguration of the down town lighting system.

Equal parts of soda, flour and vinegar, made into a paste and applied to the interior of a silver teapot for a few hours, will renew its brilliancy.

The Lounging Robe or House Coat Makes a Capital Gift for a Man

The Men's Wear Section Showing a Great Assortment of Styles and Colours

A man's liking for home, depends to a large extent, upon the degree of comfort that he finds in it. And most men, after the day's business is over, look forward with genuine pleasure to the few evening hours spent in comfort at home, that provide him with needed rest and recreation.

Hence the added comfort he finds, in being possessed of a warm house jacket or lounging robe, which enables him to divest himself of his ordinary coat, and enjoy increased freedom of movement, with a correct appearance withal. Therefore the reason why such a garment makes a capital gift for a man at the Christmas Season.

House Coats

Mostly Camels Hair Cloths, which show a reverse side patterned in plaid design. And this is seen at the shawl collar & at the pockets and takes the form of a cuff, thus making a bright touch of colour against the contrasting shade of the rest of the coat. Velvets, Brocaded Silks, Blanket Cloths and soft woollen fabrics in red, grey, lovat green, blue, tan and brown; suitably trimmed with silk cord binding, etc. Prices range $5, 6.50, 7.50, 8.00 and 8.50.

Lounging Robes

Very similar in material to the house coats, and all fitted with shawl collar and girdle. Single and double breasted styles are shown, the popular price in these robes being $10.

Other lines run at $15, 13.50, 9.00, 8.00 and 4.00.

SIR LIONEL PHILLIPS IS SHOT

Special Cable to The Examiner:

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa, Dec. 11.—Sir Lionel Phillips, a millionaire mine owner, was fatally shot twice to-day by a man named James Taylor, a former employee in the Phillips' mines. Sir Lionel was blamed by the white Labour party for the importation of Hindoo labour, and his attempted assassination is believed to be a result of this. Taylor is now under imprisonment as a lunatic.

Further investigation this morning indicates that Taylor was the agent of a committee which organized the shooting with the idea of calling attention to the wrongs of the white labourers in the mines. They deny that death was intended. Phillips has had an adventurous career. In 1896 he was sentenced with others to death for participation in the famous Jameson trial. This was later commuted by President Paul Kruger to a fine of a hundred and twenty-five thousand dollars and perpetual banishment. He did not return to South Africa until after the British took possession.

34 DIVORCES APPLIED FOR

Special Wire to The Examiner.

OTTAWA, Dec. 11.—Despite the fact that divorce in Canada, costs on an average of $10,000 to obtain, there are no less than thirty-four applications already in the hands of the clerk in charge. Toronto and Montreal head the list with six each. From the Provincial standpoint Ontario is head and shoulders above the rest in the matter of marital discord. No less than fifteen applications are from that Province, nine from the Province of Quebec, four from Alberta, three from Saskatchewan, and two from Manitoba. There were fifty applications last year and thirty-six were granted.

MINERS ARE BARRICADED

Special Wire to The Examiner.

CALUMET, Mich., Dec. 11.—Forty striking miners are barricaded in Federation Hall here, armed with rifles and this morning Deputies, similarly armed, had the place under siege. The proposition is to starve the men out, but they are well provisioned with goods stolen from the Company's premises and may hold out a long time.

INCREASE IN CANAL TRAFFIC IN CANADA

Special Wire to Examiner:

OTTAWA, Dec. 11.—Canadian canal traffic for the year of navigation just ended shows a very considerable increase over that for last year. During the season a total of fifty-one million tons of freight found its way through the waterways, as against a total of forty-seven million tons for the navigation season of 1912. The main increases are spread over the Welland, St. Lawrence and Soon, though every other canal also shows an increase in traffic. Significant are the figures for the Soo and Welland, which indicate that a great proportion of the Canadian traffi finds its way down through the American channels to the American ports. During the past season the Soo carried forty-two million tons, as against thirty-nine million for the preceding season, the Welland three million tons as against two millions, and the St. Lawrence four million, as against three million.

MAY NOT SEE HIS EXPEDITION FOR SOME TIME

Special to the Examiner.

OTTAWA, Dec. 11.—It is feared in official quarters at Ottawa that Stefanson may not see his expedition again for a very long time. It is thought that the men on the ship may not take the trouble to look up their nominal leader until they have pretty well completed the work which the expedition set out to accomplish. There was trouble in the party before it got out of touch with civilization. Stefaneson had planned to live off the country with his men as he had done before, believing that the only way a white man in the north can keep his health, was by living as the natives do. Other members of the party did not relish this prospect of living on blubber, and insisted that more prepared provisions be obtained. Despatches from Stefaneson show that one of the first things he did after turning the corner of Alaska was to set out with a few men after blubber. Within two days his vessel was gone and he was left facing the wilderness with his few companions. Either the Karluk has been crushed or is still trapped in the ice or the expedition is not inclined to again pick up Stefaneson. The general belief here among those who knew the conditions in the party is that the latter is the case.

THE NORWOOD DRILL HALL

Contractor Bogue of Peterborough has all but finished his work in connection with the new armouries at Norwood. The tinsmiths completed their work on Saturday and the plastering in the basement is finished.

Mr. J. R. McKelvie acted as building inspector on behalf of the Government.

The drill hall section inside measures 65 feet by 42 feet. Here an 11-4 inch hardwood floor rests throughout upon a cement floor, making a very level surface. The floor will be smoothed off, stained in oak and highly polished. The walls and ceiling will be painted lily white by the Militia Department.

The armoury section on the first floor contains a caretaker's room, and two armoury rooms for the local company "E" of the Militia and the Norwood Cadets. A spacious stairway leads to the basement and second floor. The basement contains furnace and lavatory rooms constructed of cement. The large coal furnace is already installed.

The second floor contains an officers' room, sergeants' room and privates' room. The rooms can be thrown into one by means of folding doors, giving a space of 42 feet by 27 feet. Adjoining the full length of the rooms is a balcony with railing, over looking the interior of the drill hall. The floor of every room is of stained hardwood.

The building is lighted throughout by electricity.

Outside the buildings, a wide cement walk will be constructed along one end and on the side facing Alma Street.

The opening will be held about the middle of January.

BELMONT CLUB'S ENJOYABLE DANCE

The Belmont Club held a very enjoyable dance in their club rooms last night. About 50 couples were present at the affair, which, like all of the Club funstions, was a very pleasant one.

Splendid music was supplied by Mr. Asa Huycke, and the refreshments were attended to by Mr. F. H. Hooper in a manner that was very agreeable to the guests.

Grand Jury Recommends Fire Escapes For Two Institutions And Uniformed Court Officers

No Female Prisoners in the Gaol Matter for Congratulations Says Judge—Hospitals Were Visited

WHITE GLOVES FOR JUDGE

The Grand Jury presented the following report to His Honour Judge Huycke this morning, and with it a pair of white gloves, symbolic of the absence of criminal cases from the court calendar:

In making its report your Grand Jury heartily concur in the references of Your Honour in pointing out the absence of criminal cases at this sitting of the court, which we feel is a matter which reflects credit upon the community.

We find that at the present time there are eleven male prisoners in the gaol, all of whom we understand are detained for minor offences. We are particularly glad to report that there are no female prisoners at present. The number of prisoners confined to the gaol now is exceptionally low as compared with past years which is a further indication of the small percentage of crime in the city and county.

We find conditions in the gaol are very satisfactory, all parts being clean and well kept and the prisoners well cared for. We recommend that the walls and woodwork of the corridors downstairs be repainted and that the woodwork in the court-room be painted and grained.

We visited the Nicholls Hospital and St. Joseph's Hospital, and from the opportunity we had of informing ourselves we believe that every skill and care is being exercised by those in charge in the treatment of those coming under their care.

We find a large number of aged men and women are cared for in the House of Providence, Protestant Home and House of Refuge, and in all three institutions we find the inmates are provided with every necessary comfort. They are treated with extreme kindness by those in charge and appear to be happy and contented.

We would respectfully recommend in connection with the House of Providence that additional means be provided for leaving the building in case of fire and would make a similar recommendation in regard to the Protestant Home where in our opinion the present means of exit would be inadequate in such a circumstance.

We would ask that those matters be referred to the proper authorities.

We also visited the Children's Shelter and St. Vincent's Orphanage, and at both places found conditions very satisfactory.

We would further recommend that the County Council be requested to provide a suitable number of court constables in uniform. We understand that this is provided for in other centres, and we believe it is necessary for the maintaining of proper order in the court room and upholding the dignity of the court.

All of which is respectfully submitted,

J. C. ANDERSON,
Foreman.

The Judge's Reply.

Judge Huycke thanked the jury for the evident great care with which they had fulfilled their duties. The absence of crime was a matter of congratulation. So far as serious crime is concerned we should be thankful that it is so scarce. This condition is probably due to the increase of morality, education and the general well being of the people of the county, and great credit is reflected on the community.

In regard to the institutions you visited it was doubtless a pleasure as well as a duty to see that God's little ones and His poor are well cared for. It is also a matter of congratulation that there are no female prisoners in the gaol.

You referred to a very important matter in the provision of ample fire protection in the homes for the aged. Your recommendation is apt indeed. We have read of many sad fatalities in places of this kind. I am sure it requires only that this be presented to *the proper authorities to have the con*ditions remedied.

Need of Uniformed Officers.

In regard to court constables being in uniform, I have often thought it strange that in this progressive city this has not been done. We don't need to go to Toronto or Ottawa courts to find uniformed constables. Belleville, Lindsay and other neighbouring towns have them. The uniforms lend authority to the court and tend to promote decorum. Visiting judges have referred to the lack of uniformed officers. It only requires to be pointed out to those in charge to have this matter attended to.

In conclusion Judge Huycke extended to the jurors the compliments of the season wishing them and their families a very happy Christmas.

One Month In Gaol

For John Clark, of Norwood—Old Defaulter Was Apprehended

Jack Clark, a Norwood shoemaker, who was recently brought up before a Justice of the Peace and found guilty of being drunk in this a local option municipality and who was given the alternative of paying a fine of $20 and costs or 30 days in jail with ten days in which to consider matters, was at the expiration of his time on Thursday last taken to Peterborough by Constable Puffer, having decided to rather take a month's rest as a guest at "Castle Nesbitt" then enrich the License Departments' coffers.

While Constable Puffer was at the station with his charge awaiting the afternoon train, he unexpectedly espied another defaulter in the person of Mr. John Weese, who was subpoened for the same offence of being drunk in a local option municipality some months ago, but who evaded appearing before the Magistrate. In consequence of which a charge of contempt of Court had been standing against him.

It appears Weese had just come home to spend the day and was returning to Peterborough on the afternoon train. He also espied Constable Puffer and the movements that followed furnished considerable amusement for those at the station. Thinking he would throw the constable off the scent Weese went over to the timber yard and commenced measuring logs until the arrival of the train.

The constable did not interrupt him in his labours but 'phoned the police department at Peterborough to have an officer at the station there to effect his arrest, which was accomplished. Weese was accordingly brought up the next morning before Magistrate Edmison and was fined $20 and costs for being drunk, to which he pleaded guilty, the charge of contempt of Court being dropped. — Norwood Register.

FARMERS' INSTITUTE IN OTONABEE

Examiner Special:

The Farmers' Institute meeting, held in O'Grady's School, No. 8, Otonabee, was very largely attended.

Miss Halpin, the teacher, had the school neatly adorned.

Mr. W. H. Borland, Secretary-Treasurer, occupied the chair and introduced the different speakers.

Mr. Padgett was the first speaker, and spoke very briefly on the growing of alfalfa. Alfalfa is not a favourite crop with the farmers in this vicinity, as they have tried to grow it at different times but without success. Mr. Padgett spoke on "Alfalfa and its results in Haldimand County".

Mr. J. P. Collins, the President, congratulated Mr. Andrew, the cheese maker, and also the patrons for the way they were bringing the factory to the top notch.

The officers for the year 1913 were re-appointed for the coming year, and with the exception of Richard Sheehan, who has the drawing of the cheese for 76c. per ton, against $1 in 1913. The whey went to Devlin and O'Leary for $1.36, standard.

The Chairman closed the meeting with words of praise for the different speakers.

Mr. Borland said there was no doubt the farmers would benefit by the words of advice. He thanked the audience for their attention and attendance and closed with three cheers for th King.

ONE-TENTH OF LOANS MADE ON INSURANCE POLICIES ARE UNPAID

Statement at Big Convention of Life Insurance Presidents In New York To-day — Extravagance the Cause of Mortgages on Life Insurance.

PEOPLE WHO LIVE BEYOND THEIR INCOMES

Examiner Special:

NEW YORK, Dec. 11.—Confronting the fact that life insurance policies are now mortgaged by policyholders for $550,000,000, the Seventh Annual Convention of the Association of Life Insurance Presidents is in session here to-day considering ways and means to discourage this growing habit of the American public. More than 75 per cent. of the twenty billion dollars of old line life insurance in force is represented by the company executives present from all over the country. The convention, which opened this morning, will last two days.

Extravagance Responsible.

American temperament and extravagance were arraigned at the convention as being responsible for the vast increase in mortgages on life insurance policies. Arthur E. Childs of Boston said these mortgages had advanced from 3 1/3 per cent. of the reserves in 1903 to 16.03 per cent. in 191 and probably wil reach 18 per cent. this year. The reserves amount to about three and one half billion dollars.

Loans Seldom Repaid.

"Too often these loans have been made without the knowledge or consent of the family interested," said Mr. Childs. "While the sorrow brought upon the families of those who intended to repay their loans—but did not—can best be testified to by those present who have had the care of this business in their charge. The average man hesitates before he surrenders his policy, but when he takes a loan and thus unknowingly or wilfully destroys a part of his insurance protection, thinking that he will sometime or other pay it back, he does not realize that out of one hundred people who have done the same, less than ten ever pay. It is against such inroads that we are morally bound to protect the business, if life insurance is to continue to hold the place in public confidence that it holds today.

Those Who Borrow.

"We have in this country an extravagant public, probably the most extravagant public in the most extravagant age. The very people who are living up to and even beyond their incomes, depending upon their insurance for the future protection of their families as the very people who are maintaining their insurance just as soon as the deposits are large enough to satisfy some of their most expensive desires. They either forget the original purpose for which they took the insurance or they allow their selfish desires for temporary enjoyment to outweigh their appreciation of the necessity for providing for the future. Under such conditions the best interests of the public demand that we make it more difficult for the insured to hypothecate their funds."

HUNTING SEASON OPEN.

"Is that a man or a deer in that thicket?"

"I guess it's safe to call it a deer," said the guide. "If it had been a man he would have taken a shot at us by this time."

MILLBROOK AND BAILIEBORO' NEWS

Examiner Special:

BAILIEBORO, Dec. 10.—Miss Lettie White was in Peterborough this week.

Mr. Harry pidd has returned home from Toronto.

Miss Cora White of Peterborough, was home last week over Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. (Dr.) Russell were in Fraserville last week.

Dr. H. A. Turner left last week to take a special course in the hospitals in New York.

Mr. Harry Armstrong is home from the west and is with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. David Armstrong.

Dr. S. W. Clark was in town for a couple of days, the guests of Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Neale. He opened his new office in Lindsay last week.

Mrs. (Dr.) Moir of Peterborough, was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Fisher.

Dr. Eadie of Honan, addressed a meeting in the Presbyterian Church this week.

After an illness of some months, another of our oldest citizens passed away last week, in the person of Mrs. John Gillott, aged 84. Mrs. Gillott spent about 50 years in Millbrook. She leaves to mourn her loss, one daughter, Miss Eva. Her husband died some years ago.

WARSAW NEWS

Examiner Special:

WARSAW, Dec. 10.—Rev. H. Brown, who was called to the bedside of his sister near Toronto on Thursday, did not arrive there until too late to see her alive.

Mr. J. Bygott, Lakefield, was in the village on business on Tuesday.

Mr. Wesley Bullock is in Peterborough for a few days attending the County Court, as a member of the jury.

Mr. F. Shaw of Toronto, is in the village for a few days taking the machinery from the flour mill.

Mr. Maxwell Tucker of Sintaluta, Sask., is home for a couple of months' visit with relatives here.

Messrs. Wm. Darling, O. A. Douglas and W. J. Middleton announce the purchase of ten geese, which they purpose putting up for competition at a shooting match to be held at the rear of the grist mill on Saturday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Lathrope, Castleton, spent a few days visiting Mr. and Mrs. David Miller this week.

There passed away at his home, lot 5, con. 1, Douro, on Saturday, Dec. 6, one of the township pioneers in the person of David Forsyth. Highly respected by a large circle of acquaintances in the township and the neighbouring one of Dummer, and considered one of the staunch characters who had seen the neighbourhood since its primeval state, the retired gentleman has handed his task of keeping up the good work to those he has reared and who were with him at the last. The deceased leaves one daughter and four sons to mourn his loss. These are Ellen and Wiliam of Douro, David of Hamilton and George of Parry Sound. The funeral, which was largely attended, took place from the residence, Douro, on Monday, the 8th inst. The place of interment was the family plot at Cottesloe Cemetery.

Now for the Christmas cake, the plum pudding and the mince pies. It is a pleasure to state that raisins, currants, peel, nuts and other ingredients are nearly all lower in price this year, and the quality is better. Choate's Maple Leaf brand currants and raisins in neat cardboard boxes at 25c., have been recleaned, which adds much to the quality, and nothing to the price. Try them for this year's cake. The grocery department is loaded with fresh stock for the holiday trade. Have you been to see the Christmas goods at Choate's on the second floor? There are presents there for every man, woman and child in the township of Dummer and then some! Ntional Light coal oil is the best lamp oil in Canada. Have you tried it.

You are invited to visit the store often.

NEW UMPIRES FOR THE CANADIAN LEAGUE NEXT YEAR

OTTAWA, Dec. 9. — Announcement was made from Toronto yesterday that the Canadian Baseball League will have two first-class umpires next year, in addition to the men already on the staff. Some time ago the International League purchased Messrs. Riley and Miller from the Pacific Coast League and the Carolina Association, respectively. The International vacancies have since filled to an overflow, and President Barrow has turned both men over to the Canadian League. Riley and Miller are good arbitrators, and President Fitzgerald will use them regularly when the championship season gets under way in May next. In addition, he will retain Billy Evans, Jack Flynn, Jack Daley and perhaps Ira Davis. Billy Phyle will remain at the coast and Jocko Halligan has made good in the International.

President Fitzgerald intends to increase the salaries of the Canadian leaguers, and will get the best umpires available. Last year the staff was generally good, but it can stand improvement. One or two of Ottawa's baseball celebrities, including men who have officiated in the City League, aspired for berths in the Canadian League, but it is doubtful if they could qualify. Good umpires cut a zig figure in all league races, and those in the Canadian circuit next summer will be given more authority than ever, as President Fitzgerald intimated in his annual report last Friday that the lid would postively go down on rowdies.

Afraid to Swap.

Manager Shaughnessy approached President Stanley, of the St. Thomas team, with offers for Outfielder Kopp and Pitcher Wilkinson. "Not for sale," was the reply received. London was requested to trade Louie Bierbauer to Ottawa, but they, too, refused. The Canadian, according to Shaughnessy, is the poorest trading league in the country. All the clubs appear afraid of being gold-bricked. Ottawa could have purchased Rube Deneau, but they passed him up. St. Thomas will also have Pitcher Reilly, who was under the spell of typhoid last season. The Ottawa and Brantford teams passed him up, and Reilly returned to St. Thomas. He is in the best of health and hopes to have a good season. Shaughnessy would like to have landed Louie Bierbauer, but London would not take the Royal Mint in exchange for the only player-author in the Canadian League.

Accompany Franchise.

Some of the clubs are under the impression that they will get the Guelph players in the event of the franchise being transferred to Erie. They were banking on Wright, Behan, Schaeffer and others. However, all the Guelph men will go to Erie if Mr. O'Neil, the London man who bought out Mahoney, sends it there. He paid $2,000 for the franchise, and claims that he can get that much for the players should he decide to place them on the market.

O. H. A. GROUPS FOR THE SEASON WERE ARRANGED LAST EVENING

Peterborough Intermediates Are Grouped With Belleville, Whitby, Oshawa, Bowmanville and Cobourg.

THE JUNIOR GROUP

TORONTO, Dec. 11.—At last night's meeting of the Executive of the Ontario Hockey Association, the Toronto Riversides, Aurora, Waubaushene juniors, Norfolk juniors of Simcoe, and Acadians of Waterloo were added to the roll. Waubaushene's ice must be satisfactory to the other teams in the group.

The Maple Leafs of Dunnville were not admitted, the field being occupied by an intermediate team in that town already, which will be asked to give any Maple Leaf players an opportunity to make the team.

The Hamilton Centennials were granted permission to play on ice outside of Hamilton, as the rink people have refused to make room for them in the Hamilton rink. They were grouped with the Hamilton Hockey Club.

Claims by Seaforth against St. Mary's of $15.75, and by Chesley against Wiarton of $6.60, both owing from last season, were allowed.

Restored to Good Standing.

Three players who had been suspended with the Hamilton Alerts a year ago were restored to good standing. They were Reg. Boyer of Kingston, Fred Denison of Peterborough, and C. Langman of Hamilton. Leroy Devitt and Laurence Clayton, members of the Writerloo junior team that was suspended all last season, were also declared eligible to play.

President Farquharson re-appointed the sub-committee, Messrs. J. Ross Robertson, D. J. Turner and W. A. Hewitt. This is Mr. Robertson's fifteenth year as Chairman of the sub-committee.

PLENTY OF HOCKEY HERE IN JANUARY

The groups arranged by the O. H. A. at its meeting last night will provide the local fans with plenty of hockey during January. With the Intermediates playing in a six-club group it will mean five intermediate games at Brock Street Rink during the month, while there will also be two junior games, giving seven O. H. A. games on local ice in the first round.

The Intermediates have drawn a big group, playing against Whitby, Oshawa, Bowmanville, Belleville and Cobourg. This is an arrangement that will give each team ten games in the first round, and it will be a red-hot battle for district honours.

The Juniors have a new district, the Kingston Frontenacs being included in this group for the first time. Oshawa, who put the locals out of the running last year, are looked up with the Parkdale Canoe Club and Whitby.

FRED DENISON

Who was restored to good standing by the O. H. A. last night and will be with the local Intermediates this season. He should be a [illegible] strength on the defence.

SARCASM.

Mr. Grouch—It says here in the paper that a married man fell out of bed and broke his leg.

Mrs. Grouch—Umph— I'll bet he didn't do it in his haste to get up and light the fire.

English Football Selectors And Galaxy Of Talent

Comments on the Trial Game Played at Fulham--Old Country Football News

Commenting on the trial game played at Fulham an English critic states: "The game provided delightful football. It was justified because of the information it provided for the selectors and the lessons it conveyed. After the match I had opportunities to learn the views of experts as to the form of the players who had taken part, and they were amazingly divergent. Of course, these differences of opinion are the outcome of different points of view. Thus one expert: 'Burns was a great disappointment, and he is not nearly so good as he was twelve months ago.' The next minute the remark was made to me by another expert: 'Burns is worth his cap. If he could not kick a ball he would be worth playing because of his wonderful headwork, and his judgment is superb.'

"Another player concerning whom there were remarkably varied views was Kenneth Hunt. One set of critics considered he was masterful, successful, and gave altogether a fine exhibition of the half-back game, but others were just as emphatic that he was not within 'streets' of International form."

Many Candidates.

In the middle of January there will be another trial match, and England will then meet the North, at Sunderland. There are many fine players who were not seen at Fulham, and among them may be mentioned Scattergood (Derby), Dawson (Burnley), and Beale (Manchester United), goalkeepers; Downs (Barnsley), Hudspeth (Newcastle United), Henry (Manchester City), English (Sheffield United), and Longworth (Liverpool), backs; Boyle (Burnley), Bradshaw (Blackburn Rovers), Whalley (Manchester United), Watson (Burnley), Harrop (Aston Villa), Walmsley (Blackburn Rovers), Glendinning (Bolton), and many other half-backs. There are forwards galore, but such players as Cantrell (Tottenham), Simpson and Shea (Blackburn), Mordue, Buchan, and Martin (Sunderland), Freeman (Burnley), and Elliott (Middlesbrough) are particularly prominent, and the difficulty will be to know whom to leave out.

On the List.

In addition to John M'Lachlan the following Aston Villa players are on the transfer list: Slade, inside-right; Doncaster, centre-forward; Jarvis, left half-back; Watson, outside-left.

They're After Him.

It is said that Ayr United have been inquiring after a half-back named Howie, who is on the transfer list of Newcastle United. This player is a nephew of James Howie, the ex-Newcastle player, who has just been appointed manager of Queen's Park Rangers, and of David Howie, the ex-Kilmarnock player, now of Bradford.

What's Wrong.

Mr. John M'Kenna, president of the League, has resigned the chairmanship of the Liverpool board of directors. Something far wrong, surely. Mr. M'Kenna is president of the English League, and a vice-president of the F. A. Council.

Miscellaneous.

Hanney, the centre-half of Reading, who gave a good display for the South against England at Fulham, has been transferred to Manchester City for a fee of over £5,000.

Falkirk have had more trouble with their outside left position than any other of the eleven. It is to be hoped that Lennie will have solved the problem for a long time.

Fred Denison Reinstated

Local Player Is Now In Good Standing With the O. H. A.

There was good news in the report of last night's O. H. A. meeting in the re-instatment to good standing of Fred Denison. The big local defence player, who was suspended last year for his connection with the Hamilton Alerts, will be able to play for Peterborough this year and he will be of great assistance to the local Intermediates.

Fred Doherty Signs With The Ontarios

Mr. Fred Doherty, who has been spending the past few weeks at his home in Norwood, left on Friday morning for Toronto, where he has signed up to play professional hockey with the Ontarios, at $800 for the coming season. Up till Thursday Fred had been scouring the country for players to take to Halifax with him, having signed some time ago as player manager for the professionals of that city. We understand he has secured a good team to take east, but on Thursday morning received word that the Maritime League officials had decided to drop the game for this season, on account of a disagreement with the rink owners. That afternoon Fred was signed up by the Ontarios of Toronto.—Norwood Register.

MERCANTILE HOCKEY LEAGUE

Meeting To-night

Hockey fans are particularly requested to attend the meeting to be held at 8 o'clock this evening at the rooms of the Y.M.C.A., where the Mercantile League will be organized for the season. Those combinations who have not yet entered teams, but who desire to be in line, will kindly send two delegates as representatives.

PLAYERS ARE ASKED TO BE OUT EARLY

Hockey players who have been attending the classes at Brock Street rink are urged to be on hand to-morrow (Friday) night, as early as possible and ready to go on the floor at 7 o'clock sharp. There was a good turnout last night and the junior squad is rounding rapidly into shape.

JUNIOR LEAGUE MEETS TO-NIGHT

The Junior City Hockey League will be organized to-night at a meeting to be held at 7.30 o'clock at Brock Street rink. All teams who intend to enter should be represented at this meeting as all arrangements for the season will be made to-night.

THE OTHER KIND.

A captain of one of the ocean liners was showing a young lady friend of his over the ship during one of his eastward trips. As they passed through the steerage, he called his fair companion's attention to a big, husky Irish emigrant, who was putting away with a knife, fork and spoon a bountiful supply of corned beef and cabbage, combined with other articles of diet. The captain eyed him for a moment, then, adressing the lady, said:

"Just look at the enormous amount of food that fellow is consuming."

"I suppose, captain," said the fair young girl, with a beaming smile, "he is what you sailors call a stowaway."

HIGH PRICES.

Ten loads of hay were exposed for sale on the market this morning at 11.30 o'clock. Prices asked for the fodder ranged in price from $18 to $20 a ton. Dealers assert that hay is scare and will realize higher prices before Spring. Others claim that the farmers are holding supplies in reserve with the idea of accelerating the price.

BARRIE'S STORE WAS ENTERED

By Burglars—$2,000 Worth of Furs Stolen

EDMONTON, ALTA., Dec. 11.—Burglars who drilled around a Yale lock in a showcase standing in the lobby of the store of Barrie's, Limited, furriers, on Jasper Avenue, stole twenty mink skins, together with a number of pelts, valued at about $2000, according to the police.

The glass in the showcase was unharmed. All the furs stolen were fine specimens which had been on exhibition only a few days.

The above despatch which was received from Edmonton is similar to a telegram that has been received by Mr. Thomas Barrie, of Barrie, Limited. In conversation with the Examiner to-day, Mr. Barrie stated that he had received nothing definite regarding the robbery. He is familiar with the situation in Edmonton, and is at a loss to comprehend how the burglary was consumated on the main street. The thoroughfare is brilliantly lighted and a large hotel is located across the street.

They left on a honeymoon trip on the 7.45 C.P.R. train, and on their return will reside in Peterborough.

ROBERTSON—SIMPSON.

Mr. Frank Robertson was united in marriage on Wednesday evening to Miss Elsie Simpson. The ceremony was performed by Adjutant McIlhenney, of the local Salvation Army corps. The bridegroom was attended by Mr. Victor Boorman, and the bride by Miss Nellie Northcote. At the conclusion of the ceremony the party participated in a wedding dejeuner which was served in the Citadel. The band was present and rendered several selections.

Mr. and Mrs. Robertson will reside on George street.

The Funeral will be held at 1.30 o'clock Friday afternoon from the family residence, ots 1 and 2, Concession 4, Smith, to the Little Lake Cemetery. Service will be conducted at the house by the Rev. R. Pogue at 1 o'clock.

Union Life Finances In Limelight

Special Wire to The Examiner.

TORONTO, Dec. 11.—The demand as to whether or not he was either fair or frank with the British investor in the summer of 1911 was made of Mr. H. Pollman Evans, President of the defunct Union Life Insurance Company, when Mr. Masten, representative of the Federal Government, came to that point in the inquiry this forenoon, which brought out the fact that Mr. Evans had practically tripled the cost of the orchard lands on which he was trying to raise stock on the London market. This transaction was a year later than the flotation of the Union life stock and as Evans, himself, stated, was not so successful. Lands, it was shown, purchased in various part of the Province, which cost $300,000, were written up in the prospectus as valued at a million and a quarter.

POWER FROM HEALY'S FALLS

A number of companies dependent upon the Otonabee river for their power supply have been complaining of the diminishing water supply. The Peterborough Light and Power Company have evaded this difficulty by cutting in the Healy Falls transmission line. This places at the disposal of the company nearly eight thousand additional horse-power. Peterborough power consumers have also been supplied with power generated at Fenelon Falls. So that any shrinkage in the available water supply of the Otonabee river has not been felt by local power users. The company has obviated this difficulty by bringing in their surplus turbine and generator capacity.

This was the estimate compiled from reports received from the afflicted territory yesterday.

TROUBLE IN PARTY?

Was Explorer Stefansson Abandoned by Kariuk?

SPECULATION AT OTTAWA

OTTAWA, Dec. 12.—Local newspapers yesterday gave utterance to rumors which have been insistent for a few days, to the effect, that it is possible Stefansson's ship, the Kariuk, left him rather than that he left it. On Monday a despatch came from Stefansson stating that on Sept. 20, thinking the Kariuk safely winter quartered, he went ashore with three white men and three Eskimos to hunt. On Sept. 22 a storm sprang up, accompanied by fog. When the fog lifted, after two days, the Kariuk was nowhere to be seen. Stefansson then made his way to winter quarters, where he is quite safe.

Just as soon as the despatch was made public this week, men accustomed to conditions in the Arctic, of whom there are very many in Ottawa, began to voice suspicion that no great effort had been made by the ship's company of the Kariuk to find Stefansson. Now the capital is disturbed and speculation as to what really has happened is rife. Hon. J. D. Hazen, Minister of Marine and Fisheries, who sent the expedition north, said last night that he had nothing except Stefansson's own statement, and everything else was speculation.

It is evident that what has given rise to the rumors is the known fact that there has been much friction on board ship. Despatches from the north, and private letters have stated that there has been a dispute regarding authority. Stefansson has been regarded here as leader of the expedition, but it seems that others with the party have refused to recognise him as such. This was evidenced with regard to the supplies the expedition carried. These did not satisfy the majority of the men. Stefansson believes that when a man goes north he should live as the natives do and find most of his food with his gun. Some of the others did not relish the prospect of blubber food, and took in large supplies at various points in Alaska, particularly Nome. Stefansson objected to this, but he was overruled.

TO TRAIN STUDENTS

Col. Sam Hughes Seeks Funds for New Militia Scheme

LIEUT. PETERSON IN CHARGE

OTTAWA, Dec. 12.—To turn out annually three or four hundred university students throughout Canada as trained officers of the Canadian militia is the object of a scheme developed by Hon. Sam Hughes, Minister of Militia, to which there has been a generous contribution by Lord Strathcona of about $100,000, and by Major R. W. Leonard, chairman of the National Transcontinental Commission, of about half a million dollars. These two donations are to start the project at McGill and Queen's Universities, and Col. Hughes is in communication with other wealthy Canadians with the prospect of getting donations for the University of Toronto, University of New Brunswick, University of British Columbia and Laval University. Student residences, armories and parade grounds are to be erected in connection with the military training course.

Lord Strathcona's gift will not be available until the plans at McGill are completed. For Major Leonard's gift for Queen's of a site and buildings, several acres to the southwest of the campus are being secured. Dormitories, drill hall and armories with gymnastic equipment will be erected there. The whole is to be completely furnished. There will also be a large parade ground. The Militia Department will provide the drill hall and armories.

The Militia Department will also supply under certain conditions free rations for students-in-residence in the residence to be erected by Major Leonard, to provide instructural officers from the permanent corps, and to arrange for an obligatory course of lectures and examinations in military subjects in connection with the university. All students taking advantage of the residence must take the course qualifying them to be militia officers, and they must agree to become efficient members of the Canadian Officers' Training Corps after one year.

The students will be required to pay a sufficient sum each week to cover expenses of servants, heating, fuel, etc., but they will otherwise have free residence, and their board bills during university terms will thus be very considerably reduced. Privileges of residence are to be distributed as nearly equal as practicable among the different yearly classes.

Students taking the course will be required to perform at least six hours' drill or training per week, including the taking of a prescribed course of lectures on military subjects.

It is stated that the whole scheme is being put in charge of Lieut. A. Peterson, son of Principal Peterson of McGill University, under the direction of Col. the Hon. Sam Hughes, Minister of Militia, and the Headquarters Staff. Lieut. Peterson will act as secretary and director of the training system. He is a graduate of Cambridge University.

SHOT ON STREET.

South African Gold Mining Magnate Badly Wounded.

JOHANNESBURG, Union of South Africa, Dec. 12. — An attempt was made yesterday to assassinate Sir Lionel Phillips, the leading gold-mining magnate of South Africa. Three shots were fired at him.

The attempt was made while he was walking on Commissioner street.

The assailant of Sir Lionel Phillips was identified as a Dutch storekeeper of the name of Nissun, and the crime was supposed to have been actuated by revenge for the loss of a recent suit against the mining group with which Sir Lionel is connected.

One bullet pierced the lung and liver but the attending physicians are hopeful of Sir Lionel's recovery. He has suffered much from shock and pain, and no attempt has been made to remove the bullets. The wound in the neck is slight.

Suit Against 'Phone Trust.

NEW YORK, Dec. 12.—Testimony was taken here yesterday in a suit brought by the Federal Government under the Sherman anti-trust law against the American Telephone & Telegraph Co. and others, to dissolve purchases of independent competing lines in the west by the Bell system.

The principal witness was Leopold Grahame, of New York, who conducted negotiations with the bondholders' committee of the Home Telephone Co., of Puget Sound, when the banking firm of H. B. Hollins & Co., of this city, agreed to finance the company after it had gone into the hands of a receiver.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON QUESTIONS

Dec. 14, 1913.

The Sin of Achan. Josh. vii.

Golden Text—Be sure your sin will find you out. Num. xxxii.23.

(1). Verse 1—What proof is there that the evil effects of the sin of one man often makes the entire community suffer?

(2) What can you say for the justice or wisdom of the undoubted fact that the innocent suffer for the sins of the guilty as in this case?

(3). Verses 2-5—Suppose Joshua had sent up six thousand men against Ai instead of three thousand, what would have been the probable result?

(4) What was the chief cause of these three thousand men fleeing from the men of Ai?

(5.) What essential quality did they lack at this time, which they manifested in other engagements, and which was a prime necessity to success, and what was the cause of the lack?

(6.) Given a man of great ability, but lacking courage, what are the chances for his success in any undertaking which entails hardships?

(7.) Would you say that God punishes communities or countries for their sin the same as he does individuals?

(8.) Verses 6-9—In what respects was Joshua's grief commendable and his fears ungrounded?

(9. Would you say or not, and why, that all individual, or national disaster, is a result of sin?

(10) What benefit is it, when confronted with disaster, to wring our hands with grief and to bemoan our lot?

(11) What does it advantage us to lay our troubles before God?

(12) Verses 10-15 — What is the thing to do when our efforts fail and circumstances are against us?

(13) Was this defeat of Israel a natural or supernatural result of the sin of Achan?

(14) To what extent to-day does material success depend upon our being true to God's commandments?

(15) Verses 14-15 — What is God's way to-day for detecting sinners?

(16). What is the ground for the certainty of the truth of the Golden Text, "Be sure your sin will find you out"?

(17) Verses 16-18—Was this discovery by "lot" a natural or supernatural process, and would such a method be wise to-day?

(18) Verses 19-23—Was Joshua's affectionate language to Achan sincere or for the purpose only of getting him to confess?

(19) Was Achan sorry for his sin, or only sorry for having been found out, and what is the difference between the two attitudes?

(20) Verses 24-26—The penalty to Achan, no doubt, fitted the crime, according to the standard of that day, but what about burning Achan's family as well?

(21) A man commits a crime today and is sent to the penitentiary for life, leaving his wife and family in destitute circumstances; how do you justify the state in permitting the family to suffer?

PARALYZED LIMBS

To-day it is circumstances, headaches, digestive trouble, and irritability. Next thing you know some form of paralysis has developed. Mr. Alex. Hawthorne, 18 Moore Street, St. Catharines, Ont., writes: "Nervous trouble developed into paralysis of the limbs so that I became helpless. Doctors failed me, but after using two boxes of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food I resumed work, and now feel better than I did for 10 years."

ARENA IS PROMISED

Hanna and Duff to Use Influence for Guelph Fair

RED PAUL LEADS CATTLE

GUELPH, Dec. 12.—The news that in the near future a new steel and iron arena would be erected at the Provincial Winter Fair buildings at Guelph was received by the cattle and dairy exhibitors at the noonday luncheon yesterday, when C. L. Nelles, president of the Guelph Fat Stock Club, announced that Hon. W. J. Hanna, Provincial Secretary, and Hon. J. S. Duff, Minister of Agriculture for Ontario, had promised to do all in their power to have a grant of $150,000 made for this purpose.

It is hardly likely that the arena will be ready for use by next year; in fact it is impossible because of the hugeness of the proposed structure, but it is practically certain to be ready for the show in 1915.

Mr. Nelles urged the exhibitors to return again next year and put up with the inadequate accommodation, and he assured them that by 1915 the new arena would be erected.

Robert Miller of Stouffville, in speaking for the exhibitors, stated that the future of the winter fair largely depended upon increased accommodation. He hoped that this fair would become the greatest of the Dominion and even of America and of the world, but he declared that this would be impossible with the present conditions.

The greater part of the judging is now finished at the Winter Fair, and the prizes have been allotted to the winners in the various classes. The grand sweepstakes for cattle was won by Red Paul, a two-year-old grade heifer, exhibited by Adam Armstrong, Fergus. This heifer, although much smaller and lighter, beat out Rose Champion, the animal which carried off the championship at the Toronto Fat Stock Show. The swine department never was bigger or better than this year. All the classes were well filled with the best that could be bred in the province. The championship for best pair of bacon hogs at the show went to J. E. Brethour and nephew of Burford, the noted breeders of Yorkshires. Brethour and nephew annexed also the silver cup for the best pen of three bacon hogs, and won many first prizes in the general classes.

The meeting of the Cheese and Butter Makers of Western Ontario at the dairy building of the Ontario Agricultural College was one of the largest and best ever held. Several important topics were discussed, chief of which were the grading and testing of cream for creameries in order to improve the quality of western Ontario butters, which is not all that could be desired.

TO EDUCATE PEOPLE.

Presbyterians Will Let a Year Pass Before Church Union Vote.

TORONTO, Dec. 12.—Church union will not be ratified by the Presbyterian General Assembly before the meeting in June, 1915. Three lengthy sessions were held by the Presbyterian Church Union Committee at St. James' Square Church yesterday. At 10 o'clock last night the proceedings were so animated that an extension of the hour of adjournment was made. The committee, however, rose half an hour later.

While the majority of the committee were fervid for union, the arguments of the opposition sufficed to secure an agreement not to report in favor of the ratification of union at next June's meeting of the General Assembly, but to allow another year for an educational campaign in the interests of a united Presbyterian-Methodist-Congregational body to be conducted.

NO DEEDS WERE SIGNED.

And National Fruit Co. Had Only Paid $484 on Lands.

TORONTO, Dec. 12.—The investigation into the affairs of the defunct Union Life Assurance Co. was brought to a close yesterday. Mr. H. Pollman Evans, the president and general manager of the company, at the request of the Dominion Government, which instituted the inquiry at the instance of the English shareholders, was the last witness examined.

Mr. A. C. Masten, K.C., acting on behalf of the Government, asked Mr. Evans about his visit to London to sell shares in the National Land & Fruit Packing Co. This is the company in which over $500,000 has been sunk, and against which there is a mortgage of $20,000. A total of $729,000 of stock was offered, and only $150,000 sold. The Agency Land Co. had conveyed leasehold and freehold properties to the National Trust Co., but no deeds were signed said Mr. Evans.

The estimated cost of the land consisting of orchards, was some $70,000, but only $484 was actually paid, or about one-tenth of one per cent.

"All the cash, put into this land when the prospectus went to the English investor was only $484, spent in securing options?" asked Mr. Masten.

"And quite a large sum spent in pruning the trees," added Mr. Evans.

"What do you say to this statement, that the company owns 9,000 acres of orchards, who only $484 was paid on it?" asked Mr. Masten.

"The fact that there was a mortgage on it did not affect the ownership of the property."

Mr. Evans admitted that in the flotation of the National Fruit & Packing Co., in London, he had valued at £235,000 lands which in reality under the terms of purchase were only valued at £70,000. He also stated that practically all the concern had was leases of lands, with a small amount of capital.

With the consent of the official referee, Mr. Evans put in as an exhibit a statement regarding the history of the company whose failure he ascribed to exceptional circumstances and the crippling of the management at a critical period.

"That Affair Next Door"

By ANNA KATHARINE GREEN

XXVII.

Found.

I gave a low cry and rushed down the steps.

"Don't go!" I called out to the driver. "I shall want you in ten minutes." And hurrying back, I ran upstairs in a condition of mind such as I have no reason to be proud of. Happily Mr. Gryce was not there to see me.

"Gone? Miss Oliver gone?" I cried to the maid whom I found trembling in a corner of the hall.

"Yes, ma'am; it was my fault. She was in bed so quiet. I thought I might step out for a minute, but when I came back her clothes were missing and she was gone. She must have slipped out at the front door while Dan was in the back hall. I do not see how ever she could have had the strength to do it."

Nor did I. But I did not stop to reason about it; there was too much to be done. Rushing on, I entered the room I had left in such high hopes a few hours before. Emptiness was before me and I realized what it was to be baffled at the moment of success. But I did not waste an instant in inactivity. I searched the closets and pulled open the drawers; found her coat and hat gone, but not Mrs. Van Burnam's brown skirt, though the purse had been taken out of the pocket.

"Is her bag here?" I asked.

Yes, it was in its old place under the table; and on the wash-stand and bureau were the simple toilet articles I had been told she had brought there. In what haste she must have fled to leave these necessities behind her!

But the greatest shock I received was the sight of the knitting-work, with which I had so inconsiderately meddled the evening before, lying in ravelled heaps on the table, as if torn to bits in a frenzy. This was a proof that the fever was yet on her; and as I contemplated this fact I took courage, thinking that one in her condition would not be allowed to run the streets long, but would be picked up and put in some hospital.

In this hope I began my search. Miss Althorpe, who came in just as I was about to leave the house, consented to telephone to Police Headquarters a description of the girl, with a request to be notified if such a person should be found in the streets or on the docks or at any of the station-houses that night. "Not," I assured her, as we left the telephone and I prepared to say good-bye for the day, "that you need expect her to be brought back to this house, for I do not mean that she shall ever darken your doors again. So let me know if they find her, and I will relieve you of all further responsibility in the matter."

Then I started out.

To name the streets I traversed or the places I visited that day, would take more space than I would like to devote to the subject. Dusk came, and I had failed in obtaining the least clue to her whereabouts; evening followed, and still no trace of the fugitive. What was I to do? Take Mr. Gryce into my confidence after all? That would be galling to my pride, but I began to fear I should have to submit to this humiliation when I happened to think of the Chinaman. To think of him once was to think of him twice, and to think of him twice was to be conscious of an irresistible desire to visit his place and find out if any one but myself had been there to inquire after the lost one's clothes.

Accompanied by Lena, I hurried away to Third Avenue. The laundry was near Twenty-seventh Street. As we approached it I grew troubled and unaccountably expectant. When we reached it I understood my excitement and instantly became calm. For there stood Miss Oliver, gazing like one under a spell through the lighted window-panes into the narrow shop where the owner bent over his ironing. She had evidently stood there some time, for a small group of half-grown lads were watching her with every symptom of being about to break into a mischevious display of curiosity. Her hands, which were without gloves, were pressed against the glass, and her whole attitude showed an intensity of fatigue which would have laid her on the ground had she not been sustained by an equal intensity of purpose.

Sending Lena for a carriage, I approached the poor creature and drew her forcibly from the window.

"Do you want anything here?" I asked. "I will go in with you if you do."

She surveyed me with strange apathy, and yet with a certain sort of relief, too. Then she slowly shook her head.

"I don't know anything about it. My head swims and everything looks queer, but some one or something sent me to this place."

"Come in," I urged, "come in for a minute." And half supporting her, half dragging her, I managed to get her across the threshold and into the Chinaman's shop.

Immediately a dozen faces were pressed where hers had been.

The Chinaman, a stolid being, turned as he heard the little bell tinkle which announced a customer.

"Is this the lady who left the clothes here a few nights ago?" I asked.

He stopped and stared, recognising me slowly, and remembering by degrees what had passed between us at our last interview.

"You tellee me lalee die; how him lalee when lalee die?"

"The lady is not dead; I made a mistake. Is this the lady?"

"Lalee talk; I no see face, I hear speak."

"Have you seen this man before?" I inquired of my nearly insensible companion.

"I think so in a dream," she murmured, trying to recall her poor wandering wits back from some region into which they had strayed.

"Him lalee!" cried the Chinaman, overjoyed at the prospect of getting his money. "Plenty speak, I knowee him. Lalee want clo?"

"Not to-night. The lady is sick; see, she can hardly stand." And overjoyed at this seeming evidence that the police had failed to get wind of my interest in this place, I slipped a coin into the Chinaman's hand, and drew Miss Oliver away towards the carriage I now saw drawing up before the shop.

Lena's eyes when she came up to help me were a sight to see. They seemed to ask who this girl was and what I was going to do with her. I answered the look by a very brief and evidently wholly unexpected explanation.

"This is your cousin, who ran away," I remarked. "Don't you recognise her?"

Lena gave me up then and there; but she accepted my explantion and even lied in her desire to carry out my whim.

"Yes, ma'am," said she, "and glad I am to see her again." And with a deft push here and a gentle pull there she succeeded in getting the sick woman into the carriage.

The crowd, which had considerably increased by this time, was beginning to flock about us with shouts of no little derision. Escaping it as best I could, I took my seat by the poor girl's side and bade Lena give the order for home. When we left the curbstone behind, I felt that the last page in my adventures as an amateur detective had closed.

But I counted without my host. Miss Oliver, who was in an advanced stage of fever, lay like a dead weight on my shoulder during the drive down the avenue, but when we entered the Park and drew near my house, she began to show such signs of violent agitation that it was with difficulty that the united efforts of Lena and myself could prevent her from throwing herself out of the carriage door which she had somehow managed to open.

As the carriage stopped she grew worse, and though she made no further efforts to leave it, I found her present impulses even harder to contend with than the former. For now she would not be pushed out or dragged out, but crouched back moaning and struggling, her eyes fixed on the stoop, which is not unlike that of the adjoining house; till with a suddenn realization that the cause of her terror lay in her fear of re-entering the scene of her late terrifying experience, I bade the coachman drive on, and reluctantly, I own, carried her back to the house she had left in the morning.

And this is how I came to spend a second night in Miss Althorpe's hospitable mansion.

XXVIII.

Taken Aback.

One incident more and this portion of my story is at an end. My poor patient, sicker than she had been the night before, left me but little leisure for thought or action disconnected with my care for her. But towards morning she grew quieter, and finding in an open drawer those tangled threads of yarn of which I have spoken, I began to unwind them, out of a natural desire to see everything neat and orderly about me. I had nearly finished my task when I heard a strange noise from the bed. It was a sort of gurgling cry which I found hard to interpret, but which only stopped when I laid my work down again. Manifestly this sick girl had very nervous fancies.

When I went down to breakfast the next morning, I was in that complacent state of mind natural to a woman who feels that her abilities have asserted themselves and that she would soon receive a recognition of the same at the hands of the one person for whose commendation she had chiefly been working. The identification of Miss Oliver by the Chinamen was the last link in the chain connecting her with the Mrs. James Pope who had accompanied Mr. Van Burnam to his father's house in Gramercy Park, and though I would fain have had the murdered woman's rings to show, I was contented enough with the discoveries I had made to wish for the hour which would bring me face to face with the detective.

PITHY SUMMING UP.

The late Mayor Gaynor, of New York, as all the world knows from his letters, was a subtle critic, and at a luncheon at the Century Club, discussing a novelist who had begun well, but had degenarated into the lowest type of "best seller," Mayor Gaynor said:

"This scribbler's whole biography could be put into two questions and answered thus:

How did he commence writing?
With a wealth of thought.
And how has he continued?
With a thought of wealth."

Because Ronuk is a floor polish entirely different from ordinary wax or varnish. It is easier to keep polished—it is easier to keep clean.

Ronuk sinks in and fills the very pores of the wood. It forms a hard polished surface that holds its finish well. Dust sits lightly on top of it. Disease germs find no lodging place.

A little Ronuk—less than ordinary wax—puts your floors in shape: still less, once every month or six weeks cleans and polishes them. No more scrubbing.

TORONTO ONTARIO

OVER NINETY YEARS

But Canada's First Missionary Still Hale and Hearty

At a meeting of the Women's Foreign and Home Missionary Society, at Charlottetown, P.E.I., Rev. Dr. Scott Whittier of Melbourne, Australia, brought greetings from that distant city from Mrs. John Geddie, wife of Canada's first missionary, who was sent from Prince Edward Island to the New Hebrides. Mr. Whittier was surprised to learn that several Presbyterians in Eastern Canada had died through monotony. Considering Mrs. Geddie's experience and the fact that she is now over ninety years of age, her mental faculties are still wonderfully alert.

The Elephant's Bath.

The elephant enjoys a bath in the streams and pools of his native habitat, but his lordly brother in captivity finds no such comfort in the bath that from time to time is given him. A trainer thus describes the expensive operation:

It takes a week to carry out the process in every detail. It requires the services of three men and costs $300. This treatment is necessary for a show elephant and, if the animal is a valuable one, the proprietor of the show does not consider the money wasted.

The first step consists of going over the immense body with the best soap procurable; 150 pounds of soap is used, and the elephant's ears are especially attended to. When the soaping and drying are completed, the elephant is well sandpapered, and after that rubbed all over with the purest Indian oil until the mouse-gray skin is supple and glistening.

This last finishing touch is the most expensive part of the whole bath, as it means the application of about $150 worth of olive oil.

Terribly Afflicted With Lame Back.

Could Not Sweep The Floor.

When the back aches and pains it is almost impossible for women to do their housework, for every move and every turn means an ache or a pain.

Women are beginning to understand that weak, lame, and aching backs from which they suffer so much are due to wrong action of the kidneys, and should be attended to at once so as to avoid years of suffering from kidney trouble.

On the first sign of anything wrong with the back Doan's Kidney Pills should be taken.

They go right to the seat of the trouble.

Mrs. Wilfrid Jolicoeur, Nouvelle, Que., writes:—"I take pleasure in writing you stating the benefit I have received by using Doan's Kidney Pills. About three years ago I was terribly afflicted with lame back, and was so bad I could not sweep my own floor. I was advised to try Doan's Kidney Pills. I only used three boxes, and I am as well as ever. I highly recommend these pills to any sufferer from lame back or kidney trouble."

Price, 50 cents per box, or 3 boxes for $1.25, at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Toronto, Ont.

SOME SIMPLE FACTS ABOUT THE MOON

A Lesson in Astronomy About Our Nearest Neighbor in the Realms of Space

Did you ever stop to consider that every bit of light the moon furnishes us is stolen?

The moon is simply a distributing agent for the sun. And the habit of stealing light has become so firmly fixed with the moon that part of the time when it can't get all it wants from the sun it actually steals a little from the earth!

When the earth was a mass of gas and lava-like liquid whirling through space at a terrific rate, a big drop of the material of which it was made formed on one side and was thrown off into space, according to the best theories. The drop that fell off kept whirling, too, as it went off into the air. It followed the general path of the earth, only revolving a bit slower. As the earth cooled, the big drop cooled, too. And that drop became the moon we know now. It is the nearest thing in the heavens to the earth—being only 238,500 miles away.

A person can learn more about the moon by observing it through a simple pair of opera glasses than can be learned about any other heavenly body, studied in any way. A survey shows that it is completely covered with big bumps and hollows. These are great mountains and valleys. In the early days of astronomy it was believed that there were seas and lakes on the moon. This has since been disproved by closer investigation.

Of course, then, there being no water on the moon, there is no life there. That is the reason there are no changes in the surface, astronomers say, although it was believed for a long time that there were changes.

The mountains, some of which are very high, one at least reaching an altitude of 20,000 feet, are most interesting to study. More than 500 of them have been mapped by astronomers and half of these have been actually named.

Besides these mountains there are immense plains. These are mostly given the names of seas and the names are far more poetic than those of the waters of the earth. Thus we find the Sea of Tranquility, the Sea of Showers, the Sea of Serenity, and the Bay of Rainbows.

We see only half of the moon. The other half has never been seen by man. And the reason for this is that the moon moves around the earth in exactly the same time that it takes it to spin once on its axis—27 days, 7 hours, 43 minutes and 11½ seconds. As the earth turns the same way there is always just one side of the moon turned toward us.

The moon gets its light from the sun. In other words, it simply throws a reflection of the sun's light. But few persons are aware, however, that it also reflects light from the earth. There are certain times when it does, however.

You see, the entire surface of the moon is not always where the sun's light will be reflected to the earth. This is what gives it the different shapes we see. Suppose, for instance, we observe the moon in what we call the "new moon" shape. The sun, is just shining on one edge of the great moon-ball. But if we look closer we see a rather dark shape that continues the spherical outline of the whole moon. This is sometimes called the "old moon in the arms of the new moon."

But that darker reflection, scientists declare, is really the reflection of the earth's light on the moon. Or rather a reflection of the sun's light reflected from the earth. This is of course, not so bright as the direct reflection of the sun on the moon itself.

The most important influence of the moon on the earth is in the action of the tides. This is caused by gravitation and is the force or pull exerted by the rotation of the moon on the water on the surface of the earth. Both the sun and the moon pull the water up as they near the earth. And the fact that the two are pulling sometimes together and sometimes in opposite directions, is what makes the higher tides—the spring tides—and the lower [illegible] neap tides.

Clay in Concrete

Although the effect of clay on the strength of concrete is not definitely known, its presence is presumed by most engineers to be an element of weakness.

This Beautiful Hair

Is like what you want your hair to be—

Lustrous, bright and glossy; soft, silky and wavy.

To have beautiful hair like this, use

HARMONY HAIR BEAUTIFIER

It's just what its name implies—just to make the hair glossy, and lustrous, and more beautiful—just to make it easier to dress, and more natural to fall easily and gracefully into the wavy lines and folds of the coiffure, just to give that delightful fresh and cool effect, and leave a lingering, delicate, elusive perfume.

Will not change or darken the color of the hair. Contains no oil; therefore, cannot leave the hair sticky or stringy.

Very pleasant to use, very easy to apply—simply sprinkle a little on your hair each time before brushing it.

To thoroughly clean your hair and scalp, use

Harmony Shampoo

A liquid shampoo to keep the hair clean, soft, smooth and beautiful. It gives an instantaneous rich, foaming lather, penetrating to every part of the hair and scalp. It is washed off just as quickly, the entire operation taking only a few moments.

It leaves no lumps or stickiness.
—Just a refreshing sense of cool, sweet cleanliness.
—Just a dainty, pleasant and clean fragrance.

Both in odd-shaped ornamental bottles, with sprinkler tops.

GUARDS FOR CHILDREN

Hindoo Mothers Often Put Babies in Elephants' Charge

In India it is not an uncommon thing for the children of a mahout—the keeper of one or more elephant—to be cared for by his animals. Instances are not wanting, says Harper's Weekly, of a mother's systematic placing of her baby in an elephant care and [illegible] reach of its trunk while the mother herself goes to fetch water or to get wood or materials to cook the family meal.

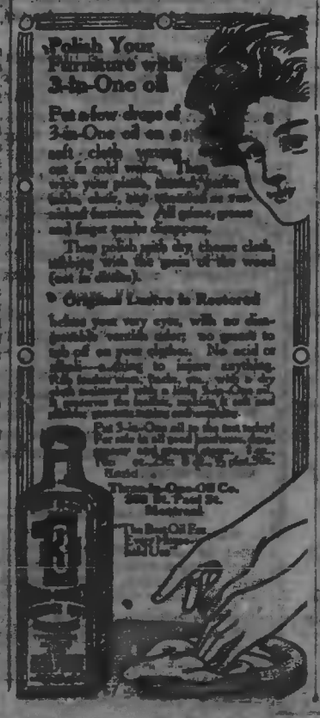
It is pointed out that no jackal or wolf would be likely to pick up and carry off a baby which was thus confined to the [illegible] an elephant. Most people who have lived in the jungle know how very possible it is for an animal of the first class to carry off a baby when it is lying in a hut or when the mother is unprovided with means to fight the marauder.

Children brought up in the companionship of an elephant become ridiculously familiar with the big pachyderm and take all manner of liberties with him, liberties which the elephant seems to endure on the principle that they do not annoy him while they amuse the child.

One may see, it is averred, a little native child, quite naked, about two feet high, standing on an elephant's bare back and taking it down to the water to bathe, vociferating all the while in most unbecoming terms of native abuse.

On arriving at the water the elephant, ostensibly in obedience to the child's command, lies down and enjoys himself leaving just a portion of his body, like a small island, above the water. Upon this part of the elephant the child will stand and shout, yelling all the more if he has several companions of his own age also in charge of elephants, all wallowing in the water around him. If the child should slip off his island the elephant's trunk immediately replaced him in safety.

These urchins, when they grow up become assistants to the mahouts, and in time eventually attain the dignity of becoming mahouts themselves.



Thought It Was a Wild Cat

A real live porcupine visited the town of Truro, N.S., and promenaded along Victoria Square. He met one of the natives of Truro who not being on familiar terms with the porcupine species mistook the animal for a wild cat and when the "fretful" Porcy began to ruffle his bristles to stand up, took it as a challenge to battle and began to rain stones on his antagonist with the result that he knocked it out for a time and during that time slipped a cord about its hind leg and walked developments. When the porcupine revived its captor led it out onto the square and proudly exhibited it declaring that he had captured a wild cat.

Canada's Insurance Departments

There are five provincial insurance departments in Canada, one each in Ontario, Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Alberta and British Columbia. These departments are administered by a superintendent, inspector or commissioner, who has under his care all insurance matters arising in the province, while every insurance company doing business there must report to him regarding their movements and business in the province. Alberta, which passed an insurance act very similar to that of Manitoba, was the latest to inaugurate such a department.

NEW CONVENIENT TRAIN TO WINNIPEG. CANADIAN PACIFIC

The popularity of Canadian Pacific service, and the excellence of that road's equipment, has been so greatly appreciated by the travelling public that it has been found necessary to put into service an entirely new Through Standard Express Train between Toronto and Winnipeg.

Commencing Sunday, October 26th, the "Gate City Express" will leave Toronto at 2.30 p.m., and will run daily thereafter, arriving Winnipeg at 8.25 a.m. second morning. The train will consist of the highest-class modern equipment; Observation Compartment Car, Standard Sleeping Cars, Tourist Sleeping Car, Dining Car, First-class Coach and Colonist Car. This will be found the most convenient and best train between Toronto and Winnipeg on account of the daylight departure from Toronto at an hour when the Union Station is not badly congested, and also on account of the early hour of arrival at Winnipeg.

The present "Vancouver Express" will continue to leave Toronto at 10.20 p.m. daily and will consist of the same equipment as the "Gate City Express." This train is the best to take for points west of Winnipeg, but for Winnipeg and east the "Gate City Express" is the right train to travel by.

HOW TO AVOID COLD WEATHER DISEASES

To prevent cold weather diseases, put your body into a proper healthy condition to successfully resist them. Colds, grippe, bronchitis, pneumonia, catarrh, typhoid fever, rheumatism and other ailments may be escaped in most cases, if this is done. Build up your health and strength—your nerves and blood and entire body—into such shape that you can count on good health all during the winter months—by taking Rexall Olive Oil Emulsion, the ideal blood, nerve and body builder.

This is a remarkable medicine, but a common-sense one. It doesn't stimulate. So-called "tonics" that stimulate give you no permanent relief; but leave you worse off than before. Rexall Olive Oil Emulsion contains none of these harmful, stimulating ingredients, such as alcohol and dangerous and habit-forming drugs. Its great benefit to you is through its real nerve and blood and body-building effects. It nourishes, builds, strengthens. Its merit does not rest on making you feel better for a few minutes at a time after taking it, but on making you feel better as a result of making you well.

Rexall Olive Oil Emulsion is the ideal blood and nerve-food tonic. You who are weak and run-down, and you who are apparently well now, but are liable to suffer from various cold weather ailments, use Rexall Olive Oil Emulsion to get and keep well and strong. For the tired-out, run-down, nervous, emaciated or debilitated—the convalescing—growing children—aged people—it is a sensible aid to renewed strength, better spirits, glowing health.

Rexall Olive Oil Emulsion—king of the celebrated Rexall Remedies—is for freedom from sickness of you and your family. You'll be as enthusiastic about it as we are when you have noted its pleasant taste, its strengthening, invigorating, building-up, disease-preventing effects. If it does not help you, your money will be given back to you without argument. Sold in this community only at our store—The Rexall Store—one of more than 7,000 leading drug stores in the United States, Canada and Great Britain —McDermid & Jury, E. L. Payne, Peterborough, Ont.

GUARDING THE FORESTS

Dominion Government Tells Campers How to Build Fires

The regulations relating to the preservation of Dominion forest reserves are very stringent but probably necessary to prevent a big annual fire loss. In regard to the lighting of fires, it is provided that every person who makes or starts a fire in the open air for cooking or camping purposes shall: (a) Select a bare rock whereon to kindle such a fire wherever possible, and if there be no bare rock in the neighborhood, then a site on which there is the smallest quantity of vegetable matter, dead trees, branches, brushwood, dry leaves or resinous trees. (b) Clear the place in which he is about to light the fire by removing all vegetable matter, etc., from the soil within a radius of ten feet from the fire. (c) Exercise and observe every possible precaution to prevent such fire from spreading, and carefully extinguish the same before quitting the place. Severe penalties are provided for neglect of proper observation of these regulations.

GOT RID OF BRONCHITIS

The worst feature of bronchitis is the tendency to return year after year until the system is worn out and gives way to consumption, or other disease.

Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine owes much of its great popularity to the fact that it positively cures bronchitis, and this is about as severe a test as can be made of a medicine of this kind.

Mr. W. H. Walker, Calmar, Alta., writes: "I am pleased to say that Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine has done much good to myself, wife and children. My eldest girl, seven years, had bronchitis, and the doctor who attended her did not seem to do much good. We got Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine for her, and she soon got well. We always keep this medicine in the house now ready for use, and find that it soon cures coughs and colds."

In fighting diseases of the throat and lungs half the battle is in having Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine at hand to be used promptly. This is why many people prefer to buy the large family size bottle.

SERMONS---LONG OR SHORT

The question of the ideal length of a sermon is one on which different people, according perhaps to their religious proclivities, have divers opinions; but if the preference of Royalty may be taken as a standard the favorite time appears to be in the region of twenty minutes.

Queen Victoria's objection to long sermons may be understood by the fact that in 1867 she presented a pulpit glass to the Chapel Royal, Savoy, and it was timed for exactly eighteen minutes. The preacher who wished to find favor with Her Majesty, therefore, always took the hint and watched the glass carefully.

King Edward declared for even greater brevity. In the arrangements for his Coronation the sermon by the Bishop of London was allotted five minutes.

Napoleon III. strictly limited preachers before him to a quarter of an hour, and if they exceeded it an officer of the Imperial Household stepped to the pulpit and stopped the discourse.

Charles II. apparently enjoyed long sermons, and on one occasion slept so soundly under the ministrations of Ken that, on awakening greatly refreshed, he exclaimed, "Splendid, splendid! This man must have a Bishopric," and gave him Bath and Wells when it fell vacant.

A certain judge, when asked by a Sheriff's chaplain what was the proper length for a sermon, replied, "Well, twenty minutes, with a leaning to the side of mercy." This judicial opinion, having the advantage of Royal approval, seems, therefore, to suggest the recognised standard for the duration of sermons.

Speedy Start for Canada

Thirty seconds was the time occupied by the Birmingham magistrates in hearing a case. A man was charged with being drunk, but it was explained that he had taken his passage to Canada, and had only ten minutes in which to catch his train for Liverpool. In a shade less than half a minute the prisoner had been fined, had paid the money, and had left the court room at a run.

NOT PENETRATED BY SOUND

Utrecht Possesses a Room That is Noise-proof

Utrecht, in Holland, is said to possess the only really noise-proof room in the world. For an absolutely noise-proof room it is essential that not only shall no sound penetrate it from without, but also that it shall resist sound propagation, reflection and refraction within. The Dutch room was constructed on this theory by Professor Zwaardemaker.

The walls of this scientist's room consist of six layers, alternately of wood, cork and sand. There are spaces between the second and third layers and between the fourth and fifth layers wherefrom the air has been taken. The inner walls are of porous stone covered with a kind of horsehair cloth, a Belgian invention that is sound-resisting and widely used in Belgium in telephone booths. The walls are pierced by acoustically-isolated leaden rods.

The roof is composed of layers of lead, wood, asphalt paper, sea-grass and cork. The floor is of marble and is covered with a thickly woven Smyrna carpet. The room is for clinical studies only.

RISING COST OF LIVING

Canada Leads the World According to British Figures

A report of the inquiry instituted by the British Government into the cost of living of the working classes, in addition to dealing with conditions at home, contained some comparisons of prices in foreign countries and the Overseas Dominions.

The compilers of the report admitted that they had difficulty in bringing together diverse figures and values from all parts of the Empire into a general comparison. Their conclusions, however, if not absolutely reliable, are none the less interesting.

The chief feature of the report was the evidence that the rise in prices is world wide. The rise has been greater in foreign countries, with the exception of France, than in Great Britain. The greatest rise has been in Canada, Austria-Hungary, the United States and Japan. Since 1900 the rise in Austria-Hungary has been 35 per cent.; Belgium, 32 per cent.; Germany, 30 per cent.; Italy, 20 per cent. In the same period the British and French rise has been only 10 per cent. Canada easily topped the list with a rise of 51 per cent. Australia and New Zealand showed comparative by modest rises of 16 per cent.

FAMILIAR PHRASES AND THEIR ORIGIN

"Eating humble pie" is a phrase which really arose from the corruption of the word "umbles" or "numbles," the coarser parts of a deer killed in hunting, which when made into a pie were formerly reserved for the lower hunt servants, while "cooking his goose" is a phrase which originated when the King of Sweden, on approach a hostile town, excited the contempt of the inhabitants by the smallness of his army. To express this they hung out a goose for him to shoot at, whereupon the King set fire to the town to "cook their goose."

Long ago unscrupulous people used to take a cat in a bag to market, where they tried to sell it for a pig. If, however, a purchaser opened the bag before buying, the cat, of course, jumped out, displaying the fraud. Hence the term "Letting the cat out of the bag."

"Going to the dogs" comes from the East, where dogs are scavengers of the streets, and become so unclean as to be unfit to touch; while the expression, "Tell it to the marines," used to show disbelief in the truth of a story, arose from the fact that when the marines first went afloat they were naturally rather "green" concerning nautical affairs, and someone who related a very tall yarn was told to "tell it to the marines," the idea being that they could be more easily gulled.

It is a curious fact that the phrase "Bald as a badger," owes its origin to authors of the past who had no exact knowledge of natural history, and who, because the forehead of a badger is covered with smooth, white hairs, came to the conclusion that it was bald.

Years ago a theatrical manager of the bogus type had in his company an actor whose strong point was the ghost in "Hamlet." If his salary was not forthcoming on Saturday, this actor would exclaim, "Then the ghost won't walk to-night," a phrase which is still used by actors on payday, and which provides a striking illustration of how a casual remark becomes a common saying.

This Woman Saw Life

Mrs. Henry Vaughan, wife of a farmer living near Fort Coulonge, had never ridden on a train, had not seen a city for 40 years, and had never seen an electric car till she made a visit to Ottawa recently. On her way to the Capital she rode for the first time on a railway train, and upon arriving at her destination had her first trolley ride. Later in the day a friend took her for a spin in an automobile, and —wonder of wonders—before her return home she saw an airship flight.

How to Test Tea's Purity.

A remarkably simple method of testing the purity of tea for coloring matter is to use an ordinary table knife and a sheet of white paper upon which a small quantity of the tea to be tested is placed. The tea is then rubbed sharply with the knife. When the leaves have been reduced to powder the paper is dusted clean with a brush made of common bristles and its surface examined with the naked eye or a microscope. If the tea is artificially colored little spots or streaks of vivid green or blue will appear on the face of the paper. Those stains are so distinct in their coloring that they cannot possibly be confused with any other stain that may be in the paper.

Old, But a Good Walker.

In 1851 an old Cornish fishwife of eighty-four named Mary Gallinack walked from Penzance to London to see the great exhibition in Hyde Park. The distance is nearly 300 miles. The old lady created a sensation and was noticed by Queen Victoria. She had vowed to call on the lord mayor before returning, and she carried out her intention, but of course was not permitted to walk back home.

A Lightless Lighthouse.

On Arnish Rock, Stornoway Bay, is a lighthouse without a light. Instead, it has a mirror which reflects a ray of light brown upon it from a lighthouse on the Island of Lewis, over 500 feet away.

TOMATO RAGOUT. Take eight ounces of cuttings from skin of beef, and stew them gently for two hours in a little water, sufficient to cover them. Now add two ounces of Edwards' desiccated Tomato Soup, and one-and-a-half pints of water, a shred onion and a small carrot, bit of turnip, and a sprinkling of mace, pepper and salt, and boil the whole for thirty minutes. Pour into a dish, and garnish with toast sippets.

ANNIE LAURIE'S HOME.

It Was Located in Cairn Valley, Dumfriesshire.

Moniaive, so pleasantly situated at the head of the Cairn Valley, in Dumfriesshire, has many interesting associations, but none more generally interesting than those inherited through "Bonnie Annie Laurie," writes a Scottish correspondent. It was in Maxwelton House, to the south of the village that "the most beautiful Dumfriesshire lady of the day," as McDowall wrote in his history of the county, and the heroine of a song which has rendered her charms immortal, was born in the year 1682. It is perhaps more exact to say that Annie Laurie is celebrated in two songs. The modern and most familiar version was the work of Lady John Scott, of Spottiswoode, Berwickshire, who died not long ago.

CAN READ CONTENTS OF SEALED LETTERS

LONDON, Dec. 10.—The possibility of reading the contents of documents enclosed in sealed envelopes has been established by the well-known scientist, Dr. F. Hall-Edwards, who has ben experimenting with the method of using E-Ray recently discovered by a German scientist, by which radiographs on very thin substances such as paper, a leaf, or an insect's body were secured.

Briefly, thediscovery is that by using what is known as "low tubes" giving out "soft"n rays in certai ways, these thin substances through which the rays formerly passed without securing any impression can now be radiographed.

Dr. Hall-Edwards wrote a few lines on an ordinary sheet of paper with ordinary ink, and without folding it placed it in an envelope. He sealed it and then took a radiograph. On the negative it was easily possible to read the words inscribed on the sheet of paper. So admirably defined were all the details that even the gum on the envelope and the edges of the sheet of paper inside the envelope could be distinguished.

Dr. Hall-Edwards has a couple of negatives of this sort, and as far as he knows they are the first ever secured. In his opinion it will be possible to radiograph any letter written with ink having a metal basis. He believes that it would not be impossible to secure such radiographs even through an iron covering.

Among his display of what was formerly beyond the reach of scientific work in which the rays—photographs of such details as the internal structure of flowers, the arrangement of seeds in a pod, and the delicate lines of leaf formation. By viewing the object stereoscopically it was possible to see every detail standing out in relief.

It is pointed out that such radiographs will be of great assistance to botanists. Entomologists will find the method of even greater value, for it is now possible to radiograph insections. The necessity for dissection will be largely done away with when the internal structure of insections has to be examined.

VOTE FOR

W. BULLER

The People's Candidate

For MAYOR For 1914

GILLESPIE for MAYOR

To the Electors of the City of Peterboro:

Ladies and Gentlemen—At the urgent solicitation of many of my business and personal friends, I have consented to become a candidate for the position of Mayor of your City, and respectfully solicit your votes and influence.

As in the past, I shall not make any rash promises to gain the vote of any elector, but, if elected, my attitude on every question will be to stand firm for the best interests of our Progressive City.

Having been interested in Peterborough all my life, and one of your Aldermen for five years, I may fairly claim to be in close touch with every section and every interest of the Municipality, and familiar with its needs and ambitions.

I believe that in all respects the will of the people should prevail; that a vigorous but economical administration is the best administration, and that if your Chief Magistrate is able to devote a fair proportion of his time to his civic duties, it will not be to your disadvantage if he brings with him the experience and energy he displays in the conduct of a large and successful business of his own.

If my success in the Council during the past five years has in the main met with your approval, I shall esteem it an honour to have your further approval and support in the coming contest.

Yours respectfully,

G. A. GILLESPIE

UPSETTING THE SALT CUP.

In some parts of the world, particularly in Germany, it is still believed that the upsetting of the saltcellar is the direct act of Satan — "the peace disturber." And the habit of trying to avert any catastrophe which may happen by tossing a little of the salt over the shoulder is due to the blief that by so doing one hits the invisible Satan in the eye, which temporarily, at least, prevents his doing further mischief.

SHE WAS SURPRISED

When Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills Cured her Chronic Liver Complaint

Mrs. R. Smith, of Winnipeg, Man., tells an interesting story of relief from almost intolerable sufferings:

"I can hardly tell you how great my sufferings have been. Chronic liver complaint accompanied by biliousness were a daily source of trial to me. Every day I experienced the sickening effects of these ailments. I longed for some medicine that should permanently drive them away.

Hearing of Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills, I thought they were worthy of a trial. My surprise was indeed great. From the very first I experienced relief. Continuing with them I found my troubles were slowly but surely leaving me, and before long I once more knew what it was to be free from the harassing effects of the ailments that had long sickened and weakened me. So great is my faith in Dr. Morse's Indian Pills that I shall never on any account be without them."

ONE DEAD AND ANOTHER DYING AS RESULT OF MERCURY TABLETS

ROCHESTER, N.Y., Dec. 10.—Following the example of Mrs. Florence Grandfield Hunt, who gave the name of her half sister, Virginia Sterling, to the authorities, and who took bichloride of mercury, at the corner of Main Street and North Street, two weeks ago Saturday evening, but has recovered, two more women tried to end their lives by the same route. One was successful while the other lies in Homeopathic Hospital in a critical condition.

Miss Louise Darweld, aged 31 years, a waitress, living at 166 Gibbs Street, walked into the porch at 40 Gibbs Street the other evening at about 7 o'clock and announced that she had taken three bi-chloride of mercury tablets. She was brought into the hallway and a call sent for the Homeopathic Hospital ambulance. She was rushed there and later it was reported that her condition was very serious. Miss Darweld came to Rochester from Buffalo, where she was employed in the Hotel LaFayette. Since being in Rochester she has been engaged as a waitress in several restaurants, the last being Sabin's restaurant in Franklin Street, near Main Street East. At that place they spoke very highly of the young woman.

The only explanation that could be given for Miss Darweld's strange act was that she is afflicted with a nervous trouble, and that lately she has been in a worse physical condition than usual. She told the hospital authorities that she was simply tired of living. There is grave doubts if she will live.

Like Mrs. Hunt, Miss Darweld gave several names before the right one was found. She said her name was Donnel and at first she refused to tell where she worked. The same nervous trouble afflicted both women and both gave as a reason for taking poison that they were tired of living. It is doubtful if Miss Darweld will be as fortunate in recovering as was Mrs. Hunt. The latter left Homeopathic Hospital in company with a relative and will go to Montpelier, Vt. Her experience with the poison has left Mrs. Hunt even more nervous that before.

Married but three weeks, and unhappy, Mrs. Carrie Hethier, of 69 Marshal Street, took three tablets of bichloride of mercury and died at her home as a result of the poison. Coroner Thomas A. Killip is investigating the case and ordered the body removed to the Public Morgue where an autopsy will be performed.

Mr. and Mrs. Hethier had returned from a short honeymoon and were visiting friends at 421 Exchange Street. She denied at the time that she had taken poison, but when Dr. Floyd S. Winslow, of 410 Plymouth Avenue, was called, he found that she was suffering from the effects of mercury. Her husband is Charles Hethier and it is said that the wife was jealous of her husband, and that this was the reason for her rash deed. She was 35 years of age.

A BAG OF MONARCH FLOUR

Among the staple good things for the Christmas dinner or, for any other day's dinner, for that matter—none can outclass good bread and pastry. Made right and made light, they "take the cake."

Good old Saint Nick knows good flour when he sees it, as well as most housewives, and he has decreed that a bag of "Monarch" flour, is one of the very best Christmas gifts in his mysterious cornicopia. Who among all our friends would not appreciate such a sensible token of good will? Bags of Monarch flour will do more good to hundreds of families this season than a barnful of toys and trinkets. SOME USEFUL RECIPES

Mackerel With Tomatoes.

One medium-sized mackerel, one pound skinned tomatoes, one wineglass sherry wine, two heaping tablespoons butter, one slice onion, salt and pepper, one cup stock, one teaspoon powdered herbs, half cup of bread crumbs, one tablespoon of chopped parsley, juice of half a lemon.

Cook Macherel in oven with stock, sherry, herbs, lemon juice and onion; cover with a buttered paper. When cooked, remove the skin, split the fish open and remove the bones. Butter a baking dish, lay in a layer of sliced tomatoes, a little salt and pepper, then a layer of fish and some tiny pieces of butter; repeat until fish is used up, putting a layer of sliced tomatoes on the top. Pour over the stock in which the fish was cooked, cover with bread crumbs and some small pieces of butter; cook in moderate oven 20 minutes; sprinkle parsley over the top and serve at once.

BARREN PALESTINE.

Its Forests Are Gone and the Jordan is Now a Feeble Stream.

One of the most remarkable illustrations in all history of the ill effects of the disappearance of forests may be observed in Palestine. In the days when Joshua conquered the promised land Palestine was a wonderfully fertile country, a land flowing with milk and honey. The Lebanon mountains were heavily wooded, and a large population was supported in comfort.

The general devastation of the forests brought about, however, a gradual deterioration of the country. The hills of Galilee, which had long served as pasture lands for large herds of cattle and sheep, are now sterile. The Jordan has become an insignificant stream, and several smaller rivers are now completely dried up throughout the greater part of the year. Some few valleys in which fertile earth washed down from the hills has been deposited have retained their old fertility. The land today supports only one-sixth the population of the time of Solomon.—Christian Herald.

To Announce Engagement.

NERVES ARE SORE AND PAINFUL

Neuritis, or inflammation of the nerves, is the most painful of nervous ailments. You may feel the soreness or tenderness throughout the body, or it may be confined to certain nerves. In the head it is called neuralgia; in the hips and legs, sciatica; in the face, tic doloreux, and in the chest, intercostal neuralgia.

The application of dry heat affords relief from the lance-like pains, but the essential thing is to build up the exhausted nervous system by the persistent use of such a restorative as Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. You will have other symptoms to warn you of the depleted condition of the nervous system, and this is your opportunity to restore to the body the energy and vigour of health.

While this great food cure is instilling new vitality into the starved nerve cells it is also forming new, firm flesh and tissue, and, by noting your increase in weight, you can prove beyond doubt the benefit being obtained by its use. This is Nature's way of curing diseases of the nerves, and it is the only way to obtain lasting benefit.

Table Manners in the Old Days.

Modern table manners compare favorably with those of the past. Mrs. Hannah Woolley, author of "The Gentlewoman's Companion," the standard seventeenth century book on etiquette, found it necessary thus to warn the readers: "Gentlewomen, disorder not by any ravenous gesture your angry appetite nor tie your eyes too greedily on the meat before you, as if you would devour more that way than your throat would swallow. . . . In carving avoid clapping your fingers in your mouth and licking them after you have burned them. Close your lips when you eat and do not smack like a pig. Fill not both mouth so full that your cheeks stuff out like a pair of Scotch bagpipes. It is very uncomely to drink so large a draft that your breath is almost gone and you are forced to blow strongly to recover yourself."

Invention For Afflicted.

Mrs. Ella Cook Bennett, born deaf, dumb and blind, has invented a method of communication. She wears a glove with the letters of the alphabet on it in indelible ink. Once a person knows the location of the letters it is easy to converse with Mrs. Bennett.

PERT PARAGRAPHS.

MOST any coward will fight if there is a wall behind him so he can't run.

When a woman wants a new hat a paper bag of candy won't do her instead.

It is easy enough to please people if you first know what they want and then give it to them just as they want it.

It is a good thing to make hay while the haying is good.

Removing ourselves from the scene of immediate action is sometimes our very best stunt.

Getting into a place that he is too small to fill sometimes pinches a man.

The Real Arbiter.

It does not matter very much
Just how the platform tries to please,
Nor yet the words the candidate
In torrents tosses on the breeze.
The only thing you want to know
To make the matter wholly plain
Is what philanthropist or trust
Finances largely the campaign.

Words that are hot enough to burn
Are often in the platform writ,
And, swearing he will swear by them,
The candidate may throw a fit.
But when it comes to living up
To promises so loud and strong,
It all depends on how it will Assist the paying ones along.

In statesmanship the candidate
May take a just and honest pride,
And he might live to make it a mark
Were there no jokers on the side,
But he must always keep in mind
The friends who furnished funds to float
Into the harbor right side up
The slothful and the doubtful vote.

So, neatly hobbled in advance,
He takes the legislator's chair,
And if he does not understand
Some others know why he is there.
And so he boosts some doubtful things
And some well meaning measure kills,
He loves his country, yes, indeed,
But, oh, you man who paid the bills!

LAND OF MIRAGES

Death Valley and Its Treacherous Lures of Beauty.

WORK OF A GOOD SAMARITAN.

Beck, the Prospector, Who Has Made the Desert Bloom With Guideposts Pointing the Way to Water and Saved Many Men From Death.

In the American Magazine is an article about Lew Wentzell Beck, who is known as the "good Samaritan of Death valley." He and his dog, Rufus, have saved many prospectors from a horrible death by making the desert blossom with guideposts showing the way to water. The following is an extract from the article:

"Time was when Beck was a plain prospector in the Cripple Creek country. He was in on the diggings at Leadville, and he penned ledges in Montana and Nevada. Likewise he crossed into the Big Horn at the time of the mineral strike there, but he never struck a lead that made him rich.

"Eventually he drifted down through Nevada and into Death valley, chasing rainbows. Wild rumors about 'Death Valley' Scotty's big find in that section electrified the country, and scores of prospectors rushed into the desert, expecting to make their fortune in a few days. Beck was among those present.

"There were several in Beck's party. They hiked many miles through the mirage land, finding nothing worth while and worrying constantly lest they exhaust their supply of water. For two days they sought water holes, and when out of water they went for hours with tongues swollen and lips parched from want of moisture. Then when death seemed inevitable they suddenly discovered a tiny stream trickling out of a canyon at the base of the Panamint mountains.

"When Beck returned to civilization he was a changed man. He had seen sands that were strewn with skulls, and that night had put a big idea into his head.

"Came spring, and Beck made another trip through Death valley. At his side was a Newfoundland dog. The prospector carried a bundle of tin strips. They were signboards to guide the wanderers' steps aright.

"Each summer since then the prospector and his dog have made a journey to the land of the purple mist, piling up rocks and attaching signs to them, searching for lost travelers and incidentally keeping a lookout for a piece of precious metal. Once or twice Rufus has led his master to prospectors who, after long suffering from thirst, had fallen upon the burning sands to die.

"Still signboarding the desert Beck has saved a number of thirst mad rainbow chasers and has also in remote districts stumbled upon the bleaching bones of dead men who may have found fortunes in the silver sulphuret district, but who did not live to tell the world about it. At one time he assisted at the burial of four men who died of thirst within two miles of a spring.

"The country that Beck traverses is the most arid section of the American continent—a dreary stretch of hundreds of miles of desert, dotted here and there with foothills, buttes, dry creek beds, chaparral, prickly pear and sagebrush. Springs are miles upon miles apart. Most of them are bitterly alkali, and some are poison.

"On an ordinary summer afternoon the thermometer runs up to about 134 degrees in the shade out in Death valley, and the most unpleasant thing about it is that there is a dearth of shade. When man ventured out upon this trackless expanse the shimmering heat daxes him, the scarcity of water cramps him, and the mirage—treacherous, lying thing of beauty that it is—looms over before him, flashing upon the canvas of his mind's eye a verdant valley, gorgeously green with growing things, fresh with flowers, wet with water and waiting to welcome him.

"He can see grassy hill slopes just ahead, and the mirrored lake appears to lie just beyond some bulrushing meadow. He follows on and on and afterward drains the last drop from his canteen. Then his throat becomes parched, his tongue cleaves to the roof of his mouth, and strange things pass before his eyes. The buzzards begin to soar over him, and the coyotes sit upon their haunches and watch him chase rainbows until he pitches forward upon his face and closes his eyes upon a world that is too mysterious and merciless for him to linger in longer."

Humanizing Houses.

Houses are curious things. We take a morsel of climatable space and wall it in and roof it over. Suddenly it ceases to be part of God's out of doors and becomes an entity with an atmosphere of its own. We warm it with our fires, we animate it with our affections, we furnish it with such things as seem good in our eyes. We do this to get shelter for our bodies, but we acquire at well an instrument for our spirits that reacts on us in its turn.

In other words, as we live our way into a house, adapting it to our need, the bricks and mortar, the paint and plaster, cease to be inert matter and become alive. Superficial sociologists have taunted women with being "more anabolic or plantlike" than man, but I count it her second glory. The plant is an organism that "slowly turns lifeless into living matter," and this is the thing that woman has done from the beginning with her shelter. In our houses we achieve almost an organic symbiosis—about very calves.—Cornelia A. P. Comer in Atlantic.

A PATHETIC STORY.

Call From the Pacific That Was Heard in the Gulf of Mexico.

It was "eight bells" on a ship lying at anchor down in the gulf of Mexico. The men had retired for the night to their bunks and hammocks, and his wireless operator, alone in his watchfulness, was "listening in" at the head phones.

Suddenly, out of the pitchy darkness of the sea, a message that curdled the blood in his veins leaped down the antenna and throbbed its fearful contents. "S. O. S.—S. O. S.—S. O. S." And a few minutes later, in response to the customary reply, "What is your position?" the answer flashed back, "125 degrees 27 minutes 32 seconds west, 47 degrees 33 minutes 10 seconds north.

That meant that out on the Pacific ocean 140 miles west of Seattle, Wash. —2,500 miles away—a vessel was calling for help.

The called the Pacific! The operator hardly believed it. With tremulous fingers he adjusted the dial to the station nearest the sound in distress. But already the wireless watchers along the western coast had caught the message, and from one to the other Clear across the entire North American continent, over land and sea and mountain ranges, the ship's cry had been heard.—World's Work.

A New Book Marker.

A welcome little gift to a man or a woman of any age—provided that it is a person having the reading habit—is the newest thing in book markers. This is simply a double eight inch long and two inch wide strip of pin seal, morocco or alligator leather bordered along the side edges with heavy cochise stitching and at the ends with a two inch cut fringe of matching pelt. On both the flat sides of the strap in letters of gold, silver, or ebony is the legend, "Here I Stopped."

Solar Physics Laboratory.

A solar physics laboratory is to be erected in New Zealand, at Nelson. The site will probably be on a summit known as The Fringe, which has an elevation of 2,500 feet above sea level.

THE BURDENS OF AGE

The kidneys seem to be about the first organs to wear out and fail to properly perform their work. The result is weak, lame backs, rheumatic aches and pains, failing eyesight. Many people in advanced years have restored health and comfort by using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. They assure the healthful action of liver, kidneys and bowels.

THE FIFTEENTH OF APRIL.

Duncan Campbell Scott.

Pallid saffron glows the broken
Stubble,
Brimmed with silver lie the ruts,
Purple the sickened hill;
Down a sluice with break and bubble
Hollow falls the rills
Falls and spreads and searched
Where, beyond the wood,
Starts a group of silver birches,
Bursting into blood.

Under Vesper sings the vesper sparrow,
Down a track of gray gold
Floats the slender moon;
Ringing from the rounded barrow
[illegible] sung;
Like the [illegible]-bird!
Quavering silver-strong
From the field, a bluebird's chorale
Shakes the crowkling song.

Now the dews sounds begin to dwindle,
Dimmer grow the burnished rills.
Breezes creep and halt.
Soon the guardian night shall kindle
In the violet vault,
All the twinkling tapers
Touched with steady gold,
Burning through the lawny vapors
Where they float and fold.

If Hair Is Turning Grey, Use Sage Tea

Here's Grandmother's Receipe to Darken and Beautify Faded Hair

The beautiful, even shade of dark, glossy hair can only be had by brewing a mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Your hair is your charm. It makes or mars the face. When it fades, turns grey, streaked and looks dry, wispy and scraggly, just an application or two of Sage and Sulphur enhances its appearance a hundredfold.

Don't bother to prepare the tonic you can get from any drug store a 50-cent bottle of "Wyeth' Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy," ready to use. This can always be depended upon to bring back the natural colour, thickness and lustre of your hair and remove dandruff, stop itching and falling hair.

Everybody uses "Wyeth's" Sage and Sulphur because it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied. You simply dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through the hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the grey hair has disappeared, and after another application it becomes beautifully dark and appears glossy, lustrous and abundant.

Confessed Their Poverty.

Among all the relics that changed ownership in a Browning sale in London the only things that could bear the name of jewelry were the husband's, not the wife's — a ring or two, sleeve links, studs and such trifles. Mrs. Browning probably never owned a jewel—a little cheap gold brooch, but nothing more. She did not live to share her husband's better prosperity, and her own habits as maid and wife were frugal. A passage in the letters records the misgivings of the lovers, each of whom supposed the other to be accustomed to some degree of luxury. At last Browning had the courage to tell Elizabeth that he was extremely poor, and she, delighted, told him that the whole dress she was wearing cost something very small in shillings.

Very Flowery.

In a lecture the other day Sir Arthur Quiller-Couch, the well-known author, who is professor of English literature at Cambridge, said that certain writers, like the Hindu Babu, were always trying to make "our poor dear language more florriferous, more poetical."

Babus are notorious, of course, for their passion for using flowery English, and they seize eagerly on any phrase, whether poetical or otherwise, that may happen to catch their fancy. Sir Arthur gave as an example a telegram of a Babu who wanted to send a telegram announcing the death of his mother. A plain statement of the fact of death did not satisfy him, so he wired, "The hand that rocked the cradle has kicked the bucket!"

SWEET ARE THE USES

By RUTH CAMERON

On account of financial losses and a much reduced income one of the families in our neighbourhood decided last January to cut down its large purchase of magazines to two of the leading monthlies.

As they are very fond of reading I supposed they would find this a keen deprivation, but my neighbour tells me that this cloud has so big a silver lining that she is not sure that it is a cloud at all. "When we had a dozen magazines," she said, "we used to skim them over. Now we read our two magazines carefully. Instead of throwing them aside after we have read the stories we read the essays and serious articles too. Then it has driven us to make more use of our public library, and the other day we discovered we hadn't read half the books on our own shelves. So now I'm absorbed in Les Miserables and Jack is reading one of Thackeray's that he hadn't happened to read,—both books right off our own book-shelves. So you see, by driving us to make better use of our resources our forced economy has been rather a good thing after all."

How many times this happens! That is, how many times some unwelcome necessity "by driving us to make better use of our resources," teaches us how much larger these resources were than we realized.

Another friend of mine who suffered a sudden reduction of income had to give up buying the new clothes she had planned last spring. But when she came to look over the wardrobe which she had in stock she was surprised to find how many things she had and how much a little taste and money would do with them. "There were two or three thin dresses that just had some little thing the matter with them," she told me afterward. "If I had had as much money as usual I would have thought I couldn't do anything with them. As it was I fixed them up and everybody liked them. Then instead of buying new grey suede shoes I dyed a soiled white pair. I did a lot of things like that and I felt that I had almost as much as usual. I certainly didn't realize the possibilities of what I already had until I was driven into really using them."

Again, it is not alone in material things that we must be driven into using our full resources. I remember a time in my life when I was peculiarly alone, when I had no one to whom I could turn, no one to whom I could shift my responsibilities if they became too heavy. And just because I had no one to lean on I leaned upon myself and developed more character and self-reliance than I ever would have under happier circumstances.

Half the time we do not even scratch the surface of our resources. It takes necessity to drive us in upon them and teach us the full possibilities in our lives.

Incubators in Egypt.

Announcement is made by W. H. Cadman, an English investigator, that he has discovered how the ancient Egyptians incubated chickens to the number of 120,000,000 a year. He has found incubators which the states were used in Egypt 5,000 years ago. The secret has been well guarded, but it is laid bare at last. They had no oil stoves of gas or electric heated incubators, but they had ovens which worked much better, even though they required more constant tending. Each oven was calculated to hold 7,000 eggs, and the fuel by which it was heated consisted of chopped straw and dung, but for the last ten days of the hatching the energy was supplied altogether by the chickens themselves. It is the commonest error of those operating our modern incubators to use too much heat, especially toward the end of the period, and now we may learn from the old Egyptians how not to do things as well as how to do them. The use of the straw and other light fuel shows that the Egyptians were most careful to avoid too intense heat at any stage, and the uniform success with which they met shames our boasted modern progress and so-called scientific achievements. We thought that we were the first in the world to hatch chickens and other poultry in incubators, but we are only about 50 [illegible] behind the times.

Strawberries.

A great many people are under the impression that the strawberry is of European origin. As a matter of fact it is derived from the Chilean berry which is native to the Pacific coast.

The Preacher's Preference.

Rev. W. E. Hassard, who travels over the Dominion continually in the interests of the Bible Society, tells of a certain country congregation of the old school, who clung to all the old styles and systems of church worship with persistent faithfulness. One of their ideas was that the preacher should not use notes for his sermons. His words should flow solely by inspiration from his lips.

Consequently, there was consternation and alarm when a new preacher came who was reported to use notes. The rumor of this awful misconduct on his part soon spread and threatened to become a church scandal.

Finally, one of the pillars of the church, more courageous than the rest, interviewed the pastor in order to clear the matter up.

"Is it true, Mr. ——, that you use notes?" he asked in awed toned.

"To be perfectly frank with you, my dear fellow," said the preacher, "I prefer the cash."—Canadian Courier.

HAIR DOESN'T DIE— IT HAS TO BE KILLED

Hair often continues to live and grow long after the death of the body. But it is often killed through neglect or misuse. Almost always the woman or man whose hair is falling out, or is stringy, lifeless and dull-looking, is entirely to blame because of not giving it the proper care. It is easy to take care of the hair—easy to make it more beautiful. Use Harmony Hair Beautifier, to make it glossy, soft and silky, and Harmony Shampoo to keep hair and scalp thoroughly clean.

Harmony Hair Beautifier, delightfully perfumed with true rose, is very easy to apply—simply sprinkle a little on your hair each time before brushing it. It contains no oil, and will not change the color of the hair, nor darken gray hair.

To keep your hair and scalp dandruff-free and clean, use Harmony Shampoo. This pure liquid shampoo is most convenient to use, giving an instantaneous rich, foaming lather that immediately penetrates to every part of the hair and scalp, insuring a quick and thorough cleansing. It is washed off just as quickly, the entire operation taking only a few moments. Contains nothing that can harm the hair, and leaves no harshness or stickiness—just a sweet cleanliness.

Both preparations come in odd-shaped, very ornamental bottles, with sprinkler tops. Harmony Hair Beautifier, $1.00. Harmony Shampoo, 50c. Both guaranteed to satisfy you in every way, or your money back. Sold in this community only at our store—The Rexall Store—one of the more than 7,000 leading drug stores of the United States, Canada and Great Britain, which own the big Harmony laboratories, Toronto, where the celebrated Harmony Perfumes and Toilet Preparations are made.—McDermid & Jury, E. A SOLDIER'S MEMORIES

Veteran of Two Big Campaigns Has Interesting Stories

In a small cottage at Atherley, Ontario, there lives a veteran of the British army named Neill, who fought in the Crimean war and the Indian mutiny. He is always ready to recount his adventures. He is slightly deaf, a defect which he dates from the battle of Balaklava, when he lay under the heavy guns and witnessed the charge of the Light Brigade.

Neill was invalided home, he has now a silver plate in his skull as a result of a wound, and was stationed at Windsor. He tells an interesting story of the late Queen Victoria. While he was on sentry duty one morning the queen came out to walk down to the river. Neill presented arms, but the next sentry, a new recruit, made no move.

"Good morning, soldier," said the queen.

"Good morning, miss," replied the sentry. "I hope you are very well."

He afterwards confessed that he mistook her for one of the maids. The mistake, however, turned out to his advantage, for the queen asked him his history, and, on hearing that he was supporting an old mother in Ireland, who rented a small cottage she bought the farm and presented it to the old woman.

On another occasion, Neill relates that the Prince Consort asked him for his rifle to show to the Emperor Napoleon III., who was driving with him. Neill, being on sentry duty, of course refused, and heard Queen Victoria, who was also in the carriage reprove the Prince for doing what might get the soldier into trouble.

When the mutiny broke out Neill was sent to India and entered Delhi by the Cashmere gate on the day it was stormed. The first street, he says, was lined with cases of brandy left by the mutineers to attract the soldiers. The sergeants, however kept the soldiers from the spirits until the city was taken by telling them that the brandy was poisoned.

Message in a Cheese

A grocer at Southwick, Sunderland, made a curious discovery. When cutting through a cheese his cutting wire encountered some hard substance, and he was obliged to finish the halving process with a knife. In the centre of the cheese he found a small tin box containing three peanies and a request that the finder would communicate with the New Zealand cheese manufacturer informing him as to whether the cheese was purchased as New Zealand or Canadian Cheese. The tradesman complied with the request, telling the New Zealand dairyman that the cheese was sold to him as Canadian produce.

Thought She Would Go Mad WITH HEADACHE.

In all cases of headache the treatment should be directed to remove the cause, for with the cause removed the headache vanishes for all time. Headache powders just relieve for the time being, but what is necessary for a permanent cure is something that will go right to the seat of the trouble. For this purpose it is impossible to find a better remedy for headaches of all descriptions than Burdock Blood Bitters, acting as it does on every organ of the body to strengthen, purify and regulate the whole system.

Mrs. Althea Bowman, Hamilton, Ont., writes:—"I have suffered terribly with my head for weeks at a time till I thought I would go mad. A friend advised me to give Burdock Blood Bitters a trial, so I got a bottle and found relief. I have used four bottles in all and I am glad to say that I have had no more headaches since. I would advise all sufferers to give it a fair trial."

TAKING OUT PAPERS

They said of Bruce Charlton, son of the banker at Maysville, that he was a pompous, cold-blooded young man. He had finished at college and been given a place in the bank.

It was said of him that when a sewer blew up as he was walking the street one day, and he was lifted 30 feet high, he did not even lose dignity, neither did he lose his grip on his cane.

"What a tyrant of a husband he'd be" said one young lady.

"No wife would dare call him by his first name!" said another.

"He'd demand that she address him as Mr. Bruce Charlton, Esq.," was the criticism of the third.

They said of Miss Inez Barton, the daughter of a broker in the city, that she was too flighty; that she was too impetuous; that her quick temper would drive away all lovers, and that she would in time find herself an old maid.

None of the critics hit the nail on the head in either case. Mr. Charlton had fallen into an extra fine position, and had been complimented on being a smart young man in several directions. It was natural therefore that his head was swelled a bit, and that his good opinion of himself should be shown in his attitude toward others. In only one thing he was weak.

After a month's stay in London he came home to say "cawn't" and "doncher know," and "jolly well" and other things affected by the Johnnies across the big water.

To clinch his case he brought back with him an English bulldog so homely that he scared a mule into fits the first day he landed.

That was all—just one weak spot, and no one called him a cad on account of it. "Foreign culchure" is like whitewash on the fence—it begins to peel and flake after a few days.

Every morning from 8 until 9 young Mr. Charlton mounted his steed and had a gallop. It was not an English steed, but the rider affected the English pose in the saddle, and his bulldog followed at his heels and maintained the proper expression of countenance.

When Miss Inez Barton came down to "Meadow Green" to pass a month with a married sister she brought nothing English. She had her American pony and her American saddle and coach dog sent down to her. Every morning from 8 until 9 she went for a gallop.

Mr. Charlton rode toward "Green Meadows" in his gallop.

Miss Inez rode toward Maysville in her gallops.

It was as inevitable as taxes that they must meet. They did meet, and on the very first morning that she rode out. She caught sight of the young man and mused to herself:

"Why, I didn't know bean-poles rode horses out in the country?"

As Mr. Charlton always looked straight ahead when he rode, he of course caught sight of the girl at an early moment. He also mused:

"B'gawge, but I can't make it out, doncher know."

If he had stopped and raised his cap and asked Miss Inez if she could tell him where the widow Jones lived it is probable that she would have smiled one of her winsome smiles and flirted a bit, but he passed her like a wooden man. Her dog wanted to say something to his canine, but the bull growled and never broke his pace. As both were returning homeward they passed again.

"He's a fool!" said the girl to herself.

"I cawn't—I really cawn't," said the young man to himself.

"Say," said the girl to her sister, after the latter had posted her as to who 'bean-pole' was and his social standing, "I feel that I've a sacred duty to perform out here."

"Yes?"

"It's to take young Mr. Charlton down about 14 pegs."

"But how can you?"

"I don't know yet, but I'll find a way."

She didn't have to plan till her head ached. Her coach dog did the planning. The English bulldog had noticed him by a growl. He felt the humiliation. He didn't want to be snubbed, either.

He gave the matter due consideration that evening, and when he started out next morning he had something in view.

"Bean-pole" appeared. There was a poker down his back, and his eyes looked at the landscape a mile ahead. His bulldog appeared, and he was plastered all over with dignity.

Miss Inez didn't have her plan ready, but the dog did. He waited till the other had passed by and then followed up and nipped him on the hind leg.

You can't nip a bulldog and get away with it. This one turned and seized the coach dog and snook him as if he had been a rat, and then tossed him high in the air. Miss Inez uttered one scream and was off her pony and lashing the bull with her whip.

"Aw! Aw! B'jove!"

It was Mr. Charlton. He had heard the row and returned.

"Aw! Aw!" mimicked the girl as she looked up at him.

"I take it that there was a conflict, doncher know?"

"There was, doncher see!"

"Bless me!"

"B'jove!"

Mr. Charlton had forgotten to lift his cap. He now lifted it. He had forgotten to remove the monocle from his eye. He now removed it. He had forgotten to dismount. He now dismounted.

"I beg your pardon, I am suah," he said after a moment of embarrassing silence.

"It's grawnted, sir!"

She led her horse into the roadside ditch and mounted from the bank. He wanted to offer his assistance but did not dare.

He was a picture of confusion and foolishness as she tossed her head and rode away. He started to say "B'jove!" but changed it to:

"Well, what do you think of that?"

He was English no longer. He had become a full-blooded American in about 10 minutes. If there was any doubt about it his talk with his dog after the girl's departure would have settled the matter.

"You fool of a dog, don't you see what you have done" he houted at the canine who came fawning around to get a word of praise. "There was a mighty good-looking girl and you had to go and bite her dog and give her a chance to make a fool of me! You ought to have your head knocked off!"

"Well, did you take anybody down a peg or two this morning?" asked the sister, as Miss Inez reached her home after the ride.

"A dozen pegs, sister. You just ought to have been there; Monocle — saddle — eyes front — bulldog — b'jove — doncher know — beg pardon — aw—aw! O, it was great!"

"And what did you do?"

"I out-Englished him. His dog licked Jack, but he can't do it again!"

"I hope you didn't give him the idea that you were bold."

"I gave him the idea that he was in America, I guess."

That afternoon the brother-in-law went to town and bought a dog collar full of sharp spikes, and next morning before the ride the canine's hair was rubbed full of cayenne pepper. When ready to ride away the girl said to him:

"You are to meet that bulldog again this morning, and if you don't lick him I'll sell you for a cent."

Young Mr. Charlton had been humiliated and felt it keenly, but down in his heart he admitted to himself that he had got only what he deserved. When a man will look at things in this light there is hope for him.

It was at first decided not to go that road again until the girl had gone home. Then it was decided that if he did ride that way he would make an apology for his dog.

Then the decision was to leave the "b'jove" business behind him. As a matter of fact, when Mr. Charlton did ride out he was entirely undecided.

As for Miss Inez, she left it all to the dog. There was a meeting again. The coach dog was ready for it. Without "begging pawdon" of any one, he went for that bull.

He downed him. He bit him. He mopped the earth with him. He made it a roughhouse over 10 rods of highway.

"I will call off my dog," said the young man as the riders came up and halted.

"I'm afraid you can't!" laughed the owner of Jack. "I guess I'll have to call mine off!"

"I—I wish to apologize for yesterday."

"Not at all, doncher knaw!"

"But I have arrived in the United States since yesterday."

"Going to take out your naturalization papers and become one of us?"

"I surely am. I'll sell that bulldog this very day."

"Yes?"

"And as for doncher knaw—"

"Then you may introduce yourself."

"Well, how did things come out this time?" asked the sister, as Miss Inez entered the house with a laugh.

"Why, I think the patient is on the way to perfect cure, and if he doesn't have a relapse there may be a wedding in due time."

How soon will your community replace the mud holes and ruts with a permanent good road?

How soon will you stop filling the ruts and mud holes with your road taxes and build roads that will permit you to put your road taxes into more good roads?

How soon will you discover that permanent good roads increase land values and lessen the cost of living by lessening the cost of marketing and enabling increased production?

How soon will your roads, that now take the heart and soul out of every man and horse that uses them, be made into a continuous stretch of road that you and everyone in your county will be proud of?

The permanent good road is of vital importance to every community because it has a direct influence for betterment on the everyday life of every person.

Concrete Roads are Permanent and are the "best good roads." They cost no more to build than any other good road and their upkeep expense is practically nothing, which makes them the cheapest kind of roads.

Concrete Roads benefit the farmer, the consumer, the merchant, the newspaper, the board of trade, the railroad, and make for greater prosperity generally by increasing land values and production; bringing more trade; more industries; more employment; greater traffic. They decrease the cost of marketing; decrease taxation in proportion to increased production, and all of these factors combine to decrease the cost of living.

Every citizen owes it to himself to investigate the advantages of concrete roads and learn how they will benefit him directly. This information is free for the asking. Write for it to-day to

"BLOOD IS THICKER THAN WATER"

Without good red blood a man has a weak heart and poor nerves. Thinness of the blood, or anaemia, is contagious to young folks as well as old. Especially is it the case with those who work in the confined factories or those who are shut up indoors in winter time with a coal stove burning or the furnace or overheated cardomic (cardic) gas. That blood, or lack of it, is the real cause of consumption in anaemic people has been demonstrated by the fact that good, pure blood alone heals, or by poor digestion or dyspepsia. Blood-making promptly relieves pimples over the heart which is not heart disease at all, but caused by indigestion. Whatever the cause, there's first one remedy that you can learn by experience that it has given satisfaction for over 40 years.

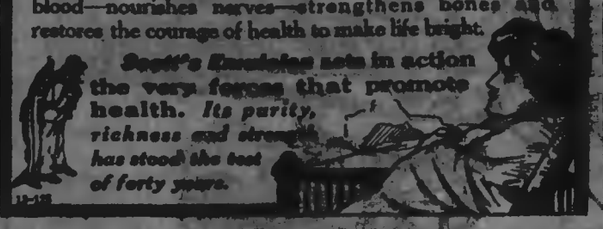
AFTER SICKNESS OR OPERATION

It is a pathetic mistake to accept drugs or alcoholic mixtures when nature craves nourishment to repair the wasted body and restore the vigor of health.

For forty years the best physicians have relied on the wholesome predigested nourishment in SCOTT'S EMULSION which is totally free from alcohol or opiates.

Scott's Emulsion sharpens the appetite—renews blood—nourishes nerves—strengthens bones and restores the courage of health to make life bright.



Scott's Emulsion sets in action the very forces that promote health. Its purity, richness and strength has stood the test of forty years.

AT 16 SHE SAW NAPOLEON

NEW YORK, Dec. 10.—Although cheerfulness is the recipe by which Mrs. Hannah Kosokoff says she has attained the age of 116 years, she constantly has a burial shroud folded beneath her bed. She made it herself fifty-five years ago, when she though her time to die had come.

"Old Hannah" is in the hoom of the Daughters of Israel. A line of 44 inmates, among whom there was none under 70 years of age, filed into her room yesterday to greet her.

Mrs. Kosokoff told her friends of how, when she was a little girl, she had shaken the hand of the grandfather of the present ruler of Russia. She had seen the Great Napoleon, too, she said when he invaded her country.

TANGO BOOMED IN SOCIETY

LONDON, Dec. 10.—The much-discussed tango was put to the test for the first time at the big picture hall at Albert Hall on Wednesday evening, when two tango dances were on the programme. The general verdict is that the dance "will not survive many more such fiascos."

The Pall Mall Gazette says; It was pathetic to see them trying to dance it, and it was positively painful in several cases where even its elementary undulations had not been fostered. To see the performers trying to look as though they were enjoying it was pitiful. The general impression is that this sort of thing had better be left to the theatre and the music hall.

It is generally predicted that this first public appearance of the tango in London society will also be the last.

The Queen has expressed the opinion that the tango is decidedly unsuitable for the ball room. The King, like the Kaiser, agrees with this view, so that neither at Buckingham Palace nor at any great function which the monarchs visit will it be danced.

It does not necessarily follow that the society as a whole will discard it, but persons associated with court circles will naturally follow the example of the King and Queen. Many are already protesting against the tango, the chief objection being that the same partner is always wanted. Men, too, are making the same complaint. It is noticeable at the all-night dancing clubs those who dance the tango are largely professionally engaged for the purpose, the others taking the floor only for two-steps and one-steps.

A leading ambassador watched the tango the other night and remarked: "How dull! It is the sort of thing that ought to be danced at a funeral. It would add to the general sense of mourning."

REV. T. J. MANSELL WAS PREACHER AT BOWMANVILLE

Delighted Two Large Congregations at Anniversary Services.

Sunday, Dec. 7, Bowmanville Methodist Church celebrated another most successful anniversary, the 24th annual celebration in its history. The preacher for the day was Rev. T. J. Mansell, pastor of Charlotte Street Methodist Church, Peterborough, and at the close of the day a more delighted preacher and people would be hard to find. The weather man favoured, and splendid congregations greeted the speaker at both services, especially in the evening when at least a thousand persons filled the auditorium and galleries.

Rev. Mr. Mansell preached two very fine discourses. In the morning he based his sermon on the only parable in the book of Isaiah 5, 12, outlining the history of the Jewish nation, compared it with the greater heritage of the British nation, of which Canada as a Dominion, the church in general and the Methodist church in particular, are recipients which calls for grateful acknowledgment.

The evening sermon on "Did not our hearts burn. . . . while He opened to us the Scripture" was, like the morning, a scholarly presentation of a wonderful theme by a man of wide reading, deep research, and accurate knowledge of human nature. Everyone thoroughly enjoyed his vision of the Christ.—Bowmanville Statesman.

Percentage Of Water In Butter

Averages Two and a Half Ounces to Each Pound—Five Cents Worth of Water in Each Pound of Butter

LAW ALLOWS IT

When you buy a pound of butter and find that it contains more than 2 1-2 ounces of water and less than 13 1-2 ounces of butter, you have no cause for complaint. The farmer who sells that butter is not going against the law. But if the mixture he sells as butter contains more than 16 per cent. of water, Mr. Singleton, the new government dairy inspector, may prosecute him.

Did you ever realize that when you pay 32 cents for a pound of butter you get less than 27 cents worth of pure butter? It is a fact, and the law allows it.

But sometimes butter does contain more than 16 per cent. of water. There have been instances in which more than six ounces of water have been found in a pound of butter.

And the strangest thing about it all is that no farmer or dairyman ever puts water in butter. The water is there before he begins churning the milk, and the more he churns the less water there is in the butter.

So, less water in the butter means more work for the farmer.

Said J. Meilleur, butter maker at the Ottawa Experimental Farm.

"It is just a matter of churning. If your milk is warm when you churn, you will have your work cut out to get all the water out of the butter. Good, cold milk is easier to work.

"The butter we make at the farm contains from 11 to 14 per cent. of water. That is good butter. Some farmers sell very dry butter, containing 10 to 11 per cent. of water, but such instances are rare.

"Yes, water in butter is just a matter of bad making."

BACKACHE VANISHES RHEUMATIC PAINS GO

Few Doses of Croxone Ease Stiff, Sore Swollen Joints and Muscles, Relieving Backache and Bladder Disorders

If you suffer with backache—have pains in the neck or sides—nervous or dizzy spells—a few doses of Croxone will relieve the congestion and you will be surprised how quickly all kidney, bladder and rheumatic troubles will disappear.

Croxone promptly relieves these diseases because it really does reach the real cause. It soaks right into the walls and linings of the kidneys, cleans out the stopped-up, inactive organs, neutralises and dissolves the uric acid and makes the kidneys sift from the blood the waste and poisonous matter that lodge in the joints and muscles to scrench and irritate and acute rheumatism. It soothes and heals the delicate linings of the bladder and gives the kidneys renewed strength so they can filter the blood and keep you well.

Croxone is different from all other remedies. It is so prepared that it is practically impossible to take it without results. An original package of Croxone costs but a trifle, and all druggists are authorized to return the purchase price if it should fail in a single case.

Lake Navigation Nearly Over.

OTTAWA, Dec. 12.—Inland navigation will be absolutely closed down within about a week now. The Marine Department has a steamer engaged taking off the lighthouse-keepers from the most exposed sites on Lake Superior where it would be dangerous to leave them longer or expensive to break through the ice to reach them at a later date.

MEAT CAUSE OF KIDNEY TROUBLE

Take Salts to flush Kidneys if Back hurts or Bladder bothers

If you have your meat every day, eat it, but flush your kidneys with salts occasionally, says a noted authority who tells us that meat forms uric acid which almost paralyzes the kidneys in their efforts to expel it from the blood. They become sluggish and weaken, then you suffer with a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, your stomach sours, tongue is coated and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine gets cloudy, full of sediment, the channels often get sore and irritated, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night.

To neutralize these irritating acids, to cleanse the kidneys and flush off the body's urinous waste get four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy here; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate sluggish kidneys, also to neutralise the acids in urine, so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure, and makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink.

KISSED FATHER'S HANDS.

Accused ex-Priest Broke Down When Parent Came.

NEW YORK, Dec. 12.—Hans Schmidt, the ex-priest, on trial for the murder of Anna Aumuller, fell on his knee yesterday afternoon in District Attorney Whitman's office and kissed the hand of his aged father, who had come all the way from Germany to try to save him from the electric chair, and in a flood of tears begged his forgiveness. CROCKET NOW A JUDGE.

M. P. for York, N.B., Goes To Provincial Supreme Court.

OTTAWA, Dec. 12.—Oswald S. Crocket of Fredericton, M.P. for York, N.B., was yesterday appointed a judge of the supreme court of New Brunswick. A new judicature act rearranging the provincial supreme court and creating two divisions became effective recently and involved the appointment of an extra judge. To this position Mr. Crocket has been appointed.

He has been a member of the House of Commons since 1904, and in the days of the Conservative opposition was one of the most active men on that side of the House.

Mr. Crocket was born in Chatham, N.B., in 1868, and was called to the Bar in 1893.

Mr. Crocket's appointment will necessitate a bye-election in York, for which the writs will be issued very shortly, so as to enable the new member to take his seat at the opening of Parliament. Hon. H. A. F. MacLeod, Provincial Secretary in the New Brunswick Cabinet, is spoken of as the probable Conservative candidate in this constituency for the succession of Mr. Crocket, whose majority in the last general election was 1669.

PROTECTING REFUGEES.

Foreigners Fleeing From Tampico Given Place of Safety.

WASHINGTON Dec. 12. — Rear Admiral Fletcher, commanding the United States squadrons stationed in Mexican waters, sent the Navy Department yesterday a long despatch describing conditions at Tampico, where a desperate battle was in progress Wednesday and yesterday between the Federal garrison and the Constitutionalists for possession of the city. Acting in co-operation with the British admiral, Sir Christopher Craddock, and the commander of the German cruiser in the harbor, Admiral Fletcher designated boundaries of a neutral zone and notified the commanding officers of both contending forces of the fact, and warned their not to direct their fire toward the zone or against foreigners taking refuge there. Many British and German refugees went on board the warships Laplace and Castle.

The Federals were driven into the city limits early in the fight, but no engagement had occurred among the foreign population at the time of Admiral Fletcher's despatch.

Want Cruelties Investigated.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12.—Adoption of resolutions calling upon Congress to appoint a joint committee to investigate vivisection and various other forms of cruelty to animals, brought to a conclusion yesterday the annual meeting of the International Vivisection and Animal Protection Congress. Other resolutions asked Congress to establish a tipped bird season for five years, and to appoint a committee to determine whether some text books in use in American schools do not incite the children to acts of cruelty.

Six Lived In Small Log Cabin.

ST. CATHARINES, Dec. 12.—High Constable Doyle, agent of the local Children's Aid Society, and Constable Burgess, of Grimsby, visited a log cabin, 14 by 16 feet, near Winsdor, in Caister Township, and took therefrom three girls, aged eleven, seven and four years. They, with a young man, aged 23, made the place their home along with Wipley Caughell, aged 52, and Mary Bowman, aged 48. The older Caughell pointed a loaded gun at the visitors.

Ask for Literacy Test.

WASHINGTON, D.C., Dec. 12.—H. E. Wills, representing railroad brotherhoods, and Secretary Frank Morrison, of the American Federation of Labor, urged the House Immigration Committee yesterday to include in the immigration bill a strict literacy test, such as was vetoed by President Taft.

BANK CLOSES DOORS.

Madrid Concern Has Liabiliti Amounting to $20,000,000.

MADRID, Dec. 12.—The Hispano-Americano Bank filed its declaration of suspension of payment in the law courts yesterday after a lengthy conference between the bank officials and the governor of the Bank of Spain.

The Minister of Finance later declared that the Bank of Spain had lent $4,000,000 to the Hispano-Americano Bank, and had offered it another $2,000,000, which sum had been declined on the ground that it was not enough to meet the demands of the depositors, which am unted to $20,000,000. All the depositors were demanding their money back, and the officials had decided it was better to suspend payments now than later, this was done.

Long lines of persons besieged the doors of the bank from an early hour yesterday morning.

Trenton Lad Is Acquitted.

BELLEVILLE, Dec. 13. — At the county court and general sessions yesterday morning, Earle Henderson, a young man from Trenton, was acquitted of a charge of arson preferred against him. It was alleged that Henderson was responsible for a fire which a few weeks ago destroyed the skating rink at Trenton. His alleged admission to a detective and the chief of police at Trenton was not allowed to be used, but a reserve case was

MOTHER! IF CHILD'S TONGUE IS COATED

If cross, feverish, constipated billous, stomach sour, give "California Syrup of Figs."

A laxative to-day saves a sick child to-morrow. Children simply will not take the time from play to empty their bowels, which become clogged up with waste, liver gets sluggish; stomach sour.

Look at the tongue, mother! If coated, or your child is listless, cross, feverish, breath bad, restless doesn't eat heartily, full of cold or has a sore throat or any other children's ailment, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," then don't worry, because it is perfectly harmless, and in a few hours all this constipation poison, sour bile and fermenting waste will gently move out of the bowels, and you have a well, playful child again. A thorough "inside-cleansing" is oftimes all that is necessary. It should be the first treatment given in any sickness.

Beware of counterfeit fig syrups. Ask your druggist for a genuine bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly printed on the bottle. Look carefully and see that it is made by the "California Fig Syrup Company." Don't be fooled!

INOCULATED WITH DARNING NEEDLE

NEWARK, N.J., Dec. 9.—A common darning needle, found in the theatre box occupied a few nights ago by Mrs. Marjorie H. Graff, bride of a week, is believed to be the instrument by means of which Mrs. Graff was inoculated by a subtle poison which caused her to fall insensible within a few minutes. This developed with the arraignment of Armand Megaro, a student pharmacist, the other occupant of the box, on a charge of assault.

To determine the nature of the poison, the needle was submitted to a chemist. It was found near the spot where Mrs. Graff sat. Megaro stoutly asserted his innocence when confronted by Mrs. Graff on the witness stand.

She had felt a sting on her hand, as if she had been pricked by a pin or a needle, her hand had then quickly become numb and the feeling spread to her arm. She left the box and went to the women's waiting-room, where she fell unconscious, but was soon revived. Megaro, who was behind her, was arrested before leaving the theatre. He was held in $20,000 bail.

The experience of Mrs. Graff and other recent cases of a like nature has started a number of anti-vice societies on an investigation to determine if there is a new peril to which unescorted women in public places are exposed.

PETERBOROUGH, FRIDAY, DECEMBER 12, 1913.

HYDRO INFORMATION FOR POWER COMPANY

Hearing of City's Application for Judge's Order for Possession of the Peterborough Light and Power Company's Plant Was Adjourned Until Next Wednesday.

THE ARGUMENTS OF THE LAWYERS

The City Council's application before Judge Huycke on Thursday afternoon was made under Section 324 of the Municipal Act, asking for an order giving the city authority to take possession of the Peterborough Light and Power Company's plant. His Honour was also asked to fix the amount to be paid into court by the city in order to secure possession.

Mr. E. H. D. Hall presented the argument for the city, and Mr. A. B. Colville, of Toronto, represented the company.

Mr. Hall read an affidavit made by City Clerk Armstrong that on October 22, 1913, he had delivered a letter to the Peterborough Light and Power Co. offering $95,000.000 for the property to be expropriated, and any other sum to be fixed by the Hydro-Electric Commission for contracts made by the company after a certain date.

Mr. Colville had replied that the amount offered was very much below the company's estimated value and no agreement was arrived at.

Another affidavit referred to a by-law passed by the Council to proceed with expropriating the property required, and a third dealt with the passing of a by?law to appoint an arbitrator to represent the city. The company have made their appointment but a third arbitrator has not been yet agreed upon.

Mr. Hall—We now ask the Judge to fix the amount and to give us an order to enter into possession. There has been no suggestion from the company for any amount. We made them an offer and now apply to pay that sum.

Judge Huycke—Is it not incumbent upon you to give me information that will show this amount to be fair?

Information Refused.

Mr. Hall replied that an expert engaged by the city to estimate the value of the plant had been refused the necessary information by the company.

This is not like land, he said, that any person could value. This is made up of poles, machines, wires, and to arrive at the value we need detailed information. It is incumbent on the company to prove that our offer is too low. The knowledge of the value is entirely in their hands. Why should we be put to the trouble of putting value on their plant when they could easily put a value on it?

Judge Huycke—Suppose that Mr. Colville were not present, or that you do not furnish me with further evidence as to the value?

Mr. Hall—We have some evidence to offer.

Mr. Colville—My learned friend admits he has material but he has not served me with a copy in order that I might be in a position to answer. I ask to be supplied with this material and to be given an opportunity to reply.

Judge Huycke—You refused them admission to the plant?

Does Not Want to Sell.

Mr. Colville—That is a long story. We don't want to sell. The city has put through legislation to get possession and now they ask us to help them expropriate us. We are willingly to help them in lighting the streets until this is settled and to supply power at the former rate, but we don't propose to lay down on any of our rights to assist in what we consider an unjust agreement. We will have to put in affidavits in reply, but I submit that the city has no right to make application under this private act of the City of Peterborough.

Mr. Colville contended that the city did not make application under the general Municipal Act. The by-law must contain a description of the land, but no description is set out. Though it purports to expropriate easements over land no descriptions of these are given. The by-law was faulty, he said, and should be amended to give a proper description of what the city wants. Let them make their affidavits and we can make our reply.

"There is nothing in the Act permitting Your Honour to make any order for possession."

The right of dominant domain is given to municipalities and other corporations for the purpose of getting possession of property necessary to them at the time.

There should be an affidavit to show that the city really wants this thing. It looks like the last gasp of a Council going to the people. Let them show that they need it and why they need it. Does the Mayor want to take possession of it to-day. I don't think they do. I was not served even with Mr. Armstrong's writs.

Wanted Chance to Reply.

I ask for an adjournment of a week giving the city time to serve me with material and in order that I can get a chance to reply.

Mr. Hall—This is the first time we discovered that the Peterborough Light and Power Co. possessed lands in the city.

Mr. Colville—It reads in their act.

Mr. Hall—We contend that we can expropriate all of the property of the company that we desire. We are endeavouring to expropriate what they own, but it is utterly impossible for us to give a description of the property.

Mr. Colville—We'll meet again at Philippi—in the Private Bills Committee.

Mr. Hall said that the by-law to take possession was evidence of the city's desire.

Mr. Colville—I did not mean desire; I meant necessity.

City Needs It.

Mr. Hall—The necessity is shown in the fact that the company's franchise expires in a short time, and the municipal plant is ready.

Mr. Colville—But we've agreed to supply you with all the power you need.

Mr. Hall—They are bound to sell. The only question is what should be paid. The amount is in their knowledge. They flatly refuse our offer. The Engineer of the Hydro-Electric Commission arrived at it.

Judge Huycke—I should have the information. I am absolutely in the dark now. Mr. Colville should have a full opportunity of answering it.

Mr. Hall filed affidivits made by Mr. Richard T. Jeffrey and Mr. Peter B. Yates, engineers of the Hydro Commission.

Mr. Colville—It is material, but Mr. Munro only pointed out the lines on a map for them.

Valued at $95,000.00.

The affidavits placed the value on the property at $95,000.00.

Mr. Hall stated that he had another valuation to file made by Mr. Sifton placing the value at $88,000.00.

Mr. Colville—I agree with you. You certainly need information on the value of this plant.

Mr. Hall—Mr. Colville should file an inventory with his affidavits.

Judge Huycke—I don't think I have thep ower to order that. An arbitration board might have.

Mr. Colville—The city has put in affidavits without inventories. Why should we have to put them in?

Mr. Hall—You have the information.

Mr. Colville—Mr. Hall has not complied with the part regarding land.

An adjournment was called until Wednesday next at 2:15 p.m. Mr. Colville stated that on Monday their New York and Chicago experts were to meet their Canadian experts in Toronto, and Wednesday would be suitable to him.

BOMB FOR BOSS KILLS YOUNG GIRL WHO OPENED IT

Examiner Special:

NEW YORK, N.Y., Dec. 12.—A bomb delivered to-day to the O.K. Bottling Works here exploded and killed Miss Ida Anstrother, a stenographer, who attempted to open the package. Her face was blown off and her body mangled. There is no clue.

The package was delivered by express. It was evidently intended for the proprietor, who escaped with a slight scratch on his ear.

Caretaker For The Incinerator

Property Committee Will Probably Discuss the Matter This Evening

The Property committee of the City Council will meet this evening. Among the things to be discussed is the question of providing for the control and operation of the new garbage incinerator.

Mr. A. H. Reid, of the A. H. Reid Incinerator Company, prior to his departure for the west one week ago, announced that he would leave one of his own employees in charge of the plant for one week, after which the City would have to secure their own help.

Ald. Duncan, chairman of the committee, is desirous of securing a local man for the position. It is probable that the first of the year will see the appointment of a permanent man.

XMAS EXAMINATIONS COMMENCE MONDAY

P. C. I. Pupils Busy Preparing for the Tests

The Christmas examinations commence in the Collegiate Institute on Monday next. For the past week the highways between the Collegiate and the pupils' homes have been traversed each day by students laden with a number of books to be used in preparation for the Yuletide gruelling. Both the upper and lower forms will take the plunge on Monday next, and the examinations will be finished on Friday.

BRISK FIGHTING GOING ON IN MEXICO

CUTTING THE HOURS SHORT

BEANTFORD, Dec. 11.—To give every man a chance, rather than retain some of the men and discharge others, the number of hours of employment by the Board of Works have ben cut from nine to eight with the same rate of pay per hour in force. There will be no men let out until there is absolutely nothing for them to do.

TO THE ELECTORS OF THE CITY

In the Field for Water Commissioner

Ladies and Gentlemen,—The retirement of Mr. W. H. Hill from the board of Water Commissioners has decided me to offer myself as a candidate for the vacancy made by his withdrawal.

Realizing that the Board of Water Commissioners to be an efficient and business-like organization and that the local Hydro-Electric will be an addition to the duties of the Commission for the coming year it will be my aim if honoured with a seat at the board to co-operate with the present members of that commission and to assist in continuing the success already achieved by the Waterworks Department, and help, so far as in my power, with the organization of the local Hydro-Electric system. (which has had in our City since its advent, my loyal support), to make this public utility of the greatest possible service to the citizens of the municipality.

The qualification which I present to you in suport of my candidature is service in your interest for five years on your board of aldermen.

On this record I ask your support at the polls.

Yours truly,

ROBERT HICKS.

BARTENDER FACES CHARGE

Of Selling Liquor to a Miner Over Bar of American Hotel

JUDGMENT RESERVED

James Le Barr was charged in this morning's Police Court with selling liquor to a minor. He pleaded "not guilty" to the charge, and had no counsel to defend him.

The chief witness for the Crown was Norman Hurl. He swore that on Saturday afternoon, December 6, about 2.15 o'clock, he went to the bar of the American House and called for a glass of lager. This was served him, and he got two glasses of whiskey immediately afterward. James Lebarr served him.

"Do you recognize the man who served you, in the court room?" asked Chief Thompson.

"Yes," replied the witness, pointing to the defendant, "that's the man."

Hurl said that he left Innis' barn about 1.30 o'clock, and went soon after to the American Hotel.

The Defence.

Seven witnesses were called for the defence. All swore that Hurl was drunk before he entered the American Hotel, about 6 o'clock on Saturday. None of them had seen him before that time, in the hotel.

Only a couple had seen him before 6 o'clock. They were with him about 1.30 o'clock, and at that time he was perfectly sober.

Judgment in the case was reserved until to-morrow.

Wm. Moodie, a negro, pleaded guilty to being drunk in a public place, and was fined $2. Moodie is a bootblack in a George Street establishment.

Edward Clarke, who has been in Court three times during the past week, was sent up on the hill for ten days. When he gets out he must leave Town at once for a destination of his own choosing, or for Central Prison, in the event of not accepting the former alternative.

PROSPECTIVE CANDIDATES

Three for Mayoralty Honours and Four for Public Utilities Commission

Two weeks from Monday will be nomination day. The day upon which the prospective candidates will be called upon to declare themselves in accordance with the terms of the Municipal Act. ONE KILLED IN A G. T. R. COLLISION

Montreal-Toronto Flyer Crashes Into Stalled Freight Train Near Oshawa

SOME NARROW ESCAPES

Special to the Examiner.

OSHAWA, Ont., Dec. 12.—Because the crew of a stalled Grand Trunk cattle train half a mile east of Oshawa failed to protect their train this morning, the Montreal-Toronto flyer going at the rate of fifty miles per hour crashed into the cattle train caboose, killing Henry Held, a cattle dealer, of Fisherville, Ont., and injuring two trainmen. Engineer Jack Muir, of the flyer, with his fireman, after making valiant efforts to stop their train, jumped and Muir was severely injured. The engine of the flyer was badly damaged, and the fact that the rest of the train was of standard steel construction throughout, probably prevented further fatalities on the flyer.

BIRTH.

THOMAS—On Thursday, December 11th, to Mr. and Mrs. W. Thomas, 182 Wescott St., a daughter.

Vacancies In The Army

Special Cable to The Examiner:

LONDON, Dec. 12—A newspaper advertising campaign for recruits to the British army is to be undertaken in all parts of the country. No less than forty thousand men are needed to fill the vacancies in the British regiments. Advertisements will point out that the young men who enlist will be fed, clothed, housed, get $2.50 weekly pocket money and have free medical attention, as well as receiving a pension at thirty-six years if the recruit is not over eighteen at the time of his enlistment.

OTONABEE POWER CO. GIVES NOTICE TO CUSTOMERS

The following notice is being issued to the customers of the Otonabee Power Co.:—

Peterborough, Ont., Dec. 12, 1913.

To the Customers of the Otonabee Power Company, Limited:

Dear Sir,—We regret to have to inform you that the City Council have not only refused to submit to the ratepayers a by-law for the extension of our franchise, but have ordered us to remove our poles and wires from the streets of Peterborough on January the 1st, 1914. This order of the Council will make it impossible for us to serve you with electricity after that date, and while deeply appreciative of past patronage, we exceedingly regret having to sever business relations with you, but we are bound to bow to the superior authority vested in the Council.

Yours truly,

W. A. [illegible],
President.

UNAPPRECIATED CHRISTMAS BOX

Editor Examiner:

I hear that the old and respected janitor of the South Ward school has had $15 per month taken off his salary. I understand that the Board has transferred three classes from the South Ward school to the new Queen Mary school and that the janitor, though he has the same number of rooms to look after, has been cut down in his salary, to the amount of $5.00 for each room, notwithstanding that his work of heating and cleaning of the school cannot in any way be lessened. The children only were removed and the janitor didn't have to scrub and sweep them. This is hardly fair to an old servant, who for forty years has been found very efficient. At this season of good will to men, and when cost of living goes up monthly, by leaps and bounds, the action of the Board does not seem to show much of the spirit of Christmas.

FIGHTING THE POOR MAN'S BATTLE.

If the tariff was reduced, as I propose to do, we would take away the cost which weighs upon the poorer class of the community. It does not affect so much those who sit at this board, but it does affect very nearly the artisan, the mechanic, the clerk, the clergyman, the professor, the teacher. We are fighting for the wives, for the mothers, for the children; we are fighting even for those able-bodied men who, with reduced wages have to face the coming of a cold Canadian winter,—Sir Wilfrid Laurier at the Fielding banquet.

SOME NEW THINGS.

Under the Borden Government the people of Canada have been treated to several new things.

Never before has the high cost of living reached the pitch it has done under the Borden Government.

Never before—in the past eighteen years—has the worker looked for work and looked in vain—till the Borden Government wielded power.

Never before—in the past eighteen years—has there been so much unemployment; so many crowds of idle men in the cities as there are in the third year of the Borden Government, and never before—in the past eighteen years—has the disgrace of the soup kitchen threatened Canada—the land of plenty.

Never before—in the past eighteen years — has hard times threatened Canada so darkly as under the Borden regime.

Never before—in the history of Canada—with a two hundred million dollar wheat crop as one endorser, has a Canadian loan failed to be subscribed in the London money market.

Never before has a Canadian Government taking power on a policy of rigid and righteous economy, doubled the public expenditure in the short space of two years.

Never before in the history of Canada has a government taken power with so many promises of reform and great deeds to its credit, and so thoroughly disgraced this credit.

Never before have the people of Canada been so gold-bricked by any government—comparing promise and fulfilment—expectation and accomplishment.

And this is only a partial list of new things of the kind.

THE WARD SYSTEM.

Sir Lomer Gouin, premier of Quebec, is generally regarded as a progressive administrator, but he is showing retrograde tendencies by opposing the request of Montreal for abolition or modification of the ward system. He forgets that the ward system applied to the election of aldermen is a practical negation of the principle of representative government. Under this system an election has only a partial voice in electing the servants of the public. In Peterborough, with the ward system in operation, an elector has only two-tenths of a voice in electing the Council board. He can only vote for two men out of ten that compose the council. Suppose a council should mismanage the citys business and generally render themselves obnoxious, the individual elector's power of disciplining the council by his vote is confined to the two, who represent, or rather, in this hypothesis, misrepresent his ward. The mayor, and utilities commissioner, represent the whole body of the electorate, while our aldermen are only fractional representatives. The municipal government of Montreal is conspicuously unsatisfactory and a great deal of this is regarded as due to the ward system permitting the election of inferior men, men, who by local influence can manipulate a small body of electors, in a way they could not appeal to the general body of electors. When conditions under the ward system come to such a point in Montreal that the most influential public opinion of the city demands a change, there is some good reason for the demand, and for action upon it.

MR. MORRISON, MARTYR.

Hon. Robert Rogers, Minister of Elections in the Borden government, confines his activities to practical methods and though he swrams over a by-election constituency in a very effective way, he seldom breaks into speech —his movements are more modest, more unobtrusive, not to say, dark. His eloquence is largely confined to presentation of the substantial argument. He has, however, broken his rule, and made a speech yesterday in support of the Conservative candidate, Mr. Morrison, in the now notorious constituency of Macdonald, Manitoba. In this speech, Mr. Rogers played the hypocrite nobly, he pictured Mr. Morrison, who was deprived of his seat by an election court, as a martyr. He asserted that > few elections, if any, have been run in Canada more clean, than the election which took place in the constituency of Macdonald twelve months ago."

Now what about this "clean campaign?" Against Mr. Rogers' impudent assertion we have the fact that the phenomenal debauchery of the electors by strong drink and other methods induced the entering of a petition against the election; and Mr. Rogers and the Borden government were so conscious of the clean character of the election, that they defied the petitioners to do their worst, by resorting to every possible trick and legal quibble to delay the hearing of the evidence. When this could no longer be done, rather than face exposure of the government's election methods in the courts, the Conservative candidate, who was elected in the "cleanest campaign in the history of Canada," pleaded guilty and confessed to "enough" corruption to void the election—that is, confessed enough corrupt acts to invalidate a majority of 837. Mr. Morrison, after occupying the stolen seat for one session, was thrown out of Parliament by his own confession of monstrous criminality of electoral corruption. Yet Mr. Rogers, with unblushing audacity, calls those who laid the charges of corruption, "a set of cowards." Of course there was no cowardice in the Conservative candidate and his friends, after exhausting every means to prevent inquiry, rather than face exposure of the ghastly details, throwing up the sponge and confessing corruption enough to kill nearly a thousand votes.

CAN'T AND CANT

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Dear Sir,—I see in your editorial column yesterday an article stating that Mr. Borden and Mr. Churchill declare that Canada can't build battleships. Mr. Borden, Mr. Churchill and myself know well that we can build battleships in Canada. But to meet an emergency, we can't. It would take Canada thousands of years to have a Navy of her own such as we possess to-day. And the best way for Canada is to hold fast what we have, and send the three Dreadnoughts which Mr. Borden has promised at once.

John Bell,
451 Water Street.

Peterborough, Dec. 12, 1913.

Our correspondent still believes in the "emergency." He still vivs it with the eye of faith long after Mr. Borden has seen it vanish into interstellar space. If our correspondent can still see the emergency with the naked eye, he should be qualified to solve the mystery of the canals of Mars. He is at least consistent. He accepted in good faith the "emergency" Mr. Borden invented to justify his surrender to the Nationalists of Quebec, in the matter of a Canadian naval policy.

LONDON TIMES ON LEADER ROWELL

Special to The Examiner:

LONDON, Dec. 11.—In its series of articles on "Some Representative Canadians," by its own Canadian correspondent, the Times includes a review of the career of Mr. N. W. Rowell, K.C. After pointing out that Mr. Rowell is a native of Ontario only 46 years of age and that he never sat in Parliament until he was appointed to the Provincial leadership, it goes on to say:

"With immense industry in the preparation of an argument, an exceptional power of logical statement and an easy fluency which occasionally arises into eloquence, he ranks among the best platform and parliamentary speakers in the country."

"His position in the Methodist Church in Canada," continues the Times, "is as distinguished as his position in the Liberal party. He is concerned in all its strictly religious activities, influential in fashioning its educational policy and active in the direction of its missionary enterprise. He was chairman of the Laymen's Missionary Movement in Canada which, in association with the kindred movement in the United States has raised millions of dollars for foreign missions. As a Methodist it is not singular that he should be one of the leaders in the agitation to effect legal prohibition of the liquor traffic."

The article tells of Mr. Rowell's introducing his resolution into the Legislature to abolish the sale of liquor in hotels and clubs and mentions that at this time the Government submitted an amendment to abolish the treating system. "As yet, however," the article continues, "ministers have not explained how this is to be accomplished."

The results of bye-elections in the last year are mentioned with this comment. "While, therefore, Mr. Rowell has sustained successive defeats in bye-elections, he probably believes that if Provincial prohibition can be made the chief issue in a general election, the vote against the bar may be as decisive as under the Referendum. It was to further this reform," the Times reminds its readers, "that Mr. Rowell, at serious personal sacrifice, became leader of the party and there is no prospect that he will compromise or retreat."

"Beyond this," to quote from the concluding paragraph, "he is an energetic advocate of social reform, of adequate compensation for workmen, of the abolition of patronage in the civil service and of generous aid to education and agriculture. He has, indeed, the outlook of Mr. Lloyd George without the picturesque and vigourous vocabulary for which the British Minister is distinguished. He is, moreover, a sincere Imperialist, zealous for the autonomy of Canada but zealous also for the connection with the Mother Country and for the welfare and security of the common empire. His speech at the Banquet to Mr. Borden in Toronto a year ago on the Prime Minister's return from the Conference with Imperial Ministers, is remembered for its persuasive eloquence, its happy but dexterous exposition of Liberal Imperialism and its frank assertion of the obligation of Canada to co-operate in naval defence. Whatever fortune he may have as a political leader, no man of more sensitive honour or of sincerer devotion to the public interests, sits in any Legislative body in Canada.

CLAIMS HASTINGS COUNTY COUNCIL WAS TOO HASTY

Faculty of Forestry Stands for Facts--He Did Not Use Term "Degenerates"

BELLEVILLE, Dec. 11.—Mr. C. D. Howe of the Faculty of Forestry, University of Toronto, has written to Mr. P. P. Clark, ex-Warden of Hastings and Reeve of Limerick township, asking him to bring the following to the attention of Hastings County Council at its January session:

Not Dr. Fernow's Words.

"I have noticed the report of the Hastings County Council's censure of Dr. Fernow in the morning papers. I am sorry that the Council has been so hasty in its action. If you will read the text of the interview in The Globe of December 2, you will find that it is not credited to Dr. Fernow at all. While the interview was given in the presence of Dr. Fernow, I furnished most of the statements, and I accept the responsibility for them.

Wrong Terms and Inferences.

"I wish to say, however, that the people of Hastings county are quite justified in their resentment of inferences in the head lines and in the introductory paragraph in the report of The Globe. I made no such inference to the reporter; they are entirely his invention. And, moreover, the term 'degenerate' was not used in the interview; our words were 'defectives' and 'subnormals.' No stigma is attached to these terms, while there may be one attached to the term 'degenerate.' I am sure that all those concerned in the Trent valley survey hold in highest regard the morality and the hard-working capacity of the great majority of the people in that region.

"I wish to call your attention to the term 'abandoned farm' as used in the official report, where it is thus defined. The term 'abandoned' applies to a farm which by the buildings, etc., it is evident to the passer-by has been deserted by the original owner. The land, however, is generally in use by a neighbour.

Northern Townships Not Included.

"I wish also to call your attention to the fact that the northern townships of Hastings county are not included in the Trent drainage system, and so were not included in our report. As you know, most of Lake, Wollaston and Limerick, and parts of Marmora, Tudor, Cashel, Faraday and Herschel were included.

"I am sorry that the erroneous conceotions outlined above have been brought into the discussion, and I am still more sorry that they have been accepted by your Council.

"With the above modifications I stand for the facts given in the interview and we all stand for the facts as contained in the official report. It would be a prerogative of the County Councilof Hastings to censure the authors after a careful consideration of the official report, but to censure one of them on the basis of a newspaper report, with no apparent attempt to determine its authenticity, seems to me unjust to a man who has the welfare of your region very much at heart."

MUNICIPAL POT IN HAVELOCK

Reeve Kindred Has Decided to Stand for Re-election

During the past few days the municipal pot in Havelock has commenced to simmer, and in the course of a week or so it may boil. Reeve Kindred has decided to stand for re-election, and S. S. Joyce is considering the idea of opposing him. The names of John Howe and Harrison Wing were mentioned as probable candidates for the Reeve's chair, but both have decided not to run. Mr. Howe, however, will run for councillor. Councillors Wright and Curtis are in the field for another term, but councillors Jones and Higley state they are going to drop out. The names of Jas. Scott, J. Boylan, M. F. Lynch, T. Wood and Sam Wilson, are mentioned as probable candidates for the council.

"Fort Garry" Formally Open.

WINNIPEG, Dec. 12.—The Fort Garry Hotel, built at a cost of a million and a half, was formally opened to the public yesterday morning at 8 o'clock. An opening ball was given last night by the Victorian Order of Nurses.

Millionaire Missing In New York.

NEW YORK, Dec. 12.—None of New York's ten thousand police had found any trace up to noon yesterday of James Marshall, the millionaire hat manufacturer of Fall River, Mass. He dropped out of sight Tuesday afternoon.

C.P.R. POLICE WILL BE UNIFORMED

Chief Investigator of Canadian Railway Establishes New Plan

Uniformed police are to be an original feature of railroad management with the Canadian Pacific. That railroad, after having policed its western lines, beyond Fort William, with costumed constables, is now placing men along its eastern lines, between the point mentioned and Halifax. The system is original with the C. P. R., no other railway on the continent ever having adopted it.

When the whole staff is complete there will be five or six hundred of this department on the transcontinental line. Each man will have legal authority to make arrests on the Company's property for any offence against Canadian laws. The main purpose is to put an end to the tremendous amount of theft and pilfering that goes on in the railroad yards The plain-clothes detective will still be retained as investigators.

At present the crime of theft is more prevalent among the railroad yards than ever before. Constant thefts are recorded from cars that are standing in city sidings, many of them being due to employes of the different lines. For years the roads hav been endeavouring to find a system that would diminish this if not end it.

The idea of uniformed railway constables originated with R. G. Chamberlain, chief of the C. P. R. department of investigation. He was placed in charge of the C.P.R. detective about twelve months ago, and since then has formed the conviction that uniforms will have a greater influence in decreasing crime.

G. Logan of Montreal, inspector of C.P.R. uniformed police, is in Toronto looking after the equipment of about 50 men who have been hired, with costumes. The system is in effect on the western lines, and in Montreal, states Mr. Logan, and already its effects have been clearly shown as beneficent. Peterborough will have the new system within a week or two, as soon as the uniforms can be supplied for the men.

Opinions expressed by other railway men are to the effect that if the new system proves as successful as it is expected to, it will likely be adopted by other lines on this continent.

WHY ARE YOU SO TIRED?

The Weather Is Not To Blame for That "Dragged Out" Feeling.

"This weather simply takes the life right out of me, I can hardly drag one foot after the other," said a run-down, tired-out woman, the other day.

We want to say to every such person in this vicinity. Don't blame the weather, it's your condition. You need a strengthening tonic and the very best we know is Vinol which is a combination of the two most world-famed tonics, namely, the medicinal, curative elements of cod liver oil and tonic iron, for the blood.

A case has just come to our attention from Milford, Mich. "Mrs. Julia Barber says: "I was run-down and hardly able to drag about; my appetite was poor and I was not able to work. My druggist asked me to try Vinol. The first bottle helped me and after taking the second bottle I was able to work and felt well and strong. Vinol is the best medicine I have ever taken."

Try a bottle of Vinol with the understanding that your money will be returned if it does not help you.

WEDDING GIFTS LOST IN FIRE

MACON, Ga., Dec. 12.—Fire that destroyed the Hotel Williams here early yesterday, drove more than fifty guests to the street in scanty attire. Two women on the second floor, cut off by the flames, were taken from the window by firemen.

The fire was discovered by the night clerk, who ran from room to room arousing guests.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Loring, who were married Sunday, lost wedding gifts valued at $3,500. A jewelry salesman claimed to have left a satchel containing gems worth $10,000 in his room. Few of the guests saved any of their effects.

EVERY NEED FOR CHRISTMAS

Ready With Complete Stocks to Help Make Your Holiday Buying a Success

The Re-arrangements of our Newly Appointed Ready-to-Wear and Home Furnishing Departments on the Second Floor are Now Complete

What a difference a little change makes is a very true saying, and is amply demonstrated in the recent changes upon our Second Floor.

The great expansion of our Home Furnishing and Ready-to-wear business prompted us to make complete changes in the arrangement and locations of these two growing departments.

In Future the Home Furnishing Department will occupy the rear section of the Second Floor, and the Ready-to-Wear will occupy the Front Section.

Workmen, as you are aware, were busily engaged for the past weeks installing new display fixtures, wall cases and making the necessary changes—these are now complete.

On Saturday it is with considerable pride that we invite you to come and see the magnificent improvements and splendidly equipped Show Rooms, which will add great helpfulness to your shopping convenience. Then, too, you must not overlook the grand display of Christmas Merchandise. In these two newly appointed departments one will find dozens of appropriate gift things, the useful and practical for friends and home comfort. Make it a point to visit the new departments on the Second Floor Saturday.

The time is drawing near--you have only 10 more shopping days to do your Christmas buying. Don't delay. Holiday Stocks are now at their best—shopping is a pleasure in our beautifully decorated store—shop to-morrow—it is best for you—best for salesclerks, delivery people, for everyone.

HYDRO ELECTRIC FOR HAVELOCK

Engineers Look Over the Ground —Case Against Fishing Guides Withdrawn

HAVELOCK NEWS

Electric Light.

During the past week engineers from the Hydro-Electric and the Seymour Power Co. have been in Havelock figuring on a system of light and power for the town. It is understood that the Council have decided to accept the Hydro's suggestions and will embody them in a by-law to be passed by the Council on Monday next and which will be voted upon at the January elections.

Horse Broke Its Neck.

Mr. Wm. Anderson, of Round Lake, lost a horse in a peculiar manner on Friday of last week. The animal was standing in front of H. Williams' store, when an auto coming around the corner, startled the beast so badly that it jumped sideways and bolted for freedom. It struck the corner of the store in its career, narrowly escaping the plate glass window, and plunged head first into Mr. Williams' shel. The force of the compact broke the animal's neck and it dropped dead. The horse was totally blind, but nevertheless a good worker and quite valuable.

Broke Into Hall.

Four Havelock boys broke into the town hall one day last week and destroyed some of the furniture, and kicked a panel out of a door. Constable Post had them summoned before Magistrates Mathison and Duff on Friday forenoon and the boys were assessed $1.00 and costs each for the damage, and let go on suspended sentence. Two of the boys were in the gang that broke into Rushaw's grocery waggon some time ago, for which offence each one put up $6.00 in compensation. Some of the boys have been dealt with most mercifully by the local magistrates for years past.

Case Collapsed.

Mr. Henry Mellville, game overseer, had Mr. N. King and his sons, of Belmont Lake, summoned for acting as fishing guides without a license. The case came up two weeks ago, but was enlarged to last week, at the request of Mr. Melville. When called on Wednesday, the prosecutor failed to put in an appearance and Magistrates Mathison and Duff, dismissed the case with costs of $10.50 against the Fishery Department.

SEND-OFF FOR MR. PACKWOOD

Popular Secretary of the St. John's Athletic Club Receives Testimonial

Some seventy members and their friends of the St. John's Athletic Club and Bible Class assembled at Coleman's Parlours last evening, at 8 o'clock, for a social evening and to bid farewell and give a "send off" to Mr. Walter Packwood, hitherto the indefatigable Secretary and organizer of the Club.

The proceedings commenced with the first part of an instrumental and vocal concert.

During the interval Mr. A. Kingdon, the leader of the Bible Class, read the following address:

To Mr. W. D. Packwood.

Dear Mr. Packwood,—On the occasion of your leaving Peterborough for your native land, we, the members of St. John's Men's Bible Class, and also St. John's Athletic Club are assembled here this evening to do you honour.

Since you have associated yourself with St. John's, you have been a leader in every good work, and an inspiration to your many friends, who admire your sincerity and earnestness.

We regret very much to lose you, but we must console ourselves in the knowledge that our loss will be another's gain, and we all join in hoping that you will be successful in regaining your health, and that some day you will return to us.

We tell that while you may be absent from us in the body, yet we shall always be united in spirit, and our prayers and best wishes will always go out to you.

We ask you to accept the accompanying gift, not for its intrinsic value, but as a slight token of our friendship and esteem for you.

Wishing you a very Happy Xmas and the best and brightest of New Years, we remain, on behalf of Bible Class and Athletic Club:

Bible Class—J. C. Davidson, Rector; T. Tooms, President; C. Tucker, Vice-President; A. Kingdon, Leader; A. Theobald, Secretary; D. J. Eldred, Treasurer.

Athletic Club—C. E Graham, President; R. R. Perry, Vice-President; H. Hartshorn, Captain.

This was followed by the presentation of a handsome walrus hide travelling bag as a tangible token of the esteem in which the departing guest of the evening was held, on the principle that "actions speak louder than words." The presentation was made by the Rector of St. John's Anglican Church — the Rev. J. C. Davidson — accompanied by some very eulogistic remarks. He referred to Mr. Packwood's services as a member of the Bible Class, as a teacher in the Sunday School, and as organizer and Secretary of the Athletic Club. And, as the guest of the evening and the recipient of the testimonial was on the eve of leaving for his native land, he wished him Godspeed, knowing he voiced the feelings of all present, all of whom regretted his departure.

Mr. Packwood, who was visibly overcome with emotion, made a suitable reply, thanking all present for the uniform kindness he had received at their hands, saying that he should carry back to England, where he would rejoin his parents and relations, happy remembrances of Peterborough and those of its people with whom he had come in contact.

A selection of tunes and songs on the gramaphone then followed, during which elegant refreshments were served, catered for in their usual good style by Coleman Bros.

Canon Davidson then made some further observations, following which the second part of the programme was proceeded with.

The gathering broke up at half-past eleven, when Mr. Packwood was escorted to the midnight train on the C. P. Railway, by those present, headed by a mouth organ band, to the manifest surprise and apparent indignation of the "cop" on duty.

The programme presented was as follows:

Part I.

Selection—Messrs. Hartshorn and Johnson.
Violin Quartette—
Recitation—Mr. Eldred.
Song—"Medicine Jack," Mr. Flinn
Song—Mr. White.
Song—Mr. Ward.
Song, "Anchored," Mr. H. Flowers.
Song—Mr. Storeley.
Song—Mr. Irwin.
Interval.

Part II.

Song—Mr. F. McKealey.
Song—Mr. Pullen.
Violin solo—Mr. Johnson.
Song — "Silver Threads," Mr. Packman.
Comic song—C. Coleman.
Song "Little Wiggle Waggle," Mr. Perry.
"God Save The King".

Mr. Packwood was also the recipient of an edition-de-luxe of Tennyson's poems, as well as an elegant writing case, presented by the foremen and men of the Brass Shop of the C. G. E., in which department he was engaged.

HIS PROOF.

"A clergyman," says DeWolf Hopper, visited a tippler in his flock and cautioned him against drinking so much. The man answered that the doctor had prescribed liquor for him. "Well," inquired the minister, "has it done you any good?" "I fancy it has," answered the bibber, "for when I got that key a week ago I could hardly lift it, and now I can carry it all over the room."

Two Hundred Shots Fired and No One Was Hit

Examiner Special:

NEW YORK, N.Y., Dec. 12.—Two hundred revolver shots were fired just outside Madison Square Garden early this morning in a running fight between the Sirocco and Jimmy Kelly factions regarding the management of the six-day bicycle race now going on, and the division of the receipts. Miraculously nobody was hit, and the arrival of the police patrol waggons effectually dispersed the crowds. Ten arrests were made.

Canada has 1,197,630 pupils in schools, and 34,000 teachers.

NO EXHIBIT FOR GERMANY

Special Cable to The Examiner:

BERLIN, Germany, Dec. 12.—Another knock was given to the Panama Pacific exposition at San Francisco to-day when a bill appropriating half a million dollars for the German exhibit was withdrawn by the government without a vote being taken. The popularity of the proposed vote was questioned by all parties.

JACK JOHNSON LOSES HIS TITLE

Special Wire to The Examiner.

PARIS, France., Dec. 12.—According to a local sporting paper to-day Jack Johnson, the United States negro, has been deprived of his title of world's heavyweight champion by the International Boxing Union. Action was taken on the advice of British and United States delegates on the ground of Johnson's moral character.

HAVELOCK CHILD WAS POISONED

Fifteen-Months-Old Child Took Pills Without Mother's Knowledge

Havelock Standard—Donald, the 15 months old child of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Steele, died on Tuesday at 1 o'clock, from the effects of eating a quantity of pills, which he obtained access to about 11:30 o'clock. The poor little fellow crawled up on a chair and got the pills from a table, unnoticed by his mother. The funeral will take place to the Maple Grove cemetery this afternoon, Rev. J. R. Real conducting the services at the house. The bereaved parents have the heartfelt sympathy of all in their hour of sorrow.

ENGINEER FINED $100

Was Intoxicated While in Charge of a Locomotive

Special Wire to Examiner:

INGERSOLL, Ont., Dec. 12.—John Grey, a local C.P.R. engineer, was fined $100 to-day, when he pleaded guilty before Magistrate Patterson to being intoxicated while in charge of a locomotive. The court gave him a most severe lecture, but decided not to imprison him because Grey has to report to the C.P.R. authorities in Toronto. The enormity of Grey's offence was emphasized by the prosecuting attorney, who pointed out that a much larger fine might be inflicted and as well as a long term in prison.

1911 was Canada's greatest fishing year in products and profits.

The fishing-grounds of Canada constitute not only the most extensive but the most abundantly stocked commercial fishing waters in the world.

WILL HOLD AN ASSEMBLY

An "At Home" Will Mark the Opening of New C.P.R. Freight Sheds —Extensive Programme Arranged

ACCOMMODATION

The new C.P.R. freight sheds will be formally opened on Wednesday evening, December 17th. This was decided upon at a meeting of the C. P. R. officials and employees, which was held on Thursday evening. The meeting, which was presided over by Mr. L. Bowes, was held in the building that has long served the purpose for which the new freight sheds are intended.

It was also proposed to hold an "At Home" which will be open to the public. This will be held in the new building, with the sanction of the Divisional Superintendent. Tickets to the number of three hundred will be issued, at a nominal charge of one dollar each. These may be had from the general committee, comprising the following: Messrs. L. Bowes, J. H. Carey, C. Taher, W. J. Brooks, T. Holema, T. Guerin, W. Hill, M. King, G. Ferguson, E. Purvis, J. H. Wilson, D. Ross, E. Stevenson, G. Torrance, J. W. Byers, E. Ivy, H. Palmer, J. Crowley, A. R. Moore, C. Hardwick, W. Tully, F. Skinner, W. E. Curry, James Skinner, W. S. Dodds and W. McMillan.

The event will be graced by a number of officials connected with the division and also a representation of civic officials. The building, which is capable of accommodating over five hundred couples, will be suitably decorated for the occasion. The contract for this has been let to J. J. Turner and Sons, while Mr. J. Hooper will have charge of the catering.

"The object of holding an assembly," said Mr. Dodds, "is not a mercenary one, but was instituted at the suggestion of a number of prominent citizens and employees of the C. P. R. Freight Department.

Committees were appointed and such arrangements made as will promote the success of the affair. Details, such as heating, etc., were left in the hands of the various committees. The services of a high-class orchestra will be secured.

The Assembly will be preceded by appropriate formalities incident to the opening of the building.

Quebec is nearly three times as large as the British Isles, and yet forms but 10 per cent. of Canada's area; second largest province in the Dominion.

Christmas Mail Double That Of Few Years Ago

Post Office Staff Will Be Increased For Handling of the Rush Toward Christmas Day

MUCH OLD COUNTRY MAIL

The heaviest English mail ever handled by the local post office staff has passed through their hands during the past week and a half. It is safe to say that the Christmas mail to England this year is practically double what it was a few years ago. The internal workings of the local office have been rearranged to accomodate the heavy mail, and two additional clerks will have to be taken on before Christmas Day.

Local people are reminded that their letters and post cards will reach their destinations much sooner if they are mailed at the post office, rather than in the letter boxes. This refers particularly to post cards, which should, if possible, be posted at the office.

Money for Old Folks.

This year quite as large a number as in other years of old country folks and foreigners in this City are sending home money in postal notes and money orders, as Christmas remembrances to parents and other relatives in the old world. These amounts are sometimes as low as 50 cents and as high as $20, usually varying from $2 or $3 to $10. The express offices also report that the number of express orders sent by immigrants back to their friends in Europe is as large as in other years, despite rumours to the effect that the conditions of the newcomers to this country are not as prosperous as in other years. In some instances the amounts may be smaller, but the old folks and the brothers and sisters at home are remembered just the same. Letters are much more certain to reach their destination than parcels, and the foreigner to a certain extent prefers to send the money back that those at home may buy in their own town some little gift that they need most.

Should Tie All Parcels.

The postoffice authorities have requested the public to tie securely all parcels sent by mail. It is said that a great many parcels are brought to the post office just as they were tied up in stores where they were purchased; the addresses are written on, and stamps affixed, and the parcels dropped in, with strings that would not carry the parcel securely outside of the city limits, much less the hundreds of miles distant it may be addressed to. A great deal of the time of the post office employees is lost in tying up parcels that come loose, and consequently the delay reacts on the senders and receivers of parcels.

Postal Regulations.

Extracts from the postal regulations issued monthly by the local post office, to which the local post office authorities have asked the public to pay close attention, are reprinted as follows:

Senders of postal packages are specially requested to place their names and addresses on the upper left-hand corner of the wrapper so that on failure to deliver the package to the addressee, for any cause, the package can be returned to the sender, instead of sending it to the dead letter office at at present.

A compliance with the above request would be of great advantage to those sending and receiving packages through the mails.

The post office department cannot permit the affixing on the face or address side of letters or other mail matter of stamps issued in the interests of charitable institutions, etc., but there is no objection to such stamps being placed on the back of letters or other mail matter as stickers, providing they do not resemble postage stamps in form and design and do not bear numerals or indications of values.

Letters on other mail matter bearing stamps other than postage stamps on the face will be returned to the senders as violating the postal regulations.

Plain Statement of Facts

About Salome

The Greatest French Opera Ever Written

The beautiful Massenet Opera of Salome is generally known as "Herodiade, the great French Masterpiece," but it was produced in England under the title of "Salome," and the producers have retained the same title for its American production. It must not be confused with the Salome of Strauss and Oscar Wilde, and the management absolutely GUARANTEES it to be free from anything suggestive. Mothers may take their daughters; men their sweethearts. The seven scenes are wonders of Oriental splendour. With its company of 60 principals, chorus and orchestra, it is without doubt the greatest performance of opera in English ever given in this country.

We make these statements advisedly, with a full realization of their meaning, and say for your own sake "DON'T MISS SALOME"

SHEEHAN & BECK, Producers.

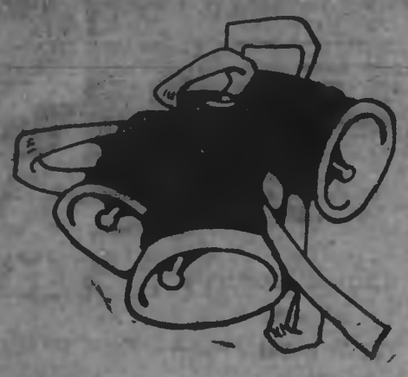
CHRISTMAS SUGGESTIONS



Dainty Jewelry

NEVER before have we been able to offer such a pleasing variety of novel and exclusive designs as we show this season. They must be seen to be properly appreciated. The following descriptions are, however, suggestive of their worth-while nature:

Pendants are quite the vogue. These we show are charming in design and follow the latest Parisian styles in mounting or setting. One in particular composed of emeralds and pearls, makes a most attractive and beautiful gift. Prices from $9 up.

Silverware—Knives, forks, spoons and flatware in Rogers 1847 starting at $1.

Cut Glass—New designs in water bottles, bowls, water jugs, vases, bon-bons, sugar and creams, salad dishes, pepper and salts, &c.

Lockets—Large oval and round plain lockets, bright and Roman finish, round pearl set, hand engraved, plain, square and heart shaped. Plain lockets hand engraved without extra charge. Priced $3, $4, $5 and $10.

Novelties—There is such a bewildering array of good things in this department suitable for father, mother, sister, brother and even the baby, that it would take more space than we can spare to describe them. Let it be one of the pleasant surprises that this store holds out for Christmas shoppers.

GLEANINGS FROM THE CIVIC MILL

Ald. Johnston should have quoted St. John to Ald. Green the other night when the latter expressed certain doubts electrically. "Blessed are they that have not seen and yet have believed."

The municipal elections give promise of some interesting contests, if some of the candidates leave their hats in the ring.

About a week ago the Examiner mentioned Mr. W. S. Robinson as a possible candidate for the south ward. The former member of the Board of Education has announced that he will enter the field.

The ward system gives the ratepayers no opportunity of expressing their opinion of candidates in sections outside their own wards.

Otonabee Power consumers are reminded that coal oil, lamps and wicks can be obtained at grocery and hardware stores.

From Mr. A. B. Colville's statements yesterday the Electric Power Company have no modest idea of the value of the plant to be expropriated. Likewise they are determined to offer strong opposition to the City.

Where is there any business organization that follows the extravagant system of some cities. Train a man four or five years. Then let him retire, or be defeated at the pols, and with him goes the knowedge and experience he gained. None but a municipal corporation would tolerate this method.

POLLING DAY IN MACDONALD

Examiner Special:

WINNIPEG, Dec. 12.—To-morrow is polling day in the MacDonald constituency. Apparently the campaign has been one of extreme quietness. The only Dominion minister to enter the fight has been Mr. Rogers, who has addressed a couple of meetings. Dr. Montague has been campaigning in the southwestern part of the constituency. Reports from the constituency are that the workers have been hugely drafted into various polls and it is expected that there will be something doing to-day and to-night. It is thought a hurry-up finish and an attempted stampede of the voters is being planned by the Government. The Liberal campaign has been carried on chiefly by poll committees. After the delegates chose Dr. Myles as a candidate they went home and got to work, and reports indicate the unusual amount of work done and exceptionally good fighting spirit throughout the constituency.

Capital employed in manufacturing industries, 1900, $446,916,487; 1905, 846,585,023; 1912, estimated at $1,000,000,000,000.

LITTLE CHANCE FOR HAWKES IN LANARK

Special to The Examiner:

TORONTO, Dec. 12.—The Toronto Star's staff correspondent in South Lanark, Ont., where a three-cornered election takes place for the House of Commons, to-morrow, is apparntly of the opinion that "Canada First" Hawkes has little chance of defeating Dr. Hanna, the nominee of the Conservative convention. He says the farmers there are listening attentively to Hawkes, but will vote for Hanna. They think Hawkes and his peculiar politics too clever for them. Hanna has been practising medicine in the riding for many years and his grip on the people is secure and strong.

TO RENDER NAVIGATION MORE SAFE

Special to The Examiner:

OTTAWA, Dec. 12—The Department of Marine and Fisheries still continues to receive communications from shipping owners, bereaved relatives and others, asking that some action be taken at the coming session to render navigation more safe. It is certain that the matter will come before Parliament, but it is not clear what action can be taken. The fund for the widows and orhans of those who lost their lives in the storm continues to grow. It is expected that it will be further supplemented by another appropriation from the government next session.

HON. MR. HAZEN WILL RETIRE

Special Wire to The Examiner.

OTTAWA, Ont., Dec. 12.—Hon. J. D. Hazen, Minister of Marine, will likely retire from the government at the close of the coming session. The Chief Justice of New Brunswick, Sir Frederick Barker, is approaching the statutory limit of his term and will shortly retire. It is understood that Hon. Mr. Hazen will then retire from the turmoil of active politics to the serenity of the high judicial post.

PROTESTS AGAINST ARTICLE

Special Wire to The Examiner.

KINGSTON, Dec. 12—The Canadian Freeman "Catholic" protests against an article entitled "A Rebel Nun" in Queen's University Journal supplement article, saying it is not only obnoxious, but positively indecent. Queen's, it says, has enrolled a large number of Roman Catholic students among men and young women, and these are bound to be protected from insult and calumny.

IN THE WORLD OF SPORT

THE JUNIOR CITY HOCKEY LEAGUE HAS BEEN ORGANIZED WITH FOUR TEAMS

Prospects Are Bright for a Successful Season—Rules and Regulations Discussed by the Meeting

OFFICERS ARE ELECTED

At an enthusiastic meeting held in the Brock Street Rink, last night, the Peterborough Junior City Hockey League was organized, and considerable progress was made towards completing plans for the season.

Mr. M. J. Maher was voted to the chair.

Four teams were admitted to membership—the Alerts, Y. M. C. A., Boston Exploits and Wanderers.

The following officers were elected:

Patons and Patronesses—Dr. and Mrs. Wightman, Mr. and Mrs. G. N. Gordon, Mr. E. A. Peck, M.P.P., and Mrs Peck, Mr. J. H. Burnham, M. P., Ald. J. J. and Mrs. Duffus, Ald. Geo. A. and Mrs. Gillespie, Ald. Wm. and Mrs. Butler.

Hon. President—C. G. Graham.
President—M. J. Maher.
Vice-President—R. M. Glover.
Sec.-Treas.—H. T. Theobald.
Executive—The officers and a representative from each club.

Bright prospects face the League. The teams are enthusiastic and the organization should prove a good feeding ground for the O. H. A. teams. President Maher pointed out this fact to the representatives last night and urged upon them the principle that there was something more than the mere winning of the championship to be considered.

The following rules were discussed at the meeting and will probably be passed at the next meeting:

1. This league shall be called the Peterborough Junior City Hockey League.

2. Players in this League must not have attained their twentieth birthday before January 1st of the year in which they intend to play. Every player must file with the Secretary of the League an official document issued by the Registrar-General's Department or a local Registrar, or an extract from a Church baptismal record that the said player had not attained his 20th birthday on the first day of January of the year in which he intends playing, and no certificate shall be issued to any player without such declaration.

3. No player shall take part in any League game until the referee has been furnished with a list of the players and has been shown their certificates.

4. No Club shall be allowed to take out more than twelve certificates.

5. No player shall take part in any League game unless he has been a resident of Peterborough continuously from the fifteenth of December.

6.—No member of this year's Peterborough Intermediate or Junior O. H. A. teams shall be allowed to compete in this League, with the exception that if at any time during the O. H. O. season, the O. H. A. team should require the services of a City League player, that player shall be allowed to finish the season with his City League Club.

7. The annual entrance fee to each Club shall be $2.

8. Each certificate must be signed by the player, the President and Secretary of his Club, and the President and Secretary of the League.

9. Each Club shall place in the hands of the Secretary not later than seven days before the first scheduled game a sum sufficient to pay its share of the cost of renting the Rink for the season, this money to be forfeited to the League in the event of the Club dropping out after the first game.

10. Each Club shall be furnished with twenty-five season tickets, to sell at 50c each, the money to be the property of the Club selling these tickets.

11. Protests must be in writing, must be in the hands of the Secretary of the League within twenty-four hours of the advertised time of the match protested, and must be accompanied by a deposit of $5, which sum shall be forfeited to the League should the Executive disallow the protest. The defending Club shall within twenty-four hours of being notified by the League Secretary of the protest, deposit a like sum of $5, which shall be forfeited in the event of the protest being decided against them.

12. Referees shall be appointed by the League Secretary, in cases where the competing teams cannot agree upon officials. The Secretary must be notified at least 48 hours before the game in question where the clubs fail to agree.

13. The officers of this League shall consist of Patrons and Patronesses, Hon.-President, President, a Vice-President, a Secretary-Treasurer and an Executive composed of one member from each Club.

14. The Secretary-Treasurer shall take charge of all funds, shall look after the taking of gates and shall hold the receipts in trust, to be divided after expenses are paid among the League teams.

15. No member of the Executive shall be allowed to vote upon a protest in which his Club is directly or indirectly concerned.

This was followed by the nomination and election of officers for the ensuing season, the results being as follows:

Hon. President—Mr. J. T. C. Lang.
President—Mr. W. Nelson.
Vice-President—Mr. Frank Russell.
Sec'y-Treasurer—Mr. Horace Walkie.
Executive Committee—Messrs. Harris, Joe Maynard and Maurice Park.

The following teams were entered:

The meeting was then adjourned until Wednesday next, the 17th inst., to afford an opportunity for other teams to make application for admission to the League.

THE MERCANTILE HOCKEY LEAGUE RE-ORGANIZED

Four Teams Have Been Entered —Meeting Last Evening—Officers Appointed

A meeting of hockey fans was held last evening in the Board Room of the Y.M.C.A. to re-organize the Mercantile Hockey League of this City for the coming season.

The stick handlers were well represented and soon came down to business.

In the unavoidable absence of the President (Mr. J. T. C. Lang), Mr. Frank Russell, the last year's manager of "The Examiner" hockey team, acted as chairman.

The minutes of the last meeting having been read and confirmed, Mr. T. Moffatt (the genial "Tommy"), the secretary announced that, owing to circumstances over which he had no control, he was obliged to lay his resignation before the meeting. A vote of thanks for his past useful services was proposed, seconded, carried unanimously and tendered to him. In reply, "Tommy" expressing his thanks, assured the meeting that he would still interest himself, as far as possible, in the welfare of the Mercantile League.

The accounts of the past season were then submitted and passed.

An alteration in the constitution of the League was then considered. This was to the effect that intermediate O.H.A. players of the present season be barred. After some discussion the motion was carried.

The nomination of patrons and patronesses was then proceeded with, and the following list was adopted:

OLD COUNTRY RUGBY AND SOCCER FIXTURES FOR TO-MORROW

A full list of both Rugby and soccer games is scheduled in the Old Country for Saturday. The "Rovers" will have to play hard if they want to maintain their strong position at the head of the table, as they journey to Oldham to play the Athletics. Oldham are sure to be out to avenge the 7 to 1 defeat that the "Rovers" inflicted on them last season. The "Villans" and the "Spurs" will settle differences at Birmingham. Manchester United entertain Bradford City at Old Trafford, when the followers of the red rose should have no difficulty in notching another two points.

"Peacocks" at Home.

Leeds City are scheduled to meet the "Fishermen" from Grimsby at Elland Road, and judging by the dope sheet the "Peacocks" should just about manage to scrape home. Notts County should still share honours with Bradford at the top of the table after their battle with Huddersfield. The two teams in the cellar division, Glossop and Notts Forest, play against each other.

Swindon Shoud Win.

Swindon should capture another two points on Saturday at the expense of Exeter City, while the "Palace" have an easy job with Norwich City.

Another Footballer Leaves for Scotland.

All members of the Baracas and Orchard Street football teams are requested to meet at the club to-night at 8 o'clock to spend a social evening with Mr. W. Laurie, who has done such faithful and efficient work in the interest of the football team, and who leaves to-morrow for Scotland.

ST. JAMES' CHURCH MEN WILL BE GENEROUS.

Will Provide Baskets of "Good Cheer" For Those Who Cannot Afford It.

A number of the men of St. James' Methodist Church are making a quiet canvass of the south ward for the purpose of providing a good Christmas dinner for any families who may be in need. Their plan is to secure the names of deserving people whose circumstances will not permit them to purchase other than mere necessities. The St. James men have been making investigations and will overlook no family whatever that are in need of their assistance. Their object is to furnish material good cheer for those who cannot afford it.

TWO LOCAL YOUTHS WERE APPREHENDED

This Afternoon—Alleged to Have Stolen a Sum of Money From a Man Named Ireland

WILL APPEAR TO-MORROW

Laverne Killingbeck and Percy Holland (two local youths), were arrested on Hunter Street this afternoon by a member of the local police force and will appear in the Police Court to-morrow. It is understood that they will face a charge of theft, they (the Examiner is informed) having been arrested for stealing a sum of money from William Ireland, while he was under the influence of liquor.

Holland, one of the two youths, was sentenced to six months' imprisonment in Central Prison some time ago by Magistrate Dumble for vagrancy, and has only been out of prison one month.

Both were witnesses for the defence in the case against James Lebarr, the local bartender, this morning.

PETERBOROUGH POULTRY ARE PRIZE WINNERS

Mr. Archie Breault has returned from Guelph where he attended the big poultry show in company with several other members of the Peterborough Poultry Association. The display was the biggest in the history of Guelph, and in the White Wyandotte class there were over 90 entries. All the judging has not been completed, but Mr. Breault states that Mr. Lush, Mr. McClelland and Mr. Gross, of Peterborough, are all in the money and have made a good showing.

OBITUARY

THE LATE MR. DEVELL.

William Burton Devell, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Devell, lot 19, concession 14, Otonabee, passed away yesterday morning. He was only thirty years of age, and the bereaved family will have the sincerest sympathy of their many friends.

About three years ago the unfortunate young man sustained severe internal injuries in an accident, when he fell from a tree. Since that time his health has been failing, and it is to the effect of the accident that his death is attributed.

He is survived by his parents and three sisters, Mary, Luella and Annie, all at home. The deceased young man was of excellent character and his demise will occasion deep regret.

The funeral will be held on Saturday, December 13th, at 2.30 o'clock. The cortege will leave the family residence, lot 19, con 14, Otonabee, and proceed to the Little Lake Cemetery.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

Mr. F. D. Kerr and Mr. L. M. Hayes, K.C., are in Toronto to-day.

Mr. G. N. Gordon returned from a business trip to Toronto this morning.

Mr. W. Packwood left the city early this morning en route for England.

Miss Gertrude Stevens, spent a few days last week with Miss Frances E. Conley, Bowmanville.

Mrs. E. Mundy, of Oshawa, is the guest of his daughter, Mrs. Gumpricht, Aylmer street.

The many friends of Jack Hanrahan will be sorry to hear he is seriously ill at his home, Simcoe Street.

Rev. T. J. Mansell, of Peterborough, was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. M. A. James, at Lorne Villa, while in town.—Bowmanville News.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Hipperson, of Regina, who have been the guests for a few days of Mrs. Hipperson's mother, Mrs. Gumpricht, Aylmer street, left yesterday on an extended trip to the Old Country and the Continent.

Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Page of Toronto, are in town, guests of Mr. Page's sister, Mrs. Geo. Norcliff, Aylmer Street. They intend staying here for the holidays. Mr. Page is the son of Mrs. (Edwin) Sarah Page, formerly of Peterborough, and was married a month ago in Toronto.

Stock Markets

A. H. Stratton & Co., Brokers, report the following:

To-morrow should see a better stock market, raiding of New Haven encountered resistence in the last issues. The short interests is now of very extensive proportions every where. Attention is directed to the fact that the New Haven developments have done much to advertise the attractiveness of the best railroad securities, especially stocks of those companies that show a strong margin of safety over dividends and the equities of which is shown by "other income" prove a substantial reserve upon which to fall back in case of hard times being prolonged. There is no climbing after stocks, but advantage is taken of every professional said to buy stocks. These holdings are not expected to come out upon the market again for a long time and will not be sold except at very much higher prices, even though the reaction in trade should necessitate a few dividend reductions. Special attention is being directed to the advisability of buying C.P.R., S. P., U. P., G.Q.

ENJOYABLE EVENING AT THE Y.W.C.A.

Thursday night was "Red Letter" evening in the history of the Y.W.'s many entertainments. There have been many interesting evenings but certainly there never was a more enjoyable one than the entertaining of Mr. Thompson's class of young men from the Y.M.C.A. About fifty were present, the girls befrilled and bewitching wore their best gowns and sweetest smiles, "queens" every one of them.

After promenading for some time in order that everyone might become acquainted, a book-guessing contest for which prizes were given, was begun and many were the laughs over the mistakes—especially as the representations were so easy.

Later the entertainers and entertained were divided into groups of eight, each singing some well known song. These songs were very much enjoyed and heartily entered into by all. Miss Ada Black, who accompanied the singers on the piano, contributed very much to the success of the evening as also did the "Mandolin Club," who were kind enough to favour us with several selections.

After a dainty supper, a vote of thanks proposed by Mr. Thompson to the secretaries of the Y.W., and the young ladies, for the very delightful evening spent, was heartily seconded by the young men and the most enjoyable evening closed with the singing of "Auld Lang Syne," many handshakes and "come agains."

TO CHECK A COLD
It is easy to check a cold if you begin in time. Frequent doses of Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine keep the cough loose, allay the inflammation, and so prevent it spreading to the bronchial tubes and lungs. Mrs. S. M. Moore, Shortread, B.C., writes: "I wish to state my gratitude for Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine, for it cured a cold which a friend said would soon put me in the grave."

WOOD AND ITS VARIOUS USES IN BUILDING AND INDUSTRIES

Paper and address given by Joseph Begley at the third fortnightly meeting of the Peterborough Mutual Improvement Club.

In opening, the speaker referred briefly to the origin of wood and the use it was first put to Peterborough County and the vicinity was pictured as one of the greatest white pine districts in the world. A few of those stately pines are yet to be seen at Crawford's Grove, Cemetery Point and Inverlea Park. They are relics of bygone days, and if they were now as numerous and as good as when our fathers were boys we would have a county as valuable as any district in New Ontario.

After describing the life and habits of the shanty men and lumber jacks, the speaker told how at one time there were as many as ten large sawmills in operation between the Locks Bridge and Lakefield. This was just as busy a town, if not more so, than it is to-day, considering the difference in size. Lindsay thirty-five years ago was a better town by far than it is to-day. The saw logs were towed up and down the river by boat. It would be safe to say that there were five steamboats on that river in those days for every one there is to-day. The Bobcaygeon, Sampson Anglo-Saxon and the Vanderbilt were the names of some of the boats. At that time there were five sawmills in operation in that town, and some of them employed more men than any in this district. The speaker told how Gilmour and Rathburn floated their logs down the Otonabee a few years ago.

Pine.

In common pine there are three classes, white red and jack pine. White pine is the best material of the three, because it is soft, light, durable and can be very easily worked. Red pine is a harder material containing more resin, and is much stronger. Jack pine has the bad qualities of being weak very resinous, difficult to work and perishable. There are one hundred and seventy five million feet of pine used in Ontario a year. The bulk of the white pine in Ontario has been cut, and it will become scarcer and dearer every year in future. There is no wood on the market that has so many different prices as pine; it varies from $17 to $18 per thousand to $65, and in the vicinity of New York it comes as high as $130. Pine is the most used of any wood in Ontario, and there is double the money expended for this wood than for all others—$4,492,881.

Spruce.

Spruce comes next in quantity used. There are four species of spruce, white, red, black and Sitka, but white spruce forms the greater part of the spruce used. White spruce will grow almost any place, and it is Canada's main pulp wood. It is gradually taking the place of white pine for boxes and in many other places. Compared to white pine it is less durable, harder to work and not as strong. On account of it being tasteless and odorless it is more valuable in many cases for boxes and barrels. Red spruce comes from the Maritime Provinces, and is valuable on account of its texture. Black spruce is of little use because of its small size. A Sitka spruce comes from British Columbia, and is used for sounding boards in pianos and organs, also for masts and spars for large vessels. Spruce should not be used for pulp as balsam firm, poplar, white birch and jack pine will make good pulp, and are woods of little working value. There are $2,197,460 paid in Ontario for spruce each year.

Maple.

There are only two classes of maple, hard and soft—curled and bird's eye maple are accidental forms. Maple comes third in quantity used, and fourth in amount of money expended —$1,874,686. This is a hard, stiff wood, difficult to season, shrinks considerably, and checks badly. Great quantities are used in flooring and furniture.

Hemlock.

It may surprise many to know that this wood comes fourth in the quantity used. There is a much superior class of this wood grown in British Columbia, but we have not started to import it as yet, as we have abundance in Ontario. There is no hemlock in New Ontario. It is a very poor wood, brittle, cross-grained, hard to work, and will warp and twist and check badly. It is stiff, without resin, will hold nails well and comes between pine and spruce for durability. The greatest points in its favour are its cheapness and abundance. Ninety per cent. of the hemlock is used in building construction for framework or rough sheeting.

Oak.

More oak is imported into Ontario in a year than any other kind of wood; only 40 per cent. of the consumption is procured at home. About 60 per cent. comes from the United States. In 1911 there was only six million feet of oak cut in Ontario. There are only three kinds of oak of any commercial importance. White oak is the most valuable and forms the greater part of the oak used. Next in importance comes red oak, which is not as strong nor as durable as white oak, but is more easily worked. Scrub white oak or blue oak is the hardest and toughest of the three kinds. There is paid out each year for oak $2,777,533, the second largest amount paid for any one kind of wood; at the same time it ranks fifth in quantity used.

Elm.

Elm is one of the most universally popular hardwoods in Ontario. It is used for every purpose for which a hardwood can be used; it is sometimes hard to distinguish from ash. There are three kinds: white, rock and soft elm. White is the best for general use; it is not durable, hard to season and is liable to warp and twist. Rock elm is the most valuable wood of the three; it is hard, tough, strong and durable under ordinary circumstances. It is very scarce, and is only found in Southern Ontario. Soft or slippery elm is coarse grained. Very little of this class is used; it is liable to cup shakes. Elm is used principally in making cheap furniture, boxes, barrels, fruit baskets and packages. There is $1,227,866 paid for elm each year. It ranks sixth in quantity used. While there are 88 million feet of maple used per year, and 60 million of oak, elm comes next with 52 million feet.

Basswood.

Basswood comes seventh in quantity used. There is only one kind used in Ontario. There may be other species, but they are of no importance. This wood is soft and not durable. If exposed to the weather must be well and often painted, or soaked with oil. Its value lies in the fact that it is easily worked, does not warp or check and is very tough, holding nails well, and will glue up better than other wood of the same softness. It is used for the same purposes as elm. Makes good food boxes on account of the lack of taste and odour.

Birch.

Birch is the next in line. There are three species: sweet, yellow and white birch. The most largely used is sweet birch — the kind used for flooring and furniture. Yellow birch is the same as sweet birch in every way but colour. White birch is the commonest kind but does not grow to timber size, and is only used for turnings, such as spools, toys and wooden ware. Birch is very plentiful in Canada. It is easily worked, takes a high polish and can be stained to imitate more expensive woods, like mahogany, cherry or walnut. Birch is hard to season, and, like all hardwoods, is better if dried slowly and not forced. This wood is very perishable.

Beech.

Number nine in quantity used is beech, the cheapest of Canada's hardwood. There is only one species. This wood is not a first-class material. While it is hard, strong and tough, it is often cross-grained, is very perishable and is most liable to warp and check after seasoning. This timber is common in Ontario, and is chiefly used as firewood, but is sometimes used for barrel heads, and is mixed in with birch and maple for flooring. It makes good flooring, and takes a high polish. We import very little of this wood, if any.

Hard Pine.

This wood does not grow in Canada, but is imported from the United States. There are four distinct species: long leaf or Georgia pine, short leaf or southern pine, Cuban or yellow pine and Loblolly or Carolina pine. The Georgia and yellow or Cuban pine are the most used in this country. This pine is all very much alike; Georgia or long leaf pine is practically the same as Cuban or yellow, and is easily the best of the four. Over 27 million feet of this wood were used in Ontario last year, oak alone being imported in greater quantity. As is the best structural wood in use; it is also used in buildings, agricultural implements, cars and vehicles.

Ash.

This is another native hardwood. Its use covers a wide range. There are two species: white and black. White ash is the most valuable; it is hard, heavy and strong, with a coarse straight grain. Its chief value lies in its toughness. It is used for framework of all sorts in vehicles, cars and agricultural implements. It is also used largely for long handles. Black ash is much softer and weaker, and is used for decorative work. More ash is used for interior finish on houses than for any other work. This is on account of the attractive grain; it is often stained to imitate oak. It is more durable than white ash. No other wood is used as much in the making of refrigerators. While a short time ago we had ash to sell to other countries, to-day we are importing 29 per cent. of what we use.

Hickory.

Ninety-two per cent. of the hickory used in Ontario is imported from the United States. This is the most valuable structural wood used on account of its hardness, strength and toughness; in this way it excells all other native hardwoods. There is a number of species, but the trade only deals with two: shagbark and pignut. This wood is used chiefly by makers of vehicle supplies and tool handles.

Cypress.

This is a soft wood, and is a native of the southern states. It is a swamp tree; the soil that grows this wood is under water for three parts of the year, and it takes two hundred years to grow a tree to timber size. At the rate that it is coming into use it will not be long until this wood will become extinct. It is light and soft, with a fine straight grain. Once seasoned it holds its shape well, and will last longer than any other soft wood. Its grain and figure are bringing it greatly into use for interior work. Canadian jack pine is sometimes miscalled Cypress, but it is greatly inferior to true bold Cypress.

Tulip or Whitewood.

This wood is similar to basswood, but very little is cut for the trade in Canada. About 21 per cent. is imported. We use about three million feet a year. It is used in this country for piano framework and car sheeting. It costs $54 per thousand.

Cedar.

Cedar is the most durable of native softwoods, and is the best for ties, poles, shingles, fence posts and rails. The only lumber that can compare with cedar in this regard is Cypress. There are two species: white cedar of the East and western red cedar. The red cedar of the West is not as good as our white, but is more abundant and grows to larger size, but is less durable. Ontario cedar is a favourite wood for small boats.

Mahogany.

There are a great number of woods that go by this name. The real mahogany is very strong, elastic and strong, close-grained, easy to work and holds glue better than any other wood, and sells at from $150 to $250 per thousand. This is real Cuban mahogany. There are only two woods coming into this country that cost more: Spanish cedar and ebony, but there is very little of those used.

Tamarack.

This wood is similar to hard pine. It is used for framing and floors. There is not much of a demand for this at present. It is expected that this wood will be used more in the future for sheeting. It is hard to work. It is abundant in Canada.

Cherry.

Black cherry is the only species in use by the trade. It is a very beautiful wood; it is heavy, hard and strong, with a fine straight grain, easy to work and takes a fine polish. It is used in the best of railway coaches and office furniture. We import about 60 per cent. of what we use.

Walnut.

Canadian walnut is more or less a curiosity at the present time. A few years ago walnut was the fashion for furniture as oak and mahogany are now. It is used at present almost entirely for piano and organ case work. It costs about $180 per thousand today.

Butternut.

Butternut is sometimes called white walnut, which is resembles in grain, but is softer and weaker. It is used in the East, largely by boat builders.

Red Cedar.

Properly called Juniper, this wood is not used to any great extent on account of its size. Moth-proof chests and ornaments are sometimes made from this wood.

Lignum Vitae.

This is a tropical American wood of special value on account of its hardness, heaviness and durability. It is used for bearings, mallets, dowels and on account of it being of a close porous nature, it is used in connection with electric work.

Box Wood.

This wood is used for the same purpose as Lignum Vitae. It comes from Turkey, and is often used for making wood engravings.

There is no scientific explanation as to the cause of the beautiful variation of grain which is the cause of figure in wood. It may be safe to say that there are two causes. One is inherent, and the other the cause of the most beautiful forms is accidental. But where both causes combine they very often form a picture of Nature which no artist can reproduce. When colour, figure and texture form a happy combination the result is charming, and the wood is very valuable. Those silver-like lines that appear in beech and oak are an inherent figure; in order to show this figure to the best advantage the wood is cut on the quarter. Wood made beautiful from foreign or accidental causes are valuable for decorative purposes, yet, on the other hand, in timber required for structural purposes, the straightness of grain is the first consideration. High winds may cause those different and beautiful figures if the tree grows in a valley where one side is always sheltered from wind or sun. It is generally known among lumbermen that trees grown in the centre of a forest yield straighter-grained timber than those grown on the outskirts.

The bird's-eye maple grows on a tree in every other way the same as plain maple. The cause of this peculiar figure is by some attributed to the action of birds picking at the bark. Whether this is right I cannot say, but it is the only cause I can find. Sudden variations in temperature is another cause, and I think a good one for it is well-known that in districts where there are little or no variations from one year to another the timber is of a more regular form.

Decay of Timber.

Wooden coffins in which some Egyptians were buried in thousands of years ago are in as perfect condition to-day as when they were first planted. What causes decay in wood? The answer is a low form of plant life. I don't know whether it would be proper to call it a microbe, but it is of that nature. They are very small and cannot be seen by the naked eye, but their power of destruction is very great. They can grow in light or total darkness, but they must have air, food, moisture and heat. If one or more of these are lacking they cannot live, therefore, by taking away any of those requirements the decay of timber cannot take place. The Egyptian coffins were air-dry, and where this can be accomplished there will be no moisture. Wood constantly in water never rots. A large percentage of the wood used is exposed to the weather and is subject to decay, which may be prevented by treating the wood with antiseptics which poison the food supply. The most common methods used are creosote, wax and oils.

When in doubt which wood is best, use white oak, it stands the test.

HIS INTENTION WAS O. K.

It was a broiling hot day in the Park, and those walking therein were well-nigh exhausted when a very stout old lady came bustling along, closely followed by a rough-looking tramp. Twice she commanded him to leave her, but still he followed just behind. At last the old lady, quite disgusted, turned angrily around and said: "Look here, my man, if you don't go away I shall call a policeman." The poor fellow looked up with a tear in his eye, and then remarked: "For goodness sake, mum, have mercy and don't call a policeman, for ye're the only shady spot in the park."

"That Affair Next Door"

By ANNA KATHARINE GREEN

But a surprise awaited me at the breakfast table in the shape of a communication from that gentleman. It had just been brought from my house by Lena, and it ran thus:

"Dear Miss Butterworth:

"Pardon our interference. We have found the rings which you think so conclusive an evidence of guilt against the person secreting them; and, with your permission (this was basely underlined), Mr. Franklin Van Burnam will be in custody to-day.

"I will wait upon you at ten.

"Respectfully yours,

"Ebenezar Gryce."

Franklin Van Burnam! Was I dreaming? Franklin Van Burnam accused of the crime and in custody! What did it mean? I had found no evidence against Franklin Van Burnam.

BOOK III.

The Girl in Grey.

XXIX.

Amelia Becomes Peremptory.

"Madam, I hope I see you satisfied?"

This was Mr. Gryce's greeting as he entered my parlour on that memorable morning.

"Satisfied?" I repeated, rising and facing him with what he afterwards described as a stony glare.

"Pardon me! I suppose you would have been still more satisfied if we had waited for you to point out the guilty man to us. But you must make some allowances for professional egotism, Miss Butterworth. We really could not allow you to take this initiatory step in a matter of such importance."

"Oh!" was my sole response; but he has since told me that there was a great deal in that oh; so much, that even he was startled by it.

"You set to-day for a talk with me," he went on; "probably relying upon what you intended to assure yourself of yesterday. But our discovery at the same time as yourself of the rings in Mr. Van Burnam's office, need not interfere with your giving us your full confidence. The work you have done has been excellent, and we are disposed to give you considerable credit for it."

"Indeed!"

I had no choice but to thus indulge in ejaculations. The communication he had just made was so startling, and his assumption of my complete understanding of and participation in the discovery he professed to have made, so puzzling, that I dared not venture beyond these simple exclamations, lest he should see the state of mind into which he had thrown me, and shut up like an oyster.

"We have kept counsel over what we have found, I am very glad to confess entirely with a motive which I wish I could imitate, but which unhappily belongs to him alone. "I hope that you, or your maid, I should say, have been equally discreet."

My maid!

"I see you are touched; but women find it so hard to keep a secret. But it does not matter. To-night the whole town will know that the older and not the younger brother has had these rings in his keeping."

"It will be nuts for the papers," I commented; then making an effort, I remarked: "You are a most judicious man, Mr. Gryce, and must have other reasons than the discovery of these rings for your threatened arrest of a man of such excellent repute as Silas Van Burnam's eldest son. I should like to hear them, Mr. Gryce. I should like to hear them very much."

My attempt to seem at ease under these embarrassing conditions must have given a certain sharpness to my tone; for, instead of replying, he remarked, with well simulated concern and a fatherly humouring of my folly peculiarly exasperating to one of my temperament: "You are displeased, Miss Butterworth, because we did not let you find the rings."

"Perhaps; but we were engaged in an open field. I could not expect the police to stand aside for me."

"Exactly! Especially when you have the secret satisfaction of having put the police on the track of these jewels."

"How?"

"We were simply fortunate in laying our hands on them first. You, or your maid rather, showed us where to look for them."

Lena again.

I was so dumfounded by this last assertion, I did not attempt to reply. Fortunately, he misinterpreted my silence and the "stony glare" with which it was accompanied.

"I know that it must seem to you altogether too bad, to be tripped up at the moment of your anticipated triumph. But if apologies will suffice to express our sense of presumption, then I pray you to accept them, Miss Butterworth, both on my own part and on that of the Superintendent of Police."

I did not understand in the least what he was talking about, but I recognized the sarcasm of his final expression, and had spirit enough to reply:

"The subject is too important for any more nonsense. Whereabouts in Franklin Van Burnam's desk were these rings found, and how do you know that his brother did not put them there?"

"Your ignorance is refreshing, Miss Butterworth. If you will ask a certain young girl dressed in grey, upon what object connected with Mr. Van Burnam's desk she laid her hands yesterday morning, you will have an answer to your first question. The second one is still more easily answered. Mr. Howard Van Burnam did not conceal the rings in the Duane Street office for the reason that he has not been in that office since his wife was killed. Regarding this fact we are as well advised as yourself. Now you change colour, Miss Butterworth. But there is no necessity. For an amateur you have made less trouble and fewer mistakes than were to be expected."

Worse and worse! He was patronizing me now, and for results I had done nothing to bring about. I surveyed him in absolute amazement. Was he amusing himself with me, or was he himself deceived as to the motive and drama of my late interference? This was a question to settle, and at once; and as duplicity had hitherto proved my best weapon in dealing with Mr. Gryce, I concluded to resort to it in this emergency. Clearing my brow, I regarded with a more amenable air the little Hungarian vase he had taken up on entering the room, and into which he had been talking ever since he thought it worth while to compliment its owner.

"I do not wish," said I, "to be published to the world as the discoverer of Franklin Van Burnam's guilt. But I do want credit with the police, if only because one of their number has chosen to look upon my efforts with disdain. I mean you, Mr. Gryce; so, if you are in earnest"—he smiled at the vase most genially—"I will accept your apologies just so far as you honour me with your confidence. I know you are anxious to hear what evidence I have collected, or you would not be wasting time on me this busy morning."

"Shrewd!" was the short ejaculation he shot into the mouth of the vase he was handling.

"If that term of admiration is intended for me," I remarked, "I am sure I am only too sensible of the honour. But flattery has never succeeded in making me talk against my better judgment. I may be shrewd, but a fool could see what you are after this morning. Compliment me when I have deserved it. I can wait."

"I begin to think that what you withhold so resolutely has more than common value, Miss Butterworth. If this is so, I must not be the only one to listen to your explanations. Is not that a carriage I hear stopping? I am expecting Inspector Z——. If that is he you have been wise to delay your communications till he came."

A carriage was stopping, and it was the Inspector who alighted from it. I began to feel my importance in a way that was truly gratifying, and cast my eyes up at the portrait of my father with a secret longing that its original stood by to witness the verification of his prophecy.

But I was not so distracted by these thoughts as not to make one attempt to get something from Mr. Gryce before the Inspector joined us.

"Why do you speak to me of my maid in one breath and of a girl in grey in another? Did you think Lena——"

"Hush!" he enjoined, "we will have ample opportunities to discuss this subject later."

"Will we?" thought I. "We will discuss nothing till I know more positively what you are aiming at."

But I showed nothing of this determination in my face. On the contrary, I became all affability as the Inspector entered, and I did the honours of the house in a way I hope my father would have approved of, had he been alive and present.

Mr. Gryce continued to stare into the vase.

"Miss Butterworth,"—it was the Inspector who was speaking,—"I have been told that you take great interest in the Van Burnam murder, and that you have even gone so far as to collect some facts in connection with it which you have not as yet given to the police."

"You have heard correctly," I returned. "I have taken a deep interest in this tragedy, and have come into possession of some facts in reference to it which as yet I have imparted to no living soul."

Mr. Gryce's interest in my poor little vase increased marvellously. Seeing this, I complacently continued:

"I could not have accomplished so much had I indulged in a confidant. Such work as I have attempted depends for its success upon the secrecy with which it is carried on. That is why amateur work is sometimes more effective than professional. No one suspected me of making inquiries, unless it was this gentleman, and he was forewarned of my possible interference. I told him that in case Howard Van Burnam was put under arrest, I should take it upon myself to stir up matters, and I have."

"Then you do not believe in Mr. Van Burnam's guilt? Not even in his complicity, I suppose?" ventured the Inspector.

"I do not know anything about his complicity; but I do not believe the stroke given to his wife came from his hand."

"I see, I see. You believe it the work of his brother."

I stole a look at Mr. Gryce before replying. He had turned the vase upside down, and was intently studying its label; but he could not conceal his expectation of an affirmative answer. Greatly relieved, I immediately took the position I had resolved upon, and calmly but vigorously observed:

"What I believe, and what I have learned in support of my belief, will sound as well in your ears ten minutes hence as now. Before I give you the result of such inquiries as I have been enabled to make, I require to know what evidence you have yourself collected against the gentleman you have just named, and in what respect it is as criminating as that against his brother?"

"Is not that peremptory, Miss Butterworth? And do you think us called upon to part with all or any of the secrets of our office? We have informed you that we have new and startling evidence against the older brother; should not that be sufficient for you?"

"Perhaps so if I were an assistant of yours, or even in your employ. But I am neither; I stand alone, and although I am a woman and unused to this business, I have earned, as I think you will acknowledge later, the right to some consideration on your part. I cannot present the facts I have to relate in a proper manner till I know just how the case stands."

"It is not curiosity that troubles Miss Butterworth—Madam, I said it was not curiosity—but a laudable desire to have the whole matter arranged with precision," dropped now in his dryest tones from the detective's lips.

"My Gryce has a most excellent understanding of my character," I gravely observed.

The Inspector looked nonplussed. He glanced at Mr. Gryce and he glanced at me, but the smile of the former was inscrutable, and my expression, if I showed any, must have betrayed but little relenting.

"If called as a witness, Miss Butterworth,"—this was how he sought to manage me,—"you will have no choice in the matter. You will be compelled to speak or show contempt of court."

"That is true," I acknowledged. "But it is not what I might feel my self called upon to say then, but what I can say now, that is of interest to you at this present moment. So be generous, gentlemen, and satisfy my curiosity, for such Mr. Gryce considers it, in spite of his assertions to the contrary. Will it not all come out in the papers a few hours hence, and have I not earned as much at your hands as the reporters?"

"The reporters are our bane. Do not liken yourself to the reporters."

"Yet they sometimes give you a valuable clue."

Mr. Gryce looked as if he would like to disclaim this, but he was a judicious soul, and merely gave a twist to the vase which I thought would cost me that small article of vertu.

"Shall we humour Miss Butterworth?" asked the Inspector.

"We will do better," answered Mr. Gryce, letting the vase down with a precision that made me jump; for I am a worshipper of bric-a-brac, and prize the few articles I own, possibly beyond their real value. "We will treat her as a coadjutor, which, by the way, she says she is not, and by the trust we place in her, secure that discretionary use of our confidence which she shows with so much spirit in regard to her own."

"Begin then," said I.

"I will," said he, "but first allow me to acknowledge that you are the person who first put us on the track of Franklin Van Burnam."

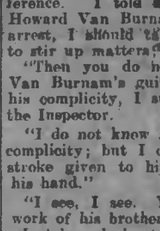
KANSAS WOMAN WHO SUFFERED

From Headache, Backache, Dizziness and Nervousness, Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.



Lawrence, Kans.—"A year ago I was suffering from a number of ailments. I always had pain and was irregular. During the delay I suffered a great deal with headache, backache, dizziness, feverish spells, nervousness and bloating. I had been married nearly three years. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and now I feel better than I have for years. I recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to all who suffer as I did."—Mrs. M. ZEUNER, 1045 New Jersey Street, Lawrence, Kansas.

Montana Woman's Case.

Burns, Mont.—"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound cured me of awful backache which I had suffered with for months. I was so weak I could hardly do my work and my head and eyes ached all the time. Your Compound helped me in many ways and is a great strengthener. I always recommend it to my friends and tell them what a grand medicine it is for women. You may use my name for the good of others."—Mrs. JOHN FRANCIS, Burns, Montana.

The makers of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound have thousands of such letters as those above—they tell the truth, else they could not have been obtained for love or money. This medicine is no stranger—it has stood the test for years.

Try Triscuit To-day

Food science has taught us that there is much body-building nutriment in the whole wheat grain which we do not get in white flour. The only question is how to make the whole wheat grain digestible. That problem has been solved in the making of

TRISCUIT

The Shredded Whole Wheat Wafer

It is the whole wheat, steam-cooked, shredded, compressed into a wafer and baked—the maximum of nutriment in smallest bulk. Many people prefer it to ordinary bread toast. Heated in the oven to restore its crispness, it is delicious for luncheon, or for any meal, with butter, potted cheese or marmalades.

WILL INVITE BELLISS TO MAKE HOME IN TORONTO

LONDON, Dec. 11.—Mendel Melliss, hero of the Kiev ritual murder trials, and whom the malicious and unreasoning persecution of the Russian authorities has made world-famous, has a whole family of cousins living in London.

Abraham Packer, of Simcoe Street, is a relative of Belliss, and saw him almost daily until he left Kiev eight years ago to come to Canada, where he has since resided in London.

When Belliss' photograph appeared in the newspapers, Mr. Packer readily recognised it, despite the eight years since they had parted.

Wrote to Packers.

After Belliss' liberation he wrote to Mr and Mrs. Packer, and they replied, joining in the invitation of thousands of other Americans to come to the new world. He will come to New York not later than next spring, and Mr. Packer intends to visit him upon his arrival there, and invite him to come to London.

Mr. and Mrs. Packer are happy parents of a family of eight—six girls and two boys, ranging in age from a pretty baby girl laughing and cooing in her mother's arms, to a grown-up daughter, who left London recently to reside in New York. Every member of their family are proud of their relationship to Mendel Belliss.

Number of Kiev Jews.

There are quite a number of Russian Jews in London who come from Kiev and district, but as far as could be ascertained there are none besides Mr. Packer and family who can claim relationship or intimate friendship with the man who has suffered and languished in prison, who has been figuratively crucified, for the whole Jewish race. A great many London Jews are familiar with Kiev, and describe it as a progressive city, with street cars, good pavements, gas and electric lighting.

Once Residence of Tsars.

Kiev, Mr. Packer pointed out, used to be the first city in Russia, and at one time was a place of residence of the Russian Tsar. It has now a population of 120,000. It is located on a wide, beautiful river, which is both a great commercial and scenic asset.

Mendel Belliss was working in the same brickyard when Mr. Packer left Russia eight years ago, that he was working in when he was arrested and charged with the murder of the Christian boy. Belliss had a little son the same age, and who attended the same school as the murdered boy, Andrew Yushinsky. Why he should be charged with such a crime only the religious prejudice and bigotry of the Russian Christians can explain.

Starvation Wages.

Although Zeitiv, Belliss' employer, is a man of millions, he pays his brickmakers no more than he has to. Belliss' wife and family of four children were not far from a state of starvation when he was arrested. The co-operation of faithful friends, themselves in poor circumstances, kept the wolf from the door, fed his children, and paid his lawyers to defend him.

In letters to friends in America Belliss gives a graphic account of his life in a Russian jail.

Surrounded by Officials.

After the doors of the chief prison were shut upon him, he says he was surrounded by officials. "What an animal," said one, "look at his eyes. I'll show you, you devil, how to bake Passover cakes with Christian blood."

The captive was taken to a cell with sixty other prisoners. It was damp, dark, and cold, with a cement floor. His fellow-prisoners were quarrelling and crying and swearing. Presently they began discussing the Jew ritual case, of which they already knew, and one of them, seeing he was new to his surroundings, tried to console him. "You are like Dreyfus, the Jew in France," he said, "and you know Dreyfus was innocent."

"At night," Belliss says, "I lay next to a man in chains who was shortly going to Siberia. 'Aren't you afraid of sleeping next to me?' I made answer, 'No, my brother.'

Sent to Solitary Cell.

"But I can strangle you with these chains. Just see,' he said. He attempted to show me, when the other prisoners interfered, telling him not to frighten me.

"This started a violent quarrel, in which all took part, ending with the governor of the prison appearing and ordering all to punishment in a solitary cell for eight days on black bread and water.

"At the expiration of that time I was taken to another cell containing thirty men, all murderers and burglars. They also knew about my case, and the majority of them believed me to be innocent.

"It was here I received my first beating. I sat down on a small bench, when a fellow-prisoner struck me in the face, bringing blood, and I began to cry. The governor appeared and noticed my swollen face. He asked me who did it, and someone pointed out the man. The governor knocked him down and asked why he did it. 'Because he killed a Christian child,' the man replied.

Ten Months of Torture.

After another month of suffering a fellow-prisoner offered to write a letter for him to his wife, and as Melliss' glasses had been taken away he consented.

"As a result," Belliss adds, "I was put into a separate cell, four yards long by three wide. It was terribly cold and damp, with an iron table and bench, and a small window near the ceiling, from which it was impossible to see anything, even the sky. There was no mattress and no bedclothes, and I was almost frozen.

"I walked the floor for hours until, finally exhausted, I fell on my bench. For ten months I was in that awful cell. I suffered dreadfully, especially during the long, cold winter months. My one longing was to see the sky; but, alas! that was impossible. At length one of my feet became frost-bitten, and eventually they removed me to the prison hospital, where I spent a month and a half."

DR. WOOD'S NORWAY PINE SYRUP
Effected A Complete Cure.

Mrs. Thos. A. Julian, Almonte, Ont., writes:—"Just a few lines to let you know how thankful I am for what Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup has done for me. A few years ago I was operated on for appendicitis, and was confined to the hospital for five weeks. When I returned home I contracted a severe cold which left me with a bad cough. A neighbor told my husband about Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup so I decided to try a bottle. When it was finished it had done me so much good I took another which completely cured me. I can very, very strongly recommend it."

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup contains all the lung healing virtues of the famous Norway pine tree, which makes it the very best preparation for Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis, and all Throat and Lung troubles.

DUTY ON LOCK OF DICKENS' HAIR

NEW YORK, Dec. 11.—Charles Dickens' hair, just a little lock of it, valued at $200, is causing a stir at the Customs House. The lock of hair was sent here in a consignment of $5,000 worth of rare books for a local dealer, who declares that the hair was included in the consignment without his knowledge, and who refuses to pay the $70 duty demanded by the Government officials.

Articles of antiquity must be 100 years old to enter the United States free of duty. Dickens was born in 1812, more than 100 years ago, and it has been argued that for this reason the hair should be admitted duty free, even though the lock was cut in later life. The Customs House officials maintain, however, that the lock is not yet an antiquity, and must pay the regular duty on hair, 35 per cent. of its value. The dealer involved has taken the case to the Secretary of the Treasury, asking to be permitted to take the books out of the Customs House, and to have the hair returned to the consigner.

I Will Stake This Medicine Against Your Time

A Few Days Will Be Sufficient to Prove its Value in Your Disease

A few minutes of your time for a few days and I will demonstrate to you, without expense to yourself, that I have a medicine that drives Uric Acid poison from the system and by so doing conquers kidney trouble, bladder trouble and rheumatism. I don't ask you to take my word for it, but simply want you to let me send you some of this medicine so that you can use it personally.

I am trying to convince sufferers from these diseases that I have something far better than the usual run of remedies, treatments and such things, and the only way I can demonstrate that fact is to go to the expense of compounding the medicine and sending it out free of charge. This I am glad to do for any sufferer who will take the time to write me. Understand, I will not send you a valueless "sample, proof or test treatment," nor will I send you a package of medicine and say that you can use some of it and pay for the rest, but I will send you a supply free of charge and you will not be asked to pay for this gift nor will you be under any obligations.

All I want to know is that you have a disease for which my medicine is intended, as it is not a "cure-all," and I give herewith some of the leading symptoms of kidney, bladder and rheumatic troubles. If you notice one or more of these symptoms you need this medicine and I will be glad to send you some of it if you will write me the numbers of the symptoms you have, give your age and your name and address. My address is Dr. T. Frank Lynott, 346 Franklin Building, Toronto, Ont. You promise me nothing; you pay me nothing for it. All I ask is that you send me the numbers of your symptoms or a description in your own words and that you take the medicine according to the directions I send you. It is my way of getting publicity for my medicine so that it will become widely known.

You will agree when you have used it that it dissolves and drives out uric acid poison. It tones the kidneys so that they work in harmony with the bladder. It strengthens the bladder so that frequent desire to urinate and other urinary disorders are banished. It stops rheumatic aches and pains immediately. It dissolves uric acid crystals so that back and muscle aches, aches and crooked joints quickly straighten out. It reconstructs the blood and nerves so that you soon look healthier and stronger, sleep better and eat better and have energy through out the day. It does all this and you contains nothing injurious and is absolutely vouched for according to law.

Sufferers from these dreadful and dangerous diseases can surely afford to spend a few minutes each day for a few days to demonstrate to their own satisfaction if they are curable, especially when you consider no expense is involved, and I willingly give you my time and my medicine. All any fair-minded afflicted person wants to know is if a certain thing will relieve HIM or HER, and here is an opportunity to find out without cost, obligation or important loss of time. THESE FEW DAYS may be the turning point in your life.

All who are interested enough to write me for the free medicine will also receive a copy of my large illustrated medical book which describes these diseases thoroughly. It is the largest book of the kind ever written for free distribution and a new edition is just being printed. I will also write you a letter of instructions and medical advice that should be of great help to you; but in order to do this I must know that you need my medicine. Write me the numbers of the symptoms that trouble you, and your age, and I will promptly carry out my promises. Show an inclination to get well and write me, and I will gladly send you a supply free.

DR. T. FRANK LYNOTT who will send medicine free of charge to those who need it.

These are the Symptoms:

1—Pain in the back.
2—Too frequent desire to urinate.
3—Nervousness, loss of flesh.
4—Pain or soreness in the bladder.
5—Weak, watery blood.
6—Gas or pain in the stomach.
7—General debility, weakness, dizziness.
8—Pain or soreness under right rib.
9—Swelling in any part of the body.
10—Constipation or liver trouble.
11—Palpitation or pain under the heart.
12—Pain in the hip joint.
13—Pain in the neck or head.
14—Pain or soreness in the kidneys.
15—Pain or swelling of the joints.
16—Pain or swelling of the muscles.
17—Pain and soreness in nerves.
18—Acute or chronic rheumatism.

Farmers Will Be Educated in Co operative Selling Methods

NEW BRANCH IS ORGANIZED

TORONTO, Dec. 13.—The Ontario Government, working through the Department of Agriculture, is out gunning for the high prices of farm products in the province. The new organization was announced last evening as the co-operation and markets branch, and F. C. Hart, B.S.A., district representative of Galt, is the man who will take charge.

The purpose of the move is explained by the Hon. J. S. Duff as an endeavor to assist the farmers in the solution of their local marketing problems. The general subject of marketing will be thoroughly discussed in public, and the best methods and means of placing farm produ before the public will be advertised. An important part of the work of the new branch will be in dealing with the preparation of produce for the market, a thing which at the present is often overlooked by the average producer.

The matter of transportation will necessarily be linked up with the subject of freight and produce rates which have been threshed out so vigorously in recent conventions of farmers and market gardeners. The aim will be to allow the grower to arrive at a position where he can secure the best price available and make the demand for his goods more steady and more satisfactorily supplied.

Co-operation and methods contributing to the unity of farmers in the scientific culture of their farms will be one of the greater problems of the new director. In the advocating of better organization, special emphasis will be laid on the business side of farm management. This follows the growing dissatisfaction with the great difference existing between the price the producer receives and that which the consumer pays.

F. C. Hart, the new director, is well qualified for the work he assumes. Born in Nova Scotia in 1878, he is a graduate of the Halifax Academy. After teaching school in rural sections and farming for a number of years, he graduated at the O. A. C. in 1902. He distinguished himself in his class, being president of his year, president of the Junior Literary Society, and staff editor of "The O. A. C. Review." During undergraduate holidays, and for a year after graduating, he was engaged in Federal Government forestry work in the west. In 1907 he returned to Ontario to take the position as district representative for Waterloo County, with headquarters at Galt. He was one of the first half dozen district representatives. He has taken a special interest in all forms of rural organization, having been instrumental in bringing together a number of the Farmers' Clubs which have done excellent service to their several communities.

BIG BATTLE ENDS.

Rates Case Closes After Nearly Two Years of Argument.

OTTAWA, Dec. 13.—"Well, gentlemen, this case is closed," said Chairman H. L. Drayton, K.C., of the Railway Commission, just as the electric clock on the wall of the board room clicked off four o'clock yesterday afternoon.

He gave a sigh of relief and then added smilingly to the assembled counsel before him: "I don't suppose you expect a judgment on this case before to-morrow." Then the regiment of lawyers and their assistants began to gather their briefs, etc., together and five minutes later the room, in which most of the hearings in the western freight case have been heard, was empty. Since February, 1912, the case has dragged its weary way on, absorbing the labor of mathematicians, statisticians, lawyer newspapermen, traffic and tariff experts, almost ad infinitum, and now the judgment day will be awaited with interest by half the nation, as the judgment, whatever it be, will affect the whole country in some way or other.

It is reported that the judgment will be given without much delay.

Scrip Has Gone Astray.

LONDON, Dec. 13.—In connection with the recent issue of £4,000,000 Dominion of Canada four per cent. stock The Times says that several pieces of scrip have gone astray. These pieces may bear the lithograph signature of Sir Frederick Williams Taylor, but as there is a possibility that the missing scrip may get into circulation, the bank has adopted the precaution of having all the genuine scrip countersigned by another official as "pro accountant," and bankers, stock brokers, and others are warned against negotiating or dealing in any way with scrip of the above-mentioned issue not so countersigned.

Wireless a Saver.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13. — Every commercial vessel lost in the recent great lakes storm was not equipped by wireless; all that were had warning and sought places of safety. This fact was pointed out in a statement yesterday by Secretary of Commerce Redfield. He said the total death list in the storm had now been fixed at 244.

Want Forty Thousand Men.

LONDON, Dec. 13.—A newspaper advertising campaign for recruits to the British army is to be undertaken in all parts of the country. The War Office has become convinced of the value of the newspapers as a medium and has placed a contract with the head of the regular advertising agency to conduct the campaign during the next year on a large scale.

No less than 40,000 men are needed to fill vacancies in British regiments.

Hon. J. D. Hazen Says Stefansson Party Is Quite Amicable.

OTTAWA, Dec. 13.—Speaking of the theory that Stefansson has been abandoned by the Karlux, Hon. J. D. Hazen, Minister of Marine, said yesterday:

"The story is not only absolutely unfounded and unwarranted by anything that has occurred in regard to the expedition, but it is a most serious allegation to make against the character of the scientists who accompanied Stefansson.

"We have not a shred of information which would justify such a theory," he continued. "The Stefansson expedition was better equipped than any previous venture of its kind ever sent north. Supplies abundant enough to last for three years were carried, and every possible provision was made, not only for the subsistence, but for the comfort of the men. Everything furnished to the crew, as well as to the officers, was first-class in every way."

MERGER COMPLETED.

Final Arrangements Give Canada Steamship Lines Over 100 Ships.

MONTREAL, Dec. 13.—In an official statement issued by Mr. James Carruthers, president last evening, announcement was made that the consolidation of the different navigation companies, under the names of the Canada Steamship Lines, Limited, has been finally completed. Mr. Carruthers announced that at a meeting of the board of the Richelieu & Ontario Co. yesterday the final details of the sale of that company's assets to the new company had been arranged, the sale being made in Canada of $12,000,000, par value of 7 per cent. preference shares, and $4,000,000, par value of ordinary shares of the new company.

The consolidation gives the Canada S. S. Lines a fleet of over one hundred steamers. The capital will be, as already announced, $25,000,000

Heart and Nerves Were Bad.

Could Not Sleep.

To the thousands of people who toss on a sleepless pillow night after night, or who pace the bedroom floor with nerves on the jump, the heart action all wrong, and to whose eyes sleep will not come, Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills offer the blessing of sound refreshing slumber, as they restore the equilibrium of the deranged nerve centres and correct the wrong action of the heart.

Mrs. Charles Teel, Hornecastle, Ont., writes:—"Just a few lines to let you know what Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills did for me. My heart and nerves were so bad I could not sleep, and the least noise or excitement would make me feel so that I used to think I was going to die, and I would tremble until I could hardly stand. I took doctor's medicine, but it did not do me much good. At last I tried Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, and can certainly say they did me a great amount of good. I can recommend them to anyone who is suffering as I was."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills have been on the market for the past twenty years, and have done more to steady shaky nerves and strengthen weak hearts, than any other known preparation.

U. S. Admiral Fletcher Puts End to Firing at Tampico

REFUGEES LEAVING CITY

MEXICO CITY, Dec. 13.—Rear-Admiral Fletcher, commander of the American naval forces in Mexican waters, yesterday ordered the rebels and Federals fighting at Tampico to cease firing, threatening to open on them with the guns of the gunboat Wheeling if his order was not obeyed. Both sides complied with the order.

This information is contained in a despatch received last night by Sir Lionel Carden, the British Minister, from Admiral Sir Richard Christopher Craddock of the British cruiser Berwick, which is lying off Tampico.

The Federals hold the centre of the town of Tampico and the waterfront. Rear Admiral Fletcher has ordered foreigners to take refuge on board ships, or to congregate on the waterfront, where they will be under the protection of his guns.

At the Mexican War Office it was announced that 800 additional troops had been despatched from Vera Cruz to aid in the defence of Tampico. Reinforcements, it was added, also had been sent to the besieged town from San Luis Potosi, leaving at the latter place only a very small garrison.

Jacinto de Cologan y Cologan, the Spanish Minister to Mexico, made a demand yesterday on Querido Moheno, the provisional Foreign Minister, for the protection of 100 Spanish subjects, refugees from the city of Chihuahua, who are trying to reach Torreon.

The Spaniards, Senor Cologan y Cologan said, were ordered out of Chihuahua by the rebel leaders under the threat of death. The Foreign Minister promised to send a detachment of troops from Torreon to rescue the wayfarers.

The Mexican gunboat Bravo is playing an important part in standing off the rebels who are attacking Tampico, the warship directing its fire from the river at the insurgent positions on the other side of the town.

In spite of the heavy firing of both the Federals and rebels in the Tampico battle, little damage has been done to the city, according to private telegrams received here yesterday, on account of the long range at which the engagement is being fought.

The fighting Thursday was confined to the vicinity of Dona Cecilia, a suburb three miles east of Tampico where are located oil refineries, shipping wharves and railroad yards.

Sir Lionel Carden, the British Minister here, received a message yesterday morning from Rear Admiral Sir Christopher Craddock, saying that a number of British subjects and Mexicans, including several women and children, had taken refuge on board the British steamer Logician at Tampico. Other foreigners, the British admiral said, were being cared for on the American warships and German vessels in the harbor.

The message contained no information as to the result of the fighting.

Archer-Shee Visits Carranza.

HERMOSILLO, Sonora, Mexico, Dec. 13.—Major Martin Archer-Shee, a Unionist member of the British Parliament, was here yesterday to confer with Gen. Carranza regarding matters which he termed purely personal. He arrived after a hurried trip, part of which was made by automobile from Tucson, Arizona, and went into conference at once with the rebel commander-in-chief.

He said his interest was caused by the fact that most of the English investigation had been made "on the other side."

Natural Gas Explodes.

GALT, Dec. 13.—Last evening the large plateglass front of Struthers & Church's feed store on Main street was completely demolished by an explosion of natural gas. The shock did considerable damage to adjoining premises, though the principal loss was confined to the feed store. The explosion was directly due to a leak in the main, but just how the gas became ignited is a mystery.

Big Suit Against G.T.R.

OSSOSO, Mich., Dec. 13.—The Grand Trunk Railroad is to be sued for an aggregate amount of $250,000 damages for the fire that wiped out the town of Perry, Mich., last summer. It is alleged that the fire was started by a spark from a G. T. R. locomotive.

Man Had Taken His Wife Back and Separation Papers Were "No Good."

TORONTO, Dec. 12.—Chief Justice Falconbridge, in a judgment given at Osgoode Hall yesterday, allows Mrs. Alexander Wardhaugh, of Belleville, to rank as widow of the estate of her husband, who died in March, 1912. The couple were married in 1887, but had been three times separated. Twice they were reconciled, the second time the husband abandoning his dissipation, joining the Baptist church, teaching a Sunday school class and becoming a member of the Y.M.C.A. They were living together at the time of the husband's death, and he had promised to burn the deeds of separation.

On the occasion of the last separation and reconciliation, Wardhaugh had asked his lawyer to throw off his costs of preparing papers for release of dower, as he had taken his wife back and the papers were no good.

Don't give advice unless you are willing to take it back.

NOTES OF THE FASHIONS

A set of tango shoe buckles is made in the form of frogs. There are four small buckles to fasten to the sides of each shoe, and one larger one through which the ribbons pass on each side. Each frog has outstretched front legs that hold a small slide through which the ribbon passes. The frogs are made of green stones and rhinestones.

* * *

Variety marks the newest corsage flowers and bouquets. Some of the bouquets are made of infinitesimal rosebuds and forget-me-nots, bunched and edged with lace. Quite as smart are the large, single flowers. One, made of flame-coloured velvet, measures eight inches across. Each of the four petals is marked with a midle vein of rhinestone.

* * *

A charming theatre cap, made to fit closely about the head, is fashioned of heavy-meshed gold net. The cap is edged with pearl beads and two strands of pearls hold it under the chin. On each side, just above the ears, is a little bunch of tiny flowers made of pink and blue ribbons.

* * *

The effect gained by putting grey maline over bright pink maline is good. A charming evening gown of white satin shows a scarf about the shoulders of maline in these two colours. The scarf is tied in a big bow in the front of the bodice.

* * *

Skunk is the fur of the day. It is decidedly more popular than any other. It is used to edge tunics and skirts and sleeves and necks of bodices. It is used on boudoir caps and negligees, on velvet chiffon and cloth caps and muffs and scarfs. It is used on hats. And it is used, in combination with nothing else, for muff and scarf sets. It is said that ermine is next to skunk in popularity.

* * *

Wheat trimming has ben used for a long time with good results on hats. Last summer silver and gold as well as white and yellow wheat heas trimmed many straw hats. Now there comes news that one of the substitutes for the forbidden aigrette will be a sort of aigrette built up of wheat heads. This is said to be very graceful. Artificial flowers, too, will doubtless be much more used than they have been in the last few years, now that women must learn to content themselves without their favourite plumage.

* * *

The fashion for tailless ermine seems to be established. Muffs, collars, coats, and trimmings are all made of ermine unspotted in its whiteness by the small black splatches that have always been considered its distinguishing mark. There is a charm in this white ermine, but it lacks something in character. Apparently realizing this, some of the furiers have made charming garments of white ermine trimmed in odd ways with the black tails.

* * *

Brown continues to be a favourite colour. It is used even more for house and evening gowns than for street suits. When it is used for street suits it is generally of a dark shade. The house shades are often lighter and brighter. With pink it makes a warm and brilliant combination for the house.

* * *

Brown chiffon over pink silk or pink over brown silk or satin can be used effectively. Brown and yellow are a good combination. A brown chiffon frock, made up over brown satin, is trimmed with much gold-bead embroidery and fringe and tassels of gold cord. Another brown and yellow combination is a canary yellow chiffon made up over brown satin.

Unnecessary Fat

Masking was intended to be shapely—not too fat, not too lean, but just the happy medium between the two—symmetry. Any addition to this is unnecessary. There is no reason why the people with double chins, too ample bosoms, too generous wrist lines and hip measurements cannot decrease their weight and become slim without the necessity of dieting, violent exercise, or the danger of becoming wrinkled or flabby. The famous Marmola Prescription (known the world over) has been used successfully by so many stout people that it is hardly possible you have not heard of it. It will be good news to you that this harmless obesity remedy is now sold in tablet form. Each one of the Marmola Prescription Tablets contains an exact dose of the same safe, effective ingredients as the original prescription and, like it, reduces at the uniform rate of a pound or more a day. The cost of slimness is moderate. A file case lasts a long time and gives lasting benefit to any overfat man or woman. Get it from your druggist or the Marmola Co., Farmer Bldg., Detroit, Mich. Here is an opportunity to lose your unnecessary fat safely at a nominal expense.

LEARN A LANGUAGE WHEN YOU ARE YOUNG.

The time to learn a language is when you are young—the younger the better. We learn our own language as children. The older we grow the harder it is, because it means not merely learning by heart a great many words, not merely training the palate and tongue to produce different sounds, but adopting a new attitude of mind. Nothing definite has been discovered as to the localization of faculties in the brain, therefore nothing certain is known, but it has always seemed to me and to others whom I have consulted, that when you learn a new language you are exercising and developing a new piece of brain.

When you know several languages and change from one to another, you seem definitely to change the piece of brain which actuates your tongue. You switch off one centre and switch on to another. You will always notice in yourself and others that there is a definite pause when the change of language is made. Now it becomes every year more difficult to awaken an unused part of the brain and bring it into active use, and to begin at 28 is too late.

WOMEN CURED AT HOME

Women's disorders always yield from the very beginning of the treatment to the mild, but effective, action of Orange Lily. Within two or three days after commencing its use the improvement becomes noticeable, and this improvement continues until the patient is completely cured. Orange Lily is an internal or local treatment, and acts directly on the womanly organs, removing the congestion, toning and strengthening the nerves, and restoring perfect circulation in the diseased parts. In order to convince all suffering women of the value of this remedy, I will send a 50-cent box, enough for ten days' treatment, absolutely FREE to all lady readers who write for address. MRS. WHEN THE CHILD CATCHES COLD

Feyerish colds in children are very common ailments, and they should never be neglected. Their cause is not always easy to ascertain, but generally there is some chill, perhaps after violent play, and very often the child's digestion is disordered, leading to the absorption of more or less poisonous substances.

When a child sneezes, shivers, and then becomes restless, feverishly hot, with flushed face, throbbing head, quick pulse, lassitude, and loss of appetite, he should be given a warm bath and put to bed in a well-ventilated and warm room. He should then have a warm drink to promote perspiration.

Home made lemonade or a tumbler of hot water in which a tablespoonful of black currant jam is dissolved form very good drinks, and are liked by the child.

His diet, until he is well, should be very light, consisting of milk, gruels, a little custard, toast, and things of that kind. He may be given cold lemonade, barley water, or any tasty beverage, or plain cold water as much as he cares for, as well as oranges, grapes, and well stewed apples.

Generally a mild aperient may be given; and should always be given when the digestive organs are out of order. But it is a mistake to give the child a strong aperient and thereby reduce his strength.

It is better to give no other drugs unless they are prescribed by a doctor.

It should be remembered that a feverish cold may be the beginning of measles, whooping-cough, influenza, or some other disease. If the child does not improve within ten or twelve hours a doctor's advice should be sought.

Just See Your Pimples Flee

After You Have Used Stuart's Calcium Wafers and Rid Your Blood of All Its Impurities.

The abolishing of all skin disorders must begin with the blood. Lotions, salves, cosmetics, etc., will do no material good. The trouble comes from within and there the remedy must be applied.

If you really desire quick action and at the same time a common sense, natural, harmless blood purifier, then Stuart's Calcium Wafers is this remedy.

"After Using Stuarts' Calcium Wafers My Pimples Went Away Like Magic."

The correct and best blood purifier known to science is—Calcium Sulphide. This great cleanser is contained in proper quantities in Stuart's Calcium Wafers and that is why all blood troubles and skin blemishes rapidly disappear after their use.

An unsightful and pimply face due to impure blood is one of the most disgusting sights one can see and yet all about us, upon the streets, in the theatre, when travelling, etc., we see these horrible results.

There is no need for this condition if you will take Stuart's Calcium Wafers daily and keep all salves, lotions, cosmetics and other harmful preparations from clogging the pores.

Every first-class druggist in this country carries Stuart's Calcium Wafers, which may be obtained for 50 cents a box.

HOUSEHOLD NOTES

Alcohol will clean the piano keys.

The leg of beef is very fine for soups and meat salads.

Fried banana laid on a bed of rice makes an excellent luncheon dish.

Sausages should always be pricked with a fork before they are cooked.

If cream or milk has turned slightly sour, stir in a pinch of baking soda.

Cabbage is delicious when boiled tender and chopped, then served with cream sauce.

To preserve jellies perfectly, cover each jelly glass with a coating of hot paraffin.

A painter's small brush is the best thing for removing dust from rattan furniture.

If your eyes trouble you, try bathing them regularly with hot water at bedtime.

When cleaning the oilcloth, try using a little skimmed milk in the water instead of soap.

Embroidered lines should be ironed on the wrong side and on a thick, soft ironing blanket.

To draw the fire out of a burn, moisten it with water at once and then cover it with baking soda.

If onions are held under cold running water while being peeled, they will not move one to tears.

Cheese is very nourishing and wholesome when prepared with macaroni, potatoes, and breadcrumbs.

Wash and rinse cut glass in water that is not very hot and of the same temperature for each operation.

Plain sausage is delicious served with butter melted and flavoured with a little chopped parsley poured over it.

When kitchen towels wear thin, stitch two of them together around the edges and diagonally across the centre.

Brown sugar is a very delightful sweetening for cereals. It gives them a much richer flavour than granulated sugar.

Cold tongue will be entirely skinned if cold water is run over it for a minute after it is thoroughly cooked.

When hot grease has been spilled on floor or table, you can prevent its spreading by pouring cold water on it at once.

If underskirts shrink uncomfortably, it is possible to save them by knitting a sufficient length to cover the bare spots.

Cane chair seats that have sagged may be tightened by washing the seat in hot soapsuds and letting it dry in the open air.

When travelling, try pinning your dress to the curtain of the berth with safety pins. It will not be wrinkled in the morning.

A lump of charcoal in the ice box will keep the box free from odours and will absorb impurities. It should be changed often.

Delicious gelatine can be made with the juice of canned strawberries. Add the juice of an orange to the strawbery.

"MY ONLY MEDICINE"

Says Mrs. Corbett, Are "Fruit-a-tives" "They Keep Me In Perfect Health"

MRS. ANNIE A. CORBETT

AVON, ONT., May 14th. 1913

"I have used "Fruit-a-tives" for Indigestion and Constipation with most excellent results, and they continue to be my only medicine. I am highly pleased with "Fruit-a-tives" and am not ashamed to have the facts published to the world. When I first started, about six years ago, to use them, I took four for a dose, but I cured myself of the above troubles, and gradually reduced the dose to one tablet at night.

Before taking "Fruit-a-tives" I took salts and other pills but the treatment was too harsh. I thought I might as well suffer from the disease as from these treatments.

Finally, I saw "Fruit-a-tives" advertised with a letter in which someone recommended them very highly, so I tried them. The results were more than satisfactory and I have no hesitation in recommending them to any other person. They have done me a world of good. I get satisfaction from them, and that is quite a lot". LITTLE IDEAS FOR CHRISTMAS GIFTS

If you are looking for an extremely practical idea for a Christmas gift, here is a suggestion that may prove welcome:

A gurgling hot-water bottle in its nude state—ugh! Doesn't it feel like something alive if it happens to touch your skin? Of course, you endeavour to put a towel about it each time you use it, but that towel has a treacherous habit of unwrapping when you least expect it. That is why a specially madecover like the following is such a handy and comfortable thing to have for the hot-water bag.

Cut from a piece of white or cream flannel twopieces the shape of the hot-water bag at the bottom, only slightly larger. The top of the flannel bag is left wide so that the rubber bag may slip into it easily. Lay one piece of flannel upon the other, stitch the bottom and sides up by machine and bind the seam thus formed with a white silk or linen tape.

The top of the bag should have a narrow casing stitched about the inside about two inches from the edge, through which a drawing string of the tape is run to draw the bag about the neck of the bottle. The edge of the flannel bag is pinked or scalloped with the scissors. The bag is now ready to receive the hot-water bag. It is, of course, understood that such a bag will be of more harm than convenience if not kept strictly clean. Being of white flannel, it is easily laundered.

USEFUL RECIPES

RECIPES FOR BREAKFAST CAKES AND MUFFINS.

On a cold morning breakfast is made more satisfactory by the addition of hot muffins, waffles, or griddle cakes. In a household where the members are fond of griddle cakes, it will be found a convenience to have a soapstone griddle, which does not require greasing. Whatever griddle is used, it should be made very hot before the cake baking is begun. Following are a number of recipes for breakfast cakes of different kinds:

* * *

CREAM SCONES.

Mix and sift together two cups of flour, four teaspons of baking powder, two teaspoons of sugar, one-half teaspoon of salt. Rub in four tablespoons of butter, with the tips of the fingers; add two eggs, well beaten, and one-third cup of cream. Toss on a floured board, pat, and roll to three-fourths of an inch in thickness. Cut in squares, brush with the white of an egg, sprinkle with sugar, and bake in a hot oven for fifteen minutes.

* * *

GRAHAM MUFFINS.

Mix and sift one cup of Graham or entire wheat flour, one cup white flour, one-quarter cup of sugar, one teaspoon of salt, and four teaspoons of baking powder; add gradually one cup of milk, one well-beaten egg, and one to three tablespoons of melted butter. Bake in a hot oves, in buttered gem pans, for twenty-five minutes.

* * *

BREAKFAST PUFFS.

Mix together one-half cup of milk and one-half cup of water. Add this gradually to one cup of flour and beat with a Dover egg-beater until very light. Turn into hissing hot buttered iron gem pans, and bake from thirty to thirty-five minutes in a hot oven.

* * *

CORN MEAL GEMS.

Mix and sift one-half cup of cornmeal, one cup of flour, three teaspoons of baking powder, one tablespoon of sugar and one-half teaspoon of salt. Add gradually three-quarters cup of milk, one egg, well-beaten, and one tablespoon of melted butter. Bake in a hot oven in buttered gem pans for twenty-five minutes.

* * *

OATMEAL MUFFINS.

Mix and sift one and one-half cups of flour, two tablespoons of sugar, one-half teaspoon of salt, and four teaspoons of baking powder. Add one-quarter cup of milk, one egg well beaten, then another quarter cup of milk, mixed with one cup of cooked oatmeal and beat thoroughly; then add two tablespoons of melted butter. Bake in buttered muffin rings placed in a buttered pan or buttered gem pans.

* * *

WAFFLES.

Mix and sift one and three-quarters cup of flour, three teaspoons of baking powder, one-half teaspoon of salt; add gradually one cup of milk, the yolks of two eggs, well beaten, one tablespoon of melted butter, and then the whites of the eggs beaten to a stiff froth. Cook on a greased hot waffle iron, and serve with maple syrup.

* * *

SWEET MILK GRIDDLE CAKES.

Mix and sift three cups of flour, one and one-half tablespoons of baking powder, one teaspoon of salt, one-quarter cup of sugar. Beat one egg, add two cups of milk, and pour slowly on the first mixture. Beat thoroughly and add two tablespoons of melted butter. Drop by spoonfuls on a greased hot griddle; cook on one side. When puffed, full of bubbles, and cooked on edges, turn and cook the other side. Serve with butter and maple syrup.

* * *

BREAD GRIDDLE CAKES.

Add one and one-half cups of scalded milk and two tablespoons of butter to one and one-half cups of fine stale breadcrumbs, and soak until the crumbs are soft; add two eggs well beaten, then one-half cup of flour, one-half teaspon of salt, and four teaspons of baking powder mixed and sifted. Drop by spoonfuls on a greased hot griddle, and cook on one side. When puffed, full of bubbles, and cooked on edges, turn and cook on the other side. Serve with butter and maple syrup.

* * *

POTATO GRIDDLE CAKES.

Use two cupfuls of cold mashed potatoes. Stir into the potatoes one cupful of sweet milk, then add two eggs well beaten. Then stir in half a cupful of flour, into which has been sifted half a teaspoon of salt and two teaspoons of baking powder. Beat together, and bake on the griddle in small cakes.

* * *

GRIDDLE CAKES WITH MEAT.

This is a good way to use a small amount of left-over cooked meat of any kind. Put the meat through a chopper. Add one cupful of it to two cups of flour sifted with half a teaspoon of salt, and mixed to a batter with two cups of sour milk and one well-beaten egg. Dissolve a teaspoon of soda in the milk to mix into the batter. Drop by spoonfuls on a hot griddle.

TOO CLEAR A CASE.

"When did your husband begin treating you cruelly?" asked her lawyer.

"It was about a year ago," replied the pretty petitioner.

"What happened?"

"We were on our way to New York."

"Yes. Did he strike you?"

"No. I asked him to get a drawing-room, so that I would not have to undress in my berth."

"And he refused?"

"Yes. He said his mother had never occupied a drawing-room in a sleeping car and he didn't consider me any better than his mother."

"Was that the only time he ever was cruel to you?"

"No. After I had bought my fall clothes last year they were so fine that I couldn't ride in a public conveyance without ruining them, and when I explained to him that he would have to buy an electric to save my clothes he told me to go ahead and ruin the clothes and get the kind that could be worn in street cars next time."

"It will be useless to go on with the case," the judge interposed. "There is no doubt that the man is absolutely heartless."

BANK OF MONTREAL

ANNUAL GENERAL MEETING HELD 1st DECEMBER, 1913

(From THE GAZETTE, December 2nd, 1913)

The 96th Annual General Meeting of the Shareholders of the Bank of Montreal was held at noon yesterday in the board room at the Bank's headquarters.

Amongst those present were: Messrs. H. E. Rawlings, D. Morrice, J. McK. Ross, Wm. Hanson, G. L. Ogilvie, W. R. Miller, H. B. McDougall, Alfred Piddington, E. Fiske, J. B. Learmont, J. Patterson, W. B. Blackader, R. M. Stanway, Sir William Macdonald, Hon. Robert Mackay, Sir Thomas Shaughnessy, Messrs. D. Law, William McMaster, T. Durnford, Preble Macintosh, C. R. Black, W. H. Evans, Henry Joseph, George Caverhill, Dr. J. E. Yates, George G. Foster, J. Rodgers, Hamilton Gault, C. B. Gordon, C. R. Hosmer, D. Forbes Angus, J. A. Hawthorne, H. R. Drummond, R. B. Angus, Dr. Shepherd, Charles Chaput, H. V. Meredith, F. F. Archibald, Campbell Nelles, E. B. Greenshields, A. Falconer, Guy Drummond, and J. J. Reid.

On motion of Mr. R. B. Angus, Mr. H. V. Meredith was requested to take the chair.

Mr. Hartland B. McDougall moved and Mr. A. Piddington seconded, that Messrs W. R. Miller and David Law be appointed to act as Scrutineers, and that Mr. James Aird be the Secretary of the meeting. This was carried unanimously.

The Chairman then, in the absence of the General Manager, called upon Mr. A. D. Braithwaite, Assistant General Manager, to read the Annual Report of the Directors to the Shareholders at their 96th Annual General Meeting, held Monday, December 1st, 1913.

THE ANNUAL REPORT.

The Directors have pleasure in presenting the Report showing the result of the Bank's business for the year ended 31st October, 1913:—

Balance of Profit and Loss Account, 31st October, 1912.....		$ 802,814.94
Profits for the year ended 31st October, 1913, after deducting charges of management, and making full provision for all bad and doubtful debts.....		2,648,402.86

Bonus, 1 per cent, paid 1st June, 1913.....	160,000.00
Dividend, 2½ per cent, paid 1st September, 1913	400,000.00
Dividend, 2½ per cent, payable 1st December, 1913.....	160,000.00
Bonus, 1 per cent, payable 1st December, 1913	160,000.00
	$1,920,000.00
Provision for Bank Premises	485,000.00
		$2,405,000.00
Balance of Profit and Loss carried forward		$1,046,217.80

Since the last Annual Meeting, Branches have been opened at points in the following provinces, viz:—

In Quebec—Bleury Street (Montreal), Notre Dame de Grace (Montreal), Windsor Street (Montreal).

Ontario—Schreiber, St. Catharines, Queen Street East (Toronto), Welland.

North-West—Dauphin, Man., Prince Albert, Sask.

British Columbia—Alberni, Lumby.

London, England—Waterloo Place, Pall Mall.

The Branches at Suffield, Alta., and Sapperton, B.C., have been closed.

The Branch at Gretna, Man., destroyed by fire, was not re-opened.

The Shareholders are aware that the Bank Act has been under revision for some time past, and a new Act, as revised, went into force on 1st July, 1913. The main changes are:—

In the published statements the condition of the Bank is shown in greater detail than formerly.

The establishment of "Central Gold Reserves" where the Bank can deposit gold for Dominion Notes and increase its circulation by a similar amount when necessary.

Under Section 56 of the new Act you are required at this meeting to appoint auditors for the Bank and to vote the amount of their remuneration.

With deep regret the Directors have to record the death of Mr. James Ross, who had been a member of the Board for nearly fourteen years. The vacancy caused thereby was filled by the election of Mr. William McMaster.

The Directors have also to record with much regret the resignation of Mr. R. B. Angus as President of the Bank, owing to his advancing years. His association with the Bank will, however, be continued as a Director.

Mr. H. V. Meredith was elected to succeed him as President, remaining also Chief Executive Officer.

All the offices of the Bank, including the head office, have been inspected during the year.

(Signed) H. V. MEREDITH,
President.

H. V. MEREDITH, General Manager.

The President's Address.

Mr. Meredith, in moving that the report of the Directors and the accounts, as read, be adopted and the same be printed for distribution among the shareholders, said:

Gentlemen,—In moving the adoption of the directors' report, I will refer to the changes which have taken place during the year in the balance sheet, a copy of which has been furnished you, before alluding to general and financial conditions. The bank has experienced another good year and its business has been well maintained. The authorised capital remains at $25,000,000; the paid-up capital at $16,000,000, and the rest at $16,000,000. Out of net earnings, which, for the year, amounted to $3,648,402.86, $348,402.86 was transferred to profit and loss account, bringing that balance up to $1,046,217.80, and there has been set aside for Bank Premises Account during the year an amount of $485,000. A bonus of 1 per cent. was paid to shareholders on 1st June and 1st December over and above the quarterly dividend of 2½ per cent.

Deposits not bearing interest remain practically unchanged. Interest bearing deposits show an increase of $9,300,000. A portion of these is always of a temporary nature, but I am pleased to say that, notwithstanding the fact that considerable sums have been withdrawn during the year for investment at the tempting rates prevailing, the aggregate of the savings bank deposits has been well maintained.

Turning to our assets, the current loans and discounts in Canada and elsewhere and other assets, amounting to $134,180,000, show an increase of $15,000,000, caused by taking on new business and by the increased legitimate requirements of our customers. Investments in railway and other bonds are $12,933,000. Bank premises, Montreal and branches, remain at $4,000,000. Call and other loans in Great Britain and the United States are $51,240,000, against $55,150,000 a year ago, which deduction, with $8,000,000 withdrawn from foreign correspondents and agencies of the bank outside of Canada, has been used to provide for the increased demands of our Canadian customers, mentioned above. Our bills payable amount to $919,308, as compared with £1,717,000 as at the same date last year. At that time, however, the amount was shown as a contingent liability instead of being included in the general statement as at present.

The delayed decennial revision of the Bank Act was finally completed at the last session of Parliament. On the whole, the new measure may be characterised not only as workable, as preserving the fundamental principles of past laws, but as well designed to promote and safeguard the interests of the public, which, I need scarcely add, are identical with the interests of the bank.

As the measure was a non-contentious one, I think I am at liberty to add my tribute of praise to the Finance Minister, Hon. Mr. White, for the very capable manner in which he supervised the revision of the Act. Throughout the protracted discussion of the bill, he exhibited a thorough grasp of the subject and a keen desire to make the measure conform as fully as possible to the needs of the public, the safety and stability of the banks.

The General Situation.

In regard to the general situation, the year 1913 may be truly described as a memorable one. In Great Britain it has been disturbed and disappointing. The demands of borrowing countries, both old and new, have outrun capital supplies, and there has been an ever increasing difficulty in obtaining loans, however sound the security might be, and, when obtainable, the rates and terms have been far more onerous than for many years past.

As is well known, there have been several factors combining to produce these stringent conditions: the Balkan war and record public flotations, which, in London alone, totalled not less than £200,000,000 to the end of October, exclusive of special borrowings and treasury bills, of which no less an amount than £54,000,000 were Canadian emissions. Then there has been world-wide trade activity, a rise in the price of commodities, coupled with serious political disturbances in France and Germany, and the continuous and heavy gold demands of such importing countries as Argentina, Brazil, Egypt and India, heavier requirements for home trade in Great Britain, and accumulations by joint stock banks in their private vaults. Added to all this, the position was aggravated by the prolongation of the Balkan war, and social unrest in England.

In France, the economic position has been less favourable than usual. The severe political shocks I have mentioned occasioned a withdrawal of funds from Germany, and hoarding has been continuous and constant. A vast aggregation of loans to finance the Balkan states and for increased home armaments still await flotation. In Germany, the situation shows a marked betterment in the improved condition of the Reischsbank and a curtailment of that country's excessive trade activities.

In the United States, conditions throughout that country are thought to be fundamentally sound. Politics have affected business activities, and with the exception of wheat, there is a shortage of crops throughout the country. A disposition to go slow and not to make commitments beyond actual requirements is apparent, so that no undue strain is likely to take place, but, rather, an era of economy, which should have a beneficial effect on the situation generally. The money situation has proved to be of greater ease than was at one time expected, and the usual fall stringency has not so far materialised. The principal cause for the prolonged ease may, I think, be put down to the early preparations to meet the contingency of dear money, the slowing down in general business, and the depositing of government funds in the banks of the west and south, thereby relieving the eastern banks of a portion of the burden of financing the crops, for which they had been prepared.

The conditions in Great Britain and abroad which I have endeavoured to outline will no doubt take time to ameliorate, and improvement will probably be brought about by reduced trade activity gradually releasing money for investment purposes and hoarded funds; but the process will of necessity be slow.

I have thought it well to make these somewhat extended remarks in regard to financial conditions in other and neighbouring countries, as they have an important bearing upon existing conditions here.

Trade of Canada.

The returns of the foreign trade of Canada are not unsatisfactory. Imports are falling off, in consequence of the monetary situation and the curtailment of foreign loans. In October the value of imports of merchandise was $8,664,000 less than in the corresponding month in 1912 while for the seven months ending October, the value of imports was only $4,300,000 in excess of last year. On the other hand, the export trade is expanding, the value of domestic products exported in October having been $28,360,600 in excess of the same month a year ago, and the exports for the seven months, $40,380,000 greater than in 1912. The aggregate foreign trade of Canada for the seven months ending with October was $686,094,000 as against $569,444,000 a year ago, showing a gain of $68,650,000, and in this period the excess of imports over domestic exports has been cut down from $190,000,000 to $146,000,000. This trend of foreign trade is likely to continue for some time. The balance of foreign trade, as you are aware, has been heavily against Canada during the past decade. In the last six fiscal years, imports exceeded exports in value by $650,000,000, and this considerable gap has been made, in certain quarters, the subject of adverse criticism of the country. It is to be borne in mind, however, that in this period, Canada has obtained immense sums of money from Great Britain for development purposes of various kinds, which money has been imported largely in the form of merchandise paid for out of the proceeds of long-term loans. Now, while these loans must ultimately be liquidated from the earning power of this expenditure, I may point out that meanwhile, only the interest charge has to be met; in other words, the excess of imports representative of the proceeds of long-term borrowing has to be balanced only to the extent of the interest on the loans. This is not, indeed, the whole conclusion of the many-sided subject, into which a variety of considerations enter. We cannot, moreover, expect to go on widening the gap between imports and exports indefinitely. Our annual interest charge on British and foreign loans is already a formidable item, to be provided either by exports or new borrowings. While monetary conditions abroad remain as at present, the stream of fresh capital will run less freely towards Canada.

The recent reduction in the tariff of the United States can hardly fail to enlarge the markets of that country to Canadian products. Many agricultural items such as eggs, milk, live stock, are now on the American free list; so are lumber, timber, fish, meats, coal and many manufactured articles made in Canada. Already the movement of these articles to our neighbour's markets in increased volume has begun, some advance in prices has resulted therefrom, and there appears no reason to doubt that our sales to the United States will augment in future.

Immigration returns have continued to be of a highly satisfactory character, both in regard to number and desirability. The figures for the year ending 30th September, 1913, reached a total of 436,050 souls, of whom 122,230 were from the United States and the remainder from European countries, principally Great Britain.

The value of the field crops in Canada this year at present prices is estimated at $500,000,000, or approximately the value of the crop of the preceding year.

Legitimate Trade Good.

In view of the foregoing, it is not surprising to find that legitimate business generally in Canada continues to be in a satisfactory condition. There are no signs of trade depression, though a slowing down in many branches of trade is in evidence, and there is a disposition to confine commitments to actual requirements. More economy is being exercised than has been the case for some time past. The flow of money which came in great volumes in the past few years from the British Islands and abroad, both for investment and for speculative purposes, and created a somewhat unhealthy expansion, has met with a check. It had much to do with the outbreak of land speculation in the West, which, owing in a measure to a wise precaution of the Bank Act, was limited to individuals and has not affected the country generally in an adverse manner to any appreciable extent. Advantage was unfortunately taken of the ease with which money could be obtained and of the popularity of Canadian securities in Great Britain by certain individuals on both sides of the Atlantic to exploit the London market with securities of a doubtful nature, to their own advantage, and some of these enterprises, owing to over capitalization or incompetent management, or both, have met with disaster, causing suspicion to be cast on many undertakings of a thoroughly sound character seeking capital. There has been a collapse of the land speculation in the West, of which I have spoken. Municipal expenditure has been restricted to actual necessities and with due regard to the ability of the municipality to find a market for its securities. In this connection, it may be noted that the American market has relieved the situation in London and in Canada by purchasing, in the first ten months of the year, a sum of no less than $29,000,000 of our municipal, industrial, corporation and public utility bonds, without taking into consideration an amount difficult to estimate sold through Canadian brokers.

Province of Ontario.

Viewing the country by sections, in the Province of Ontario the year, as a whole, may be said to have been satisfactory. Crops have been a full average and the farmers prosperous.

Manufacturing industries in general have had a fair year, and a considerable amount of American capital is coming into the province. The rural population, unfortunately, continues to slowly decrease, while among the cities, Toronto, with a present estimated population of 488,000, shows an estimated increase of 63,000 souls.

Province of Quebec.

General conditions throughout the province have been good. Crops have been up to average. Hay, the chief crop, turned out better than at first anticipated and other crops have been satisfactory, both as to quantity and price. Among manufacturing industries, the cotton industry has had a good year. Other manufacturers have hardly done so well. The year has been a good one for lumber, both as regards demand and price, and it is anticipated that the recent removal of the United States duty should further increase the profits of the business. It is thought not unlikely that one result of the removal of the duty will be to give a further impetus to the increasing proportion of lumber shipped to the United States instead of Great Britain and Europe. Pulpwood and paper shipments have been large both from Canada and Newfoundland. With regard to this industry, it would be well that care be exercised in order that production may not exceed the demand.

Maritime Provinces.

General conditions throughout the Maritime Provinces for the past year have been uniformly satisfactory. The farmers have had a favourable year, and all crops, apart from fruit, have been above the average. The fishing has been good, with higher prices, and the lumber cut was fair, and prices, on the whole, satisfactory. The output of the coal mines has exceeded all previous records; and the tonnage of pig iron produced was 25 per cent. greater than last year. Manufacturing industries generally have had an output up to the average. Railway building has not been extensive, but large sums are to be expended in providing terminals at St. John and Halifax for the Intercolonial Railway and in establishing a car ferry with Prince Edward Island.

In Newfoundland, the high prices obtained for fish have induced a period of prosperity. The building of branch lines of railway, the development of the mining of iron ore at Belle Isle, and the growth of the pulp and paper industry have all improved conditions.

North-West Provinces.

Athough business affairs are rapidly becoming more diversified, the production of wheat and other cereals is, of course, first in importance. The crop this year has been larger in quantity and better in quality than ever before, but the price at present is somewhat lower than at the corresponding date last year. The comparative crop figures are:—

	1912 Bushels	1913 Bushels
Wheat.	183,000,000	190 to 195,000,000
Oats	221,000,000	240,000,000
Barley	26,000,000	28,000,000
Flax	21,000,000	16,000,000 and the estimated value of the 1913 crop is $300,000,000, against $192,000,000, in 1912.

The immense additions to mileage made by the Railway Companies, especially the Canadian Pacific Railway, in double tracking and terminals and rolling stock, have enabled this enormous crop to be delivered with unprecedented rapidity. The rapid growth of population and the springing up of new towns have continued. The population of the three North-West Provinces, according to the census of 1911, was about 1,300,000, and is now placed at 1,600,000, and the immigration generally is a high class, a satisfactory feature being that two-thirds of the population are rural.

The method of harvesting the North-west crops will, in time, no doubt, be reduced to a more systematic basis. In past seasons, farmers have rushed their wheat to market in the short period intervening between harvest and the close of navigation on the Great Lakes, thereby producing more or less congestion of the markets, to their own loss. An amelioration of this condition has begun by the provision of greater storage accommodation, not only at the lake ports, but what is more to the purpose, at interior points, where the Government, as well as private corporations and individuals, are proceeding with the erection of elevators at the principal grain producing centres. In this way, local markets will be created for the farmers where their grain can be readily disposed of. Mixed farming continues to be an urgent need of the Northwest. I am pleased, however, to observe a betterment in this respect. From the figures which have been furnished me, there has been an increase in the past five years of 660,000 in the number of horses, cattle, sheep and swine. It is a matter of regret that the returns from the other provinces do not exhibit a similar satisfactory increase, but rather a diminution.

British Columbia.

The province generally has not been as prosperous as in 1912. The salmon fishing season has been a good average and the pack has been sold at remunerative prices. The same may be said of the halibut and herring fishing, and the free admission of British Columbia fish to the United States will be of advantage to the trade. Conditions in the lumber trade have been very unsatisfactory. The prairie demand has been poor and the prices [illegible] lower than in 1912, that it is [illegible] of many of the mills have [illegible] money. The foreign lumber trade has fallen off both in volume and in price, and the free admission of lumber to the United States is not likely to be of much benefit, as the lumbering states on the American side of the line can supply their own market. Mining has probably given the most satisfactory results of any industry in the province, the product of the mines increasing in value $6,000,000 over the preceding year. The total mineral output was over $32,000,000, of which coal and copper contributed respectively, say $6,000,000 and $8,000,000. Crops have been good and prices satisfactory. The fruit industry in the Okanagan and other districts has realised higher prices and market arrangements have been improved. New railway construction has only been undertaken to a moderate extent, and new power development has consisted chiefly of extensions, designed to supply the City of Vancouver. The stringent money conditions which have existed throughout the year checked new enterprises of all kinds, especially municipal undertakings, and the probability is that there will be considerable unemployment during the coming winter.

Mexico.

In Mexico, general conditions continue to be disturbed, and the outcome is impossible to predict. We feel that our interests there are in safe and capable hands.

Words of Confidence.

My last words are of counsel and confidence. The finger of prudence points to a policy of conservatism. While the financial sky remains clouded over in Europe, we shall do well to hasten slowly. It is not a time to attempt enterprises of a speculative nature, nor to undertake new commitments prior to the financing thereof, and an accumulation of stock by merchants and manufacturers should, as far as possible, be avoided. The excellent harvest, particularly in the Northwest, should do much towards liquidating debts and ameliorating the situation, but it seems probable we will be compelled to pause awhile in the wonderful progress of expansion of the last ten years. On the other hand, the commercial condition of Canada is fundamentally sound. Business as a whole, as I have said, continues good. Our vast natural resources have scarcely been scratched. Immigration is large, railway construction active, new territory and new resources of wealth are being steadily opened, the confidence of British and foreign capitalists in our country is unabated. A temporary halt can only refresh Canada for yet greater achievements.

Mr. R. B. Angus seconded the motion for adoption of the report, which was carried unanimously.

The Chairman stated that, under the provisions of the new Bank Act, it would be necessary for the meeting to appoint three auditors.

Mr. C. R. Hosmer thereupon moved, and Mr. Huntly Drummond seconded, that there be appointed three auditors of the Bank to hold office until the next annual general meeting and that this meeting do now proceed to their nomination and appointment. Carried unanimously.

Mr. C. B. Gordon moved, and Mr. Wm. McMaster seconded, that the remuneration of the auditors to be appointed be not more than $15,000, to be divided equally between them (or to be otherwise divided as may be thought best). Carried unanimously.

The following nominations were made: By Mr. J. B. Learmont, Mr. George Hyde, C.A., of Montreal; by Mr. G. L. Ogilvie (in the absence of Mr. Bartlett McLennan), Mr. J. Maxtone Graham, C.A., of Edinburgh; by Mr. W. B. Blackader (in the absence of Mr. W. Stanway), Mr. Jas. Hutchison, C.A., of Montreal.

Mr. Meredith mentioned that he would deposit one ballot, representing the directors and other shareholders who had sent him their proxies, which was all that would be necessary, unless any shareholder wished to deposit a ballot himself. The ballot was unanimous.

It was moved by Mr. J. B. Learmont and seconded by Dr. H. B. Yates, that the thanks of this meeting be presented to the President and Directors for their attention to the interests of the Bank. Carried unanimously.

Mr. R. B. Angus, in reply, on behalf of the President and Directors, expressed in a few well-chosen words their appreciation of the thanks tendered them.

Mr. David Morrice moved that the thanks of the meeting be given to the General Manager, Assistant General Manager, the Superintendents, th Managers and other officers of the Bank for their services during the past year. In speaking to the motion, Mr. Morrice expressed in the highest terms his appreciation of the Bank officials he had met in his long experience covering a great part of the country, and said he had no hesitation whatever in presenting this motion rendering thanks to the Management and Staff of the Bank.

Mr. D. Forbes Angus seconded the motion, which was carried unanimously.

Mr. William H. Evans moved, and Mr. Charles Chaput seconded, "that the shareholders at this annual meeting of the Bank of Montreal learn with deep regret of the resignation of Mr. R. B. Angus from the Presidency of the Bank, and desire to express their keen appreciation of his long and faithful services in the interests of the Bank. The shareholders, however, sincerely hope that Mr. Angus will co-operate with his co-directors for many years to come." Carried unanimously.

Mr. Chaput, in seconding, said that the motion was a well-deserved compliment to Mr. Angus.

Returning thanks, Mr. Angus said: "I thank you for that expression of your goodwill."

Mr. Braithwaite said that he desired, on behalf of the staff, to thank the shareholders for the very kind expression of appreciation of their services, and he thanked Mr. Morrice especially, for the very kind words he had spoken. The prosperity of the Bank must always be to a large degree depending upon the outside managers and the rank and file officers of the Bank. "I can assure you," he added, "of my own knowledge of the absolute loyalty and devotion of the staff to the interests of the Bank and of the hard work done by them. I cordially thank you, and assure you that you have a staff second to none."

Election of Directors.

The result of the ballot for the election of Directors was declared by the Chairman as follows: Messrs. R. B. Angus, D. Forbes Angus, A. Baumgarten, Huntley R. Drummond, C. B. Gordon, E. B. Greenshields, C. R. Hosmer, Sir William C. Macdonald, Hon. Robert Mackay, Messrs. Wm. McMaster, H. V. Meredith, D. Morrice, Sir Thomas Shaughnessy, K. C. V. O.; Right Hon. Lord Strathcona and Mount Royal, G.C.M.G., G.C.V.O.

The meeting then terminated.

At a subsequent meeting of the Directors, the following officers were elected: Hon. President, Lord Strathcona and Mount Royal; President, Mr. H. V. Meredith.

BRIEFS FROM THE WIRES.

Miss Frances Galbraith, the artist, daughter of ex-Ald. Galbraith, of Toronto, has won two silver medals at the Royal Academy in London, Eng.

The Manitoba Legislature opened yesterday afternoon for what is expected to be the last session before the provincial election.

John Clarke Haynes died Wednesday night near Jordan in Louth Township, on the homestead where he was born 94 years and ten months ago.

David Ewart, chief Dominion architect, who has been for years in the Government service, will shortly be retired on superannuation at his own request.

Col. Dr. Arthur Hoffman of St. Gall was yesterday elected President of the Swiss Confederation for 1914. He is 56 years old and is a Radical-Democrat.

The secretary of the National Committee of the Postal Employes' Unions, stated yesterday there would be no strike at the postoffice during the Christmas season.

The period of tenure of appointment of Major J. C. Mason, D.S.O., as brigade major of the Sixth Infantry Brigade, Toronto, is further extended to Dec. 9, 1914.

Mr. Lud K. Cameron, Ontario King's Printer, was removed to the General Hospital, Toronto, yesterday following a slight paralytic stroke. He passed a good night and is improving.

"Two-cent eggs" is the campaign cry of Boston women, led by Mrs. Edward P. Barry, wife of the Lieutenant-Governor-elect, who yesterday started a campaign against cold storage eggs.

Justice Haggarty of Winnipeg has been appointed chairman of the Board of Conciliation to investigate the dispute between the G.T.P. and about 2,000 of its machinists and boilermakers.

More Thieving From Cars.

WINDSOR, Dec. 12.—Robbing of Grand Trunk freight cars is again common in the local yards, according to Special Officer Fraser, who has returned to the city to work on several new cases.

Fraser says considerable stealing has also been going on of late at Fort Erie and Bridgeburg. A determined effort will be made to round up the thieves.

Got Light Sentences.

STRASSBURG, Dec 12.—Light sentences of six weeks and two weeks were given yesterday by the court-martial of three recruits of the 99th Infantry Regiment through whom the insulting remarks in reference to Alsatians and the French foreign legion, uttered by Lieut. Baron Von Forstner had been made public. Long penitentiary sentences had been expected.

CONFERRING IN PRIVATE?

London Times Says Home Rule Meetings Are Going On.

LONDON, Dec. 12.—The Times announces this morning that it is able to state that meetings of the party leaders have actually begun with the object of endeavoring to arrange an agreement by consent upon the Ulster difficulty, but that no definite result has as yet been reached.

The Times explains in an editorial that nothing in the nature of a truce is involved in these negotiations, which represent the first tangible movement towards a possible settlement, but do not compel either the home rulers or the Unionists to refrain from continuing freely to debate the question in public speeches.

The Daily Telegraph repeats the report that when Parliament reassembles in February the Government will take up the Welsh Disestablishment Bill before home rule. This will probably depend on the progress of the party negotiations.

WILL SOLVE PROBLEM.

"Frozen and Dried" Eggs To Do Trick Says Expert.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12. — Dr. Mary E. Pennington, in charge of food research work of the Department of Agriculture, told the House agriculture committee yesterday that frozen and dried eggs would solve the problem of high prices and cold storage canners.

"Frozen and dried eggs," said Dr. Pennington, "soon will be marketed in small packages so as to be available to every homestead instead of for bakers and other manufacturers, as at present. Hard frozen eggs will keep a year, and there is no question but what dried and frozen eggs will ultimately displace the cold storage variety."

Loops the Loop With Passengers.

PARIS, Dec. 12.—Adolphe Pegoud, the French aviator, demonstrated at the Buc aerodrome yesterday afternoon that looping the loop in an aeroplane, carrying a passenger as well as a pilot, was not more difficult than the accomplishment of the feat when the pilot was alone.

The airman mounted on three separate occasions with journalists and a photographer and looped a number of successive loops.

Only Six Went Dry.

REGINA, Sask., Dec. 12.—Twenty-six places in Saskatchewan voted on local option bylaws on Dec. 8. Six carried it. The temperance forces took little interest in them, having concentrated their efforts on the provincial-wide campaign. The results, furnished by the Licensed Victuallers' Association show twenty districts went wet and six dry.

Concealed Message In Bread.

BERLIN, Ont., Dec. 12.—A message written in Russian concealed under the crust of a loaf of bread was the find Turnkey Ludwig of the county jail made when he examined a loaf of bread which had been handed in, together with a piece of sausage, by friends of a man named Byco, who is awaiting trial.

The Indian race is not dying out. An Oklahoma Creek is the father of fifty-one children, of whom thirty-three are alive. If there are any white fathers who have a better record than that they have not yet been heard from.

DOMINION Nobby Tread

The World's Best Tire

is now "Made in Canada" in this New Million Dollar DOMINION Tire Factory.

THE demand across the Line for the "Nobby Tread" Tire keeps four great American factories busy. Its superiority has been clearly demonstrated both there and in Canada.

We could see no reason why Canadian motorists should not be able to get the same incomparable tire, "Made in Canada," by Canadians.

So we secured the Canadian rights to all the patented designs and exclusive processes which have made U. S. "Nobby Treads" the world's best. Then we erected the big factory you see below, and equipped it with duplicates of all the special machines used in the four great factories of the U.S. Tire Company.

The product of this Factory, the DOMINION "Nobby Tread", is certainly the best tire that has ever been made on Canadian soil, and has no superior in any other country. There is nothing experimental about it—every feature, every manufacturing process has been thoroughly tried out and proven satisfactory.

It has the same absolutely Non-skid "Nobby Tread" which was worked out in co-operation by the Morgan & Wright, Hartford, G. & J. and Continental Tire people. It has the same uniform bull-dog strength in every part of the carcass, because we build it on the same machines, by the same exclusive processes.

So keen is the demand for DOMINION "Nobby Treads" that we have had to cut down some of the largest orders so as to be able to supply some, at least, to every dealer in Canada. To avoid delay, get your order in with your dealer at once.

"CASCARETS" CLEANSE LIVER AND BOWELS

Cure Sick Headache, Constipation, Biliousness, Sour Stomach, Bad Breath—Candy Cathartic

Get a 10-cent box now.

Are you keeping your liver, stomach and bowels clean, pure and fresh with Cascarets—or merely forcing a passageway every few days with salts, cathartic pills or castor oil? This is important.

Cascarets immediately cleanse the stomach; remove the sour, undigested and fermenting food and foul gases; take the excess bile from the liver and carry out of the system the constipated waste matter and poison in the bowels.

No odds how sick, headachy, bilious and constipated you feel, a Cascaret to-night will straighten you out by morning. They work while you sleep. A 10-cent box from your druggist will keep your head clear, stomach sweet and your liver and bowels regular for months. Don't forget the children—their little insides need a gentle cleansing, too.

Cabled confirmation of the refusal of the Costa Rican Congress to ratify the oil concessions sought by the British concern with which Lord Cowdray is connected was received in London yesterday.

Henry C. Heid of Fisherville, cattle buyer for a Cayuga firm, was instantly killed, and two drovers seriously injured, in a rear-end collision of the G.T.R. Montreal Express with a freight train near Oshawa Junction.

PARIS DOCTOR SAYS

Dandruff, Falling Hair Are Caused by a Microbe—Dr. Sangerbond Proves It

Dr. Sangerbond is the leading dermatologist of France.

To prove his theory that germs cause dandruff, he infected a guinea pig with these microbes and in a short time the hair from the animal's body disappeared.

Parisian Sage, which can now be obtained all over Canada, has an immense sale and is highly recommended by physicians in all parts of the world.

This is just because it is the only prescription or hair tonic that is absolutely sure to kill the dandruff germ.

It is guaranteed to cure dandruff, stop falling hair or itching scalp in two weeks or money back.

In warm weather it keeps the scalp clean and cool and free from obnoxious odours. Parisian Sage is a pleasant and dainty hair dressing that will put a bewitching charm and lustre into faded and lifeless hair in one week. It is distressing for any woman to have dull, unattractive hair and women so unfortunate should use Parisian Sage.

Parisian Sage comes in large 50-cent bottles at the Warne Drug Co., and is sold by leading druggists everywhere. "The Girl with the Auburn Hair" is on every bottle.

MONA LISA FOUND

Famous Painting Was Stolen For Political Revenge

WAS HIDDEN IN FLORENCE

FLORENCE, Italy, Dec. 13.—Leonardo Da Vinci's masterpiece "Mona Lisa," or as it is popularly nown, "La Joconde," the mysterious disappearance of which from the Louvre in August, 1911, threw the art world into consternation, was found yesterday in Florence.

The man who stole it was arrested. He is an Italian.

The find was made by Prof. L. Credaro, Minister of Public Instruction and Fine Arts. He announced the discovery in the lobby of the Italian Parliament in Rome yesterday. The picture has been placed in the hands of the Prefecture of Police in Florence.

It is not yet known how the picture came to Florence, but there is no doubt as to its authenticity, for it has been identified by Dr. Corrado Ricci, General Director of Fine Arts and Public Instruction, one of the most competent art critics in Italy.

The police had been informed that the stolen picture was hidden at Milan, but failing to find it there, they directed their inquiries to Florence with successful results. The name of the arrested man is Vincenzo Perugia, an Italian who has lived in Paris. He declares he stole the masterpiece out of spite against France, as he wanted to restore it to his native country as compensation for all the works of art stolen by Napoleon from Italy.

The French Embassy here have been notified of the finding of the picture, which, it is understood, the Italian Government will restore to France without delay.

The picture was offered to a local dealer in antiques, who informed Dr. Poggi, director of the art galleries at Florence. Subsequently Ricci went to Florence from Rome and identified the picture. The Minister of Public Instruction was have made a full statement of finding the painting in the Chamber yesterday, but in consequence of the Socialists engaging in a bout of fisticuffs the sitting had to be adjourned until to-day.

La Joconde, one of the world's most famous paintings, is regarded as priceless. Leonardo da Vinci took as his model Lisa Del Giocondo, a woman of Florence, and he worked on the picture for four years, from 1500 to 1504. It was bought for France by Francis I.

The value of the work can only be imagined, since all offers were refused for it, among them one reported to have been made by the British Government of $5,000,000.

Since the disappearance from the Louvre of the picture, the search for it had been world-wide. It has been reported to be in Germany, Russia, England, Spain and even in America, but no definite clue ever was obtained of its whereabouts.

Offered To Antiquarian.

PARIS, Dec. 13.—The discovery of the whereabouts of the famous "Joconde" was made when the picture was offered by an Italian resident of Paris to an antiquarian of Florence, according to an announcement made last evening by the French Ministry of Public Instruction.

Both the picture and the Italian are now in custody of the police of Florence.

The Italian declares that he stole the picture from the Louvre in order to avenge the thefts which Napoleon I. committed in Italy.

New Chinese Consul-General.

OTTAWA, Dec. 13.—Yang Sowen, who will succeed Le Ping Tien as Chinese consul-general to Canada, arrived in Ottawa yesterday. The new consul is about forty years of age and has been for many years in the Chinese Imperial Service. He was formerly consul-general to the Philippine Islands and has held important offices in Shanghai, Pekin and other cities in his native country.

Germany Not To Exhibit.

BERLIN, Dec. 13.—It was decided yesterday to withdraw the bill for the appropriation of $500,000 for the purpose of arranging German representation at the Panama Pacific Exhibition at San Francisco.

This step was taken owing to the strong objections raised by several state Ministers.

HOW TO PREVENT ACID STOMACHS AND FOOD FERMENTATION

By a Stomach Specialist

As a specialist who has spent many years in the study and treatment of stomach troubles, I have been forced to the conclusion that most people who complain of stomach trouble possess stomachs that are absolutely healthy and normal. The real trouble, that which causes all the pain and difficulty, is acid in the stomach, usually due to, or aggravated by, food fermentation. Acid irritates the delicate lining of the stomach and food fermentation causes wind which distends the stomach abnormally, causing that full bloated feeling. Thus both acid and fermentation interfere with and retard the process of digestion. The stomach is usually healthy and normal, but irritated almost past endurance by these foreign elements—acid and wind. In all such cases — and they comprise over 90 per cent. of all stomach difficulties—the first and only step necessary is to neutralize the acid and stop the fermentation by taking in a little warm or cold water immediately after eating, a teaspoonful of bisurated magnesia, which is doubtless the best and only really effective antacid and food corrective known. The acid will be neutralized and the fermentation stopped almost instantly, and your stomach will at once proceed to digest the food in a healthy, normal manner. Be sure to ask your druggist for the bisurated magnesia, as I have found other forms utterly lacking in its peculiarly valuable properties.—F. J. D.

BROKE OUT ON HEAD, NECK AND SHOULDERS

In Little Blotches, Scratching Caused It to Spread. Hands Had to Be Tied. Cried Day and Night. Cuticura Soap and Ointment Cured.

Bonaventure, N. B. — "The trouble started when my baby was four months old. Her head, neck and shoulders were a mass of sores. They broke out at first in little blotches; only watery, which the child scratched and caused to spread and form a mass of sores. Her hands had to be tied to keep her from scratching the sores. The eczema caused her to itch and burn and to be cross and peevish. She was disfigured for the time she had it. She cried day and night from the irritation. Neighbors said she would never be cured.

"She was given some medicine to take inwardly but without success. Then a friend told me to try Cuticura Soap and Ointment which I did. I washed the child with Cuticura Soap, dried well, then applied the Cuticura Ointment every day and in a week's time the burning sensation left, the child scratched no more, and when she was eleven months old she was completely cured." (Signed) Mrs. John J. McCann, Nov. 27, 1912.

Although the Cuticura Soap and Ointment are most successful in the treatment of affections of the skin, scalp, hair and hands, they are also most valuable for everyday use in the toilet, bath and nursery, besides they promote and maintain the health of the skin and hair from infancy to age. Sold by druggists and dealers everywhere. For a liberal free sample of each, with 32-p. book, send post-card to Potter Drug & Chem. Corp., Dept. D, Boston, U. S. A.

GANGSTERS CLASH.

Wild West Battle Takes Place In New York Streets.

NEW YORK, Dec. 13.—Fifty shots were fired yesterday morning near the Fourth avenue entrance of Madison Square Garden in a battle royal between two gangs that have infested the Garden during the six-day bicycle race. A Madison avenue street car was commandeered by one element as a barricade while bullets whistled in all directions. Passengers threw themselves face downward on the floor.

The police were prompt in reaching the scene, but the combatants jumped into automobiles and escaped. So far as is known no one was hurt, a remarkable fact in view of the promiscuous shooting. It is said that the battle started in a row over the right of rival leaders to furnish "strong arm" men for special police work in the Garden.

Voodoo Practices In Cuba.

HAVANA, Dec. 13.—Fourteen negroes and whites have been arrested recently in connection with the "voodoo" practices in the Province of Matanzas. They are charged with having sacrificed a six-year-old white girl, but much mystery surrounds the crime.

The Witchcraft Association, which during the last few years has been operating extensively, is being investigated rigorously by the police.

Hop Anyone Can Banish Hair or Fuzz

(Modes of To-day)

Superfluous hairs are easily and quickly removed with the aid of a delatone paste. Get an original package of delatone from your druggist and mix enough with water to cover the hair surface. Apply and after 2 or 3 minutes rub off, wash the skin and the hairs are gone. No possible harm or injury follows this treatment and excepting in rare instances, only one application is required to remove every trace of hair. Results are more satisfactory when you get the delatone in an original package.

EVIDENCE MANUFACTURED.

Prisoners Just Getting Even With Officials Says Convict.

KINGSTON, Dec. 13.—The feature at yesterday afternoon's session of the prison reform commission was the sworn statement of convict F95 that stories of ill-treatment told by many convicts already heard were "frame-ups" on their parts, to do injury to prison official. This convict gave the name of another convict and claimed he was the chief leader in the scheme to give false evidence against officials.

"I know these men, and I know their stories have just been manufactured," declared.

He gave the name of a certain convict and stated that he, after giving evidence, had gone back to his cell and then told him that he had "put it over" the deputy and surgeon.

Asked about the traffic of tobacco, he said that it was brought into the pen. in wagons and carts.

Wreck Seen on Lake Erie.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13.—Revenue cutter headquarters yesterday telegraphed the commander of the cutter Morrill at Detroit to proceed at once to make a search for the wreckage of an unknown vessel sighted in Lake Erie, about 20 miles north of the Cleveland breakwater. According to reports here, a mast attached to some rigging has been sighted in that vicinity by passing ships.

U. S. Unable to Rescue Sailors.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13. — The eight sailors from the abandoned American schooner Eldorado, marooned on Easter Island, far out in the South Pacific since last summer, probably will be brought back to civilization by a ship of another nation.

Schmidt's Confession Read.

NEW YORK, Dec. 13. — Hans Schmidt's confession of the murder of Anna Aumuller was read yesterday into the records of his trial by Police Inspector Faure in command of the detective bureau. It was Faurot who arrested Schmidt, and in him the one-time priest told the story of his crime.

IF BACK HURTS BEGIN ON SALTS

Flush Your Kidneys Occasionally if you eat meat regularly

No man or woman who eats meat regularly can make a mistake by flushing the kidneys occasionally, says well-known authority. Meat forms uric acid which clogs the kidney pores so they sluggishly filter or strain only part of the waste and poisons from the blood, then you get sick. Nearly all rheumatism, headaches, liver trouble, nervousness, constipation, dizziness, sleeplessness, bladder disorders come from sluggish kidneys.

The moment you feel a dull ache in the kidneys or your back hurts, or if the urine is cloudy, offensive, full of sediment, irregular of passage or attended by a sensation of scalding, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any reliable pharmacy and take tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia and has been used for generations to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to activity, also to neutralize the acids in urine so it no longer causes irritation, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; and cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which all regular meat eaters should take now and then to keep the kidneys clean and the blood pure, thereby avoiding serious kidney complications.

ATTENDANCE OUTDONE.

Winter Fair Topped Previous Records by 30,000.

GUELPH, Dec. 13.—The Provincial Winter Fair, which has been in progress since Tuesday, closed yesterday afternoon at five o'clock. This year's was the most successful fair since 1903, and according to a large number who ought to know it was the best agricultural and live stock show ever held in Canada.

The attendance could not have been better under the prevailing conditions. All previous records were beaten, there being nearly 10,000 people present in excess of any previous year.

The prices at the auction sale of the sheep and hog carcasses shown at the fair were in advance of those of last year. Hogs went $2.25 per cwt. higher than last year's price, which was $11.75. The hogs, which were sold in one large bulk, brought $14 per cwt.

Lambs also brought considerably in excess of former prices. The average lamb sold at 16 cents per pound while some went at 18 cents.

DIES LOCATING GRAVE.

Cemetery Caretaker at Ingersoll Suddenly Drops Dead.

INGERSOLL, Dec. 13. — While marking the location of a grave in the Ingersoll rural cemetery yesterday Mr. J. D. Knapp dropped dead. He had been summoned in connection with the digging of a grave, and while in the act of marking the spot where it was to be dug, fell over and expired at once. He had been caretaker of the cemetery for nearly twenty-five years and had resided in Ingersoll over thirty years. With his wife he came to Canada from Dorsetshire, Eng. During the time that he had resided here he manifested a keen interest in civic affairs, and had served as a councillor. In September last Mr. and Mrs. Knapp celebrated their golden wedding. The widow and two sons and two daughters survive.

To Have Real Christmas.

LONDON, Dec. 13.—The Sheffield Telegraph announces the unanimous decision of the English press, including The London Times, to suspend publication on Christmas Day. Last year The London Times published for postal subscribers only, but this year it is definitely associated with every other English newspaper, and consequently there will be an entire suspension by all newspapers, morning and evening, on Christmas Day.

More than a million workers engaged in the publication and distribution of newspapers will enjoy a real Christmas Day for the first time.

Presbyterians Want Further Facts on Church Union.

TORONTO, Dec. 13.—After three days' discussion the Presbyterian Committee on Church Union finished its deliberations yesterday morning, and in the afternoon a joint conference of the Methodist, Presbyterian and Congregational Church Union Sub-Committees was held. The cardinal feature of the whole proceedings was the motion of Principal Gandier of Knox College. This was carried by the Presbyterian Church Union Committee, and later in the afternoon, the proposal of Principal Gandier with regard to a survey of the whole religious field of Canada was carried by the joint sub-committees on the motion of Rev. Dr. Cleaver, which was seconded by Rev. Frank J. Day. The whole motion of Principal Gandier is as follows:

"That having considered further amendments to the present basis of union and alternative proposals, as sent in from presbyteries, sessions, congregations and individuals, we do now, in accordance with the instructions of the General Assembly, and in the hope that union may be consummated without any unnecessary delay, ask our sub-committee to confer with representatives of the other negotiating churches, with a view to common agreement on an amended basis.

"That the sub-committee be further instructed to bring before the joint committee the desirability of a complete survey of church conditions throughout the Dominion, that before any vote is taken our people may know the facts."

Girl Killed by Bomb.

NEW YORK, Dec. 13.—A bomb sent by express, exploded and instantly killed Ida Anusewitz, aged 18, employed in an uptown bottling works, yesterday and injured two men employes. The girl's head was nearly torn off. She had been employed there only a short time.

The package containing the bomb was addressed to the bottling company in stencil. It was received by Thomas McCabe, who placed it on the girl's desk awaiting her arrival. The explosion wrecked the room, shattering plate glass windows, and tearing a jagged hole in the floor. The police believe dynamite was used.

The Secret of Good Digestion

In perfect health, with regular and healthful action of the liver and kidneys, you need not know there is such a thing as digestion or indigestion. Unfortunately, however, modern life is artificial, and not many people avoid suffering more or less from troubles of this nature.

The great secret lies in keeping the liver and kidneys in health and vigour, for then the food is passed quickly along the alimentary canal, the nutritive portions being assimilated in the blood stream and the poisoned waste materials are passed out of the body.

When the liver and kidneys get wrong you will obtain relief most promptly and effectively by using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. If chronic indigestion is to be cured it must be by enlivening the action of these filtering and excretory organs. To persons who have thought only of the stomach as being the offending organ this may seem strange, but any competent physician will tell you this is correct.

THE MARKETS

CHICAGO, Dec. 13.—Assertions that the government had over-estimated by nearly 30,000,000 bushels the crop in Oregon, Idaho and Washington made the wheat market rally today after a period of weakness. There was a firm feeling at the close, with prices 1-2c off to 1-8c up, as compared with last night. Corn finished unchanged to 1-2c lower, oats 1-16c down to a like advance, and provisions at a decline of 11-2c to 10c.

"Liverpool wheat—Lower on easier in Winnipeg yesterday and fine rain in India, continued favorable weather in the Argentine and larger Russia. Decline was marked by unfavorable harvest returns from Argentine and expectations of lighter world's shipments.

"Corn—Lower on liberal Argentine shipments.

Why The Harmonic Bridge?

THE different tones in a piano scale are the result of vibrations of wires of varying diameters and lengths.

Roughly speaking, the larger or longer the wire the lower the tone. Absolute purity of tone comes only from strings whose vibrations are confined solely to the space between the bridge at the bottom and the pressure bar just below the tuning pins at the top. If the strings vibrate beyond the pressure bar they of course make "harsh" tones so often recognized by the cultured ear in even the best pianos.

When you play heavily upon other pianos you force the vibrations beyond the pressure bar, and these harsh tones invariably follow.

Through a patented invention belonging exclusively to these vibrations beyond the pressure bar are purified, and made to harmonize with the true tone of each string, just as notes one octave apart harmonize.

Without the BRASS AGRAFFE HARMONIC BRIDGE indicated by the arrow in the illustration, none can hope to equal the unparalleled tone of the New Scale Williams Piano. Your interest in securing the best piano from every standpoint will surely lead you to choose the instrument which combines with exclusive features of mechanical supremacy the most beautiful of cases and the approval of nearly every one of the world's great musicians.

Come in to-day and arrange to own one of these superb instruments.

UNSIGHTLY HAIR MADE BEAUTIFUL BY THE USE OF NEWBRO'S HERPICIDE

Many ladies are, and many more should be, ashamed when they look in a glass and see their hair.

The condition of some is almost a disgrace. It simply shows that while they may be scrupulously neat in every other way, they are careless about their hair.

Thin, scraggy, wispy hair generally indicates dandruff which is due to a germ. Newbro's Herpicide will remove the dandruff and keep the scalp clean and healthy. This permits the hair to grow naturally and luxuriantly and to take on that gloss and beauty which always follows the intelligent use of Herpicide. That annoying itching of the scalp which always goes with dandruff stops almost with the first application.

You may sometimes be offered "something just as good" but you will be better satisfied if you insist upon having the original dandruff germ killer, Newbro's Herpicide. If you wish to try this scalp prophylactic send 10 cents in postage or silver to The Herpicide Company, Dept. R., Detroit, Mich. You will receive a sample size bottle of Herpicide and a booklet telling all about the care of the hair by return mail.

Newbro's Herpicide is sold in 50-cent and $1.00 sizes at all drug and department stores. Applications obtained at the better barber shops and beauty parlours.

But a trial isn't necessary. There is no guesswork about Newbro's Herpicide. Just buy a bottle and use it. The results are sure to be better than you expect. Furthermore, satisfaction is guaranteed and should it fail to produce the results claimed your dealer will return your money.

To Get Rid of Wrinkles And Bad Complexions

(From Beauty's Mirror)

It is more important now than during the period of profuse perspiration, to keep the pores clean. All cosmetics clog the pores. In winter this interferes greatly with elimination of waste material, injuring instead of aiding the complexion. Ordinary mercolized wax serves all the purposes of creams, powders and rouges, giving far better results. It actually peels off an offensive skin, at the same time unclogging the pores. Minute particles of scarf skin come off day by day, causing not the least pain or discomfort. Gradually the healthy, younger skin beneath peeps out, and in less than a fortnight you have a clearer complexion than you ever dreamed of acquiring. Mercolized wax, obtainable at any druggists, is spread on nightly like cold cream and washed off mornings. One ounce usually suffices.

For removing wrinkles, without stopping the pores with pasty stuff, here's a never-failing formula: 1 oz. powdered saxolite, dissolved in ½ pint witch hazel; bathe the face in this daily for awhile, and every line will vanish completely. Often the first application gives surprising results.

FORMATION OF WATER CONSERVATION ASSOCIATION

Will Urge the Government to Conserve Waters of the Trent Canal —"We Want Water Power and We Want It Twelve Months in the Year," Says Mayor Bradburn.

A "PERENNIAL" ROW

A memorial supported by a representative deputation will wait upon the Government in the near future, to urge upon the necessity of conserving the waters that comprise the Trent Valley Canal. This contemplated action owes its inception to a meeting of the Trent Valley Water Conservation Association that was held in the Bank of Montreal Chambers on Friday evening.

A representative gathering of power users, municipal authorities, and others interested in the conservation of the Trent waters were present. The meeting was productive of an elucidative discussion, after which officers were elected, and the Association permanently established.

Could be Increased.

Mr. W. H. Denham, who presided, said that the object of the Association was to further the conservation idea policy. The amount of available power along the Trent waterway which was estimated at one hundred thousand horsepower. "This," said Mr. Denham "could be increased fifty per cent. with the adoption of a proper system of conservation. He advocated the drafting of a memorial to be submitted to the Government, presenting the merits and advantages that would accrue to the community through the enforcement of a practical conservation policy."

The Trent River.

That the attitude of the present Government in connection with the conservation of the waters comprising the Trent Valley Canal is both unsympathetic and impractical was the impeachment implied by Mr. J. H. Burnham, M.P., in respect to the Government's alleged laxity in not providing for an adequate water supply. The Federal Member for West Peterborough would also change the name of the Otonabee River by substituting the designation "Trent." The former, he contended, served no good purpose."

Mr. Burnham pointed out that the Trent Canal would be useless if the surplus water power was not rendered available for power purposes. He intimated that concerted action on the part of the Dominion and Provincial Governments would ultimately produce something of value. It was here that he referred to the Government's attitude as "unsympathetic and impractical" He also opined that the lumbermen "did not know their own business," and while they were conceded certain exclusive rights and privileges, they were not entitled to primary consideration. The lumbering industry of to-day was not regarded as important as it was when those rights and privileges were originally granted.

Continuing, Mr. Burnham said: "It is up to us to prepare a report and forward it to Mr. Borden, and at the same time, make arrangements to send a large deputation to Ottawa. It is a sort of appeal that the Government must respond to. If you do not make an appeal before the opening of the coming session, a whole year will be lost. The Canal will be open in two years and meanwhile, power users along the waterway will make their perennial row."

Too Much Water.

Mr. Bottum, a representative from Bobcaygeon, said that he was interested in the question of water conservation. The lighting plant in the Village, which he represented, had, on several occasions, been shut down, owing to the high water level that was created in the Spring. He assured the meeting of his co-operation in the matter of water conservation.

"We Want Power."

"We want water power and we want it twelve months in the year," proclaimed his Worship Mayor Bradburn. He was in favour of sending a representative deputation to Ottawa and urging upon the Government to adopt some definite policy.

Mr. W. H. Denham asserted that he was vitally concerned in the question of water power and conservation. In admiring his partiality to the question of power, Mr. Denham said that he was speaking for the Hydraulic Power Company and the Quaker Oats Company, which he represented in a managerial capacity. The Government was willing to conserve the waters for navigation and logging purposes, but was unwilling to do anything that would benefit the industrial interests upon the grounds that the latter constituted private interests. Mr. Denham contended that private interests were vested in the ownership of each, and every boat on the Trent waterway, and that the conservation of the wa-

MARKET WAS WELL ATTENDED

Cold Storage Eggs Offered at 40c. a Dozen—Turkeys Were 20c. a Pound

PRICES WERE FIRM

Several tons of produce changed hands to-day, including a few dozen cold storage eggs, at 40 cents a dozen. It is estimated that there were about five hundred sellers on the local produce market, which together with the buyers, would total about a thousand people that participated in the wild scramble to secure a supply of household commodities. Not a few turkeys intended for Christmas use, were sold at 20 cents a pound. Ducks could be purchased for $1.50 a pair and the same amount of currency was sufficient to secure a first mortgage on a goose. Chickens were plentiful and were sold at an average price of one dollar a pair. Butter, at 30c. a pound, was in fair demand, while eggs, some of which were alleged to be 'fresh,' were offered to the unsuspecting public at 40 cents a dozen.

The Outside Market.

Those who visit the market during the Saturday noon hour sometimes gain a slight price advantage. To-day, for instance, a few of the farmers were selling to "knock off" five or ten cents from their earlier figures for potatoes. On the whole, however, prices remained steady throughout the morning.

The market drew a big attendance to-day and pork, lamb and potatoes were particularly plentiful. Pork was 14 and 15 cents a pound for fronts, and hind quarters respectively, but at 12 o'clock it was down to 13 cents. Lamb was 15c and 16c, and potatoes were from $1.15 to $1.25 a bag.

Northern Spies were $2 a bag and Baldwins $1.50. Talman Sweets were $1.25, and Snow apples from $1.25 to $1.50.

Five-pound tins of honey sold at 70c and 75c.

Elementary Graded Union

The regular meeting of the Elementary Grades Union will be held in the Sunday school of the Charlotte Street Church on Tuesday evening, December 16th, at 7.45. Rev. Mr. Keith will take charge of the opening exercises.

The subject this month is "The Primary and Beginners' Programme." Mrs. Carver will lead the discussion, and a Christmas programme will be suggested. Miss Dyer will tell the "Christmas story" adopted to children of the primary and beginners classes. All interested in the elementary grades of the Sunday school are cordially invited to attend.

THE PROPER WAY OF SHORING BUILDINGS

On September 6th last, The Examiner published a description illustrated by a cut of the English System of shoring buildings, supplied by Mr. W. H. Barry. The system was so evidently effective and simple that its usefulness in shoring buildings under processes of internal changes in order to insure safety justified the publicity given it. This is shown by the fact that the walls of the Bell building, Hunter street, now undergoing internal changes, have been safely shored in exactly the manner illustrated and described by Mr. Barry.

OFFICERS ELECTED

The annual meeting of the Women's Foreign Missionary Society of St. Paul's Church was held yesterday afternoon, with the President, Miss Dickson, in the chair and a very large attendance of members. The annual reports showed the Society to be in a very flourishing condition.

Mrs. (Dr.) McClure of Honan, China, delivered a very interesting address, depicting her life in China, where she has spent the past twenty-three years.

The following officers were elected:

Hon. Vice-President—Mrs. Robt. Innis.
President—Miss Dickson.
1st Vice-President—Mrs. Pogue.
2nd Vice-President—Mrs. Roger.
Secretary—Mrs. Harstone.
Treasurer—Mrs. McKee.
Organist—Mrs. Logan.
Executive—Mesdames Turner, Allan, Graham, Mowat, Keyes, Munro, Mason, Shook, Hall, Erskine and Miss Ringan.

The Examiner will publish the annual reports early next week.

WHERE TWO CANADIANS WERE SHOT.—Miners' shacks in Calmet, Mich., where George James and Henry James of Ontario, Canada, were shot dead by strikers who attacked lodging house where they lived and riddled the place with bullets. The British residents of Michigan have demanded an investigation of the affair, and the incident may develop into International correspondence.

LOCAL NAVIES BOUND TO COME

England is Rapidly Recognizing the Fact and Naval Experts Are Now Trying to Frame a Proper System.

A CENTRAL BOARD

Special Cable to The Examiner.

LONDON, Eng., Dec. 13.—England is rapidly recognising the inevitableness of the policy of Local Dominion navies. New Zealand's decision has had a profound effect here. Naval experts are now trying to frame systems for close working between the Imperial and the Dominion navies. Lieutenant Horden this week proposed a plan to the Royal United Service Institution by which each part of the Empire would have its own Navy Board, for the purposes of supply. The political head of each navy board would be a member of the General Board of the Admiralty, which would also consist of five Sea Lords, one from each Dominion and England. This would be the centralized authority for controlling the entire Empire fleet.

JAMES LeBARR FINED $50.00

Bartender of American Hotel Convicted of Selling Liquor to a Minor—Must Pay $55.75

ANOTHER MINOR TO-DAY

James LeBarr, bartender at the American Hotel, Hunter street, was found guilty in Police Court this morning of selling liquor to Norman Hurl, a young fellow under 21 years of age. He was fined $50 and costs, amounting in all to $55.75, and given ten days to pay. In default of payment LeBarr will have to spend 60 days in the County Gaol.

The case was tried yesterday, and in his evidence Hurl swore that he bought liquor over the bar of the American Hotel, on the afternoon of Saturday, December 6. LeBarr served him.

Seven witnesses were called for the defence, but their evidence did not upset the Crown's case and LeBarr was found guilty.

LeBarr is the bartender who was witness in a theft case some time ago, when he stated in the witness box that although he had been told a man was being robbed in the next room of the hotel, he didn't think it was any of his business. At the time the Magistrate gave him a severe tongue-lashing for his conduct.

Frederick Holland, a minor, pleaded guilty to being drunk. When questioned as to where he got his liquor he brough to life a mysterious six-foot stranger with a clean-shaven face and black overcoat.

The Court refused to believe his story and he was remanded until Wednesday next. The police will try to prove that Garnet Innes, the local expressman, gave the young fellow the liquor.

CHICKEN THIEF REPENTS.

A man who stole three chickens years ago from L. Glass of Evansville, Ind., has become conscience stricken. Glass receive an unsigned letter postmarked Evansville, in which was inclosed $1.50 in money. The letter read as follows: "I herewith inclose $1.50 for three chickens I stole from you 15 years ago. I am a thief no longer."

ACCUSED OF THE THEFT OF $15.00

He Wants to Fight Bulls in Canada.—Senor Enrique Robles, full-blooded and full-fledged Spanish matador, who is in Canada with the expectations of making a pile of money out of bull fighting. He expected to arrange a series of fights in all the big cities of Canada this winter, but his efforts so far have not been very well received. In Toronto, for instance, he couldn't find a suitable arena for the battle.

Percy Holland and Lavergne Killenbeck Face Serious Charge at Police Court This Morning

JUDGMENT RESERVED

Percy Holland and Lavergne Killingbeck pleaded "not guilty" at Police Court this morning to the charge against them, of stealing $15 from a local man who was under the influence of liquor.

Mr. G. N. Gordon conducted the case for the Crown, in the absence of Crown Attorney Wood, who is ill.

The first Crown witness was Mr. Wilfred Ireland from whom the money is alleged to have been stolen. Ireland said that yesterday he was in the American Hotel, and he invited Killingbeck and Holland to go with him to the Palace Hotel and have a drink. Killingbeck walked on the right side of him and took his arm. Holland walked behind. Before they reached the hotel witness felt a hand in his pocket, and looking down saw Killingbeck withdraw his hand, from his (witness') pocket. Ireland at once put his hand down and found that the $15 he had in his right-hand pocket was gone. Only 10 minutes before he had noticed that the money was safe in his pocket.

Some one else, who saw the robbery, summoned the police. When they arrived Ireland told them his story and the two young men were arrested. The police found $8.75 on Killingbeck, and $6 on Holland, making $14.75 between them. The sum taken was $15.

P. C. Brown was the next witness. He said that about 1:30 p.m. yesterday he was informed of the robbery and went to a Hunter street hotel. There Ireland said to him: "They robbed me," and pointed at the two prisoners. P. C. Reid (who was with witness) arrested the two prisoners, and while he was putting the handcuffs on, Killingbeck took some money out of his pocket and tried to slip it down inside his pants. But Brown caught his arm and found the $8 in his clothing. When the prisoners got to the station, Holland tried to pass some money to Killingbeck, but this was prevented by P. C. Reid, who found the sum was $6.

P. C. Reid corroborated P. C. Brown's evidence.

Killingbeck went into the box in his own defence. He said that he was in the hotel when the police came. Somebody in the bar cried: "Here come the cops," and said, "Grab this, quick!" A hand was thrust out to him, and someone shoved the money down in his clothes. He put his hand down to see what it was, when Brown arrested him.

Holland in the witness box, said that he didn't walk from one hotel to the other with Killingbeck and Ireland, but that he only caught up to them when they reached the hotel.

Judgment was reserved until Monday.

Mr. Ball Will Be Candidate

Is in the Field for the Public Utilities Commission

Another candidate has offered himself for the position of Public Utilities Commissioner in the person of ex-Alderman Geo. Ball, who to-day authorized the Examiner to state that he was definitely in the field to contest for the position. Mr. Ball was in the Council for several years.

MEAT WAS UNCOVERED

Sanitary Inspector Spence chased a lead of meat off the market this morning. The meat it is claimed was uncovered, a fact which constitutes a violation of the market regulations. The quality of the meat was not disputed, but the method by which it was exposed for sale failed to commend itself to the Inspector, with the above result.

Inspector Spence states that he will enforce the law to the limit where the question of food supplies are concerned.

PAT'S PLAN.

"What are you doing there, Patrick?"

"O'm diggin 'a hole to put this pile of rubbish in, sorr."

"And what will you do with the earth you are taking out?"

"Shure, sorr, I'm diggin' the hole big enough to hould that, too."

"THE "NOT OUTS" ANNUAL DANCE ENJOYABLE ONE

The annual dance of the "Not Outs" Club was held in the Conservatory of Music Hall last night. Over one hundred couples were present, and the dance was one of the most successful since the inception of the "Not Outs'" dances.

Music was provided by Miss Gladman, and was the delight of the dancers. The strains of the latest dance tunes interpreted by Miss Gladman, were alone an invitation to dance and were greatly enjoyed.

The dance was an enjoyable one, and every guest thoroughly enjoyed the evening. During the evening delightful refreshments were served.

ELECTRIC POWER FOR MAGNETITE ARC LIGHTS

ASHES ONLY TO BE SEPARATED

New Regulation Regarding Garbage Collections—Refuse and Garbage in the One Can

EXTRA FOR CONTRACTORS

The residents in the garbage collecting district are requested to note that in future garbage may be wrapped in paper. This will prevent the garbage freezing to the cans in winter. All other refuse except ashes may be placed with the garbage, but ashes must be kept clear of all other rubbish or refuse.

BRANTFORD'S HYDRO COST OVER ESTIMATE

More Streets, Wire Price Up, Capacity Added to, Meters Also, Debenture Loss

BRANTFORD, Dec. 13.—The cost of installing Hydro-Electric power in Brantford will greatly exceed the estimate of $115,000 which was set at first when the question was submitted to the ratepayers. In fact, it is likely to be anywhere above that sum up to $150,000.

In the first place three and one-half miles of streets have been added to the list originally planned to be lighted. In the second place there has been a material increase in the price of copper wire which will make a large difference in the construction cost, as a great deal of copper wire is being used for the new system.

Then the transformer capacity in the original estimate provided for a plant which would accommodate only the street lighting and domestic lighting power, and the committee, to obviate a greater expense by having a manufacturing power transforming system put in after the other was in use, added this to the first construction work. Then, too, the meters were not provided in the original estimates, and as they cost from $10 to $12 and about one thousand are needed this will add about $10,000 to the original estimate.

There is still another loss. The debentures issued by the City to cover the cost of the installation of the plan here will not sell at par, and there will be a loss of $5000 to $6000 in this alone.

To offset these added expenses and the losses occasioned by the fact that the original plans were not made large enough for Brantford's needs for street and domestic light and manufacturing power too, there are a few points. The western cedar poles for the street lighting did not cost as much as the cement poles estimated on, and a saving was made on construction of power house and land, but on the whole there will be a considerable increase in the cost over the estimates and the sum allowed, $115,000, will by no means cover the cost.

TO THE ELECTORS OF THE CITY

In the Field for Water Commissioner

Ladies and Gentlemen,—The retirement of Mr. W. H. Hill from the board of Water Commissioners has decided me to offer myself as a candidate for the vacancy made by his withdrawal.

Realising that the Board of Water Commissioners to be an efficient and business-like organization and that the local Hydro-Electric will be an addition to the duties of the Commission for the coming year it will be my aim if honoured with a seat at the board to co-operate with the present members of that commission and to assist in continuing the success already achieved by the Waterworks Department, and help, so far as in my power, with the organization of the local Hydro-Electric system, (which has had in our City since its advent, my loyal support), to make this public utility of the greatest possible service to the citizens of the municipality.

The qualification which I present to you in support of my candidature is service in your interest for five years on your board of aldermen.

On this record I ask your support at the polls.

Respectfully,
ROBERT HICKS.

Will be Supplied by the Peterborough Light and Power Company —Ready to Throw in the Switch

SEVENTY HORSE POWER

It has long been a matter of conjecture as to where the City would secure a supply of power with which to operate the magnetite arc lights that have recently been erected. The authorities concerned in the installation of the Hydro-Electric system of street lighting, have been reluctant to reveal the probable source of their power supply, and it devolved upon the Examiner to secure this information from some other source. The Peterborough Light and Power Company was selected as the medium through which the information might be forthcoming. The result was highly satisfactory in that it supplied an answer to a question that has been agitating the public mind, including the municipal authorities, for week, and perhaps months.

Appreal Was Mutual.

This morning Mr. W. H. Munro, manager of the Peterborough Light and Power Comany, stated that the company stood ready to supply power to the municipality in any quantity at a cost equal to the rate fixed by the Hydro-Electric Commission in their agreement for the first quarter. This offer was conveyed to the Hydro Commission in the form of a communication from the Vice-President of the Power Company and its acceptance approved of by both the Commission and the civic authorities.

Seventy Horse Power.

A few days ago Mayor Bradburn and Ald. Johnston, chairman of the Power committee of the City Council waited upon Mr. Munro and asked to have the Hydro-Electric street lighting system connected with the company's feed wires. Mr. Munro promised to have the system connected up by to-day (Saturday) at noon. The work was commenced yesterday and completed this morning. A feed wire capable of supplying an unlimited quantity of power was connected with the rectifiers at the municipal substation situated in the premises formerly occupied by the Peterborough Machine Company. About seventy horse power will be required to operate the magnetite arc lights.

Nothing remains but to throw in a switch whenever the municipal authorities are ready. Tuesday next has been set apart as the date upon which the power will be turned on and the streets illuminated.

METHODS OF RAISING FUNDS ARE CONDEMNED

Ministerial Association Passes an Important Resolution

At a full meeting of the Peterborough Ministerial Association, after a careful and thorough discussion, the following resolution was unanimously passed:

(1) "That this Association hereby expresses its sense of the great encouragement which has come to its members through the "Every member canvass" and its warm appreciation of the very general and generous support promised by the members of our churches."

(2) That the members of our Association consider this is a favourable opportunity to express their conviction that bazaars, public entertainments and other financial appeals to the community should be discouraged as a means of raising funds for either church support or church extension.

This it is hoped will lessen what seems to have become a burden, especially to the merchants of our City.

Jealous of the honour and usefulness of the whole church in her witness to the community, we would strongly deprecate any approach to the commercializing of religion or anything else which may tend to obscure the divine character and lofty mission of the church.

"Peterborough Presents Possibilities Unparalleled."

SATURDAY, DEC. 13, 1913

EXASPERATING.

We read with bated breath and chest-swelling pride of the triumphs won in the United States by Canadian horse, sheep and cattle breeders. Our hearts burned within us as we read of the splendid show of cattle, sheep, etc., at the Toronto Fat Stock Show. The same intra-pectoral sensation pervaded the proud Canadian pulmonary cavity as we read of the great fat stock show at Guelph—of giant steers of abnormal avoirdupoise and points, of wonderful mutton material, of "the best poultry show ever held in Canada." But what's the use? These things are only exasperating, with choice cuts of beef at 25 cents a pound, lamb on the same shelf, and eggs at from 3 to 5 cents each. In Old Country districts a ham hung from the rafters of a labourer's cottage, was a sign of opulence—not for eating, but for show—to kindle envy in the hearts of hamless neighbours. Our prize bullocks and sheep and prize-winning poultry are no better for practical purposes than the show ham of the Old Country cottager. They don't help a bit to close the gap between high prices and the capacity of the ordinary purse.

BANK OF MONTREAL.

The Bank of Montreal never furnished anything in the form of news. It's always the same old story at every annual meeting—increasing solidity, steady growth and increasing prosperity. The business of the bank for the past year has been satisfactory to the shareholders and the public in the assurance of strengthened position and profitable operation. A glance at the annual statement published elsewhere in this issue will reveal some important features. The total assets of the Bank are now over 245 million dollars, a sum exceeding the total assessed value of all the cities of Ontario except Toronto. The business of the bank for the year represents a "turn-over" in the form of current loans and discounts of 129 million dollars. The profits upon this business, conservative as it was, permitted the allocation of dividends and bonuses equivalent to twelve per cent. on the capital, besides setting aside $485,000 for bank premises and strengthening the profit and loss account by $243,000. It is a pleasure to note that during a year of financial stringency, the Bank of Montreal has been able to do an increasingly profitable business, an indication of public confidence. In financial strength and magnitude of operations the Bank of Montreal has the quality of a national government, and it is, in effect, a great national asset, of which Canada and the Empire can well be proud.

The local branch of the Bank, under the management of Mr. R. W. Travers, has shared in the prosperity and contributed to the success of the Bank for the past year.

WHAT WE DIDN'T VOTE FOR.

Canada is pretty robust and tough, and her potential and actual wealth will stand a pretty heavy strain from Government extravagance. For the past seventeen or eighteen years we have had a rapidly rising revenue; but the moment the Borden Government becomes fairly set in its saddle the national revenue begins to sag, while the expenditure increases by, as the stump orator remarks, "leaps and bounds." Our Finance Minister, Mr. White, is hard put to get money for his Cabinet colleagues to spend. For the first time in our history, the London money market has shut its doors in the face of Canada. But Mr. White must have money. Our Minister of Militia, who is planting drill halls all over Canada, making them as common and as expensive as hen coops, must have money. Hon. Bob Rogers, Minister of Elections, must have money to meet his promises of public works made to bribe electors in the bye-elections. Our Finance Minister can't depend upon falling revenue; he can't get money from the London lenders, and now he has to resort to the United States. Hon. Mr. White is urging United States insurance companies to send their surplus funds in Canada. This is pretty rich for a Finance Minister in a Government that got power on the cry of 'no truck nor trade with the Yankees." It would be laughable if it were not so serious to see how the deluded electors of 1911 are getting almost everything they didn't vote for. The only thing they got that they voted for, is the Conservative-Nationalist government of Mr. Borden, and tens of thousands of them are not proud of their creation.

THE CHRISTMAS SPIRIT.

Though the weather is more like the "mild September" than mid-December, Christmas is coming, and if the Christmas crispness and frost are not in the air, the Christmas spirit is. Our hearts are beginning to glow with the impulses of good-will, kindness and cheer the season excites.

Naturally we think first of our own—of the home brood, and the mind turns to the perplexing problem of catering to the demands of the individual stockings. We never for a moment think of an empty Christmas stocking on Christmas morning. Home wouldn't be home, Christmas would not be Christmas, and happy, hopeful little hearts would be saddened, if the Christmas gift giving were omitted.

We can't all of us become children again, but we can become sympathetic enough to feel what Christmas and the petty, but precious gifts of Christmas mean to the child. Their joys and their disappointments are as real and as important as ours are to us elders. It would take a good deal to make us forget the claims of our own children and others near and dear to us at Christmas time.

The true spirit of Christmas is as altruistic as the earth mission of the Lord and founder of Christians. It has no taint of selfishness, but is all embracing in its inclusiveness.

We must think of the many homes, where poverty and unemployment, and perhaps illness of bread winners, mean no Christmas for the little ones of the home. We should be one of the band of "Big Brothers" such as compose the "Big Brother Club" organized on Wednesday night. The work of this club is a holy one—it is designed to bring Christmas joy to the poor, the neglected and unfortunate children, who under ordinary conditions can look to no Christmas cheer, no lighting of the darkness of their drab little lives, no gleam from the Star that showed the way to the manger where the Christmas spirit lay incarnate, "born of the Virgin Mary."

The Club has a wider outlook than the Christmas moment; it aims to project the Christmas spirit into the months of the whole year, to care for children sick with chronic ailments, and provide for the necessary treatment, nursing, feeding and care which, without help, will be lacking. The Christmas philanthropist, who stops at Christmas is not genuine, he is as a mere Sunday Christian, a blood relative of the be-ye-warmed-and-filled Christians, who do no warming and filling.

We must be practical, and to be practical it is suggested that use might be made of an existing organization.

The city has been swept during the past weeks by a wave of enthusiasm, converted into practical effort, by the Laymen's Missionary movement. Every church was organized for making individual appeal to its membership or affiliation. The city was searched as with a comb, and a widespread and deeply-seated practical, popular interest aroused in the work of the Christian church as represented by missions to the spiritually destitute.

Why should all this elaborate and well-organized moral machinery be used for only one great annual effort? If the organized forces were kept in commission and joined with the Big Brother movement, what brightness, comfort and Christmas cheer would be brought to hundreds for whom no Christmas cheer is otherwise provided. Beginning with Christmas as the base point of the Christian church, similar activity exercised throughout the year in caring for the destitute, and friendless, healing the sick, feeding the hungry, would mean that the real, the true work of Christ on earth, would be repeated, perpetuated and made a permanent and immanent influence, instead of being an incident of the Christmas season.

The work of providing means for gospel propagation, is the kitchen service of Martha, compared with the personal service of Mary to the Master, who gives us his assurance that we are best serving Him whenever we think of and perform Christian kindness to the destitute and suffering—"inasmuch as ye have done it unto the least of these."

What a power for good would the Laymen's Missionary organization be if it were maintained in active operation throughout the year. Think of a dozen churches with an average of fifty workers—an aggregate of 600—throwing their activity into the work of [illegible] Christian charity from Christmas to Christmas. Such an organization, through its recent activity, brought into direct contact with the whole city, should know to a hoad where a cup of cold water is needed—in learning where to get it has learned where to give — the better part of Christian service.

SCHOOL GIRL HAS MOST MYSTERIOUS WORDS ON LIMBS

PARIS, December 9.—Raymonde Bellard, a twelve-year-old school girl, living in the village of Bussus-Bussuel, near Abbeville, has lately developed the mysterious faculty of replying to various questions by means of pictures and messages in written characters appearing on her skin.

These inexplicable phenomena, which began to manifest themselves towards the latter part of the summer, have since then been repeated with constantly increased distinctness.

The first of the series of pictures was a ladder which was vividly outlined on the girl's arm. Then followed the representations of a fig tree, a dog, and, after intervals of several days, a horse and other animals.

These were followed by messages referring to different inhabitants of the village, such as "Fedora will not come this morning, "Victor is sure to be taken for a recruit," and many similar statements, imprinted, some on the girl's arms, others on her chest, her shoulders, or her legs and thighs.

This strange faculty, as though not sufficiently mysterious in itself, was later on followed by the even more astounding one of divination.

An instance of the possession of this gift, already attested by numerous intelligent witnesses, among others by the village schoolmaster, the priest, and a lawyer, is given by a representative of the Matin.

He said to Raymonde: "Can you tell me my Christian name?"

After a quarter of an hour's silence the girl exclaimed: "Yes, here it is."

Exposing her leg, there were seen just above the knee-joint, a number of minute markings.

These quickly took shape, and in the space of a few seconds there appeared, in well formed letters, the name "Henri."

This inscription, before it had time to fade away, as they all do after a short space, was duly photographed, and is now on view in the offices of the Matin.

It may be added that Raymonde Bellard is a perfectly normal child. She enjoys good health, is intelligent, but not specially quick at her school duties, and shows no trace of neurasthenia or of abnormal development.

THE CALLER.

Mrs. Vaughan was out shopping one morning and upon her return home she asked Annie, her maid, if three had been any callers during her absence.

"Yes, mum,' replied Annie.

"Who called?" inquired the mistress.

"Mrs. Cassidy, mum," replied the girl.

"Mrs. Cassidy?" repeated Mrs. Vaughan, thoughtfully) "Why, I don't know any Mrs. Cassidy."

"No, mum," answered Annie. "She didn't come to see you, mum; she came to see me,"

ONTARIO BIRD STORE

Dear Sir or Madam:—

HERE'S AN XMAS IDEA.

Why not be original!

Give a Canary, not a common whistler, but a genuine "German Roller," a living music box, which is the name for our famous songsters.

It won't be an ordinary yellow bird called a canary.

German Rollers are different. The name "Living Music Box" just fits them.

Such singing you've seldom, possibly never heard.

When German Rollers are unboxed and hang in the light, they are soon at home and begin to sing at once.

Such deep throat melody! Such thrills and runs! You'll stand amazed and wonder how such a glorious flood of sound could pour from so small a throat. It's real singing, not whistling, nor monotonous chirping.

Think of the delight your friend or loved one will experience, a daily reminder of your thoughtful kindness.

We import these Birds direct from Germany, where they are especially bred and trained for us. There they receive a thorough education in singing, and no bird is sent to us unless it is a tested, selected specimen of a singer. We sell no "seconds."

Just now we are receiving every week exceptionally large importations for our enormous trade, among them some of the best Prize Singers, birds which easily sell at $6.00 to $10.00 each and more.

As a special inducement to you and with the expectation of selling many of our famous songsters in your vicinity, we will send you one of these high priced birds, if you order at once, for only $3.50.

We will select the bird for you, cage it, send you a generous quantity of food and seeds, guarantee that the bird will arrive at your local express office lively, unharmed and happy.

A handsome Lacquered Brass Cage at $1.50 (or with a guard extra at 75c), will complete the outfit.

To-day is a good day to decide. Get it off your mind and send at $3.50 money order, or with handsome brass cage $5.00, and guard complete, $5.75. You will never regret.

Department 0. Respectfully yours.

Causes And The Cure Of Tuberculosis

by the Peterboro' Health Association

Contributed to The Examiner

The work of the Peterborough Health Association nurses is not confined to tuberculosis only, but takes in all branches of general cases, one nurse attending to that part of the work. All calls coming through the doctors will be promptly attended to.

The following are the monthly reports from Nov. 1 until Dec. 1, for the nurses, for general work and tuberculosis:

Nurse For General Work.

Number of patients 9
Number of visits made 80

Nurse For Tuberculosis.

Number of patients 30
Number of visits made 163

So much depends upon the nurses. They go about as St. Paul with the Ephesians, teaching from house to house, bringing cheer, happiness, hope and general encouragement, of which the patients need so much.

Too much praise cannot be given for the good work that is being done in Peterborough to-day by the Health Association, and if the public would only interest themselves, and all join and help in the grand and noble work that is being done in the advancement of health in general, and against tuberculosis. Can we look each other in the face and say, "At least we have done our part or at least we have done the work that fell to our part. Let us ask ourselves what we have left undone?"

PROVIDE FREE RINKS

A Mother Makes a Good Suggestion to the "Big Brothers" Club

To the Editor:

Dear Sir,— Will you allow me through your columns to congratulate the leaders in the "Big Brother" movement on the success of their first meeting?

Among the names mentioned were those of men of influence in our City might I suggest that this influence be used just now to secure for the children open air skating rinks which would provide them with recreation and tend to keep them off the streets. In the summer these might be converted into 'supervised play grounds.'

Open spaces for such playgrounds are becoming scarcer in our City year by year, especially in the central district; year by year playing on the street is becoming more dangerous to the moral as well as the physical welfare of the child. What could be of more continuous or lasting benefit to him than provision for healthful recreation with safety at his very door?

Could not our "Big Brothers" take some steps to secure these, not by appealing to an already overburdened City Council or Board of Education, but to the benevolent spirit abroad at this season of the year and which must be wide awake in Peterborough to bring about the formation of the "Big Brothers' Club?"

A Mother.

Y. W. C. A. NOTES

Vesper service will be held in the "Green Room" Sunday, December 14th at 5 o'clock. Mrs. Dawney will address the meeting and Mr. Dawney has kindly consented to contribute the vocal selection. A hearty welcome is extended to all our friends to be with us at this service.

The C.P.R. station was enlivened this morning by the departure of the Model Students whose home has been at the Y.W. during their school term. Before leaving, they voted the "Y" the most popular and pleasant place in Peterborough and thanked the secretaries and superintendent for the many kindnesses shown them, and for their interest in their personal welfare. As the train moved out the Y.W.C.A. yell woke the early morning echoes and travellers on the "Limited" wakened to the fact that Peterborough was a real, live town.

The Skin Troubles of Childhood

School Records Show Much Time Lost From Eczema.

Chafing and skin irritation, whether from changing temperature, rough winds, strong soap or the action of the clothing, naturally develop into eczema, spread over the body and defy ordinary treatments.

Most doctors do not give much attention to skin diseases, and, consequently, it is necessary for parents to select some treatment which has proven a cure for such ailments. If records of cures count for anything, then you can turn to Dr. Chase's Ointment with fullest assurance that in this you will have the means of controlling itching skin diseases.

By affording prompt relief from the terrible itching, Dr. Chase's Ointment puts an end to suffering and removes the cause of scratching. As the fires of eczema die away the ointment sets up the process of healing, and brings about thorough and lasting cure. As a treatment for the skin troubles of children nothing has ever proven so satisfactory as Dr. Chase's Ointment

Formation Of Water, Etc.

ters for navigation purposes, constituted a direct benefit to private interests.

"All We Ask."

"All we ask," said Mr. Denham, "is that the Government recognise the industrial interests, which are just as essential to the welfare of the Province and district, as the navigation or logging interests. Ontario is the manufacturing centre of the Dominion and if we do not conserve the waters of the Trent Canal we are wasting our natural resources. For the last sixteen weeks we have not been able to operate our flour mill more than twelve hours a day, whereas we should run it twenty-four hours. The men in charge of the back waters do not know how to regulate them. We want the Government to take charge and see that every man does his work. He is not paid fifty dollars for his vote, but to put the logs in at the proper time. The dams should be made higher and of more substantial material than timber. The Province will get the benefit of the improvements. If we have more power we will put up larger mills.

Surplus Water.

For two months last spring over 350,000 cubic feet of water went over the Peterborough Hydraulic Company's dam, in addition to what was utilized for power purposes. It is a shame that this water was not conserved."

The material interest represented in dollars and cents is a basic argument upon which Mr. E. G. Patterson would base an appeal to the Government. This would include assessment, population, and the industrial output of every municipality involved. "The mere fact of the Canadian General Electric being benefitted is incidental," said Mr. Patterson. "If we employ eighteen hundred hands this year and two thousand next year we will be contributing to the general welfare of the country".

Mr. J. C. Shook endorsed the formation of a permanent organization to represent the district in matters pertaining to the conservation of natural resources. He urged upon the necessity of making a strong representation to the Government.

Settlers Not Wanted.

Mr. J. B. McWilliams outlined a report that he has prepared, and which deals with the back waters and forest reserves. He contended that a large part of the forest reserves should never have been opened up for settlement. A system of reforestry should be undertaken, and some of the settlers, who were in misery removed.

Mr. J. Duignan, who represents the McDonald Lumber Company, corroborated Mr. McWilliams remarks concerning the inadvisability of throwing the north country open for settlement. "The Ontario Government is granting new locations every day and we have to protest against them. There is nothing to encourage the settler beyond the privilege of cutting the timber. Steps should be taken to preserve the forest reserves," said Mr. Duignan.

"A Good Cause."

"It seems to me, we have good cause to find fault with the Government." said Mr. James Kendry, ex-M.P. "It is the duty of the Government to regulate the waters so as to keep the reservoirs full and maintain an even flow of water throughout the year. In presenting our claims to the authorities at Ottawa, we should emphasis the question of navigation. This would carry more weight with the Government than an appeal on behalf of the industrial interests."

Mr. J. H. McClellan, superintendent of the Trent Valley Canal, and Mr. A. J. Grant, chief engineer, declined to participate in the discussion upon the grounds that they were officially connected with the Government. Mr. McClellan said that the scheme was a big one and that when the Trent Valley Canal was completed more water would be required for navigation purposes. "Future prospects for more water, for power purposes were rather nebulous, unless some form of conservation scheme was adopted," remarked Mr. McClellan.

Two Steam Engines.

Peterborough Light and Power Company was not effected by the low water owing to the fact that the city had been supplied with power from the combined turbine and generator capacity of the company's various dams such as Healey Falls, Fenelon Falls, etc.

Mr. Kendry in reply to Mr. Munro's reference to the claims of the navigation interests said that he had no desire to minimize the interests of the power users, but was of the opinion that the case would be materially strengthened if the claims of navigation interests were incorporated in the memorial, as the Government was inclined to be partial to the navigation.

Alderman Langford's Enquiry.

Alderman W. Langford—Have you any expert evidence as to the possibilities of conservation, and does the fact that the Hydro-Electric is coming in here have any bearing on the matter? Of course the Hydro is backed up by the Government, said Alderman Langford informingly.

Mr. Denham replied that they would share in the benefits as they would naturally be an interested party.

Other speakers on the list were Mr. James Edwards, of Lindsay; Mr. Boyd, of Bobcaygeon, and Mr. Davidson.

The election of officers resulted as follows:

Hon. President—Mr. J. H. Burnham.

President—Mr. W. H. Denham.

Vice-President—Warden A. E. Bottum, of Bobcaygeon.

Secretary-Treasurer—Mr. W. H. Munro.

Executive Committee—Messrs. H. G. Fitzgerald, Lakefield; J. Carew, Lindsay; J. L. Owen, Campbellford; J. H. Brandon, Fenelon Falls; J. Edwards, Lindsay; James Peel, Coboconk; T. F. Matthews, Peterborough; W. H. Bradburn, Peterborough; Dr. Kidd, Trenton; E. G. Patterson, Peterborough; G. Porter, Belleville.

EGYPT (the rival enchantresses) INDIA. Lord Kitchener's dilemma, as seen by the artist of the London Graphic. A rumour is abroad that Kitchener is to succeed Viscount Hardinge as Viceroy of India. The gallant Kitch, will find it a trying ordeal to choose between two fields, in both of which he has made separate and splendid reputations. The theory is that the British Government feels the need of Kitchener's strong presence in India, during this time when the Hindoos are restive, under the expulsion of their fellow-countrymen from Canada and South Africa.

INTEREST IN NORTH MONAGHAN ELECTIONS

One of the Township Ratepayers says There will be Changes after Election Day.

"We are going to turn out some of those people down there," said a North Monaghan man this morning, while speaking of the prospects in the coming Township elections. "They've been too extravagant, it seems to me, opening up and grading new streets where there isn't a house."

"What streets have they been working at now?"

"The last one that I noticed was down near the River, off Park Street. The taxes are much higher this year and there are quite a few "kickers." So look out for a change after election day."

Canada's manufacturers' exports, 1910-11, $35,283,118—highest on record—doubled in 10 years.

Total fire insurance in force in Canada, $2,034,276,740.

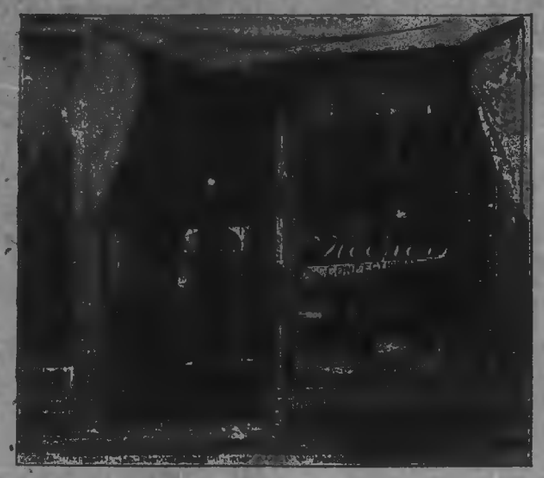
A MERRIE CHRISTMAS AT HOOPER'S THREE STORES

Grand Welcome to Santa Claus, Kris Kringle and All Yuletide Visitors



Hooper's Oldest and Established George Street Store

It will be of interest to the many customers of Mr. T. H. Hooper, longest established confectioner, baker and caterer, to know that his three confectionery establishments and large bakery have been working night and day to keep up with Santa Claus orders.

Just a few days before the great Christmas festival, Mr. Hooper is prepared to the "peak load" with a cornucopea full of new dainties and delicacies—a horn of plenty, brimming and overflowing with the best of confections, pastry and cake.

There are Christmas cakes, iced and ornamented; fruit and nut cakes; tarts and jelly cakes; macaroons and lady fingers, short cakes and ginger cakes, pound and sponge cakes, and buns and biscuits of many varieties.

There are bon-bons and chocolates, without a rival for daintiness and flavour—the utmost in candy. Creamy insides and centres in imported candy, fruit candy, molasses candy, cream caramels, milk chocolates, and Christmas stockings, with a fine assortment of toys, crackers and table confections. Hooper's home-made taffy, which has been a favourite in Peterborough for over 25 years, put up in numerous forms, with a pleasing, blending of flavou not found in other brands of taffy.

Then there is Hooper's home-made breads—white, brown, cream loaf, and other fancy loaves, which he claims to be "the aristocrats of the dining table." Cleaniness and skill are the rocks upon which Hooper has built the wide and ever-increasing sale of his bread.

Then, if you want to be relieved of the worry of looking after the Christmas catering or afternoon teas, receptions, banquets, etc., Hooper has the facilities, and can give satisfactory service. It it is a wedding, all the better. He makes a specialty of artistic almond icing wedding cakes, and no matter how fastidious the hostess, her most exacting demands can be met.

All over his spacious three stores, Mr. Hooper will be found ever ready to meet the demands of the buying public. The sooner you come the greater will be your pleasure. Never put off till to-morrow what you can buy at Hooper's to-day.

Remarkable Operation

BUFFALO, Dec. 11.—In one of the most dangerous and unusual operations ever performed in Buffalo, surgeons recently removed from the sack enclosing the heart, three pints of pus and saved the life of William Praetzel, 22 years old, who has been near death from a pressure on the heart for several days.

Dr. P. H. Honnigan and Dr. A. Fr. Colton were called. A long tubular needle was inserted within a fraction of an inch of the heart. A blood pressure instrument was attached to the right wrist and one of the attendants observed the patient while the surgeons removed the pressure through the tube. After fifteen minutes, the heart began to resume its regular functions. Previous to the operation, Praetzel's skin had turned blue and his legs swollen to almost twice their normal size.

To all Whom this May Concern:-

We will thank any parties that owe any money to us to call or remit same at once, or before the end of this present month December, 1913.

Any parties having accounts against us, we will thank them to present or send same at once, when they will be paid.

Wishing everyone a Merry Christmas, we remain,

Yours truly,

"AT HOME" AT NORMAL SCHOOL

Staff of That Institution Entertained Normal and Model School Students and a Number of Ex-students

The staff of the Normal school held a very enjoyable reception in the Assembly Hall of the school last night, for the students, ex-students and teachers in the Public schools where the Normal students teach practice lessons.

The attendance was very large, and the entertainment arranged by the teachers proved a most pleasing one. The following received the guests: Mr. and Mrs. Walker, Mr. and Mrs. Parks, Mr. and Mrs. Keyes, Mr. and Mrs. Chisholm, Mr. and Mrs. Ranney, Mr. and Mrs. Hagerman, Miss Ranney, Miss Ferguson and Miss McRae.

The programme was divided into four parts. In the first part a number of splendid musical numbers were given, and made a decided treat for the guests. The programme, every item of which was heartily received, was successfully rendered as follows:

Vocal Solo—Mrs. Trebilcock.
Violin Solo—Dr. Park.
Vocal solo—Mrs. Perrin.
Recitation—Miss K. Leary.
Vocal solo—Miss Manniece Park.

After the programme a short promenade was held, and this was followed by games, directed by Mr. J. J. Thompson of the Y.M.C.A. These were the cause of a great deal of merriment and were entered into heartily by every one.

Presenting gifts from a Christmas tree formed the third part of the evening and this effected the purpose for which it was intended. The teachers threw off their cares and the pupils the thoughts of their studies, making the affair an enjoyable one.

Dainty refreshments, "charmingly prepared, and served by Mr. T. H. Hooper, were served before the close of the evening.

Th staff of the school is to be congratulated on the success of the reception.

SUCCESSFUL BAZAAR HELD

George Street Mission Band Affair Was Well Patronized

A very successful bazaar and sale of work was held in the lectury room of the George Street Methodist Church yesterday afternoon and evening under the auspices of the Mission Band. The affair was largely attended and the attractively decorated and well-stocked booths were freely patronized. During the evening the Sunday School Orchestra played an enjoyable programme.

The following were in charge of the differept departments:

Tea-room—Mrs. Dairns, Mrs. Cunningham, Mrs. Sharpe.

Candy Booth—Miss Gladys Pentland.

Apron booth—Mrs. J. D. Craig.
Doll booth—Mrs. Percy Rutherford.
Fancy work—Mrs. Lewis, Mrs. Freeman.
Toy booth—Mrs. Eagle, Mrs. Mather.

A handsome sum will be realized as a result of the efforts of the ladies.

I. O. F. ELECTION OF OFFICERS

New Financial Secretary Appointed Another Social Evening to be Arraaged

The annual election meeting of Court Chemong, 530, I.O.F., was held in the W.O.W. Hall on Thursday evening, when officers were elected for the ensuing year. An important change was the appointment of Bro. R. P. Borland of the Union Bank for the position of financial secretary for the Court. The following are the officers for 1914:—

D. Wallace, P.C.R.
A. E. Miscampbell, C.R.
H. C. Wilson—V.C.R.
J. W. Byers, R.S.
R. P. Borland, F.S.

W. G. McKee—Orator.
G. Metcalfe, C.D.
Dr. Carmichael—Physician.
Finance Committee—E. Wright, J. McDonald.
Trustees—W. Brown, Geo. MMcKee.

Contributions during the year from the donation box totalled a goodly sum, which will be sent to the orphanag at Oakville. Owing to Christmas the next meeting will be held on Tuesday evening the 23rd, and the officers will be installed on Thursday evening, Jan. 8th. A social evening will be held on Thursday evening, Feb. 12th. Tickets issued and particulars to be announced at a later date.

Bravery Of Titanic Band Commemorated

Editor Examiner:

Sir,—The following may be of interest to many of your readers.

Yours truly,
RICH. J. DEVEY.

In St. Mary's Church, Southampton, there has been recently erected a magnificent marble tablet, commemorating the loss of the heroic bandsmen of the ill-fated "Titanic," which, it will be remembered, sailed from Southampton on that eternal port.

The inscription reads thus:—

Erected
To the Memory of
That heroic band of musicians
Of the S. S. Titanic, who in
Their last hour of their mortal life,
By their self-sacrificing devotion,
Sought to inspire and sustain in Others the assurance of Life Eternal

Would Welcome Mr. Wm. Hill As A Candidate

Editor Examiner:

Dear Sir,—I notice by last night's issue that Mr. W. Hill is mentioned as a probable candidate for the Utility Commission. Has Mr. Hill signified his intention of coming out as a working man's candidate, or is it only rumour? I should be pleased to have this rumour verified. As a working man, I would like to see the working classes represented, especially by such a strong candidate as Mr. Hill would make, and seeing that we are now branching out into municipal ownership. I think the move is one in the right direction.

Yours truly,
Working Man.

SAYS NEW BRIDGE IS A NECESSITY

Nothing is more cheaply acquired than a reputation for economy. For example, a controller will have the estimates of a department cut in the Spring, and in the Fall it will be discovered that the department has an overdraft for the amount lopped off six or eight months earlier. The department gets the money and the controller gets the reputation of being a "watchdog of the treasury."

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Sir,—The foregoing clipping fairly represents Alderman Langford's attitude on municipal economy and the building of the much-needed Dalhousie Street bridge. What the overburdened taxpayer complains of in the past expenditure of the Council of which Alderman Langford is a member. It is the needless expenditure of our extravagant Council in the past, and not the [illegible] expenditure for future [illegible].

The bridge is an absolute necessity if the City is not to be [illegible] cabined and confined within narrow limits and have its [illegible] and manufacturing [illegible] cut off from each other for all time to come and thereby retard the growth of our industries. We know how the employees of the factories in the South Ward, who live in Ashburnham, have been prosecuted and fined, if not persecuted, for daring to cross the C. P. R. bridge in going to and returning from their work. The building of the bridge in question would obviate all this and promote the building up and expansion of the City. With the Hunter Street bridge the only one for two miles between Smith Street and the Locks, it is absurd to say that another bridge is not necessary. When the Hunter Street bridge becomes [illegible] [illegible] and then the [illegible] of necessity [illegible] [illegible]

"A Very Merry Xmas to All"

The Pretty Gift of a Blouse, Always Meets With The Smile of Approval

And they are to be procured in a host of styles, at any price one wishes to pay

Women's inborn love of beautiful things is the key to the whole situation, when wondering what to give her at Christmas. And this is why these dainty blouses in soft fabrics such as Chiffon, Crepe de Chine, Ninon, and Floral Crepe, undoubtedly will meet with her smile of approval, whether she be a mature matron, or a miss of seventeen.

The charming collection of these blouses that the second floor is showing, reflects in their stylish adornment, all that is correct and in good taste.

The yoke and vest effects, the combination of materials, the trimming and design, all mingling to form a most fashionable and desirable portion of woman's attire.

And seeing that there is a great array at all prices, let us make mention of three of the best :—

The first, in apricot silk ninon, has vest effect and high collar of net, the rose trimming being of gold and silver shades. The sleeves are full length, finished at the cuff with a pleated self frill, and having from shoulder to waist band, insertion of net that matches the collar. Small tucks are grouped down the front, the whole being a very dainty affair, priced $8.00.

Then at $6.50 there is a blouse of shrimp coloured ninon over white silk, that is made with the new yoke and vest effect of shadow lace.

A V shaped trimming in metallic shades looks very pretty near the low collar, while the three quarter sleeves are finished with self frill.

Flowered Crepe de Chine is used for another pretty garment, which possesses a low Battenberg Lace collar, and a smart vest effect of the same shade as the flowered pattern.

This is trimmed with Crochet buttons and frilling, and has short sleeves. The price is $6.50.

THE PROBABLE ENDING OF LIFE UPON THE EARTH

But Don't Worry, It Won't Happen For a Few Million Years or So, Says Dr. Marsh

IDEAS OF TIME

The phenomena of the sun will be explained by Dr. Marsh on Tuesday evening in the Collegiate Institute.

The discovery of that wonderful matter, radium, has caused the scientists to greatly lengthen their previously calculated time of the duration of the life of the sun.

The earth will probably be a worn-out cinder before the sun ceases to shine.

Our ideas of time are too limited to understand the ages of the spheres, so we just say that the sun will most likely yet live for eons of time.

In the past many fanciful ideas were entertained regarding the great life-giving centre of our solar system.

One of the most ingenious was the theory that the sun was a great electric centre and that the planets were points of magnetism, and that there was a continual stream of electricity issuing from the sun to the planets; they cited the Aurora Borealis as evidence of the stream of electricity leaving the earth.

In this way they argued that there could be no waste of the energy of the sun, and that the solar system would endure for ever.

Of course this calculation overlooked the fact that when the small particles of matter became so small that the push of light became stronger than the pull of gravitation, thus gradually dissipating the substance of the planets. This, of course, may be counterbalanced by the constant stream of cosmic dust into the members of the sun's family of worlds.

Dr. Marsh will explain all this and much more. Do not neglect the privilege of hearing him on Tuesday next in the Collegiate Institute. Everybody welcome, no charge.

Notice to Orangemen!!

ASHES MUST BE KEPT SEPARATE

Citizens who are served by the garbage collecting system need not separate ordinary refuse from garbage. These can be thrown into a common receptacle, and another container must be provided for ashes alone.

This change was decided upon by the Property committee of the City Council at a meeting on Friday night, at which Ald. Duncan presided with Mayor Bradburn, Inspector Spence and Aldermen Green, Duffus and Langford were also present.

The committee decided to give the contractors of the garbage system an extra $100 to make up for the loss occasioned by the above change. Formerly, garbage and refuse have been kept separate and the contractors sold the former as feed for animals. But the new incinerator has a capacious maw, and besides it was the original intention of the committee that everything collected by the contractors should be disposed of in the incinerator. The contract, however, was undertaken with the stipulation that the garbage could be sold by the collectors and from this source they have been deriving a certain amount of money. Their contract runs to the end of June, and their first demand was for $300. This the committee regarded as too high, and the sum was finally reduced to $100, payments at the rate of $18 per month for the past five months to be made, with $10 for December.

PLEADED GUILTY TO ROBBERY

Two Local Young Men Admit They Broke Into Stores

Maxt McClellan, and Ernest Jamieson, two local young men, were charged in this morning's Police Court, with breaking into the store of Mr. R. C. Braund, and stealing over $100 worth of rings, watches, watch chains, watch fobs, tie pins and brooches.

The young men were also charged with breaking into Nelson Routley's grocery on Park street, and stealing a small sum of money.

In both charges they elected to be tried summarily, and pleaded "guilty." They were not defended by counsel.

Although they pleaded guilty to both offences the young men claim they did not take all of the goods mentioned in the charge from Mr. Braund's.

Judgment aws reserved until Thursday, the 18th. Mr. Gordon conducted the prosecut on.

ALD. ANDERSON WILL STAND

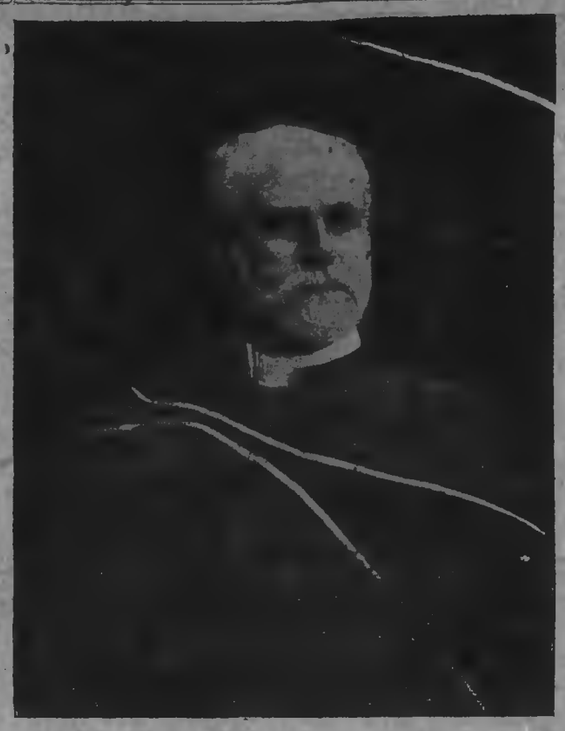
The Examiner was informed today, that Ald. J. C. Anderson would stand for re-election in the East Ward. Alderman Anderson has had several years' experience in the service of the city and is confident that he will be returned for another term. He is at present Chairman of the Finance Committee of the City Council.

Is Not a Candidate

Auderman George Duncan announces that he is not a candidate for the Mayoralty. His term of office as alderman does not expire for another year.

BUSINESS IS HEAVY AT POST OFFICE.

Postmaster Edgar stated to-day that the Christmas mail to the Old Country has been heavier than ever. Not only has the number of letters and packages been larger, but the money order department shows larger figures than in former years. The average amount of money sent to relatives has ranged from £1 to £, or from $5 to $10. Next week the post office staff will be loaded with the mail for Western Canada and the United States. This, with the increasing mails, constitutes three weeks of "peak load" business.



REV. PRINCIPAL GORDON, D.D., of Queen's University, Who Will Preach Anniversary Services in Knox Church To-morrow

ANNIVERSARY SERVICES IN KNOX CHURCH TO-MORROW

Rev. Principal Gordon, D. D., of Queen's University, will preach at both services in Knox Church to-morrow. It is just three years since Knox Church entered its new building—one of the best in the City—and seven since Knox began an independent life, after being nurtured by St. Paul's. Its beginning goes back to the time when the late Mrs. Jas. Hall and Miss Dickson were instrumental in opening up a Sabbath School in the South Ward, which is now Knox Church. It is significant of the progress of the churches and the City that St. Andrew's, St. Paul's and Knox Churches have united in an extension work in the City, and the scene of their united efforts will be in the far South End, where new streets and houss are rapidly coming into view.

Rev. Dr. Gordon will preach anniversary services to-morrow, and will be listened to by large congregations. In his ministry Dr. Gordon was pastor of St. Andrew's, of Ottawa, now occupied by the Rev. Dr. Herridge, and of Knox Church, Winnipeg, where Rev. Dr. DuVae is the noted preacher. Dr. Gordon has also been a Professor in Halifax, and is now the honoured and esteemed Principal of Queen's University.

A RATEPAYER DISCUSSES THE CHEMICAL ENGINE

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Dear Sir,—I beg a little space in your columns to ask some of the aldermen and Fire Chief when such a great extension to the city corporation limits took place, that the horses cannot stand the run to a fire without playing out. I think we have just as good horses as we ever had if they were properly handled; and as for a motor chemical engine, I think it is just as likely to give out as the horses, for you never know when motors are going to balk. I think if it is for the protection of the people outside the city limits, well when they come in with us, then we can consider their welfare in that direction. I would like to ask Chief Howard and his friends that accompanied him to New York last summer who paid their way, and if it was at the expense of the city; if so, was it to put the city in for a chemical engine? It looks that way to me, and as Chief Howard is trying to get the Fire Department up to that of the greater cities, I would like to ask him if the chief of the Fire Department is allowed to keep a flock of sixty or seventy fowl at the Fire Station. I can't understand why our Council allows it, unless he keeps them in fresh eggs; and I think that last raise he got was not enough to him. I would like to

Well, I may say in conclusion that an eight or nine thousand dollar motor-driven chemical engine is too rich for the blood of the working people of Peterborough.—Yours truly, Ratepayer.

UP MOUNTAIN IN TROLLEY CAR

Next year you will be able to shin up the glistening flanks of Europe's super-best mountain, Mont Blanc, in a trolley car. The cableway is to be built in four sections. The first section has a rise of 653 metres in a horizontal distance of about 2 kilometres. The cables are carried on 27 steel towers 10 to 25 meters high. The minimum gradient is 15 per cent. and the maximum is 85 per cent. The second section makes a vertical rise of 743 metres, terminating at the Glacier des Bossons. This section has an average gradient of 63 per cent. The third section, about 1 kilometre long, terminates at the Premier Arete, and has a mean gradient of 67 per cent. The fourth section, terminating at the Col du Midi, has a total rise of 760 metres, or a maximum grade of 60 per cent. The cars to run on the line each carry 20 passengers. The supporting cables on each section are parallel and about four metres apart. One car rises while the other descends, an endless hauling cable controlling their movement. The steel carrying and hauling cables are 64 millimetres and 32 millimetres in diameter, respectively. The two lowest sections are expected to be completed in 1914.

TURNBULL'S

FIGHTS WERE NUMEROUS 40 YEARS BACK

Old Timers at the Market Tell of the Lively Scraps That Were General in the Town and County.

STURDY GRANDFATHERS

When the senators at the market grow reminiscent you may sit back and expect an interesting recital of the doing in the days when our fathers and grandfathers were care free youths.

Hence it was during a quiet half hour on Friday afternoon that five or six of the city's patriarchs exchanged stories of events that were still fresh in their memory.

They were back in the times of the tavern, when good whiskey sold at twenty-five cents a gallon, and to be fighting drunk was an evidence, if not an attribute, of what passed for manliness. Those twin sisters, law and order, must have been meek creatures around Peterborough forty years ago.

"One Sunday I saw two men fight for an hour over here on George street," said an elderly and respectable habitue of the market. "They were surrounded by a circle of citizens and no one interfered. There wasn't a blue coat in sight."

"It was nothing," remarked another, "to see ten fights in an afternoon on the main streets, and as soon as trouble started the police 'juked' around the corner to seek the quiet of the outlying streets. I can remember when there were only two policemen. They never arrested drunks. They tried to prevent fighting, but the usual custom was to let the combatants settle their arguments. Fair play was all that was asked and the crowd generally saw to it that there was no biting, or kicking a man when he was down."

Plainly, those were fighting times.

There were at least eight taverns in old Ashburnham, and somewhere around forty on this side of the river. On the country roads they practically served as mile posts.

They were numerous along the gravel road to Port Hope. Between Peterborough and Warsaw there were something like fourteen. You found many of them up through Smith and Ennismore on the road to Bobcaygeon, and even between here and Lakefield there were several of them. Likewise down through Otonabee to Keene and Hastings the tavern accommodation was up to the average.

Stripped to Fight.

John Barleycorn stood ace high everywhere, and was master of the revels.

"I was driving from Fraserville to Bobcaygeon one day," said one of the senate, "and stopped at a hotel near the Ennismore cross roads. While I was there two men who had been drinking fell out and a fight was decided upon. They went into a room and the rest of us followed to see that there was fair play. They stripped to the flesh wearing only their trousers, and went at it bare fisted. It was the prettiest fight I ever saw, and everything was according to the rules. I think it was declared a draw after a long struggle, and I went on to 'Caygeon."

Challenged fights were ordinary affairs. One of the men related the details of a historic encounter at Lakefield in which two fighters stood and delivered for an hour without either getting the decision. Fights were commonplace occurrences, and were usually induced by too much of the stuff that was first drunk as a sign of friendship. And right in the old town here, there were mixups galore.

Charlotte Was Some Street.

Charlotte street from George to Aylmer was popularly styled Hell street, and it is claimed that walking abroad after dark along this street was not the safest place in the world. Just in that one block there was a string of taverns, but the present day utility of several of the buildings that remain is eminently respectable.

Whiskey was more plentiful and consumed in larger quantities proportionate to the populations than is milk used to-day. A logging or building bee was the signal for a gathering of men, and John Barleycorn was right there on the job. If it was your bee and you neglected a barrel or at least a demijohn your name was mud. You were put down as a tightwad, and there would be a handful of huskies at your next bee.

Men Made of Stern Stuff.

And when the good stuff flowed there was usually trouble if the flow was too generous. The olden days awaken a certain questionable admiration for the old time types. Most men fitted in with the mode of living. The dandies of to-day, too many of whom talk loud and low, were for the most part an undreamed of species of the genus homo. There was hard work for everyone, and lumbering developed many a muscle.

Generally speaking the ideals of men appear unpolished when the light of the present generation is focussed upon them. The adjective hard applies to most activities in those days. Men worked, drank and fought hard. They were pioneers with all the accompanying difficulties to contend with. Their numbers are fast diminishing, and the growing generation can form but a slight idea of the times in which their grandfathers played an important part.

WHAT ABOUT COAL?

Citizen Says It is Much Cheaper at Omemee than in Peterborough and Wants to Know the Raison D'etre.

A citizen stopped an Examiner reporter to-day to unload a grievance which he thinks is real:

"I was talking to a man from Omemee," he said, and he told me that up in the Village they are paying $7.50 for stove coal. Now I paid $8.50 last week to a local coal company, and I would like to know what the answer is. I believe my information was correct. There is no reason why I should doubt the Omemee man, and that being the case why is there a dollar difference? Make a little note of it in your paper and I might find out."

Estimated coal and lignite areas of Canada, 172,050 million tons.

MANY MONEY ORDERS BEING SENT HOME

SOUTHERN STATES THE OBJECTIVE POINT FOR MANY OF THE ARTICLES THAT HAVE BEEN FORWARDED AS HOLIDAY PRESENTS.

Mr. A. Carruthers States that Business Has Been Heavy—Old Country Frenchmen Among Those who Send Money Orders Home.

Speaking of the amount of money sent to the Old Country through the Dominion Express Company, Mr. A. G. Carruthers stated that the weekly totals handled by the Company have been so large throughout the entire year that it is difficult to estimate the extra amounts sent as Christmas offerings. There are many workmen in the City who remit a large part of their wages every week to their families in the British Isles. He said the average would be about three pounds (English money) every two weeks, and in quite a few instances the sum was much larger. Quite a number of orders are sent to relatives in France by Frenchmen, who are working in Peterborough.

Every Saturday night there are many orders issued, the office remaining open for the accommodation of the senders, said Mr. Carruthers.

The advantages of the Dominion Express order is that it is accepted in the banks on sight. Thus, if a Peterborough workman sends an order to his wife, she goes to the bank in her town, presents it, and it is cashed without any question. Hence there is absolutely no delay in the way of her receiving the money sent in the form of an order. In the same manner, local Chinamen forward money to Hong Kong, and the facility with which the money is exchanged is a most desirable feature for both the sender and the recipient."

The number of Christmas packages handled by the Dominion Express Company during the past weeks has been unusually large in spite of the fact that conditions have been somewhat quiet. The Old Country has been the objective point for the most of them, but there has been a noticeable increase in the articles going to th Southern States, many being sent to lower California.

All told this department of Christmas activities has been heavier than former years. If it forms a barometer for the season's business merchants should have a satisfactory turnover.

THE NEW C.P.R. BRIDGE

The contractors engaged in the work of constructing the new C. P. R. bridge across the Otonabee River expect to have the structure completed by Christmas. The middle span, which will be a swing section, will not be erected until next Fall. This was due to the fact that a swing bridge was not demanded until the plans for a stationary bridge had been completed. It is understood that the Company will construct what is known as a bob-tailed swing, which will provide for a thirty-seven feet channel.

TREES FOR SANTA CLAUS FOR SALE ON MARKET

Little Tots May be Reassured that the Old Gentleman is on the Way and the Trees Should be Waiting for Him.

Christmas trees were offered for sale on the Market this morning at from 15 cents to 75 cents, and there will be more next Saturday, with some during the week. A couple of young men had a big waggon load of the trees and readily disposed of them. The youngsters will expect Santa Claus nightly once the trees arrive at their homes.

BIRDS AND CYCLONES.

"What itinerary did you take on your European trip?"

"John wouldn't let me take one at all. You see, he's crossed the ocean before, and he said it was foolish to fill our trunk with a lot of things we'd never use."

OBITUARY

HERBERT HORACE SPRING.

The death occurred yesterday of Herbert Horace Spring, at the age of twenty years.

The funeral will be held from the residence of the father, 100 Stewart Street, to the Little Lake Cemetery on Monday afternoon, the Rev. Connors officiating.

His parents, several brothers and a sorrowing wife survive.

HORSE CASE COSTS MOUNTED OVER $800

COBOURG, Dec. 13.—An interesting case has been in progress before Judge Roger since Tuesday and was not concluded on Friday night. Dr. S. S. Dickinson, Veterinary Surgeon, of Port Hope, was plaintiff in a claim for a ten dollar fee for services rendered to a mare and foal belonging to a Mr. Austin, the defendant, who put in a counter claim for $300 for the loss of the mare and foal. The costs have mounted to over $800 and the case has dragged through four days.

DON'T TURN HIM AWAY.

By J. F. T.

"Oh Wanderer look," you are on the wrong road.
Thy Saviour doth call you to come back to God;
His Spirit is pleading for you to return,
Then why will you die and forevermore mourn.

You have promised so often you would come back to God,
His Spirit is saying you are on the wrong road;
Then why will you doubt Him for Jesus says come.
There is peace, rest and joy by coming to Him.

Your Father and Mother have reached that bright shore.
And are singing the songs of the blest over there;
Then why do you tarry, when Jesus says come.
And enjoy with your loved ones that Heavenly home.

God stands at the door of your heart "Let Him in."
But you say not now, though you are tired of sin;
You stifle the convictions the Spirit has made,
And still are away from Jesus the Lord.

Oh come to the One who is able to save,
For God gave His Son that all might believe;
Find forgiveness and mercy through the Blood of the Lamb,
And pardon and peace by trusting in Him.

"CITIZEN" OBJECTS

Editor of Examiner:

Dear Sir,—In the issue of your Examiner a couple of nights ago, I saw a piece about a local man getting a term in Central Prison. This man's name was published in the largest print available and in a most conspicuous place in the front page of the paper. I would like to know why this man's name was displayed in such a manner? It can be easily seen that he was a poor man by the way his name was exhibited in the newspaper. They do their level best to ruin a poor man's reputation every chance they get. If you belong to the high class of society you are all right, but if you don't, the Lord help you. How was it the names of the four poker players were never published in the paper? You can tell that they were of the high class of people. Is that justice? I am sure it is not, and very far from it? I think the poor man's reputation is as good as the rich man's any day.

It is time for the poor man to pick up and get out of the City as fast as he can, because it can be plainly seen that unless you belong to the high class of people, there is not the least chance of justice or fairness for him.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, for your valuable space in the paper, I am,

Yours truly,
CITIZEN.

"Citizen" has evidently a distorted idea of the Examiner's policy in regard to publishing the names of those implicated in Police Court cases. The question of whether a man is rich or poor never enters into the decision as to whether or not his name should be published. The four poker players he referred to were not as he states, rich people or society people; they were simply four young fellows following ordinary occupations—possibly not as well endowed with this world's good as "Citizen" himself.

The man whose name was published the other day in a manner to arouse "Citizen's" ire was an old offender, a man who has been in the Police Court frequently, and whose name has been kept out of the columns of The Examiner in spite of his periodic appearances before the magistrate. It is simply nonsense to talk of hunting this man's reputation by publishing his name.

"Citizen's" rich and poor can keep their names out of the Police Court reports by keeping out of the Police Court.

IN THE WORLD OF SPORT

LIVELY TUSTLE BETWEEN OLDHAM AND BLACKBURN

One of the most exciting contests in England to-day should be that between Oldham and Blackburn. The latter will require to play all they know to win and thus retain their position at the head of the table for, Manchester United, who are at their heels, will in all likelihood beat Bradford City. In the other games of the First Division, I take the following to win: Aston Villa, Bolton Wanderers, Manchester City, Liverpool, Newcastle United, Derby County and Sheffield Wednesday.

In the Second.

Bradford, who lead the Second Division ought to account for Lincoln City and the other winners should be Bristol City, Woolwich, Glossop, Hull City, Leeds City, Bury, Notts County, Stockport and Wolverhampton.

Swindon's Task.

The leaders in the Southern League are given something difficult to do at Exeter and if they divide the points they will do well. The following is my choice for the other games: Millwall, Portsmouth, West Ham, Southend, Northampton, Reading, Crystal Palace and Queen's Park Rangers.

Bairns at Ibrox.

In Scotland the tit bit is Rangers at Falkirk. The "Bairns" have before now sprung a surprise on the Light Blues and although I don't look for a repeat to-day, the champions will require to be very careful. Celtic will also require to exercise care at Kirkcaldy, and Hearts better not take Kilmarnock too cheap. Clyde, Airdrieonians, Third Lanark, St. Mirren, Hibernions, Morton and Motherwell are likely to win the other events.

PETE CAMPBELL LEAVING VARSITY

The Toronto Saturday Night, under the heading "From Football to Finance," has the following to say of Mr. Gordon Campbell.

Mr. Pete Campbell, regarded by many football enthusiasts as the greatest quarter-back in the game, and Captain of the 'Varsity team in 1912, will soon desert the scholastic halls for a business career. Mr. Peter Campbell, Manager of the Bank of Toronto at Peterborough, will join the staff of R. C. Matthews and Company, bond and debenture dealers, Toronto."

The article is illustrated with two excellent photographs of Mr. Campbell.

CURLING CLUB WILL MEET

A special meeting of the Curling Club is called for Monday next, to be held in the rink at 8 p.m. At the last meeting of the club, 20 new members were balloted on, while 37 more are to be balloted for next Monday. At the close of the club meeting, there will be a meeting of the skips to select the rinks for the coming winter. It is hoped that all the skips will try and be present.

HOCKEY COMMENT

Mr. J. P. Bond, convener, has called a meeting of No. 1 Intermediate District and No. 2 Junior District, for the St. Lawrence Hotel, Port Hope, on Monday afternoon when the schedule for the two groups will be drawn up. The different clubs will be represented by delegates.

The Intermediate District games will have to be commenced early in order that the long schedule in which each team plays ten games may be completed by Jan. 31st. It is likely that the fun will start in the week between Christmas and New Years.

Jim Sutherland has suggested Jan. 16th and Jan. 23rd as the home dates for the Frontenac Juniors. With so many teams in Kingston to take up the available nights, these dates are about all that are open. The Frontenacs may open the season there.

Managers of the local Junior City League teams should waste no time in getting to work to look up the birth certificates of their players. The process takes time in some cases.

Players Got The Benefit Of The Doubt

The Toronto Star: Those who take exception to the reinstatement by the O.H.A. of Messrs. Boyer, Langman, and Denison, are apparently not acquainted with the facts. The players in question were not professionalized, but suspended with the other players of the Hamilton Alerts. The other players were subsequently declared professionals when complete evidence of contracts, etc., was obtained against them. The three players mentioned wer not included in the category and no evidence of that character was secured against them; had it been, there would have been no chance of reinstatement.

As it stands now, the O.H.A. gave the three boys the benefit of the doubt on the evidence submitted. As to the allegations of manipulation by one member of the executive there is absolutely no foundation for such a charge. The O.H.A. does not do business in that manner; it is governed by representative men from all parts of the province, who know their own minds, have the courage of their convictions, and are actuated by the highest motives in the government of the sport.

CANADIAN LEAGUE NOTES.

Benny Speer, who was with London in 1912, will play for the New Haven Club, in the Eastern Association next season.

Umpire Billy Phyle, who was grabbed up by the International League out of the Canadian League in 1912, and then sent to the Pacific Coast League, made a hit on the coast during the past season and he will be retained.

George Ort, who managed the Saints last year, is going to settle down in St. Thomas and open up a business there. He has practically decided to retire from baseball.

Fred Ostermeyer, who was with Ottawa early last season, will pitch for Lonie Cook's Asheville team next season. Ostermeyer tried to get back with Ottawa, but Shaughnessy didn't want him.

Ray Ryan, the former St. Louis catcher, who managed the Wheeling club in the Inter-State League last season, wants to trade some players with Frank Shaughnessy's champions. Ryan also wants to know Shaughnessy's prescription for winning pennants.

Shortstop Tesch, who was with Brantford last season, will turn out with Ottawa next season. Shaughnessy thinks Tesch will develop into the best shortstop in the league.

The Ottawa team will likely train in South Bend early in the spring. The Terre Haute club has already written the Senators, asking for exhibition dates.

A Tennessee outfielder by the name of Waustlelauffier asks for a trial with the Senators. His name alone would keep him out of the box scores.

BASEBALL

LONDON, Dec. 11. — Director George H. O'Neil, of the London Baseball club, must have been born lucky. Last Friday he purchased the Guelph Baseball club and franchise from its owner, W. A. Mahoney, of Guelph. Mr. O'Neil took a chance. The Guelph club has not been a money-maker, and its players were passed up in the draft. But Mr. O'Neil knew there were good ball players on that club, and he thought the chance was worth taking. Yesterday, the sixth day as the Guelph owner, he received an offer from the Buffalo International League club for Outfielder Wright. The Buffalo club is anxious to get Wright, and will pay a good price for him. It is not unlikely the Buffalo club will also buy Schaefer, the other Guelph outfielder, who led the Canadian League in hitting this past season.

The Buffalo club's offer comes direct from President Stein. Mr. Stein wrote to Mr. Mahoney, of Guelph, the former owner, and Mr. Mahoney forwarded the letter on to Mr. O'Neil. The letter is as follows:

"Several friends of Outfielder Wright, of your club, have come to see me upon his behalf. Wright, I understand, lives in Jamestown, which is but a few miles from Buffalo. They are of the opinion that Wright can make good in a higher class league than yours and have requested me to take him for a trial. I advised them that I would inquire if you wished to dispose of him. If so, and you put a price upon his release, we might make a deal with you, and take him south on our training trip to look him over. Kindly let me know if you wish to dispose of him, and if so, your lowest price.

(Signed) "J. J. STEIN, President."

Wright has been a consistent performer with the Guelph club for the past two years. In 1912 he hit .369 in 72 games, and last season he batted .396 in 98 games. His fielding has also been good. He stole 39 bases in 1913 against 8 in 1912, showing a vast improvement in his base-running. Just what price Mr. O'Neil will place upon him is not known. A deal may be made whereby Wright and Schaefer would go to the Buffalo club for $1,500. Both players are worth that, and there is little doubt in the minds of Canadian League fans that they would make good.

THEIR ATTACHMENT.

"Do animals possess the sentiment of affection?" asked the school teacher of the little girl.

"Yeth, ma'am; almost always."

"Good," said the teacher, "and now," turning to a little boy, "tell me what animal has the greatest natural fondness for man."

The small man considered carefully and finally answered, "Woman."

VILLAGE COUNCIL REGULAR MEETING

Examiner Special:

LAKEFIELD, Dec. 11.—The minutes of a regular monthly meeting of the Municipal Council of the Village of Lakefield, held in the Town Hall in Lakefield, on Monday, Dec. 8th, 1913:

There were present H. G. Fitzgerald, Esq., Reeve, and Councillors Madill, Payne, Richardson and Spence.

The minutes of the regular meeting of the 10th November, 1913, were read and approved.

Communications from the president of the Trent Valley Water Conservation Association were read, also the report of the Medical Health Officer, for 1913 was read.

Moved by Councillor Richardson, seconded by Councillor Payne, that the report of the Medical Health officer be received and copies of report be printed and referred to the School Board to be dealt with, and that the communication from the Trent Valley Water Conservation Association be received and held over for further consideration. Carried.

Jas. Mahood was present and asked that an electric light be placed on William street.

The matter was referred to the Road and Sidewalks Committee.

The Finance Committee presented a report recommending the payment of the following accounts:

W. Sherin, Division Court attendance	8 00
Lakefield News, printing and advertising	3 00
Bell Telephone Co., tolls	25

We also recommend that the $20.00 paid to Ed. Watley for wire fence be confirmed.

Moved by Councillor Spence, seconded by Councillor Madill that the report of the Finance Committee be received and adopted. Carried.

By-Law No. 510.

A by-law, No. 510, entitled, a by-law to make provisions for the election of a reeve, councillors and school trustees, for the Municipality of the Village of Lakefield, for the year 1914, received its several reading and was passed and sealed and signed by the Reeve and Clerk, Rule of Order No. 50, being on motion suspended for this meeting.

The Council then adjourned to meet at the call of the Reeve.

A FAMOUS YOUNG JOKER.

Young Cupid plays some jolly pranks
on Knowledge and on Art;
He lies in wait for science and upsets her applecart!
Continually some devilish scheme foments in Cupid's bean,
'Till life for him is truly just one endless Hallowe'en.

When Knowledge lamps some brainy maid with strong, determined jaw,
She tutors herin school and makes her learned in the law;
Then Cupid comes and steers the maid against some shallow simp,
Asd all the law that she lays down is to this little shrimp.

Another maiden Knowledge lamps and then concludes, to wit;
Domestic Science is her forte and bids her master it;
Shes hines at it 'till Cupid comes and sternly orders that
She follow her profession in a 6x7 flat!

O, Cupid is a mirthful wight with endless pranks and tricks!
A half of fond parental hopes bean Cupid's label "Nix,"
Upsetting Life's ambitions in his favourite little stunt,
And yet, how strange that everyone forgives the little runt.

GILLESPIE for MAYOR

To the Electors of the City of Peterboro:

Ladies and Gentlemen—At the urgent solicitation of many of my business and personal friends, I have consented to become a candidate for the position of Mayor of your City, and respectfully solicit your votes and influence.

As in the past, I shall not make any rash promises to gain the vote of any elector, but, if elected, my attitude on every question will be to stand firm for the best interests of our Progressive City.

Having been interested in Peterborough all my life, and one of your Aldermen for five years, I may fairly claim to be in close touch with every section and every interest of the Municipality, and familiar with its needs and ambitions.

I believe that in all respects the will of the people should prevail; that a vigorous but economical administration is the best administration, and that if your Chief Magistrate is able to devote a fair proportion of his time to his civic duties, it will not be to your disadvantage if he brings with him the experience and energy he displays in the conduct of a large and successful business of his own.

If my success in the Council during the past five years has in the main met with your approval, I shall esteem it an honour to have your further approval and support in the coming contest.

Yours respectfully,

G. A. GILLESPIE

A Victory For Unionists

Special Cable to The Examiner.

LONDON, Eng., Dec. 13.—Liberal rejoicing over the victory at Wick, Scotland, was turned to keen disappointment, this morning, when the results of yesterday's election at South Lanark, Scotland, became known. W. Watson, Unionist, got a clear majority of 269 votes. Last election there was a Liberal majority of 1107, but there was then no labour candidate who was running this election, and who the Liberals blame for defeat of their man.

SHEEHAN OPERA CO. DISBANDS

No Production of "Salome" Here on Monday Night

The Sheehan Opera Company which was to have staged a production of Salome at the Grand Opera House on Monday, disbands to-night in Hamilton, and will, therefore, not be seen in Peterborough. Poor patronage on the road, coupled with the expense of a big company, resulted in the downfall of the company.

FORMER PETERBORO' BOY HONOURED

A recent issue of the Saskatoon Daily Star contains an account of the annual banquet of the Order of Railway Telegraphers in that city, at which Mr. M. McGeough, son of Mr. M. H. McGeough, officiated as toastmaster. The Star also contains the following paragraph of interest:

"As a mark of their esteem and regard the telegraphers of the city last night presented M. H. McGeough, chairman of their association, with a handsome leather club bag. The presentation was made immediately after the banquet by Despatcher Merkley, who in a few words expressed the best wishes of the telegraphers. Mr. McGeough is one of the leading men in the ranks of the telegraphers of the province. He has been selected as representative of the men at the Dominion Parliament and will go to Ottawa at the commencement of the session. He at present resides in Saskatoon."

Mr. M. H. McGeough referred to in the above articles is well known in Peterborough, having resided here for some time.

COMPROMISE INEVITABLE

Special Cable to The Examiner.

LONDON, Dec. 13.—We have had the usual crop of Irish settlement rumours. A private dinner this week between Lloyd George, Austin Chamberlain, Sir John Simon and F. E. Smith has been dubbed as a great political event. Their discussion over the dinner table marks a step forward in the formal negotiations which have proceeded since the King threw his influence in favour of peace. Everyone recognises that some compromise is inevitable. The present platform fencing is part of the negotiations. A recent carefully engineered attempt to rush the settlement by excluding Ulster, which is generally attributed to Churchill and Smith, failed completely. The Federal solution which has mainly been debated during the past fortnight, seems likely to be wrecked because of the unwillingness of Unionists to cooperate in giving preeminence to Ireland and cooperating in amending the Home Rule bill on that basis. There is no English demand for federation. This reduces the issue to a question of special guarantees to Ulster which the Government expresses a willingness to provide. British Liberals are in a triumphant mood. The land campaign meets with growing enthusiasm. The Wick election, which was fought on Home Rule, largely modified the fear that Scottish Presbyterians will turn against the Government through sympathy with Ulster. Wick is a strongly Calvinistic centre and no anti-Catholic sentiment was fully exploited by the Unionists.

WEDDING BELLS

DORSEY—GRAY-SIMONS.

A Regina exchange says:

The marriage was solemnised last night at the home of the bride's parents, 2344 Cornwall Street, of Annie Laura Gray-Symons, daughter of Mr. J. H. Symons, Provincial Sanitary Inspector, and Mrs. Symons, formerly of 291 Reid Street, Peterborough, and Mr. Josiah J. Dorsey of Hamilton, Ont. Palms and ferns, pink and white roses and carnations made festive the drawing room where the ceremony was performed in the presence of a number of relatives and friends by Rev. H. E. Lewis of the Metropolitan Methodist church. At seven o'clock as the strains of the wedding march were played by eMiss Paulson, the winsome bride entered, leaning on the arm of her father. Very girlish and charming she looked in a gown of Duchess satin draped with Brussels net which was caught up with pearl ornaments. A wreath of orange blossoms was twined about her hair and around her neck was the groom's gift, a necklace of pearls and topas, the latter her birth stone. Her bouquet was a shower of white roses. To Miss Paulson, the groom presented a hat pin set with pearls. Following the impressive nuptial service and the showering of congratulations upon the happy young couple a buffet supper was served in the dining room, the bride's table having as a centre a most decorative wedding cake about which were arranged vases of narcissi and trails of smilax. Mrs. Falls poured tea from a quaint old silver service, Mrs. Sample, Mrs. Hunter, Miss Cruse of Port Hope and Miss Langley assisting. Mrs. Falls was wearing blue satin with cream lace garniture; Mrs. Sample, black satin and lace; Mrs. Hunter, grey satin with shot trimmin; Miss Cruse, pale blue satin with cream lace garniture and Miss Langley, French blue with touches of rose. Mrs. Symons, mother of the bride was gowned in black satin with trimming of black lace and jet. Miss Symons, an aunt, embroidered net over pale blue satin; Mrs. Gray of Osage, a cousin, white satin with lace trimming.

The toast to the bride was proposed by Mr. Bayne, deputy minister of municipal affairs, Hon. Geo. Langley gallantly responding on her behalf. Mr. and Mrs. Dorsey left via G. T. P. for their future home in Hamilton, the bride donning for travelling a suit of heavy serge, a hat of black velvet with feather bandeau and osprey and mink furs.

Amongst the many beautiful gift, were noticed a handsome cream and sugar set from the Bible class of Mr. Peter McAra, sr., of which the bride has been a member for several years and a shower of linen and china from the girls of the Naomi Rebekah Lodge.

Mr. Dorsey, one of the partners of the Eggo Baking Powder Company of Hamilton is also very well and favourably known here, having at one time been secretary of the Young Men's Christian Association.

GARBAGE TO BE PAID ON THE ASSESSMENT

New Method of Paying for the System Goes Into Force Next Year —Some Objection to It.

The garbage collection system will be paid for next year by a charge on the assessed value of properties. There was an incidental discussion of this new law at last night's Property Committee meeting.

"Does it mean," asked Alderman Green, "that a man whose house is worth $5,000 will have to pay double what is paid by a $2,500 place?"

"Yes," replied Mr. Armstrong.

Alderman Green—It's a blame poor law.

It was pointed out, however, that the larger residences require more coal to heat them and have therefore a greater quantity of ashes to be carried away.

Mayor Bradburn—We can't sit here and legislate absolutely equal conditions for everybody.

NEED REAL HARBOR

Government Should Equip Port, Says Coroner's Jury

A FULL INQUIRY IS URGED

GODERICH, Ont., Dec. 15. — A comprehensive finding was returned on Saturday afternoon by the coroner's jury investigating the death of Thomas Stone and other seamen whose bodies came ashore after the great storm of Nov. 9. The document lays stress upon the fact that information in the possession of the meteorological office at Toronto on the night of Nov. 8, indicating the approaching of a storm of unusual velocity, was not sent out as a warning to mariners, and continues: "Considering the appalling loss of life and property on that occasion, and that Goderich is nominally a harbor of refuge, and the only available harbor as such on the east side of the lake, to which vessels can have recourse in stress of weather, and that if completed and equipped as a harbor of refuge—as all such harbors are in American ports—some of the said vessels might have found safety in it. Considering the vast amount of lake traffic along this part of Lake Huron, and that Goderich is the second largest grain-receiving port on the upper lakes, and considering all the circumstances appearing before us, we strongly recommend the Government should, without delay, and at any cost, complete and equip Goderich as a real harbor of refuge, first, by fully completing the breakwall now begun; second, by installing up-to-date lights and a fog signal at the entrance of the breakwall; third, by dredging to the necessary depth the outside basin formed by the breakwall so that ships may have some sea room after the stress of entering, to manoeuvre and steady themselves before trying to enter the piers."

The verdict further declares that wireless, both on vessels and on land, would have saved many ships.

"We would recommend," it continues, "that the Government be asked to issue a commission of enquiry to include the above matters, also the questions of construction, power, equipment, inspection, loading, manning and life-saving appliances of lake freighters."

WILL FIGHT TO LAST.

Ralph Lopez Tells Mine Boss That He Will Die Game.

BINGHAM, Utah, Dec. 15.—Stimulus was given to the man hunt in the Utah-Apex mine for Ralph Lopez by a story told to the sheriffs early Saturday by Sam Rogers, a mine shift boss, who said he had seen and talked with the desperado Saturday and the day before. The work of searching sections and then bulkheading them off from the remainder of the mine was continued.

The sheriffs accepted the statements of Rogers as authentic. Rogers said he had agreed to meet Lopez again to-day. He said the fugitive had declared he would die fighting.

"I know they have me cornered in this mine," Lopez is quoted by Rogers as telling him Thursday. "This is my grave. I've made up my mind to that I am not going to commit suicide. I am going to wait here for the end and I shall fight whenever I have to."

Owing to our large staff and the fact that we are working day and night keeping up with our orders we are able to promise orders taken on or before THURSDAY, DEC. 18th for Xmas delivery. This is absolutely the last call we can make.

TROUBLE IN INDIA

Trouble Grows as Result of Action of Other Dominions

WARRING SECTS COMBINE.

LONDON, Dec. 15.—The British and Indian Governments are very seriously concerned over recent occurrences in South Africa arising out of what the East Indians consider discriminatory legislation against them. An effort is being made to minimize the seriousness of the situation which was accomplished by a general strike of thousands of East Indians in Natal, and riots in which several were killed. The influence of the Government has been sufficient to induce the press of the country to print nothing but favorable news and comments, while a very careful supervision of news in regard to the suppression of disturbances in South Africa is made before its appearance in the Indian papers.

Viscount Hardinge, Viceroy of India, has tried to pour oil on the troubled waters by expressing his sympathy with the East Indians in South Africa, and asking for thorough investigation by the Imperial authorities, and the Marquis of Crewe, Secretary of State for India, in reply to a deputation of Indians, has likewise expressed himself in favor of investigation.

All this, however, has not had much effect on the Indian, or, at any rate, those living in the British Isles. They are thoroughly aroused, and are demanding equal treatment for their fellow subjects in all the British Dominions, practically all of which have adopted or contemplate adopting laws to keep the Indians out of their respective countries.

The difficulties of the Imperial Government are twofold. It is pointed out that it cannot dictate to the dominions as to what immigrants they shall admit, without arousing, particularly in South Africa, a storm that might lead to a demand for separation from the Empire; and in India it is realized by the authorities that it would not take a great deal to fan the flame into a rebellion that would tax the resources of the Empire to put down. A rebellion in India would be a very serious matter under any circumstances, but there is the added difficulty now that Hindus and Mohammedans are united in demanding what they consider is justice to the Indian subjects of His Majesty. It is not often that the two sects join together, but in this case they have been acting as one, and have been holding joint meetings of protest and making joint representations to the India office. The meetings have been scarcely noticed in the papers, although the speeches delivered at some of them have been of such an inflammatory character that on other occasions the speakers would have been charged with sedition.

The news that Canada, at the instigation of British Columbia, has been in negotiation with the Imperial authorities with a view to further legislation to restrict the immigration of Indians to the Pacific province, has also caused a great deal of alarm among those who know the seriousness of the situation. For, in this case, although probably not to the same extent, any steps by the Imperial Government to prevent such a move would arouse hostility in Canada and might jeopardize the proposals for assistance from the Dominion in the matter of naval defence.

The Anglo-Japanese alliance, too, is proving a thorn in the side of the British Empire now that the various dominions are attracting immigrants from all parts of the world. Australasia, New Zealand and Canada, or at any event, the western provinces of Canada, have declared for a "white man's country," and their laws aim at the exclusion of all orientals whether British subjects, as the Indians are, or Japanese, the subjects of her ally.

Another matter irritating the Indians is that they have found out that some of the men who professed to be heart and soul in their campaign for redress were in the pay of the Imperial Government. One very prominent Indian, whose speeches at some of the meetings verged very close upon sedition, has been found to have been in the pay of the Indian Government for years, and he is now receiving police protection for fear of assassination.

Japan Has No Grievance.

LONDON, Dec. 15.—A despatch to The Times from Tokio says the Japanese Government has been notified that Canada intends to prohibit all immigration to British Columbia for three months. The correspondent adds that as there will be no discrimination against orientals Japan cannot object.

Burnt on Eve of Dedication.

TORONTO, Dec. 15.—Sixteen thousand five hundred dollars' damage was done to the newly erected Simpson avenue Methodist Sunday school building, at the southeast corner of Simpson avenue and Howland road, when a disastrous fire broke out at two o'clock yesterday morning. The conflagration is alleged to have originated from defective wiring, which caused a short circuit. Yesterday was to have been the occasion of dedication services.

MADE CLEVER ARREST.

Constables Were Seated In Car With Stolen Horses.

PERTH, Dec. 15.—William Wilson of Lavant and Joe Hart of Brockville, who were arrested in Ottawa by Chief Griffith of this town and Chief Phillips of Smith's Falls on a charge of stealing a team of horses and a buggy from D. B. Lloyd of Gananoque, were committed by the magistrate in Gananoque Saturday to stand trial at Brockville.

The prisoners, according to the evidence, rented a team last Tuesday to drive to Seeley's Bay. At the Narrows Locks they exchanged the buggy for a cutter and $8. On Wednesday they tried to sell the horses in Burgess township and stopped in town over night. Having traded one horse off for another, they exchanged two for one with a farmer in Elmsley township. Chief Griffith heard about them and followed them to Smith's Falls, where he learned that the prisoners had tried to sell the outfit. Chief Phillips of Smith's Falls was also working on the case.

The two chiefs learned that the prisoners were shipping a horse and cuttter by freight to Ottawa, and had gone ahead by express. The chiefs got the Smith's Falls freight agent to seal them in the car with the stolen horse and cutter and captured the prisoners at Ottawa when the latter claimed the property, after having paid freight charges. It took a day or so for each of the lawful claimants to get his own property back again.

MANY INSANE CONVICTS.

They Are Improperly Treated Declares Dr. E. H. Young.

KINGSTON, Dec. 15.—The treatment of insane convicts in the penitentiary was severely arraigned by Dr. E. H. Young, assistant superintendent of Rockwood Hospital for the Insane, who read his report before the Prison Reform Commission Saturday. Dr. Young was engaged by the commission to make the report. He declared that he found things in a most unsatisfactory condition, a condition that was a disgrace to the country.

Dr. Young testified that there were 80 to 100 insane convicts in the penitentiary and for lack of understanding of mental nursing the guards mistake symptoms of insanity for malingering laziness and surliness. The result is that they use unnecessary violence in dealing with their charges. A guard, Dr. Young said, informed him that unruly patients were placed in the dungeons. Many of the convicts should never have been sent to prison, said the witness.

BRONCHITIS SUFFERER

Takes Druggists' Advice With Splendid Result.

If any one should know the worth of a medicine, it is the retail druggist who sells it every day in the week and is in a position to know what remedy gives the best satisfaction.

Mrs. Frank H. Uline of West Sand Lake, N. Y., says: "For years I was a great sufferer from bronchitis. Last July I had a severe attack and my friends thought I could not recover from it. Then I was advised by my druggist to try Vinol, which I did with wonderful results. My cough has left me; I have gained in weight and appetite and I am as strong as ever I was. I advise all who have bronchitis, chronic coughs, or who are run-down to try Vinol."

It is the combined action of the medicinal curative elements of the cod's liver, without oil, aided by the blood-making and strength-creating properties of iron from which makes Vinol so efficient in such cases.

Remember, we guarantee Vinol to do just what we say—we pay back your money if it does not.

HANNA WINS SEAT

Party Candidate is Elected in South Lanark

MORRISON IN MACDONALD

PERTH, Dec. 15—Dr. A. E. Hanna, of Perth, was elected Saturday to represent the riding of South Lanark in the Dominion House of Commons. The fight was a three-cornered one, Col. J. M. Balderson, Perth, an Independent Conservative, and Arthur Hawkes, of Toronto, "Canada First," entering the contest with the nominee of the Conservative Association. Dr. Hanna ran 135 votes ahead of Col. Balderson. Mr. Hawkes only received 70 votes in the whole riding and loses his deposit.

The vote by townships stood:

	Hanna.	Balderson	Hawkes
Bathurst	239	206	7
Beckwith	114	146	12
North Burgess	91	86	5
Drummond	212	204	4
North Elmsley	118	74	4
Montagu	190	219	1
Perth	366	342	9
South Sherbrooke	73	83	5
Smith's Falls	504	542	19
Totals	1907	1772	70

The total vote polled Saturday was 3,749 out of a possible 5,035, which is considerably larger than at the last general election, when it was 3,300, the Liberal candidate at that time losing his deposit.

The riding has been Conservative since Confederation, Hon. John Haggart representing it from 1872 until the time of his death, early in the summer of this year. Hon. Alex. Morris represented it from 1867 until his death in 1872.

The split in the Conservative party in this election occurred when Col. Balderson alleged he had not been given a square deal by the party convention and announced his candidature. Mr. Hawkes' coming into the riding was a surprise, as he was unknown, which probably accounts for his small vote.

Morrison Is Elected.

WINNIPEG, Dec. 15.—Alexander Morrison (Con.) was re-elected in Macdonald on Saturday by a majority of 200 or more in excess of that by which he was returned a year ago. With two polls to hear from Mr. Morrison has a lead of 913 over Dr. A. W. Myles, the Liberal candidate.

In the previous bye-election R. L. Richardson, proprietor of The Winnipeg Free Press, ran as an independent Liberal, and was defeated by 700.

A heavier vote was polled than at the previous election, when Mr. Morrison was elected and later unseated on petitions. Several polls in the Winnipeg suburbs ran up the increased majority, showing an advance of 136 over the former majority they gave the Conservative candidate.

Walter Burnside was arrested in St. James, charged with perjury. Aside from this incident the election was quiet.

Could Jail Others, He Says.

CALGARY, Alta., Dec. 15.—In his plea for a new trial for Harry Minchen, former alderman, and now serving a five-year sentence for embezzlement of $5,000 from the city, R. B. Bennett made the startling statement before court Saturday that he could pick out two other men whom he could place in the box and convict on the same evidence.

J. D. McGregor Banqueted.

BRANDON, Man., Dec. 15.—J. D. McGregor, twice winner of the world's steer championship at the International Stock Show at Chicago, was the guest of honor at a banquet Saturday night, attended by the lieutenant-governors of Manitoba and Saskatchewan, many Cabinet Ministers and other notables.

PICTURE ON VIEW.

Thirty Thousand Italians See Priceless "Mona Lisa."

FLORENCE, Dec. 15.—A close examination of the painting "Mona Lisa" has disclosed a slight abrasion on the cheek and a scratch on the left shoulder, which were received while the picture was in the hands of Vicenzo Perugia.

The chief of police says Perugia firmly believes that he has rendered a service to Italy and is under the impression that his imprisonment was necessary to save the face of the authorities, and that he soon will be released and rewarded.

Great crowds gathered at the Uffizi gallery yesterday, where the "Mona Lisa" was exhibited. Although strong cordons of carabineers were drawn up around the building, and others guarded the entrances and halls, the struggles of the multitudes to get inside resulted in great disorder. Soldiers were thrust aside or knocked down, windows were smashed, and the people swept through, being forced out the exist by the surging masses behind.

In four hours more than 30,000 persons viewed the masterpiece. When order was partially restored, 125 visitors on the average were admitted every minute.

"I did not take the painting through a desire for gain," said Perugia, who stole the painting, "but wished to accomplish a good and holy work by returning to my country one of the many treasures stolen from it."

The antiquary Geri, will claim the rewards offered by the French Government and the Paris newspapers for the recovery of the picture.

Fire at Le Pas.

LE PAS, Man., Dec. 15.—Fire, driven by a strong northwest wind, which originated in the second storey of the Imperial Hotel, at five o'clock Saturday morning, destroyed a whole block of buildings on Fischer avenue, with property loss exceeding $70,000.

All the plate glass windows in the stores across the street were broken by the intense heat.

Guests of the Imperial Hotel had just sufficient time to vacate the premises in scant attire.

ADVERTISE IN THE EXAMINER

"That Affair Next Door"

By ANNA KATHARINE GREEN

XXX.

THE MATTER AS STATED BY MR. GRYCE.

I had exhausted my wonder, so I accepted this statement with no more display of surprise than a grim smile.

"When you failed to identify Howard Van Burnam as the man who accompanied his wife into the adjacent house, I realised that I must look elsewhere for the murderer of Louise Van Burnam. You see I had more confidence in the excellence of your memory than you had yourself, so much indeed that I gave you more than one chance to exercise it, having by certain little methods I sometimes employ, induced different moods in Mr. Van Burnam at the time of his several visits, so that his bearing might vary, and you have every opportunity to recognize him for the man you had seen on that fatal night."

"Then it was he you brought here each time?" I broke in.

"It was he."

"Well!" I ejaculated.

"The Superintendent and some others whom I need not mention," — here Mr. Gryce took up another small object from the table,—"believed implicitly in his guilt; conjugal murder is so common and the causes which lead to it so frequently puerile. Therefore I had to work alone. But this did not cause me any concern. Your doubts emphasised mine, and when you confided to me that you had seen a figure similar to the one we were trying to identify, enter the adjoining house on the evening of the funeral, I made immediate inquiries and discovered that the gentleman who had entered the house right after the four persons described by you was Franklin Van Burnam. This gave me a definite clue, and this is why I say that it was you who gave me my first start in this matter."

"Humph!" thought I to myself, as with a sudden shock I remembered that one of the words which had fallen from Miss Oliver's lips during her delirium had been this very name of Franklin.

"I had had my doubts of this gentleman before," continued the detective, warming gradually with his subject. "A man of my experience doubts every one in a case of this kind, and I had formed at odd times a sort of side theory, so to speak, into which some little matters which came up during the inquest seemed to fit with more or less nicety; but I had no real justification for suspicion till the event of which I speak. That you had evidently formed the same theory as myself and were bound to enter into the lists with me, put me on my mettle, madam, and with your knowledge or without it, the struggle between us began."

"So your disdain of me," I here put in with a triumphant air I could not subdue, "was only simulated? I shall know what to think of you hereafter. But don't stop, go on this is all deeply interesting to me."

"I can understand that. To proceed then; my first duty, of course, was to watch you. You had reasons of your own for suspecting this man, so by watching you I hoped to surprise them."

"Good!" I cried, unable to entirely conceal the astonishment and grim amusement into which his continued misconception of the trend of my suspicions threw me.

"But you led us a chase, madam; I must acknowledge that you led us a chase. Your being an amateur led me to anticipate your using an amateur's methods, but you showed skill, madam, and the man I sent to keep watch over Mrs. Boppert against your looked-for visit there, was foiled by the very simple strategy you used in meeting her at a neighboring shops"

"Good!" I again cried, in my relief that the discovery made at that meeting had not been shared by him.

"We had sounded Mrs. Boppert ourselves, but she had seemed a very hopeless job, and I do not yet see how you got any water out of that stone—if you did."

"No?" I retorted ambiguously, enjoying the Inspector's manifest delight in this scene as much as I did my own secret thoughts and the prospect of the surprise I was holding in store for them.

"But your interference with the clock and the discovery you made that it had been going at the time the shelves fell, was not unknown to us, and we have made use of it, good use as you will hereafter see."

"So! those girls could not keep a secret after all," I muttered; and waited with some anxiety to hear him mention the pin-cushion; but he did not, greatly to my relief.

"Don't blame the girls!" he put in (his ears evidently are as sharp as mine); "the inquiries having proceeded from Franklin, it was only natural for me to suspect that he was trying to mislead us by some hocus-pocus story. So I visited the girls. That I had difficulty in getting to the root of the matter is to their credit, Miss Butterworth, seeing that you had made them promise secrecy."

"You are right," I nodded, and forgave them on the spot. If I could not withstand Mr Gryce's eloquence —and it affected me at times—how could I expect these girls to. Besides, they had not revealed the more important secret I had confided to them, and in consideration of this I was ready to pardon them most anything.

"That the clock was going at the time the shelves fell, and that he should be the one to draw our attention to it would seem to the superficial mind proof positive that he was innocent of the deed with which it was so closely associated," the detective proceeded. "But to one skilled in the subterfuges of criminals, this seemingly conclusive fact in his favour was capable of an explanation so in keeping with the subtlety shown in every other feature of this remarkable crime, that I began to regard it as a point against him rather than in his favour. Of which more hereafter.

"Not allowing myself to be deterred, then, by this momentary setback, and rejoicing in an affair considered as settled by my superiors, I proceeded to establish Franklin Van Burnam's connection with the crime which had been laid with so much apparent reason at his brother's door.

"The first fact to be settled was, of course, whether your identification of him as the gentleman who accompanied his victim, into Mr. Van Burnam's house could be corroborated by any of the many persons who had seen the so-called Mr. James Pope at the Hotel D——.

"As none of the witnesses who attended the inquest had presumed to recognize in either of these sleek and haughty gentlemen the shrinking person just mentioned, I knew that any open attempt on my part to bring about an identification would result disastrously. So I employed strategy—like my betters, Miss Butterworth" (here his bow was overpowering in its mock humility); "and rightly considering that for a person to be satisfactorily identified with another, he must be seen under the same circumstances and in nearly the same place, I sought out Franklin Van Burnam, and with specious promises of some great benefit to be done his brother, induced him to accompany me to the Hotel D——.

"Whether he saw through my plans and thought that a brave front and an assumption of candor would best serve him in this unexpected dilemma, or, whether he felt so entrenched behind the precautions he had taken as not to fear discovery under any circumstances, he made but one demur before preparing to accompany me. This demur was significant, however, for it was occasioned by my advice to change his dress for one less conspicuously fashionable, or to hide it under an ulster or mackintosh. And as a proof of his hardihood—remember, madam, that his connection with this crime has been established —he actually did put on the ulster, though he must have known what a difference it would make in his appearance.

"The result was all I could desire. As we entered the hotel, I saw a certain hackman start and lean forward to look after him. It was the one who had driven Mr. and Mrs. Pope away from the hotel. And when we passed the porter, the wink which I gave him was met by a lift of his eyelids which he afterwards interpreted into 'Like! very like!'

"But it was from the clerk I received the most unequivocal proof of his identity. On entering the office I had left Mr. Van Burnam as near as possible to the spot where Mr. Pope had stood while his so-called wife was inscribing their names in the register, and bidding him to remain in the background while I had a few words at the desk, all in his brother's interests of course, I succeeded in secretly directing Mr. Henshaw's attention towards him. The start which he gave and the exclamation he uttered were unequivocal. 'Why, there's the man now!' he cried, happily in a whisper. 'Anxious look, drooping head, brown moustache, everything but the duster.' 'Bah!' said I; 'that's Mr. Franklin Van Burnam you are looking at! What are you thinking of?' 'Can't help it,' said he; 'I saw both of the brothers at the inquest, and saw nothing in them then to remind me of our late mysterious guest. But as he stands there, he's a —— sight more like James Pope than the other one is, and don't you forget it.' I shrugged my shoulders, told him he was a fool; and that fools had better keep their follies to themselves, and came away with my man, outwardly disgusted but inwardly in most excellent trim for pursuing an investigation which had opened so auspiciously.

"Whether this man possessed any motive for a crime so seemingly out of accordance with his life and disposition was, of course, the next point to settle. His conduct at the inquest certainly showed no decided animosity toward his brother's wife, nor was there on the surface of affairs any token of the mortal hatred which alone could account for a crime at once so deliberate and so brutal. But we detectives plunge below the surface, and after settling the question of Franklin's identity with the so-called Mr. Pope of the Hotel D——, I left New York and its interests — among which I reckoned your efforts at detective work, Miss Butterworth—to a young man in my office, who, I am afraid, did not quite understand the persistence of your character; for he had nothing to tell me concerning you on my return, save that you had been cultivating Miss Althorpe, which, of course, was such a natural thing for you to do, I wonder he thought it necessary to mention it.

"My destination was Four Corners, the place where Howard first met his future wife. In relating what I learned there, I shall doubtless repeat facts with which you are acquainted, Miss Butterworth."

"That is of no consequence," I returned, with almost brazen duplicity; for I not only was ignorant of what he was going to say, but had every reason to believe that it would bear as remote a connection as possible to the secret then laboring in my breast. "A statement of the case from your lips," I pursued, "will emphasize what I know. Do not stint any of your disclosures, then, I beg. I have an ear for all." This was truer than my rather sarcastic tone would convey, for might not his story after all prove to have some unexpected relation with the facts I had myself gathered together.

"It is a pleasure," said he, "to think I am capable of giving any information to Miss Butterworth, and as I did not run across you or your very nimble and pert little maid during my stay at Four Corners, I shall take it for granted that you confined your inquiries to the city and the society of which you are such a shining light."

This in reference to my double visit at Miss Althorpe's, no doubt.

"Four Corners is a charming town in Southern Vermont, and here, three years ago, Howard Van Burnam first met Miss Stapleton. She was living in a gentleman's family at that time as travelling companion to his invalid daughter."

Ah, now I could see what explanation this wary old detective gave himself of my visits to Miss Althorpe, and began to hug myself in anticipation of my coming triumph over him.

"The place did not fit her, for Miss Stapleton only shone in the society of men; but Mr. Harrison had not yet discovered this special idiosyncrasy of hers, and as his daughter was able to see a few friends, and in fact needed some diversion, the way was open to her companion for that acquaintande with Mr. Van Burnam which has led to such disastrous results.

"The house at which their meeting took place was a private one, and I soon found out many facts not widely known in this city. First, that she was not so much in love with Howard as he was with her. He succumbed to her fascinations at once, and proposed, I believe, within two weeks after seeing her; but though she accepted him, few of those who saw them together thought her affections very much engaged till Franklin suddenly appeared in town, when her whole manner underwent a change, and she became so sparkingly and irresistibly beautiful that her avowed lover became doubly enslaved, and Franklin—Well, there is evidence to prove that he was not insensible to her charms either; that, in spite of her engagement to his brother and the attitude which honour bade him hold towards his prospective sister-in-law, he lost his head for a short time at least, and under her seductions I do not doubt, for she was a double-faced woman according to general repute, went so far as to express his passion in a letter of which I heard much before I was so fortunate as to obtain a sight of it. This was three years ago, and I think Miss Stapleton would have been willing to have broken with Howard and married Franklin if the latter had had the courage to meet his brother's reproaches. But he evidently was deficient in this quality. His very letter, which is a warm one, but which holds out no hope to her of any closer bond between them than that offered by her prospective union with his brother, shows that he still retained some sense of honour, and as he presently left Four Corners and did not appear again where they were till just before their marriage, it is probable that all would have gone well if the woman had shared this sentiment with him. But she was made up of mean materials, and while willing to marry Howard for what he could give her or what she thought he could give her, she yet cherished an implacable grudge against Franklin for his weakness, as she called it, in not following the dictates of his heart. Being sly as well as passionate, she hid her feeling from every one but a venial, though apparently devoted confidante, a young girl named——"

"Oliver," finished in my own mind.

But the name he mentioned was quite different.

"Pigot," he said, looking at the filigree basket he held in his hand as if he picked this word out from one of its many interstices. "She was French, and after once finding her, I had but little difficulty in learning all she had to tell. She had been Miss Harrison's maid, but she was not above serving Miss Stapleton in many secret and dishonorable ways. As a consequence, she could give me the details of an interview which that lady had held with Franklin Van Burnam on the evening of her wedding. It took place in Mr. Harrison's garden, and was supposed to be a secret one, but the woman who arranged the meeting was not the person to keep away from it when it occurred, and consequently I have been enabled to learn with more or less accuracy what took place between them. It was not to Miss Stapleton's credit. Mr. Van Burnam merely wanted his letter back, but she refused to return it unless he would promise her a complete recognition by his family of her marriage and ensure her a reception in his father's house as Howard's wife. This was more than he could engage himself to perform. He had already, according to his own story, made every effort possible to influence the old gentleman in her favour, but had only succeeded in irritating him against himself. It was an acknowledgment which would have satisfied most women, but it did not satisfy her. She declared her intention of keeping the letter for fear he would cease his exertions; and heedless of the effect produced upon him by the barefaced threat, proceeded to inveigh against his brother for the very love which made her union with him possible; and as if this was not bad enough, showed at the same time such a disposition to profit by whatever worldly good the match promised, that Franklin lost all regard for her, and began to hate her.

BAD BLOOD IS THE DIRECT CAUSE OF Pimples.

Pimples break out on the face and body, and it is impossible to get rid of them, unless you cleanse the blood of all of its impurities.

Burdock Blood Bitters is without a doubt, the very best medicine for this purpose.

This old, and reliable medicine has been in use for nearly forty years, and has a reputation unequalled by any other preparation for removing all the impurities from the blood and banishing the pimples.

Mr. Edward Paquette, Navan Centre, Ont., writes:—"One month ago my face was covered with pimples and a rash. I had tried a number of these so called blood purifiers with no avail. Seeing an almanac of yours in which you strongly recommend Burdock Blood Bitters, I decided to try a bottle, and after I had taken it I could see a decided change, and after using three bottles more all the pimples had completely disappeared."

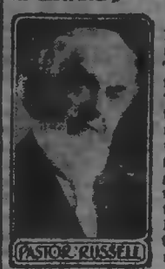
CONSIDER THE FIELD LILIES

Significance of the Great Teacher's Parabolic Discourse.

HIS SAYINGS MISAPPRENENDED

Lessons From the Sparrows—Lessons From the Lilies—Lessons of Divine, Providential Care—Lessons For the World—Lessons For the Church—Lessons In Patience—Lessons In Hope—Lessons In Contentment.

[The matter under this heading is supplied by the Pastor Russell Lecture Bureau, who conduct the Brooklyn Tabernacle (unsectarian) Bible Studies, and who have arranged for its insertion.]



New York, Dec. 14.—Pastor Russell spoke in The Temple to-day from the text, "And why take ye thought for raiment? Consider the lilies of the field, how they grow; they toil not, neither do they spin; and yet I say unto you, that even Solomon in all his glory was not arrayed like one of these. Wherefore, if God so clothe the grass of the field, which to-day is, and to-morrow is cast into the oven (as fuel), shall He not much more clothe you, O ye of little faith?" (Matthew 6:28-30.) Pastor Russell said in part:

The great Teacher, we are told, taught in parables and in dark sayings (not easily comprehended). Even our Lord's disciples were in the dark concerning the meaning of many of His statements until the Holy Spirit at Pentecost gave them enlightenment, as Jesus had promised. This being true, we are not surprised that many have misapprehended some of the Master's dark sayings respecting the cutting off of a hand or a foot, the plucking out of an eye, respecting undying worms and quenchless fires, and even in respect to the text of today.

There are people of fair intelligence who interpret the Master to mean that His followers are not to labor as do the remainder of mankind for the necessities of life; that they should expect to be supported by others who do labor with sweat of face—that they should be maintained by tithes, collections, etc., and toil and spin not at all. We believe that such are making a great mistake, as did the man recently reported in the press as having cut off his hand in what he thought was obedience to the Master's instruction. We can sympathize with these errors of judgment, but should avoid them and seek to have the spirit of the Master's teaching, which was always the spirit of a sound mind.

In His discourse Jesus had called the attention of His hearers to the fact that the Gentiles—the heathen—were continually thinking about their temporalities and praying about these—"What shall we eat? What shall we drink? Wherewithal shall we be clothed?" "But your Father knoweth what things ye have need of before ye ask Him." Let your worry, therefore, if you have worries, be for something higher and nobler than merely the necessities of life. Consider that while you were once aliens and strangers through sin, disobedience to the Divine Law, you have now been brought back into accord with God and are privileged to address Him in prayer, "Our Father, which art in Heaven."

If we have the faith to believe that God through Christ has accepted us as His children, we should as children trust our Parent in respect to all the affairs of life—great and small—food and raiment—everything. But here comes the important point—the crucial test. Are we the children of God? Is He our Heavenly Father? Has He begotten us of the Holy Spirit? Are our sins forgiven? Are we reconciled to God through the death of His Son? Are we children—"and if children, then heirs of God and joint-heirs with Jesus Christ" our Lord?

Upon the answers to these questions being in the affirmative, is the strength of the [illegible] our faith and hope. If we are not God's children, if we have not come in His appointed way, through Christ, then we are still aliens and strangers. Then our affairs are not under His supervision; but we are with the world sharers in the sentence of death, each doing for himself according to his ability in battling against death, and, like all Gentiles, giving our chief concern to food, raiment and hollow earthly ambitions—knowing not, appreciating not, the higher, the Heavenly privileges in Christ.

We perceive then that the lesson is not for the world in general, except indirectly. The world, learning that these words are applicable only to the consecrated people of God, might properly be desirous that they might apply also to themselves. And if they are thus desirous of having God for their Father and His providential care in all of their affairs, the lesson to them would be that they should come into relationship with God through Christ, that they should become His children, in order to enjoy the privileges and favors which belong to none others at the present time.

The heart of the lesson is that the Heavenly Father is most gracious; and that His tender mercies are over all His creatures who are in harmony with Him. We may be sure that amongst all the Heavenly host there is neither hunger nor want, neither suffering nor pain, nor any disadvantage whatever. Their Heavenly Father knoweth what things they need, and provides bountifully for them. The Church is to learn this same lesson and to rejoicingly work by faith, enjoying full confidence and trust in Him who loved us and bought us with the precious blood of His Son.

These children of God need not feel harassed respecting life's experiences. They have a Heavenly Father, and He knows their needs better than they do, and is both able and willing to give what is best for them. And if their experiences in the family of God shall bring them less prosperity and more adversity, more trials, more difficulties, and necessitate more economies than before they became His children, they are instructed that, walking by faith and not by sight, they shall firmly trust Him, come what may.

All who can lay claim to being children of God by faith can surely believe that He who is able to provide for the birds and the lilies is no less able and no less willing to provide for those who have become His children through Christ—those for whom He gave His Only Begotten Son. "Could He redeem them with that precious sacrifice and then have no care for their future welfare? Would He beget children with His Holy Spirit and then be negligent in providing for their necessities? Nay! God will not overlook the interests of His consecrated children, and whatever may seem to be an oversight and lack of provision is to be understood to be in reality the reverse — that which the Heavenly Father sees to be for their highest and best interests.

The Master called attention to the beauty of the lily. Much is discernible to the natural eye, and still more when we examine the perfections of the flower microscopically. Wonderful indeed is the raiment of the lily! Solomon in all his glory had no such seamless robe, and no such perfect texture for his raiment.

Perhaps the Master had a deeper thought respecting raiment than appears on the surface by His words, "Shall He not much more clothe you?" While He assuredly meant that we are to trust Heavenly provision for our natural clothing, it would appear that He may have meant a clothing for us as New Creatures—the spotless, seamless robe of Christ's righteousness, granted to us as a wedding garment, in the merit of which we have access to all the riches of God's grace in the present life and, if faithful, shall be granted an abundant entrance into His everlasting Kingdom.

God takes thought respecting the Divine plans and arrangements. Jesus thought out carefully the course He pursued; and He instructed those who were desirous of being His disciples to sit down and carefully count the cost. All these things show us that the Master would not have His followers thoughtless, living merely moment by moment, failing to make provision for the seasons, the weather, the table, etc.

What He meant, what the Greek text fully bears out, is that His followers should have no worry respecting temporalities. Having exercised thought, prudence, care, having done to the best of their judgment and ability, not slothfully, but energetically, they are to rest the matter, realizing that all their affairs are placed in the hands of the Heavenly Father through Christ, and that all the Heavenly powers are pledged to make all things work together for good to them, because they love God and have been called according to His purpose.

While anxious care was not to be exercised respecting temporalities, great care was to be exercised in respect to anything appertaining to the Kingdom. The call of the Church is to membership in the great Kingdom of God, of which Christ is the Head, the Chief King; we may be under kings and under priests, associated with our Redeemer in His great Messianic work of a thousand years. It was to attain a share in that Kingdom that we made consecration of our lives, our wills, our all, to the Lord; and only through great tribulation can we enter that Kingdom. As God is pleased to see our restfulness respecting temporalities of life when He has agreed to provide for us according to His Wisdom and in response to our efforts, so He is pleased to see, on the contrary, our zeal, our perseverance, our almost worrying that the great prize of the Kingdom should not be lost by us.

The reason for wishing us to thus worry for the Kingdom, and not to worry for earthly things, is evident on reflection. To worry about earthly things would be to show a faithlessness and doubt in respect to God and His promised care. But our attaining the Kingdom or our failing to attain it is made dependent only on ourselves. God has already done His part. He has provided the Redeemer and the forgiveness of sins. He has opened up the way whereby we might return into His family. When we came unto Him through Jesus, He accepted us and gave us the begetting of the Spirit and, with it, a right to all the great and precious promises, and joint-heirship with Jesus on condition of our faithfulness.—Romans 8:17; 2 Peter 1:12.

Hence, to agonize for the Kingdom, to strive for the Kingdom, to run with patience, to fight a good fight, to endure hardness—all these expressions indicate the great zeal and earnestness necessary on the part of those who would be accounted conquerors—yea, "more than conquerors, through Him who loved us and bought us with His precious blood."

Is it any wonder that God should expect us to be very zealous in striving to attain the Kingdom? Would He give so great an honor to any who valued it lightly? Surely angels and cherubim would be glad to accept positions in the Kingdom if offered to them! But God has passed by the angels, and invited members of the fallen race, whose hearts have turned to Him, that they might become, not only justified, from their sins, but sanctified through Christ and heirs of the Kingdom.

Is it any wonder that the Lord has provided that only through much tribulation shall any enter the Kingdom? Whoever is not willing to endure tribulation for the Kingdom's sake would thereby show that he had not the proper appreciation and that he is not worthy of it. If the Master endured even unto death, how could we expect that we might be joint-heirs with Him unless we possessed His spirit, His zeal? Thus the Lord tells us that all who will attain the Kingdom glories will be copies of His Son.

Here the question properly arises, What is to be endured, what kind of sufferings? And what is the real object of these sufferings? Why should God delight to make us suffer before he would give us a place in the Kingdom?

The Bible answers these questions satisfactorily. It admonishes that only by trials and difficulties can character be really developed; for character is not merely a preference for that which is good, but a fixed determination, a loyalty to that which is right. God seeketh such as have firm characters to be His children on the Divine plane—of the New Creation. He has a great work for them to do for the world of mankind; and unless their own characters were properly formed, crystallized, established, they would not be in proper condition to be the rulers, instructors and uplifters of the world. Then He has a future work for them to all eternity.

We can readily see that this class must demonstrate their loyalty beyond peradventure, must show their zeal for righteousness; as was written of our Saviour, "Because Thou hast loved righteousness and hated iniquity, therefore God hath anointed Thee with the oil of gladness above Thy fellows." The fellows of Jesus are the members of His Body, His elect Church, of every nation and denomination. He is the Head.

The kind of character which God seeks in His people is that which is like His own. He seeks the fruits of the Holy Spirit; meekness, gentleness, patience, long suffering, brotherly kindness, love. "If these things be in you and abound, they will make you that ye shall be neither barren nor unfruitful in the knowledge of the Lord, and thus an entrance shall be ministered unto you abundantly into the everlasting Kingdom of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ.—2 Peter 1:8, 11.

If everything were perfect in ourselves and surroundings, there would be no real opportunity for cultivating these fruits and graces of the Spirit—for developing and crystallizing character and for showing our zeal for right and opposition to wrong. God, therefore, has taken advantage of the existence of sin, and of imperfection in others and in ourselves, to use these for the cultivation of the graces in our hearts and the establishment of character in us.

For instance, if there were nothing to try our patience, how could we grow in patience? If, therefore, we feel that we need more patience and pray for it, let us expect the answer to come in an increase of trials and difficulties which would tend to increase patience in our hearts and lives. If we pray for more meekness, we should expect our prayers to be answered by adverse conditions tending to show us our weaknesses and make us more teachable, more humble.

If we pray for more brotherly kindness, we should expect more trials and difficulties from the brethren, testing our love, patience, brotherly kindness. And so by the cultivation of all these various parts of love, we are gradually growing into God-likeness of character, becoming copies of God's dear Son, who is the express image of the Father's person and His character-likeness; for God is Love!

The realities with God's people are the spiritual, Heavenly things. For these they seek, hunger, thirst. To them the earthly things in comparison have no value; for these were consecrated, given up, at the very beginning of the Christian way. But although all earthly rights have been surrendered, yet the Lord's promise is that these who seek first the Kingdom shall have all other needed things added to them. God will care for their temporal as well as their Heavenly interests. And to His praise be it said that He generally gives them abundantly more than they could have asked or thought.

Bread and water are the only things guaranteed; but how often in the Christian's experiences many comforts and luxuries are added, even though not asked, and while he is seeking with all his heart the interests and blessings of the Kingdom! May these Heavenly things more and more be our portion! Let us look less and less at the temporary things, and with the eye of faith look more and more to the things not seen, which are eternal, and to the Church heavenly.—2 Corinthians 4:18.

"O for a faith that will not shrink,
Tho' pressed by every foe;
That will not tremble on the brink
Of any earthly woe."

Backache Banished.

Thousands of men and women are suffering from weak, lame and aching backs, and many of them unable to do any work for the pain.

The stitches, twitches and twinges are bad enough and give enough misery, but, back of the backache, and the cause of it all are the disordered kidneys crying out in warning through the back.

Backache is kidney ache, and there's serious trouble ahead for you if you neglect it.

Doan's Kidney Pills cure every form of backache by curing the sick kidneys that cause it.

Mrs. Jack Mason, Springhill, N.B., writes:—"I have been suffering from backache for a very long time. I tried everything and did everything, but still I would suffer. One day I was looking over your Almanac, and saw your advertisement for Doan's Kidney Pills, so I got 5 boxes, and I am glad to say that they brought me back to life again, and from now on I will never be without them."

Doan's Kidney Pills are 50 cents per box, or 3 boxes for $1.25, at all dealers or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

If ordering direct specify "Doan's."

WAR WITH INSECTS

Campaign is Carried on in a Number of Countries

The greatest war that is going on at the present time is not a war in which both sides are men. It is not a war in which rifles or cannon play a part. The biggest battles of to-day are with a much smaller foe than man. They are battles with insects.

Although unknown to many people, these battles in which men and insects are the combatants are adding a new chapter to the history of the world.

South Africa is one of the greatest of these battlegrounds. There hostilities are being carried on relentlessly. Locusts are one of the enemies in South Africa. As soon as there is a swarm of locusts, news is flashed to the Department of Agriculture at Pretoria. As a result a battle ensues with sprays of arsenic instead of rifles. The locusts, due to these battles, are being rapidly exterminated.

On the west coast of Africa a great campaign is taking place against a close relative of one of our own foes, the mosquito. In Africa it has been definitely established that the mosquito is the transmitter of three most terrible diseases—malaria, elephantiasis and yellow fever. If a man is bitten only once by a mosquito there may develop any one of these horrible diseases. The same methods are being used against the African mosquito as they are using in the United States in a civil war against the mosquito. Hundred of ponds are being drained and other bodies of water are being covered by a thick oil.

A little fish known as the "million" is the weapon used in the great battle against the mosquito in West India and the Hawaiian Islands. This little fish is a natural enemy of the mosquito. The beneficial work of the "million" was first noticed at Barbadoes, whose lakes and streams were full of this small fish. Barbados did not suffer from the scourges brought by mosquitoes, but the adjacent islands, where the "million" did not live, suffered greatly. This suffering is diminishing since the introduction of the "million" into all ponds and streams that cannot be drained or covered with oil.

In the Panama Canal [illegible] the conflict between man and insect has been remarkable. Man has won all of the battle. Yellow fever in all of its horror, a direct result of germs carried by the mosquito, has been driven away from Panama by a successful war on the pest.

Another pest-carrying insect on which a great onslaught is being made is the tsetse fly. The record of this insect is but little less terrible than that of the mosquito, for among the diseases it carries is the sleeping sickness, for which there is no cure and which has swept away whole communities. The tsetse has killed more than 300,000 in the Uganda protectorate alone. The tsetse fly is being fought by burning bushes around the margins of rivers and ponds and around cities and encampments. The men of Africa are wearing a sort of a sticky flypaper on their backs in the lands where the tsetse fly swarms, and millions are being attracted and killed by this method.

The United States and Canada have already made great progress against the fly and the mosquito, whose dangers have just been recently realized.

The war against these terrible tiny foes will not only make civilized countries more healthful, but will vastly improve life and conditions and open up to civilization part of the tropical and semi-tropical countries.

ARMY AUCTIONS

Soldiers Glad to Buy Articles at Sales and Save Their Allowances

Auctions are a feature of Army life, for whenever a man has been absent for twenty-one days, and is officially declared a deserter, an auction of as much of his kit and clothing as can be found is held, and the proceeds are credited to the public as a set-off against the waste of money in having drained him. Any non-commissioned officer or private is also entitled on discharge to an auction among his barrack-room comrades of what is termed his "personal clothing" and kit, a colour-sergeant usually performing the offices of auctioneer. Buyers do not pay cash on the spot, but have to submit to a stoppage from their regimental pay, although this does not prevent the total sum being advanced to the soldier in whose interests the auction was held. Soldiers are usually keen on buying good articles cheaply at auctions, as thereby they can obviate the periodical issues of clothing to which they are entitled, and in consequence draw the full money allowance in lieu.

Non-commissioned officers are also occasionally called upon to enact the rôle of auctioneer at the sale of Army stores, when they are entitled to a commission of 2 per cent. on sales, provided the total does not exceed $16.00, no matter how long the sale lasts. But auctions of Army horses have to be carried out by sworn appraisers, whose payment is at the rate of 3½ per cent., with a minimum fee of $3.60. No officer or soldier is allowed to purchase any Army horses at these sales, either directly or indirectly; but an experienced officer has to attend, and if he has any reason to suppose that there is any combination among buyers to keep down the price of the horses, he is at liberty to buy in or postpone the sale of any of the animals.

An extraordinary case of religious mania was found in Panama. An individual who had proclaimed himself the Messiah predicted the destruction of the world by a deluge in a short time, and some of his eighty adherents engaged in building an ark, while others collected in pairs animals of all species found in their region.

How "Sterling" Originated

In England money is characterised by the word "sterling," because in the time of Richard Cœur de Lion money coined in the east part of Germany became, on account of its purity, in special request in England, and was called Easterling money, as all the inhabitants in that part of Germany were called Easterlings. That was the foundation of the practice of designing English amounts "sterling."

WAS A CONFIRMED DYSPEPTIC

How Finds It a Pleasure to Enjoy Meals

Here is a case which seemed as bad and as hopeless as yours can possibly be. This is the experience of Mr. H. J. Brown, 384 Bathurst St., Toronto, in his own words:

"Gentlemen—I have much pleasure in mentioning to you the benefits received from your Na-Dru-Co Dyspepsia Tablets and can cheerfully recommend them. I simply had confirmed dyspepsia with all its wretched symptoms, and tried about all the advertised cures with no success. You have in Na-Dru-Co Dyspepsia Tablets the best curative agent I could find. It is now such a pleasure to enjoy meals with their consequent nourishment that I want to mention this for the benefit of others."

The fact that a lot of prescriptions or so-called "cures" have failed to help you is no sign that you have got to go on suffering. Try Na-Dru-Co Dyspepsia Tablets and see how quickly this sterling remedy will give you relief and start your stomach working properly. Delusion and Madness.

In Boswell's "Life of Johnson" he quotes Prof. Gaubius of Leyden, physician to the Prince of Orange: "If a man tells me that he is grievously disturbed, for that he imagines he sees a ruffin coming against him with a drawn sword, though at the same time he is conscious it is a delusion, I pronounce him to have a disordered imagination; but if a man tells me that he sees this and in consternation calls to me to look at it, I pronounce him to be mad."

Canal Is Progressing.

OTTAWA, Dec. 13.—Work is advancing rapidly on the new Welland Canal and section 3 will be the next section for which tenders will be called. This is the section next to Port Colborne, and will be an expensive cut, as it is through rock for the most part. Plans and specifications are now in preparation and tenders will be called for during the winter.

Sections 1, 2, 3 and 5 are in progress.

Cuban Minister in Berlin Gives Dinner to Americans

Senor and Senora de Quesada Hosts of Largest Entertainment of the Week at Hotel Adlon, and Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Ruddock Give Tea Bridge Party.

MRS. GERARD MADE PRESIDENT OF LADIES' UNION

[SPECIAL DISPATCH.]
BERLIN, DEC. 13.

THE Cuban Minister and Señora de Quesada were hosts of the largest dinner party of the week, which took place in the Beethoven room of the Hotel Adlon. The tables were profusely decorated with red and white carnations. The menu displayed many toothsome Cuban dishes.

The guests were exclusively American, as Señor de Quesada's seven years' occupancy of the diplomatic post in Washington previous to coming to Berlin created close affinities between his family and American social circles here.

The guests included Mr. Isaac Wolf, Jr., president of the American Chamber of Commerce, and Mrs. Wolf, Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Kugemann, Mrs. Anna B. McElree, Mr. and Mrs. S. B. Conger, Mrs. Eginton, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick William Wile, Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Wilkie, Miss Caroline Kerr, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur M. Abell, Señorita de Quesada, Mr. C. de Witt Poole, Mr. Alfred R. Thompson, Señor Lopez, Secretary of the Cuban Legation, and Mr. Lucien Phillips.

Mrs. James W. Gerard attended a business meeting of the Ladies' Union of the American Church on Tuesday and was formally installed in the office of honorary president by the acting president, Mrs. Anna B. McElree. Projects were discussed for a Christmas sale and dance to take place before the American colony shall have dispersed for the holiday for sightseeing tours or winter sports.

A Tea Bridge Party.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Billings Ruddock entertained at a tea bridge this week. Among the guests were Mrs. J. W. Gerard, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Clark Grew and the members of the French Embassy staff. The young son of Mr. and Mrs. Ruddock will receive the family name of Merritt Ruddock.

Mrs. William E. Kugemann entertained at a déjeuner this week for Mrs. H. S. Downs, of Paris, who will remain in Berlin as the guest of Mrs. Kugemann until December 18, when both families will join a large party for the winter sports in the Grünewald.

Frau Anna von Rath, one of the best known hostesses in court society, has taken Tuesday as her official reception day. Among her callers this week were the Bulgarian Minister and Mme. Guechow, Count Donhoff, Frau von Bülow and Mr. and Mrs. William Pitt Chatham.

Prince and Princess August Wilhelm of Prussia occupied the royal box at the big orchestral choral concert of the Philharmonic, dedicated to the muse of Dr. Richard Strauss, the composer, who enjoys the the close personal friendship of the Kaiser's fourth son. Princess Auguste Wilhelm, who is considered the beauty of the royal family, was dressed in white satin, with hat and muff of the same fabric trimmed in bands of skunk.

New Consul General Arrives.

Mr. Robert F. Skinner, the newly appointed United States Consul General in Berlin, successor to Mr. A. M. Thackara, and Mrs. Skinner came from Hamburg this week and passed two days house hunting. Although no lease has yet been signed it is probable they will take an apartment at No. 14 Keithstrasse, a new house just erected in the heart of Berlin's residence quarter and which already has as tenants the American Naval Attaché and ...s. Gherardi.

Mrs. Skinner, it is announced, has consented to accept the vice presidency of the American Woman's Club under the guidance of Dr. Bertling, assistant director of the American Institute.

A party of Americans has just had the opportunity of seeing the new Deutsches Opernhaus, in the Charlottenburg suburb of Berlin. It is the first stage in Germany to use the so-called Fortuny sky, an apparatus which takes its name from the inventor, a Spanish painter, and is regarded as the most significant acquisition to modern stage machinery.

The Fortuny Sky in Use.

It is an enormous concave surface of aluminum, upon which light and sound effects can be projected with absolute fidelity to nature, and, by eliminating the customary side wings, completes the illusion of a low bending horizon.

In the party were Mr. and Mrs. Clark Grew, Mr. and Mrs. Gherardi, Mr. and Mrs. Albert B. Ruddock, Senator and Mrs. Knudsen, Mr. C. De Witt Poole, Mr. A. C. Wilkie and many members of the Harvard Club.

Signor Mattia Battisti, regarded as the greatest living exponent of the fast vanishing bel canto, is the man of the hour in Berlin. He is the only one of the world's greatest singers who has never yielded to the lure of the American dollar. When asked why he had persistently refused to join the coterie of his Italian compatriots at the Metropolitan Opera House in New York, he laughingly told me of a remark in which one baffled impresario had summed up the situation:—

"A man must either be a grand seigneur who has need neither of money nor fame or else he is a blank fool."

Signor Battistini swears that his real reason is a haunting memory of the mal de mer he suffered when as a young artist he crossed the Atlantic to fulfil an engagement in South America.

Mr. E. P. Stevenson's Stories.

Mr. Edward Prince Stevenson, an American writer, who is at present in Berlin, is the author of a new set of short stories which, under the title of "Her Enemy, Some Friends and Other Personages," has been privately printed. With this work Mr. Stevenson makes his re-entrance into literary activity after an enforced pause of some years. During the course of the winter the author will give dramatic readings from his new book in Berlin, Paris, Munich, Florence and Rome. Later in the season he will renew his literary acquaintance with New York and Boston.

The first of these readings took place at Mrs. Theodore Spiering's Sunday evening salon. Arrangements are being made for Mr. Stevenson to appear before the American Woman's Club and the Ladies' Union of the American Church.

Christmas Shopping Takes the Time of London Society

Latest Events That Have Attracted Attention in the British Capital and Some Odd Things That Happened to Make the Picture Ball a "Frost."

THE VISIT OF THE KING AND QUEEN OF SPAIN

[SPECIAL DISPATCH.]
LONDON, DEC. 13.

CHARITY bazaars and Christmas shopping are taking up most of the time of society women just now. Every day all the big squares in the West End are crowded with carriages conveying persons to bazaars and other charity functions, which are likely to continue for several weeks more. Of course, the great charity picture ball in the Albert Hall brought a host from the country houses.

Both the King and the Queen make a very careful selection of their presents. The Queen has particular likes to make her selections personally, while the King tells her what he wants and the Queen does the rest. The stay of the King and Queen in London will not be long, as they will leave for Chatsworth as guests of the Duke and Duchess of Devonshire until the end of next week. Among those invited to meet the royal guests are the Duke and Duchess of Portland, Lady Victoria Cavendish-Bentinck, Lord Salisbury, Earl Spencer, Viscount Althorp, the Earl and Countess of Kerry, Lord Abercromby and the Bishop of Winchester.

Queen Mary always likes to have brainy persons about her, and when she goes to a country house she always scrutinizes the list of guests submitted very carefully.

In the following week the King will go for a couple of days' shooting at Hall Barn as the guest of Lord Burnham. Unfortunately Lord Burnham's daughter, Lady Hulse, and his younger son, Colonel William Lawson, are both laid up suffering from accidents in the hunting field.

Spain's Monarchs Active.

The King and Queen of Spain made the most of their brief journey to London. They were at the theatre every night, and it was very generally remarked how extremely well Queen Ena was looking just now. The King of Spain is bright and merry as ever

King Alfonso has had very little shooting in England, but capital sport, especially at Blankney, where the birds are very plentiful and fly well.

Others in the party are Lady Leicester, Lady Bridget Coke, Lord Westmoreland, who is a brother of Lady Londesborough, and his daughter, Lady Enid Fane; Lord Warncliffe and Lady Rachel Stuart Wortley, Lord Annaly and Miss Lucia White, and Lord and Lady Curzon. Lady Irene Denison will, of course, assist her mother in entertaining the large party, among whom are young girls as companions to Princess Arthur, owing to the fact that this is Princess Arthur's first shooting party.

That Picture Ball.

Meanwhile the Queen of Spain is to automobile down to Farnborough to see the aged Empress Eugenie, whose goddaughter she is. The venerable Empress always has taken the keenest interest in Queen Ena. It was she who really arranged the marriage, and it is to Queen Ena that the Empress' large fortune ultimately will pass.

The picture ball, as already cabled to the United States, proved a most magnificent spectacle, judging from what could be seen at the beginning before the correspondents had to rush away to get their descriptions in the morning newspapers, but after four or five hours it was generally voted something of a frost. It was, of course, very gorgeous, and there were many interesting personalities, but it did not seem to go. Possibly the tableaux vivants had much to do with the tediousness. They are very well in their way, but they hold up matters too long and you had to stand about in a closely packed crowd, and the actual visions seemed very short and the intervals for preparation very long, as the stage management was decidedly amateurish. The best group was an Etruscan frieze by the Rutland family and their friends. In one set a mediaeval gentleman not only wore a monocle but fidgeted about until he dropped it.

The King and Queen of Spain with Princess Christian entered their box about midnight to the strains of the Spanish national anthem. It was amusing to see several couples who had not noticed their arrival promptly start tangoing with great vigor while the King stood at attention. They did not leave off until the tune was followed by "God Save the King." The young King looked very well and as if he would much sooner be dancing himself than merely talking.

The Tango Again.

Lady Diana Manners, one of the most beautiful young women in England, was very much to the fore in dancing the tango, much of the time with Mr. Raymond Lauserte, a young French actor, who made a big hit in "Fanny's First Play" and is now at Daly's.

Miss Muriel Wilson, another beauty, in copper colored dress of Etruscan frieze, was in great form. She and Lord Farquhar danced most energetically until they had to rest, breathless, a good effort on the part of Lord Farquhar, who is in his seventieth year.

Miss Violet Asquith, rigged out as the Archangel Gabriel, evidently found her cardboard halo a dreadful nuisance.

Strangely enough, comparatively few theatrical persons were present. Miss Gabrielle Ray, dressed as a Persian boy with a basket slung over her shoulder, looked very pretty. She gave a supper party in a box in the grand tier which became very lively.

Miss Irene Vanbrugh, arriving late, danced with her husband, Mr. Dion Boucicault. Miss Viola Tree was with her husband, Mr. Alan Parsons.

Just after the first tableau came the inevitable suffragette interruption. Two women in the amphitheatre, which was packed with spectators, screamed something about torture and scattered some pamphlets. There was a little hissing, but not much notice was taken, and the conductor, Mr. Cassano, tactfully cut their talk short with a loud and vigorous waltz tune.

Mme. Karina, a very pretty little dancer from the prima ballerina of Covent Garden, led off the carnival. Then two beefeaters solemnly unrolled a carpet, on which she executed a solo dance, but at the end she tripped and fell. She got up, seized her partner and tangoed.

Lady Randolph as the Empress Theodora was voted truly imperial. The Japanese group organized by the wife of the Japanese Ambassador caused some applause, which otherwise was very perfunctory.

Glad When It Ended.

The pictures seemed very small in such a great space and it was difficult to see them, and after a time they were ignored by many. There was a general feeling of relief when it was all over, as dancing was so much more enjoyable.

Tango dancing has been the feature of most of the charity bazaars, notwithstanding the protests of some society women against it. Princess Louise, Duchess of Argyll, herself witnessed a tango competition at the bazaar in aid of the Industrial Law Committee, where Lady Portalington, Lady Drogheda and Miss Muriel Wilson were voted the most graceful dancers, though regarding the dance itself opinions differed. Some were heard to say it was charming, while others called it too dull and too dismal for words.

Princess Christian, as president of the Royal Free Hospital, was keenly interested in the bazaar in aid of that institution and attended and enjoyed the tango tea, a feature of the bazaar which also was attended by Mrs. Page, wife of the American Ambassador.

Millicent, Duchess of Sutherland was unable by illness to preside at the bazaar in aid of her cripples' guild and her place was taken by the young Duchess of Sutherland, looking beautiful in a black velvet pinon dress with a wide wrap of ermine wound several times around her shoulders, the fur which becomes her so well.

Great regret also is expressed because the Duchess of Marlborough had to quit town in the midst of her many charitable functions. She was not present at the Sunderland House "at home" in aid of Dr. Bernardo's homes, and her place was taken by her mother-in-law, the Marchioness of Blandford. The Duchess has gone to Brighton to recuperate from the heavy work in which she has been engaged.

She Works Too Hard.

There is little doubt that the Duchess overexerts herself at times, so enthusiastic is she in her many charitable self-imposed tasks, for she always is struggling against an ingrained delicacy of constitution, and the rosy color of her cheeks is rather deceptive. A further anxiety is for the health of her two boys, for whom she has had to live as much as possible away from town. This has not helped her. While delicate, the Duchess never has had any serious illness.

Tango teas and dinners also will be a feature of the grand military bazaar to be held in the Royal Horticultural Hall, Westminster, next Thursday, Friday and Saturday in aid of the various regimental associations. Prince Arthur of Connaught, accompanied by Princess Arthur, performing the opening ceremony.

Lady Kathleen Hastings, daughter of Lord and Lady Huntingdon, is about to make her début as a playwright. She has written a comedy, which has been accepted by Mr. Charles Hawtrey, to be produced at Christmas. Lady Kathleen is one of the cleverest girls in the social world, and since she was quite a child she has written little poems and plays in which she and her sister have taken part. She has lately written a novel, too, which will be published soon.

American Women Very Popular with King George and His Queen

Duchess of Marlborough, in Particular, Is Much Liked, Her Simple, Unaffected Ways and Intellectual Conversation Appealing Very Strongly to the British Royalties.

[SPECIAL DISPATCH.]
LONDON, DEC. 13.

KING GEORGE and Queen Mary find the society of the American women who have married into the peerage very entertaining, and it is being noticed how often they figure in royal parties in the country. There were two at Elveden Hall when the King stopped with Lord Iveagh recently, and the Duchess of Roxburghe was one of the small shooting party at Windsor during the visit of the Archduke Franz Ferdinand.

The Duchess of Marlborough, who is much liked by the Queen, pleases by her simple, unaffected ways and by her intellectual conversation. She takes a great interest in all the new movements and is described as something of a philosopher, though many remark that she always looks so "inexpressibly sad." On the other hand, the Duchess of Roxburghe is a smiling, chatty, breezy and smart young woman, whose light heartedness is very infectious.

For some time the Queen has been making a collection of pictures that she hopes to make thoroughly representative of the British and French art of the period. Though she has selected several paintings on her own initiative, she is content for the most part to leave the choice of the collection to her lady in waiting, Lady Catherine Coke, who is an art critic of considerable ability. The pictures are being hung in Queen Mary's private apartments at Buckingham Palace and will be on view by the time their Majesties return there.

* * *

If the Duchess of Hohenberg, wife of the Archduke Francis Ferdinand of Austria, did nothing else during her visit to Windsor, she showed ladies of the British Court that they are distinctly behind the times in the matter of dress. She is admitted to be the best dressed woman who has visited Court for many a long day, and more than one lady about Court approached her for the name of her costumier. Since this is a Viennese firm, a "boom" in that quarter may be looked for, and Paris is likely to undergo a temporary eclipse.

It is some years since any one so took the British Court by storm as did the Countess Henri de Baillet Latour, who accompanied the Duchess of Hohenberg. Her vivacity, it is said, compares with the ladies of the British Court in much the same fashion as a bottle of champagne does with home made lemonade.

Princess Mary Earns $1,250

With Her Own Hands in Eleven Months She Provides Sum for Charity.

[SPECIAL DISPATCH.]
LONDON, DEC. 13.

PRINCESS MARY has earned $1,250 in eleven months with her own little hands in the cause of charity.

Several charitable institutions are benefiting by the labors of the young Princess, and one portion of the money has been expended on two hundred pairs of boots, which she will give to other organizations this Christmas.

What Princess Mary, who is only sixteen, has earned by her own unaided efforts for charity within the last half dozen years would make a very considerable amount.

A large proportion of the money was made by the sale of Venetian glass bead necklaces which Princess Mary made. She was given a quantity of Venetian glass beads by the Queen, and with these she started to make necklaces. Princess Mary worked with a will, and by her industry soon made a number in a wide variety of designs and styles. These were soon sold for sums ranging from half a dollar to a dollar and a half. Some of the necklaces took longer to make than others, but on an average each occupied Her Royal Highness two hours.

But Princess Mary's work did not stop with the beads. She is a youthful vice president of the London Needlework Guild, in which the Queen takes so great an interest, and she also has spent a considerable time in sewing for the poor. Both the Queen and her daughter have made a large number of stitched or knitted garments for them.

When any important ceremonies have taken up most of the Queen's time Princess Mary has made it a point of working harder so that the guild should not suffer. The youthful vice president, too, not only makes the garments but is quite proficient in the cutting out process, and can, moreover, make a first rate choice of materials to be used. In her official capacity, too, Princess Mary, in addition, has collected three thousand garments for distribution this Christmas.

Some of her own work includes a dozen dainty little woollen petticoats crocheted by herself. These pretty little pink and blue garments are to be sent to as many children's hospitals as there are petticoats.

Dreadnoughts of Seven Navies Share Expanse of Mediterranean

[SPECIAL DISPATCH.]
LONDON, DEC. 13.

THE scheme of the British Admiralty for advancing a number of promising young warrant and petty officers to commissioned rank has now been advanced a further stage. This month the first group of selected candidates have been confirmed in the new grade of mate, and they are being appointed to ships afloat for a period of service before receiving their commissions as lieutenants.

With the arrival in the Mediterranean of nine battle ships of the United States Atlantic fleet there is a remarkable and, in recent years, an unparalleled display of battle ship strength in that sea.

The dreadnoughts of seven navies are at different places between Gibraltar and Port Said. It is a recognition of the value of the sea training afforded by long cruises that has brought these modern vessels together in the Mediterranean at the present time.

Since the American fleet made its famous world cruise in 1907-09 the naval authorities of other nations seem to have grasped the significance of the effect of such a voyage on the personnel. To a larger extent than ever before fleets and squadrons of large ships now cruise in company to places far distant from their regular bases, from which they are absent for weeks at a time. The spells of sea cruising afford opportunities for training and experience for the officers and men such as are denied when the ships spend most of the week in harbor. From another standpoint voyages to foreign places increase the knowledge and broaden the outlook of the seamen and form a pleasant change from the ordinary routine of service.

Movement of Fleets.

A division of the British home fleet is at this moment engaged in a two months' cruise to the Mediterranean under Vice Admiral Sir Stanley Colville. In Germany there was the usual summer cruise of the high sea fleet to Norway in July and August, affording a period of preparation for the more strenuous autumn manoeuvres, and a small squadron of two battle ships and a cruiser is about to make a long cruise to West Africa and South America. The second squadron of the French fleet, based on Toulon, left the Mediterranean for a two months' cruise into the Atlantic and the English Channel from August to October. And then the Russian fleet in the Baltic has been making a training cruise in the Channel and the Atlantic, calling at British and French ports. These voyages show that European fleets, if not to the same extent, are following the American example.

It would be interesting if all the dreadnoughts now in commission in the Mediterranean could be brought together, for they would represent no fewer than seven navies. Great Britain would be able to contribute eight battle ships and battle cruisers, the United States nine battle ships, France the battle ships Courbet and Jean Bart, Italy the battle ship Dante Alighieri, Austria the Viribus Unitis, Spain the España and Germany the battle cruiser Goeben, which has been in the middle sea since the crisis at Constantinople a year ago. It seems doubtful, however, if the American vessels will come across more than one or two of these twenty-three dreadnoughts during their calls at Marseilles, Villefranche, Naples and Genoa.

American Vessels the Largest.

Examining for a moment the different types of these dreadnoughts, it will be noticed that the Arkansas and the Wyoming, of the American fleet, of 26,000 tons, are the heaviest vessels, the French vessels coming next with a displacement of 22,005 tons, followed by the Italian and the Austrian vessels, of about 20,000 tons. The dreadnoughts of these four navies have similar main armaments of twelve 12-inch guns. Thus they are more powerful as well as larger than the British dreadnoughts now at Malta, which range from 17,250 to 19,250 tons and carry ten 12-inch guns. Allowance, however, must be made for the difference in age, the British vessels being the oldest of their class, completed between 1906 and 1910, whereas the other ships are the latest additions to their respective fleets.

Altogether, therefore, the Mediterranean in the present month would seem to be the centre of interest for the naval world. Certainly it must be many years since so many modern vessels of so many navies were present in its blue waters.

Historic Effigy of King Charles I. To Be Removed

[SPECIAL DISPATCH.]
LONDON, DEC. 13.

ONE of London's historic monuments is, it appears, threatened. The statue of King Charles I. that stands between the Strand and the Admiralty Arch will have to be moved as a result of the bill that is to be introduced into Parliament for widening the approach to the Mall.

There are many who will regret this, for it is not merely the finest equestrian statue in London; for generations it has been the rallying ground for those who still cherish a fondness for "lost causes and forsaken beliefs and impossible loyalties."

Every fifteenth of January it is green with garlands—the votive offerings of enthusiasts who have not forgotten to reverence the memory of the "White King."

Poets have sung its praises. Three hundred years ago Edmund Waller, who contrived by turns to be both royalist and republican, wrote:—

Heaven this lasting monument hath wrought
That mortals may eternally be taught
Rebellion, though successful, is but vain,
And kings, so killed, rise conquerors again.

And another and more modern poet, Lionel Johnson, has expressed the theme of a new almost outmoded loyalty in stronger strains:—

Alone he rides, alone,
The fair and fatal King:
Dark night is all alone,
That strange and silent thing.

Which are most full of fate,
The stars, or those sad eyes?
Which are more still and great,
Those brows or the dark skies?

Armored he rides, his head
Bare to the stars of doom;
He triumphs now, the dead
Beholding London's gloom.

The monument has had an interesting history. It was cast in 1636, but before it could be erected the civil war had broken out. It was then disposed of as "scrap" to a brasier of the name of Rivet. For many years Rivet drove a thriving trade in "relics" from the statue, and the number of knives and forks with bronze handles which he pretended were manufactured from the effigy ware legion. Rivet, however, was a good man of business and all the while the statue remained intact in his back garden in Holborn. After the Restoration it reappeared, to the surprise of many, and in 1674 was set up on the site of the old Charing Cross, where it has since remained.

Are They?

Judge:—She—Are they happy together?
He—Well, he stays in every evening.
She—Then they must be.
He—But she goes out.

Shunting Him Off.

LIBERAL PARTY HAS SUPPORTED BREWERY

[SPECIAL DISPATCH.]
LONDON, DEC. 13.

THERE is heartburning in Liberal circles in Yorkshire over the discovery that the party has been running a brewery. It wouldn't have been so bad if the brewery had been successful, but it wasn't, and has now turned from liquids to liquidation. That is how the affair has come to public notice.

The stock for the brewery was originally subscribed by the federated Liberal clubs of Yorkshire. Not only did they supply the capital, but it is said that they also supplied the beer custom. The Liberal patronage was solid, but not large enough for a time it prospered. Then came a change of fortune and finally bankruptcy.

STAR OF BETHLEHEM A COMET, SHE SAYS

American Woman in London Revives Theory That Magi Followed a Wanderer.

[SPECIAL DISPATCH.]
LONDON, [illegible]

A THEORY of what the Star of Bethlehem really was, was advanced by Mrs. John Hartman Wells-Harper [illegible], a prominent member of the American circle in London and representative at large of the [illegible] Peace Women [illegible] delivered by her [illegible] city of London.

Taking the [illegible] perfectly [illegible] stantially correct, Mrs. Hartman [illegible] with the theories already [illegible] ward and showed they all fell short of the facts as recorded. Instead [illegible] the story of St. Matthew, Mrs. [illegible] showed that the Magi had been [illegible] a star to appear, that this [illegible] followed a prescribed course, that it [illegible] for a long time, and argued that it must have been a comet which [illegible] of the East saw and followed.

A comet is the only celestial body [illegible] fulfils every particular as recorded [illegible] this theory was subscribed to [illegible] Mellerton, a well-known Man [illegible] astronomer, [illegible] of a new star were discovered he would accept the theory of a comet.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

HER FIRST CASE

"I shall sleep an hour. Draw the shades, and leave some drinking water beside me, and do get out for a walk. You've been losing your rosy cheeks the last week, and I only chose you from all the other girls on account of them — and your smile. That's better. Run along now."

Miss Livingston waved her nurse away, crossly. She was glad to go, too. Hour after hour shut in the hotel suit with her elderly patient, did not add sunshine to Nan Gleason's life, any more than it helped the colour to stay in her cheeks.

She slipped her long blue cloak around her and went out without the bonnet. Somehow, she had not got used to the nurse's bonnet yet. It was only eight weeks since she had left the hospital.

Nearly all of her class were younger women. She was 20. They had asked her, these girls of 21 and 24, why she had taken up nursing so late. And she had told the truth, how there were six younger children, and she had stayed at home, helping her mother to bring them up. Ever since she could remember, there had been a new baby every few years for her to care for and trundle around.

Then at last they had grown up, old enough to care for themselves, and when the last, Teddie, their baby, went into high school, Nan had calmly announced her plans to the family and entered the big grey stone City Hospital for her training.

She had enjoyed the entire course, too, especially as she went forward, and was chosen at some of the major operations for her steady hand and quick responsiveness. That was how she came to meet Hal Thurber.

There had been a motor accident. It was late at night, and they had rushed the injured to the operating room. Little Kate Claxton had roused her. There were six other nurses in the ante-room when she stepped out of the elevator, and they were just carrying one of the men by on a stretcher. She had never forgotten his face as he lay there unconscious, his dark, curly hair damp with perspiration, his face a curious ivory colour from the mingling of tan and pallor.

When the surgeon chose her for his case, she felt her first throb of anxiety. The scent of the ether made her faint as she watched them hold the cone over his face, but from habit she moved about, obeying orders until the thing was done.

Afterwards she had been assigned to nurse him, but it had only been for two days. His mother had arrived from Washington with special nurses, money, everything. After a week his case was only a memory at the big City Hospital, but to Nan it was the one thing that stood out in her mind from her three years there.

She had never had a love romance in her life. There had not been time. Two of her younger sisters had come to her first with their shy, sweet stories of first love, and she had helped to make their wedding outfits. And that night, after they had left her with him, Thurber had come out of the anaesthetic restless, dreamy, dazed with pain and shock, and calling for someone over and over again, so pleadingly in his deep-toned, rich voice, that it had made Her thrill just to hear him.

Nobody knew, not even himself, how she knelt beside him and held his poor, aching head on her shoulder, talking to him softly, soothing back his hair with her cool fingers, hushinghim until he was quiet and drowsy, even letting him kiss her.

The next day he had been himself, with no memory at all of his delirium, no suspicion that the quiet, calm-faced nurse at his bedside had gained her first knowledge of what love can give from his ravings the night before. She had been left alone with him for a minute or two just before he went away. He was carried down on the stretcher, still helpless and in pain, but he had smiled up at her with a touch of his half-reckless challenge at the cuff fate had dealt him.

"Good-bye, nurse," he said. "Pleasant dreams."

The colour had risen to her face, and just for an instant their eyes met, she wondering what hidden meaning his words held, he with the provocative mischief in his smile and gaze. They they had taken him away.

That had been all, yet it remained the one splendid bit of romance in her whole life. She knew she could never give to another man all of her love, not with the memory of that night, with his words in her ears, his hands reaching out for her, holding her fast and close to him.

The week before her leaving the hospital, the head surgeon had sent for her to take a chronic case, as he said, a bit dryly.

"It is the rich Miss Livingston. She thinks she has various ailments, and always carried a trained nurse as part of her entourage. Her last one gave out. Nervous prostration. Went home to Canada. She is very irritable, very excitable, and is going to California and later on to the islands, I understand. If you care to take the case I can get it for you."

"I'll go," said Nan, eagerly. It had sounded like heaven then. No operations, no horrors for a while, nothing but a cross old woman to cater to. She had managed well with her. Her fussing and unceasing ordering around had been almost a comic relief from the suppression of the hospital life. The long overland trip west was delightful, and she found that the old lady began to take a certain grim pleasure in watching her nurse enjoy the sights that she never even saw.

"Tell me what you're looking at," she would say, closing her own eyes, and Nan would sit by the car window describing everything she saw that appealed to her.

"You've got ideas and sense of beauty, too," said Miss Livingston tersely, "and you're the first nurse I ever had that was a human being. You can go on to the islands with me, if you like."

They were in Los Angeles now, at a wonderful hotel set in a great garden of palms and roses, with the sea breaking on the shore below. Nan cut across the green lawns down to the path along the shore. It was nearly 11. She would have a full hour to walk and rest before luncheon. Miss Livingston expected her lawyer at noon. She was for ever changing her will as her temper changed towards a host of relatives. Before sailing for Hawaii she had decided to make a new will and cut off a reprehensible niece who had eloped with a chauffeur recently.

It was all part of the new comedy of life to Nan. She hoped with all her heart the little niece would be happy. And even while she hurried along the path she thought of her and of how Miss Livingston had probably never known a real throb of love in all her pinched, starved, luxurious life, so how could she sympathise with one who threw away even a chance at a fortune for its precious gifts? She would leave most of her money now to a nephew who had been somewhat of a scapegrace, she told Nan, and had been shut out of her favour for some time.

An automobile rolled up the broad drive under the palms. Nan glanced towards it and stopped dead short. The machine stopped also, and Hal Thurber sprang out, hat off, hand outstretched to her.

"Do you remember me, nurse?"

Remember him! She could feel the hot colour mount to her cheeks as he held her hands close in his. The car went on without him. In the wonder of the moment Nan did not even realize that he intended staying with her, walking with her, until she found they had gone far along the shore, and it was noon. He had told her so much of himself and of how the accident had jolted him out of a careless, happy-go-lucky sort of existence.

"But I must hurry back now," said Nan. "I am nurse to a Miss Livingston—"

"I know, of course. My aunt," said Hal.

"Your aunt? Oh, dear!"

"Why"

"Because—" she hesitated. "Because I hate to have you get her money when the little runaway bride needs it."

"Do you?" he smiled down at her. "Then I tell you what to do. Aunt always cuts us off when we marry against her wishes. I never amounted to anything in my life until you wakened me out of a dream of inferno with your dear arms around me"—

"You were delirious," said Nan, trying to keep her voice steady. Her chin was held high, her eyes met his fearlessly.

"I was not, pardon me, but I know. And you kissed me. Aunt has been writing to me for several weeks, and telling me of her delightful new nurse, Nan Gleason. Don't you suppose I found out your name before you left? Don't you suppose I made old Carruthers, the head surgeon, send you out here with Aunt Lydia? I brought my mother with me also, to make peace for me. She has gone up now to talk to aunt about us. When the lawyer gets there she needn't change the will a bit, simply leave it as it is, and let the poor little cousin get it."

"But, Mr. Thurber," Nan faltered, trying to draw away her hands, "I don't see why you did all this—"

"Don't you, Nan? Look at me. Did you forget me? Did you?"

She shook her head without meeting his eyes.

He lifted both her hands to his lips. "Dear, I can't kiss you here on the beach, but you will please consider yourself kissed, and my promised wife."

"And I took a three-year course just for one case," Nan said later, when they strolled back to the hotel.

"Two," he corrected. "Aunt is better, but I am the chronic one."

HER LITTLE SON WAS DYING

Gave Him "Fruit-a-tives" And Saved His Life.

CAMPBELLVILLE, ONT., May 5th, 1913.

"Our little boy, Lawrence, was sorely affected with Chronic Indigestion, and the doctor did not think he would recover. He started with a sore mouth and it developed into this other trouble. Everything he ate just passed right through the system without change. He cried incessantly and life was a misery to him. My husband had been using "Fruit-a-tives" for Indigestion, getting much benefit from them, and I thought what did him good, might help our boy. We tried "Fruit-a-tives" giving Lawrence ¼ a tablet at a dose, and the result was marvellous. Today, he is the picture of health, and he is perfectly well".

MODEST ED. PLANK IS REAL GENTLEMAN.

Ed. Plank, the Athletic's great pitcher, is one of the really few modest men who have gained great fame on the baseball field. Those who saw the world's series game in New York know how Christie Mathewson was always the last man on the field, walking alone while the fans shook the stands with their cheers. Such a performance as that is so foreign to the nature of Eddie Plank that his doing anything of the kind is simply inconceivable. When the last game of the world's series was over in New York, Plank did not go back to Philadelphia on the same train with the Athletics, because he was afraid the crowd would embarrass him with their praise.

In short, a man of Plank's type and characteristics is the greatest asset a baseball club can have. He plays the game; he leads a clean life, and every hour of the twenty-four he is a true example of what a man and a gentleman should be. He neither drinks, smokes, chews, nor swears.

LABORITES VICTORIOUS.

New South Wales Elections Show Defeat For Liberals.

LONDON, Dec. 15.—(U. A. P. Cable.)—The latest news regarding the New South Wales general election foreshadows a complete victory for the Labor party, which has now 48 seats against 36 for the Liberals, with one Independent. Five out of seven of the metropolitan centres on the second ballot have gone Labor.

The local option poll has resulted in majorities in favor of a reduction of licenses in sixteen constituencies. There is an absolute majority, but not the statutory three-fifth majority, in favor of prohibition in ten constituencies.

As a result of the visit of the American commissioners, the Governments of the Commonwealth, New South Wales, Victoria, South Australia, Queensland and Tasmania have definitely agreed to be represented at the Panama Exhibition at San Francisco. It is probable that the total financial grants will amount to £120,000. New Zealand has agreed to be represented, and will make a grant of from £25,000 to £40,000.

REBELS DRIVEN OFF.

Tampico Is Temporarily Relieved From Being Captured.

MEXICO CITY, Dec. 15.—The rebels have failed in their attack on Tampico and have withdrawn some distance from the city.

Unofficial messages reaching here yesterday fully corroborate the War Office report of the rebel defeat Saturday as a result of a heavy and sustained bombardment by two federal gunboats and federal field artillery. They do not, however, bear out the idea of a rout.

Holding possession of the railroad yards throughout the battle, the rebels, when they were driven off, remained sufficiently cool in the face of the furious fire, to take away with them every locomotive and most of the rolling stock.

According to the federal report eight hundred rebels were killed before they could get out of range, and this would mean many other hundreds wounded and probably left behind.

It is regarded here as probable that the relief of Tampico is only temporary, and that before many days the rebels will resume the attack in greater numbers, although the three days' battle has materially cut down their supply of ammunition. This may delay operations for a time.

Reports reaching here do not indicate that the property loss as a result of the fighting has been large.

Shrapnel from the rebel guns burst over the outskirts of the town and stray shots killed and wounded civilians. Bodies could be seen hanging from telegraph poles. The situation became so dangerous to non-combatants that U. S. Rear Admiral Fletcher decided to send the foreign refugees to the battleship lying off La Barra, five miles from the fighting zone.

To Expend Imperial Trade.

OTTAWA, Dec. 15.—Two or three Canadian trade commissionerships are vacant, but these will not be filled. In the opinion of the Trade and Commerce Department the expense is not warranted in view of the fact that the services of the British consulates in these places can be requisitioned.

It is the purpose of the Department to utilize the British consular service more and more towards developing Canadian interests and Canadian trade in remote portions of the Empire

Making it a Twenty-Five Thousand Dollar a Year Job. — The Ontario Hydro Electric Commission, which set the pace for the other Provinces in the development of electrical energy, has up to date been working without salary. The other day, in Toronto, the Ontario Municipal Electric Association debated the question of granting $25,000 for salaries for commissioners. The main argument presented by those in favour was that the enterprise had emerged from the experimental stage to a sound, profitable business. The Mayor of London declared that the Hydro had saved that City alone $200,000 in one year. Mayor Bradburn was elected a member of the Executive at this meeting.

German Parliament Adjourns.

BERLIN, Dec. 15. — Recess was taken in the German Imperial Parliament until Jan. 13. In the confession attending the suspension of the sitting, Speaker Kaepoff declared that the bill asking for an appropriation of $500,000 to be used in arranging for German representation at the Panama-Pacific Exposition at San Francisco, had been withdrawn.

Later, however, it was announced that the Speaker's declaration was an error. The appropriation bill still awaits the decision of the members of Parliament and will come up for discussion again when the House reopens next year.

Home Rule Candidate Defeated By Split In Party Vote.

GLASGOW, Scotland, Dec. 15.—The Unionist candidate won the bye-election Friday for the South Lanarkshire seat in Parliament, left vacant by the death of Sir Walter Menzies, a Liberal home ruler.

The figures were: Hon. W. Watson (Unionist), 4,257; G. Morton (Lib.), 4,000; Mr. Gibb (Labor), 1,670.

The number of registered voters in the constituency was 10,935, and of these 9,927 went to the polls.

This was the first time in the history of the constituency that a three-cornered contest had taken place, and the Liberals claim the result to be an endorsement of the Government's Irish policy, as the Liberal and Labor candidates are both home rulers, and together polled 1,423 votes more than the Unionist.

At the last previous election the poll was: Sir Walter Menzies (Lib.), 5,160; Dr. C. M. Douglas (Unionist), 3,963.

Grain-Laden Boat Released.

ALPENA, Mich., Dec. 15.—After working steadily for 96 hours, wreckers succeeded in releasing the steamer I. W. Nicholas of Cleveland, and she was towed into this port yesterday. The Nicholas, bound from Port Arthur to Duluth, with 175,000 bushels of flax, went hard aground off North Point in Lake Huron, on the night of Nov. 26. It was necessary to lighter part of her cargo before she could be leased. The diver who examined the vessel said she was almost broken apart.

Some Can And Some Cannot

Drink Tea and Coffee Without Dangerous Results—

But if you intend to win out in life you will need a clearer head and steadier nerves than the tea or coffee drinker usually has.

Tea and Coffee contain caffeine, a subtle, poisonous drug, and the use of either as a daily routine beverage causes more or less disturbance of nerves, heart, stomach, liver or some other organ. This may not show for a time, but the drug, caffeine (from 1½ to 3 grains to the cup) is a cumulative poison and, for most persons, a day of reckoning will surely come.

But why wait until Nature drives home her arguments against tea and coffee? Try this easy test—quit tea and coffee 10 days and try POSTUM.

After a few days the habit-forming drug, caffeine, will be eliminated from the system, and the gradual return to old-time comfort will be the best evidence that tea and coffee were "getting you."

There's no headache or pains of any kind in Postum. It is a pure food-drink, made only of choice wheat and a little New Orleans molasses, and is absolutely free from caffeine or any other drug.

Postum now comes in two forms.

Regular Postum—must be well boiled to bring out its delicious flavour and food value.

Instant Postum—(the new form) is a soluble powder. A spoonful stirred in a cup of hot water, with sugar and cream added, makes a perfect cup, instantly.

The person who has to bother with aches and pains from tea and coffee is badly handicapped, but it's easy to shift to

POSTUM

And the change works wonders—

TO GROW HAIR ON A BALD HEAD

BY A SPECIALIST.

Thousands of people suffer from baldness and falling hair who, having tried nearly every advertised hair tonic and hair-grower without results, have resigned themselves to baldness and its attendant discomfort. Yet their case is not hopeless; the following simple home prescription has made hair grow after years of baldness, and is also unequalled for restoring grey hair to its original colour, stopping hair from falling out, and destroying the dandruff germ. It will not make their hair greasy, and can be put up by any druggist: Bay Rum, 6 ounces; Lavona de Compesse, 2 ounces; Menthol Crystals, one-half drachm. If you wish it perfumed, add 1 drachm of your favourite perfume. This preparation is highly recommended by physicians and specialists, and is absolutely harmless, as it contains none of the poisonous wood alcohol so frequently found in hair tonics.

ORDER IS REPEATED.

Christmas Charity Stamps Must Be on Backs Of Letters.

OTTAWA, Dec. 15.—Another bulletin has been issued by the Postoffice Department advising the public that "Christmas or 'charity' stamps must not be placed on the face of letters or other mail matter, as postmasters are under strict instructions to send all letters having Christmas stamps or any other stamps than postage stamps on the face to the Dead Letter Office for return to the senders. The postoffice has no option in this, as other countries refuse to receive letters with stamps on the face other than postage stamps, and the first duty of the postoffice is to the man who sends the letters and pays postage thereon, and anything that is likely to lead to confusion or delay must, as a matter of good faith, be prohibited."

Gray Hair Becomes Dark, Thick, Glossy

Try Grandmother's Old Favourite Recipe of Sage Tea and Sulphur

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural colour and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or grey; also ends dandruff, itching scalp and stops falling hair. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is musty and troublesome.

Nowadays we simply ask at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy." You will get a large bottle for about 50 cents. Everybody uses this old, famous recipe, because no one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the grey hair disappears and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, thick and glossy and you look years younger.

Train Hit Automobile.

MONTREAL, Dec. 15. — William McIntosh, an automobile machinist, was killed and two other occupants of a borrowed machine which he was driving Saturday night narrowly escaped serious injury when the car was driven through the Charlevoix street crossing gates and struck by a Delaware and Hudson passenger train traveling at a high speed.

McIntosh's companions jumped in time to save themselves and then disappeared, so that the cause of the accident will remain a mystery until they are located. McIntosh died in the General Hospital without regaining consciousness.

ACTION TO RECOVER THE SUM OF ONE HUNDRED AND FIFTY DOLLARS

Commenced in the County Court This Morning—Case Arises Out of an Exchange of Farm Property

STATEMENT OF CASE

The General Sessions of the Peace and County Court resumed this morning, with his Honour Judge Huycke presiding. The first case called was that of Heard vs. Touchburn. Mr. E. L. Goodwill is acting for the plaintiff and Mr. D. O'Connell for the defendant.

The case involves an action instituted by Richard C. Heard, a local implement dealer, against Robert Touchburn, a farmer residing in Bridgenorth, for the recovery of $150, under a covenant contained in an agreement entered into between the plaintiff and defendant, on March 20th, 1913:

Property Changed Hands.

Early in the year of 1912 the plaintiff was the owner of certain property in Bridgenorth, which he valued at $1,200, and the defendant was living on his farm in the Township of Emily, which was valued at $4,500, and upon which there existed a mortgage for $3000, held by one William Robinson.

The plaintiff and the defendant had each listed their respective properties for sale with Mr. Archie Beavis and Mr. Beavis was endeavouring to bring about an exchange of the plaintiff's and defendant's properties.

Early in the month of February, 1913, it is said that Mr. Beavis, on three different occasions, brought, or had the defendant come to the plaintiff's residence at Bridgenorth for the purpose of trying to effect an exchange. Finally an agreement was arrived at. This agreement provided for the exchange of the properties, and Mr. Heard to assume the mortgage of $3000 on the Emily property, and Mr. Touchburn to pay Mr. Heard $150. The plaintiff alleges that this $150 was for "boot" on the difference in value between the two properties, and which was subsequently paid by the defendant to the plaintiff by a promissory note.

Denied by Plaintiff.

It is claimed by the defendant that the aforesaid mentioned agreement was not reduced to writing and does not represent the whole bargain as true agreement, which is denied by the plaintiff.

It was agreed between the parties that they would meet at Bennet and Goodwill's office on the 20th of the same month for the purpose of closing out the transaction. On that date the parties met at the place stated, but as certain matters of title had not been adjusted the deeds were executed and matters placed in shape for closing out the transaction as soon as the title was satisfactory.

The plaintiff alleges that new matters were then discussed between the plaintiff and defendant and that the defendant stated that he wished to retain possession of his farm until the following fall and to retain his crop, and that this was definitely agreed to between the parties on the condition that the defendant would pay the taxes and interest on the Robinson mortgage until the 1st day of March, 1913. This agreement was reduced to writing and executed by the parties.

Early in the month of March, Mr. Beavis called on Mr. Touchburn in the Township of Emily for commission, and for the $150 "boot money" which was to be paid by promissory note, but the defendant says he refused to sign the notes until he received his deed. Mr. Beavis then drew up the notes and left them with the defendant on the understanding that the defendant would sign the notes and send them to Mr. Beavis as soon as he received the deed.

On or about the 13th or 14th of March, 1913, the defendant having received his deed from Bennet and Goodwill, signed and mailed the promissory notes for the $150 and the commission to Mr. Beavis, which notes he subsequently paid.

Retained Possession.

The plaintiff and defendant each retained possession of their respective properties until the fall of that year and each performed the road work, paid their taxes and received the benefit of their farm products.

On or about the month of January, 1913, the plaintiff sold the Emily farm to Mrs. Mann, wife of E. H. Mann, of Peterborough, subject to said mortgage of $3,000.00 and he undertook to protect the purchaser against the interest on the Robinson mortgage to 1st day of March, 1913.

In the month of March, 1913, the interest on the Robinson mortgage not having been paid, the plaintiff at different times called up the defendant by telephone and requested him to pay the same, and on or about the 27th day of March had his solicitors, Bennet and Goodwill, write to defendant demanding payment.

On or about the 8th day of April, 1913, a demand for payment was made on the palintiff by E. H. Mann, who advised the plaintiff that Robinson was threatening a foreclosure and that Mann was placing the matter in the hands of his solicitor. The plaintiff thereupon notified the defendant, and not receiving any satisfaction, went to Omemee on the 19th day of April and paid the interest to William Robinson, amounting to the sum of $150.84.

The plaintiff then entered action against the defendant for the recovery of the said money, together with the further sum of $5.15 for damages and expenses sustained by him.

Claim For Defence.

The defence claim that the agreement at Bridgenorth did not contain the whole agreement; also the acre in Peterborough. By way of a counter claim they are asking the court to reform the agreement. The defence also claim that the $150 paid was in full settlement of the plaintiff's claim.

PETERBOROUGH'S TAX RATE PER HEAD OF POPULATION IS THIRD LOWEST OF ONTARIO CITIES

That the rate of taxes per head of population in Peterborough is the third lowest of all the towns and cities in Ontario, is shown in a report of the Ontario Bureau of Industries just received. Since last year, Peterborough has dropped to an even rate with Kingston, whereas in 1912 Kingston had a lower rate than this City.

The report shows that the amount of taxes levied for municipal purposes in the cities of the larger towns was as follows:

MR. G. N. BAKER,

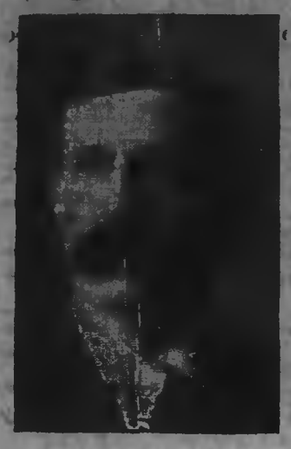
Superintendent of the Lundy Shovel and Tool Company, who leaves for Chicago to-morrow, where he will accept a similar position with a manufacturing concern.

Mr. G. N. Baker, superintendent of the Lundy Shovel and Tool Company, leaves to-morrow for Chicago, where he has accepted a similar position with a large manufacturing concern. What is Chicago's gain is Peterborough's loss.

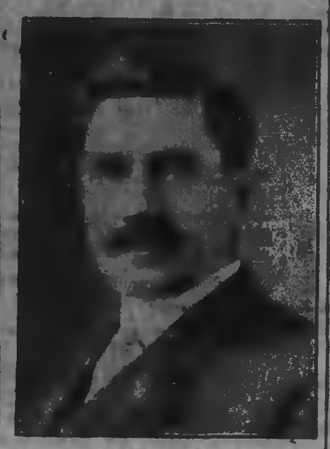
Mr. Baker during his two years' residence in this city has engendered the respect and esteem of the community, in which he moved. His activities were numerous, and were productive of results that will endure. Mr. Baker was president of all the Young People's societies of the District, and for some months, has guided the destiny of the Epworth League of St. James' Church. He was a member of the executive committee of the Canadian Club, and was associated with the Directorate of the Young Men's Christian Association.

To Mr. Baker also belongs the credit of instituting a movement among the Young People's societies of the city, to provide the inmates of the Protestant Home, with a piano. After several weeks of active work on the part of Mr. Baker and his associates, an instrument was secured and formally dedicated to work for which it is intended. Mr. Baker is also a member of two fraternal organizations.

THE MAYORALTY CANDIDATES



ALD. WM. BULLER



ALD. GEO. A. GILLESPIE

The two members of the City Council who are going before the people for the occupancy of the Mayor's chair, have had extensive experience in civic business. The following is a brief review of their respective careers:

Of the members composing the present Council Alderman Buller has probably seen the longest continuous service. He was first elected in 1906, and since that year has served without a break. With this schooling in municipal work he is now in the mayoralty struggle. He was elected alderman for four years under the general system of the whole city's vote, and for the past four years he has been a representative of the South Ward. He was chairman of the Fire, Water and Light Committee during the second year of the organization of the paid brigade, and gave a good account of himself at a time when Chief Howard's force was meeting with considerable friction.

During the past two years he has been chairman of the Board of Works, the principal spending department of the Council. His work on this committee speaks for itself. A great deal of his time was demanded in attending to the duties connected with civic works in the form of sidewalks, sewers, drains and other improvements.

Alderman Buller has been a member of the Charity Board since its organization, as the representative of All Saints' Church.

He was born in Peterborough 52 years ago, and is widely known among the citizens. In his youth private schools were in vogue, one of which he attended paying a weekly sum of ten cents for tuition. The growth of the public school system in this city affords an example of the general development which he has witnessed in Peterborough.

For years he was engaged in the cartage business. About ten years ago he was a prime mover in the organization of the Peterborough Fuel and Cartage Company which was practically an enlargement of the cartage business which he had built up. The present wood and coal yards on either side of Aylmer street, north of Townsend street, illustrates the growth of this business in which Alderman Buller has been the guiding spirit.

In presenting himself to the people as a candidate for the mayoralty, Ald. Gillespie can point to five years' work as an alderman. Two years ago he was elected as a representative of the centre ward. During the previous year he was not a member of the Council for the reason that he did not stand for election. But for three years prior to this breathing spell he was on the aldermanic board, having been elected under the old system that preceded the appointment of ward representatives.

During the greater part of his aldermanic experience he has been entrusted with committee chairmanships, fulfilling the duties connected therewith in a quiet but efficient manner. For two years and a half he was chairman of the Manufacturers' and Power committee, and for the past year and a half he has been at the head of the Fire, Water and Light committee. There has been no turmoil around the Fire Department while Ald. Gillespie has been chairman of the committee, and if you asked him about it he would probably disclaim any credit for the smooth working of Chief Howard's brigade. The chairman apparently works on the principle that the responsibility of the Fire Hall falls upon the Chief and while the department is doing good work, it is better to oil the wheels rather than put brakes on them by interfering with minor details that are essentially duties for the Chief.

Ald. Gillespie was born in Otonabee in the vicinity of Villiers, being one of the legion of farmers who have made good in the City. He gave up his time to the cheese industry and for five years was in chargeof of the Central Smith Dairy Company's plant. Eleven years ago he moved to Peterborough, forming a grocery partnership with Mr. Porter S. White. Four years ago he opened up his own business on Simcoe Street and has been steadily developing in this and other directions.

He has retained his interest in the dairy industry. For 11 years he has been a churn buyer for Hodgson & Rowson of Montreal and is probably the heaviest purchaser on the Peterborough and Lindsay Cheese Boards. For five years he has been a director of the Eastern Ontario Dairymen's Association and was elected President last year. Ald. Gillespie holds a high place among the cheese experts of the Dominion.

He is owner of the Peterborough creamery in the establishment of which he was strongly influenced by the desire to provide in this City a milk supply which he could guarantee as being absolutely pure.

Ald. Gillespie is the first candidate from the east ward for the mayoralty.

STIFF SENTENCES GIVEN HOLLAND AND KILLENBECK

Former Goes to Central Prison for Two Years, While Latter Will Spend Three Years in Kingston Penitentiary.

ON A CHARGE OF THEFT

Lavergne Killingbeck and Percy Holland, the two local youths who were tried on Saturday, charged with stealing $15 from Wilfred Ireland, while he was drunk, were found guilty of theft in this morning's police court and were meted out stiff sentences by Magistrate Dumble. The prosecution of the case was conducted by Mr. G. N. Gordon, in the absence of Crown Attorney Wood.

Percy Holland, the younger of the two, was sentenced to two years, less one day, in Central Prison. Holland has only been out of that institution a little over a month, having served a six months' sentence for vagrancy. Lavergne Killingbeck, the other young man found guilty of theft, was sentenced to three years in Kingston penitentiary.

The two men convicted here have damaging police court records, as both Holland and Killingbeck have been convicted on a number of charges of house-breaking, theft, etc., and both have "done time" for their various offences.

The heavy sentences imposed took the prisoners by surprise. Killingbeck, after a few seconds of surprise, took it gamely enough, but Holland practically collapsed in the prisoner's box when the Magistrate announced his decision.

Holland's mother, who was waiting anxiously outside the court room, appeared heart broken over the whole thing. She wept bitterly over the unfortunate circumstances her son now finds himself in, and waited about the police station to see him after he came from the court room.

The offence for which the young men will spend the next few years in prison was that of robbing Wilfred Ireland of $15.

Ireland's story in the witness box, was that he was in a local Hunter Street hotel, and left it in company with Holland and Killingbeck. Holland walked behind, while Killingbeck took his (witness') arm. Ireland felt a hand in his trouser's pocket, and putting his own in, found that $15 was stolen.

The young men were arrested a few minutes afterward, and $6.75 was found on Killingbeck, who tried to conceal it at the approach of the policeman. $8.00 was found on Holland, who was caught trying to pass it to Killingbeck, whom he thought, had already been searched.

A local blacklister was charged with being found under the influence of liquor while on the blacklist. He pleaded guilty and was fined $10.

Mr. G. L. Stevens was fined $5 for driving his automobile without the necessary lights.

Wm. Hampton was fined $2 for being drunk. He was given 10 days to pay it. Hampton has been selling a patent device for opening jars, in this City for the past several weeks.

PRINCIPAL GORDON AT KNOX CHURCH

Large Congregations Attend Anniversary Services—The Evening Service

We as a people are as witnesses called upon to give testimony in confirmation of our faith in the living God.

We cannot define life; the life that is slumbering in the fields and forests, what it does is made manifest by illustration and practical trust in God.

The above excerpts from an inspiring sermon that was delivered by Principal Gordon, D. D., of Queen's University, at Knox Presbyterian Church on Sunday evening.

It is seven years since Knox Church was dedicated to the service of God. The success and expansion which has marked its career is a striking attestation of the able executive which has guided its destiny.

It was eminently fitting that Sunday, the anniversary day, should be distinguished by the presence of one, who has held the highest office that the Presbyterian Church in Canada can bestow. Principal Gordon has been pastor of some of the most prominent churches in the Dominion. As a preacher he is eloquent and impressive. His delivery is forceful and dignified.

The basis of Principal Gordon's remarks on Sunday evening were taken from the first epistle of Paul to the Hebrew's, 12: 1, "Wherefore, seeing we also are compassed about with so great a cloud of witnesses, let us lay aside every weight, and the sin which doth so easily beset us, and let us ran with patience the race that is set before us."

"It is a glorious expression," said Principal Gordon in referring to the text. The inspiring thought that underlies it, is that we are compassed by witnesses, witnesses who stand ready to give testimony regarding their faith and trust in God. It gives us a richer and fuller vision of the living God in whom we put our trust."

"You cannot define electricity; but you know what it will do. When we find it driving our machinery and carry our messages through miles of space, we gather a better knowledge of it than a definition would afford. You cannot define life; the life that is slumbering in the fields and forestry. It is made manifest by illustration and practical example, so it is with our faith and trust in God.

God's power as it is revealed in these scriptural illustrations, is obtainable in proportion to the demand. As we open the shutters so that the sunlight might penetrate our homes, so also must we open the shutters of our soul ,to facilitate the entry of the Divine power. The great biographies, said the speaker, bear silent testimony to the power of faith. They tell us of the influences that guided the footsteps of those whose lives they reveal. The great forces that mean victory over the world and the devil, and the participation in the communion with things spiritual.

The collections for the day totalled $015.25. This will be devoted to the Building Fund.

HAS 200 TURKEYS FOR CHRISTMAS DEMAND

Mr. G. Thompson Collects a Fine Flock for the Coming Holiday Business.

Mr. Gilbert Thompson, Aylmer street, has two hundred turkeys in his barn on the Otonabee side of the river below the locks. The buildings were formerly used by Mr. H. P. Kennedy and included slaughter house, pens, stables, lofts, etc. The birds are destined for Christmas tables, and are receiving a few finishing touches in the feed line. They are all fine specimens of turkeys and have been gathered from the surrounding townships. This morning several Enniskmore men brought in forty beauties. Some of the lot may be sold in Peterborough, but it is likely that the majority will go to Toronto. The handling of poultry is but a side issue of a big business that Mr. Thompson has built up. His principle activities include buying and shipping cattle and hogs, wholesale meat selling in Peterborough and kindred lines.

SPLENDID SINGER —AT— ROYAL THEATRE

The great Scotch tenor, who made a big hit at the Royal Theatre last week, will appear her for three more days. Everyone that heard him will be pleased. Another special in vaudeville and features in motion picture made up a fine bill. Come early to secure seats.

NOVEL OFFERING FROM ZACKS BROS.

Special Sale of Hosiery on Cards for To-morrow

The tremendous stock reducing sale at Zacks Bros., George street, has been a grand success, the store being daily crowded with shoppers who find the combination of superior goods with low prices an irresistible attraction. The firm is offering a novel special to-morrow, when there will be a special sale of ladies' and gentlemen's hosiery. One hundred pairs, fifty of each kind, which formerly sold at 35c will be placed on sale at 4 o'clock at 25c. These stockings will be wrapped up in parcels and in five of these parcels will be placed a credit note for $1.00. The lucky purchaser of a parcel containing a credit note may exchange it at the office for $1.00 in cash if he or she desires it. The firm's advertisement in to-day's Examiner will give the details of this special offering.

It has been decided to extend the sale seven days in order that the big stock may be entirely cleared out to make room for the big alterations that are planned. The prices have been slashed to pieces throughout the store. To-morrow's advertisement will contain a number of specials that every one should read.

CHIMNEY FIRE

At 7.30 o'clock on Saturday night a chimney fire broke out in the home of Kenneth Maelmis, 237 Lake Street. The fire brigade was called and extinguished the blaze before it had done any damage.

HANDSOME DE LAVAL 1914 CALENDARS

The De Laval Monthly says: "In former years the De Laval general calendar has usually portrayed a dairy scene or subject, but the subject of the 1914 calendar is a reproduction of a painting of a very beautiful girl by Carol Aus, and we feel sure that it will meet the approval and approbation of all."

The calendar is very handsomely lithographed in colours The large De Laval Agency calendar, size 20 by 30 inches, has now been issued regularly for three years. The 1914 calendar is the same size as the 1912 and 1913 calendars. The subject is somewhat similar, portraying an attractive girl and the latest style of De Laval machine.

This year we have been most fortunate in securing one of the finest pieces of lithographic printing we have ever seen, and we feel sure all De Laval agents will agree with us that this is by far the handsomest agency calendar they have ever issued.

COMMENTS ON NEW ZEALAND'S NAVAL POLICY

Special Cable to The Examiner.

LONDON, Dec. 15.—(Special Cable.)—The Daily Mail prints a significant statement from Hon. Arthur Meyers, the leading member of New Zealand opposition and for mer Minister of Defence, wholly endorsing the New Zealand government's decision to have her own navy. New Zealand's new departure, he declares, means a step forward, not backward, in Imperial development. New Zealand is not willing to let her defence as now, depend on a Japanese fleet. "This national sentiment in New Zealand, Australia, Canada and elsewhere is the very corner stone of national growth. You must recognise in England that the national spirit of the lands of the empire is not only inevitable but rightly directed can be made the sure basis of Imperial security and prosperity." Mr. Meyers looks forward to the time when the combined Canadian, New Zealand and Australian dominion fleets will be strong enough to meet any hostile moves such as Japan may make.

NOTICE.

Owing to the fact that the regular meeting night comes on the 25th, Division No. 1, A.O.H., will hold their regular meeting on the 16th of December. By order, C. P. Murty, President.

FARMERS TO WAIT UPON THE PREMIER

Will Ask for Abolition of Canadian Duty on Wheat, Free Agricultural Implements and Increase of Preference

INTERVIEW TO-MORROW

Special Wire to Examiner:

OTTAWA, ONT., Dec. 15.—Premier Borden will to-morrow be faced by twelve stalwart representatives of the Dominion Council of Agriculture, who will demand a revision of tariff downward in several well defined ways. The deputation, which includes representatives from the united farmers of Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba grain growers, and Ontario Grange ,arrived for the most part today and were all morning in caucus in the new Russell Hotel preparing their programme. Though in numbers the delegation does not equal the famous gathering which packed the House of Commons chamber in 1910, in determination they appear to be about equal. The deputation has three well defined demands to make: (1) The abolition of the Canadian duty on wheat and flour in order to take advantage of U.S. reciprocal offer of free trade in these commodities; (2) Free agricultural implements; (3) The increase of British preference with the ultimate intention of bringing about free trade with the Mother Country.

EARTHQUAKE CAUSED THE DEATH OF FOUR

Slight Shock Caused German Tunnel to Collapse and Train Was Buried in Debris

34 PEOPLE INJURED

Special Cable to The Examiner:

CHEMNITZ, Germany, Dec. 13.—At least four persons were killed and thirty-four other injured by the crushing of a passenger train in a neighbouring tunnel which collapsed during a slight earthquake at midnight.

The train was coming from Rossewein to Chemnitz, and while passing through the boring which pierces Harras Cliffs, eight miles out, the tunnel partly fell in, and buried the locomotive and six cars beneath the huge rocks.

STOCKINGS THAT WILL HOLD.

If the "good fellows" get together, and also the "Big Brothers," the race of Scrooges will disappear; and it shall come to pass that there will not be a poor child in this happy city that will hang up its stocking on Christmas eve and find nothing but holes in it on Christmas morning. The pity of it! when we come to think of poor children who have no stockings sound enough to hold the gifts of Santa Claus. The Big Brothers, the brothers of the Elder Brother, will see that the poor and neglected children have not only stockings that will hold something, but stockings that do hold something.

"THE SECRET OF LUCK."

"There were hard times in this country from 1893 to 1896," Sir Wilfrid went on, "but living was cheap then. Now there is no work and living is dear. So we are hit both ways—and this is prosperity. I think our friends, the enemy, will agree with me that things were not so bad three years ago. There was work in every city for every workingman — full wages and a full dinner pail. The cost of living then was high, but not abnormally high. Wages were on a par with it. During all our administration you never heard a word against the high cost of living. They say we were simply lucky. Why are they not as lucky as we were? The reason is that with us luck went hand in hand with courage to deal with problems as they arose."—Sir Wilfrid Laurier at Fielding banquet.

FEEDING OUR NEIGHBOURS.

A few days ago a steam trawler came into Hawkesbury, N.S., with 180,000 pounds of fish aboard. Other trawlers came in with equally large catches. This bountiful harvest of the Canadian waters eased the burden of high living of the Canadian consumer by not one single cent. They did not eat the fish and prices remained stationary.

Every pound of the catch went to the United States, and not one cent of duty was paid on it. The Canadian fisheries benefitted American consumers.

Had this been an American trawler, fishing in United States waters, it would have paid in the neighbourhood of $1,800 duty before the fish could reach the Canadian meal table.

That is one of the results of free food for the United States and taxation by the mouthful in Canada.

TWO BY-ELECTIONS.

There is little significance in the outcome of the two bye-elections held on Saturday, so far as an index to the real state of electoral opinion is concerned. Dr. Hanna was elected in South Lanark as the government candidate by the slender majority of 135. This is a tremendous slump from the Conservative majority of 1197 obtained by Hon. John Haggart in 1911. Both candidates were Conservative, with the difference that Dr. Hanna was the candidate of the machine, and the result is therefore a bad blow to the machine. The government, through the machine, made tremendous efforts to maintain its prestige. The riding was overrun with Ministers and private members of both Federal and Provincial governments, fighting desperately against Col. Balderson, also a Conservative and government supporter, but an enemy of the unfair methods and influences of the party machine. Mr. Hawkes, the free lance, got only 70 votes and loses his deposit. In Macdonad, Manitoba, Mr. Morrison, the Conservative candidate, was re-elected by a large majority. As in the election of 1911, the government party had the whip hand. In 1911, whiskey and violence, were the factors in his success. In the election of Saturday, the Borden government itself loaded the dice. Partisan manipulation of the voters' list made it easy for the candidate in whose interest the manipualtion was done. Public opinion, forsooth!

OFF FOR IRELAND.

Let us at once pack our "turkey" and off for Ireland. In these days of high prices let us go to the paradise where a dollar will buy something to eat. In almost any large British city we can get Canadian flour at a lower price than in Winnipeg, next door to the what fields where it is grown. We can get Canadian bacon in Manchester or Liverpool cheaper than in the shops in this country within hearing of the pig squeals.

But good old Ireland beats them all. Below is found a list of current Irish prices for the necessaries of life, taken from the leading farmers' market prices as published in the Irish Post, in the town of Cavan, County Cavan (with a total population of only 91,000) under date of November 29th:

Butter—17c lb.
Potatoes—70c bag.
Hay—$9.82 per ton.
Eggs—36c to 42c a doz.
Ducks—66c per pair.
Hens—50c a pair.
Chickens—72c to 96 per pair.
Young geese (live) — 60c to 66c each.
Prime turkeys (male)—$1.44 to $1.80 each.

Ireland owes us several thousand bushels of potatoes we sent to her, without price, in time of her famine, now let her return the kindness and send us over a few shiploads of potatoes at 70 cents per bag.

TRIFLING WITH DUTY.

Hon. T. W. Crothers, who got into Parliament on the strength of an unauthorized assurance that the Government would recoup the depositors in the Farmers' Bank, is nominally the Minister of Labour, but as far as any efficient work he does, is, rather, the "Minister of Play." On December 8th he made a speech on the high cost of living. He uttered this astonishing gem of thought:

"To my mind the high cost of living is an indication of the prosperity and expansion of the country. If you want cheap living, give us a few years of hard times."

Mr. Crothers is a blind reasoner. His new doctrine is not sound. If it were high prices for articles of living would be going down. For months past there has been a decline in trade as shown by a decrease in the customs revenue, lessening imports, due to decrease of the purchasing power of the people—one good sign of "hard times," which Mr. Crothers welcomes as a relief for the worried consumer. If scarcity of money, lack of employment, are signs of hard times, Mr. Crothers should be happy. Yet the cost of living is higher than ever and growing higher every month. But to be fair to Mr. Crothers, he should be given time. He says that "if you want cheap living give us a few years of hard times." In this regard the Government of which he is a member is doing nobly, and to give him full justice, he is doing his share by neglecting his duties as Minister of Labour and diligently attending to his duties as "Minister of Play." It was as "Minister of Play" that he with Brother Price, his partner in the law, had a joy ride across the continent to look over the Nanaimo strike situation, where they succeeded in stirring up the strikers to violence. It was as "Minister of Play" that Mr. Crothers then hurried off with Mrs. Crothers to England for a delightful trip at the country's expense, while the Nanaimo strike raged and the Militia were called out, and are still on duty to put down violence, while other ministers dealt with severe labour troubles on the I. C. R. Hon. Mr. Crothers is one of a number of Mr. Borden's colleagues in the Cabinet who are playing with the interests of the people. The next election will end his play if not that of the Government.

THE LIBERALS AND TAX REFORM

Put the Poor Man's Palace and the Rich Man's Palace on the Same Level of Taxation

Special to The Examiner:

TORONTO, Dec. 13.—Interest in Tax Reform still centres around the issues raised by the reduction in the assessment of the Pellatt castle. The incidents has taken its place with Christmas shopping and the high cost of living as one of the subjects of discussion at meal times. The Government is evidently perturbed at the feeling aroused against the discrimination in favour of the rich man against the poor, resulting from their failure to grant Tax Reform and they are making efforts to conceal the real significance of the situation.

Part of the Government press (many of the papers, by the way the very ones who, before the Government refused to give tax reform, sent in petitions in its favour), declares that the Liberals in objecting to the low assessment on the Pellatt house are guilty of inconsistency, since the tax reformers have always said they want to give municipalities the local option to exempt improvements from taxation, at least to a partial extent.

What the Liberals are objecting to, as a matter of fact, is not that the assessment on improvements should be reduced, but that the same treatment is not being meted out to the poor man and to the rich. Under the amendment to the Assessment Act, introduced by Mr. Hanna at the last sessions of the Legislature and under the regulations issued by him to the assesors, the latter are required to make just such assessments as that of the Pellatt castle. This discrimination is not a theory but a fact, and the Pellatt incident is the proof.

Under the Liberal proposals for tax reform with municipalities having the local option to reduce the assessments on improvements, for example to 75 per cent. or 50 per cent. of their value, there would be an equality of treatment for all alike, the wealthy and the less wealthy.

It is not a source of strength for a Government to be shown favouring the rich above the poor. This has happened quite dramatically in the case of the Whitney Government, and it is no wonder that they are not pleased with the turn of events.

Custom House Will Remain Open Two Hours Longer During The Holiday

Ordeal of the Gift Receiver---Customs House a Place of Inquisition--Four O'clock Limit Has Been Suspended --Large Consignment of Gifts From the Homeland.

Do you ever wonder how it feels for an innocent and sensitive person to be arraigned before a court on a charge of shop-lifting or pocket-picking, with a sea of curious facts turned towards you, and a hundred curious eyes watching for the evidences of guilt? It must be dreadful mustn't it? If you want to realize it to the full, however, make a visit to the customs branch of the post office.

Perhaps the grandmother over in the Old Country has been working long and carefully on some little gifts for the new baby. Her skilful fingers have been buried in their labour of love in the intricacies that are more familiar to the children of early Victorians than they are nowadays. by and bye comes the formal notice from the post office that there is a parcel awaiting you at the post office.

You place the card in your pocket, and at the earliest moment after your day's work, hasten to the pile at the corner of George and Charlotte streets. You climb the stairs and find the glass door at the top closed. Through it you see that the room is deserted. As a matter of fact it has been closed since 4 p.m.

Two Hours More Toil.

On Friday of last week announcement was made that the Custom House is to remain open two hours longer during the holiday season.

At the enquiry office they tell you that if you sign the card and give the customs people authority to open the parcel they will do so and will then forward the parcel to your nearest post office. Otherwise you must come from wherever in the city's wide-spread radius you live to the central office.

Feeling of Conscious Guilt.

Well. By some good fortune you find yourself at last in the neighbourhood of the office, while its portals still admit the public to the arena within that glass door, and you enter with your precious card. For some unknown reason the feeling of conscious guilt steals upon you immediately you cross the threshold. You feel that you are about to be detected in an effort to defraud the Government. You feel that that you are allied to all the race of smugglers who have been hanged and quartered in past ages. It is with a shamefaced air that you take your place in front of the counter and present the card to a young man within. The very manner in which he does not look at you indicates that you are suspected and will be unmasked.

The young man takes the card without a word and departs into a wilderness of pigeonholes, whence he returns with a parcel done up in paper that shouts from across the room that it was made in the United Kingdom. You can tell English wrapping paper just as you can tell Englishmen.

The Inquisition.

"What is it?" asks the young man, in a manner that intimates that it will be better for you if you tell "the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth." He poises his scissors over the parcel as he waits for the answer.

"Children's garments," you reply.

"Have you the invoice?" he raps back at you as he snips the string.

"No, they are home-made," you confide.

Nothing more passes till the parcel is unwrapped and the papers within turned back. It must be a sore trial to the young man, but he restrains any ejaculation of masculine delight. You feel yourself getting hot—maybe you are blushing with a sense of your coming rout—as he lifts out the four little dresses and runs his hands under the material.

"Do you think that they are home-made?" queries the young man, with a world of doubt in his voice.

"I am sure of it," you aver.

A perfect definition of scepticism is in his voice as he remarks. "She's a very good worker, isn't she?"

Everybody Interested.

Perhaps your uncomfortable warmness is due to the way those behind you press forward to get an inkling of what is going on. You feel that the eyes of the whole room are on you.

"Have you any letter about them?" queries the young man.

"No," you answer feeling in your pockets, if by chance you may be carrying about the letters of past months that have told of the progress of the little dresses.

"At least, not here," you add, feeling that in the eyes of the multitude you are trying to manufacture evidence to bolster up a flaw you have discovered in your case.

The dresses are borne off by the young man, and you see officers bending their heads over the dainty finery.

"There will be $1.20 duty," remarks the young man returning. "Our appraiser says that they are not at all over-valued, and he places them at $4.00."

No Gifts Free.

"Are not gifts free?" you ask.

"Not even wedding gifts," he asserts. "I think you are getting off very easily. There are four dresses.

"When we are sure they are gifts," he adds, and perhaps it is doing her an injustice to think that she lays any sceptical emphasis on "gifts," "we can admit them free where the duty would not exceed fifty cents."

"What are they classified as?" you ask, with a faint idea of pursuing that $1.20 duty and stabbing it in the back in the presence of the Hon. Minister of Customs.

"Clothing," he answers. "Clothing is very high—30 per cent."

It is only a matter of $1.20, but you feel deep sympathy with the smuggler who dodged the coastguards in days of old.

"Jones? Sign once, Jones," says the delivery clerk familiarly. "Pay the cashier."

A WELL KNOWN CLUSTER OF STARS

Mighty Nations Have Worshipped Them—Stars for the Week

To-day the moon, which was at full yesterday, will pass the planet Mars within less than its own diameter.

On Tuesday the moon will be four degrees north of the planet Neptune.

As shown on the star chart the planet Jupiter is still hovering on the western horison in the early evening sky. Saturn is in Taurus and Mars is toward the east in Gemini. Mars is now within about sixty-one million miles of us.

The Pleiades.

Perhaps no cluster of stars known to astronomy has excited such universal attention as the little group of faint stars we know as the "Pleiades." In all ages of the world's history they have been admired and critically observed. Great temples hav been reared in their honour. Mighty nations have worshipped them, and people far removed from each other have been guided in their agricultural and commercial affairs by the rising and setting of these six close-set stars.

In a clear sky seven of these stars may be seen with the unaided eye, though keen sighted persons may be able to count as many as fourteen. A good telescope will, however, disclose as many as six hundred, while a photograph of the cluster has revealed considerably more than two thousand stars.

This great galaxy of suns are all drifting across the heavens in the same direction. Two of them are hurrying on in advance like heralds of the host to announce their coming, and six are straggling behind as if weary of their weasless journey.

The Pleaides are at so great a distance from us that it would take light probably more than two hundred years to traverse the space.

An analysis of the light of these stars shows them to be of a similar make-up in general character resembling the bright star Sirius.

The photographic plate also shows the entire group to be shrouded in a nebulous haze. Bayard Taylor likened the Pleiades to a swarm of bees on the mane of Taurus, whilst Tennyson described the cluster as "Like a sworm of fireflies tangled in a silver braid."

Music & Drama

"FINE FEATHERS."

Eugene Walter's powerful play "Fine Feathers," was presented at the Grand at two performances on Saturday and made a most favourable impression. With a clearly defined plot, full of tense situations, "Fine Feathers" is a gripping absorbing play with the interest never flagging. It was splendidly presented by a capable cast. John J. Ivar, as Bob Reynolds, gave a memorable performance of this role. Ethel Strickland played the exacting part of the wife with a full appreciation of its emotional possibilities. Brandon Evans was effective as the business man, and John H. McKenna made a breezy reporter.

ELOQUENT SERMON ON STUDIES IN THE OLD TESTAMENT

Incidents in the Life of Elijah, Subject of an Interesting Discourse by Rev. F. J. Sawers--The Two Texts "God is a Consuming Fire" and "God is Love" Contrasted

Continuing his Sunday evening discourses on some Old Testament studies, Rev. F. J. Sawers delivered an eloquent sermon at St. Luke's, last evening, on the incident related in the 19th Chapter of the First Book of Kings, where a God revealed Himself to Elijah in Mount Horeb, not in the strong wind that rent the mountains, not in the earthquake, and not in the fire, but in the still, small voice that followed. On the Sunday previous Rev. Mr. Sawers dealt with the picture of that graphic contest on Mount Carmel between Elijah, the prophet, and the four hundred and fifty priests of Baal, and Elijah's word to God's people, who had been turned aside from the worship of Jehovah, the god, Baal, having been shown to be powerless, and the victory for Jehovah, seemingly assured, Elijah must have been mightily lifted up as a result of the great contest. But there was one strong personality that had not been reckoned with, in the person of the strong-minded, cruel, merciless Jezebel, the wife of King Ahab. The reverend speaker imparted a vivid picture of the scene of the weak Ahab in the presence of the Queen, telling her the story of the contest, of Jehovah's supremacy, of the destruction of all the gods of Baal, the wrath and threat of Jezebel, "that the man who hath done this shall surely die," followed by the hurried flight of Elijah into Beer Sheba. But he was not content there. All civilization was hateful to him. He went into the desert alone, in weariness and despair. "Take away my life," he cried "for I am no better than my fathers.

Common Experience.

Elijah's experience was not an uncommon one in life. How often one has seen a man in long continued sickness, another whose every effort seems to end in failure, longing for death to end it all. There are times in the experience of all when death would not be unwelcome. "But is such a feeling right?" the reverend speaker asked. "Can it be justified? I answer, no. It is not for us to decide when our life's journey is to be finished. Our times are in God's hands. There is work to be done. There is a real place in life for everyone of us. God's call to us is to be up and doing. God may not remove all our difficulties, but He will give us strength to bear them.

God's Revelation.

Rev. Mr. Sawers continued the story of Elijah's experiences unto his coming to Horeb, the Mount of God. Here God commanded him to go forth and stand upon the Mount before the Lord, and there followed the incidents as referred to in the words of the text. The mighy wind, the terrible thunder storm, and the earthquake, which one needs to experience to realize man's powerlessness. Then, after nature's convulsions were wished, after these awful commotions, which must have filled the heart with dread, there was a wonderful calm, a great silence and breaking the silence, a still small voice.

It was a marvellous revelation of God to Elijah. "What did it mean? Many interpretations have been given. There were many ways of explaining it. But was not this a true one? According to Elijah's idea, God was manifested especially in His avenging power, in the hatred and his fury against the wicked. There God was manifested in gentleness, not in the tempest, and earthquake, but in the still small voice. He was not alone a God of vengeance, but a God of love. He was a Father who was ocmpassionate for the failings of His erring children.

Two Points of View.

"May we not contrast these two points of view in these two texts: 'God is a consuming fire' and 'God is love.' Are not both true? They are, but Elijah emphasized the first and gave little import seemingly to the second. He needed a lesson in gentleness."

But to-day the pendulum had swung the other way. There was danger of emphasizing the second to the exclusion of the first. There was a danger of speaking of the love of God as if there were to be associated with it His justice. "As we sow, so shall we reap," and "the wages of sin is death." It was not by fear, but by love, not by compulsion, but by willingness that God desired men. Rev. F. J. Sawers concluded an eloquent appeal by quoting the gracious invitation as contained in that beautiful hymn:

"I heard the voice of Jesus say,
Come unto Me and rest."

HOMES FOR THE WORKING MEN

English Liberals Making Plans for Extensive Campaign

Special Cable to The Examiner:

LONDON, Eng., Dec. 13.—The Liberal semi-official organization, the Land and Housing Council, on Saturday completed arrangements for the launching of a great campaign for the second week of January.

Seventy speakers, including fourteen ladies, have for a fortnight been trained under the direct supervision of the Chancellor of the Exchequer for nightly meetings throughout the country.

Living wages for labour will be enforced by the Wages Board Act, a farmer recovering such extra wages from rent by an appeal to the Land Courts.

While the orators must not name a definite living wage, they suggest 21s 9d a week for a labourer with a wife and three children.

The present average of British labourers throughout the country, including allowances, is 18s.

The Ministry will, when the Act is passed, first make an exhaustive survey of existing cottage property, and will proceed, independently of the local authorities, in cottage building. It is estimated that half a million new cottages will be required.

The County Councils will be ignored, as they are mainly Tory, and have done little under the Town Planning Act, the Land Ministry working direct through independent surveyors.

RAISING MONEY FOR THE DEFENCE

Examiner Special:

LONDON, Ont., Dec. 15.—William Riley, the young Grand Trunk brakeman, who will be tried shortly for murdering George Blackburn, a local bartender, whom he shot because Blackburn refused to give him a drink, has received word to-day that the W.C.T.U. of his home town, Greenfield, Missouri, has arrangements completed to hold two pie socials, the proceeds of which will be turned over to aid his defence.

Grand Trunk men throughout the district are taking up a collection. At a meeting yesterday, the local railwaymen secured $150.

NEW CANDIDATES WERE INITIATED

St. Peter's T. A. S. Held Enthusiastic Meeting Yesterday

An enthusiastic and largely attended meeting of St. Peter's T.A.S. was held yesterday afternoon at which a number of new candidates were initiated. His Lordship Bishop O'Brien was present and delivered an inspiring address. Messrs. Henshaw and Bartley contributed an enjoyable drill and Mr. Bartley sang "Ave Maria" in splendid voice.

Vancouver in 1881 was virgin forest; in 1891 had 13,000 population; in 1901, 26,000; in 1911 had 100,333.

Her Apron Caught Fire

Mrs. Sweet, Formerly of Peterborough, Seriously Injured With Fire From Over-heated Flatiron

TORONTO, Dec. 15.—While Mrs. Millie Sweet, of 248 Margueretta street, was ironing with an ordinary flatiron on Saturday afternoon, her apron caught fire in some way, and before it could be put out she was very badly burned. As soon as she noticed the flame she imprudently ran from one room to another, creating a draft which fanned the flame. Dr. M. J. Yellowlees was called and found her very badly burned about the chest and arms. She was taken in the police ambulance to the Western Hospital, where her condition is serious.

Mrs. Sweet (nee Nellie Robertson) is well known in Peterborough, having resided here prior to her marriage.

SUFFRAGETTE BADLY HURT IN A RIOT

Special Cable to The Examiner.

LONDON, Eng., Dec. 13.—With her arm in a sling and severely hurt internally, Miss Zelie Emerson, the United States Suffragette, who was arrested near Bow Bells, London City, yesterday, after serious riots there, when the mounted police rode down the rioters, appeared in the Police Court this morning, escorted by a bodyguard of sympathisers, and pleaded not guilty to the charge of disorderly conduct. She was remanded for trial.

A SUGGESTION ABOUT THE BRIDGE

Editor Examiner:

Sir,—Now that the municipal contest is drawing near, and Citizen's clipping, published in your issue of Saturday, 13th, presented Alderman Langford's attitude on municipal economy and the building of Dalhousie Street bridge, would it not be in the interests of the ratepayers of the City if the various candidates expressed their opinions as to the desirability of placing a bridge across the Otonabee. Now that the municipal ownership is coming to the fore in Peterborough, 'Hydro-Electric' to wit, would not the $78,000 be placed to better advantage towards acquiring the Peterborough Street Railway?

Acquire that property. Then place your bridge, extend your car service across it to East City, "with the possibility in the near future of a circular service." Your receipts from same would be a reimbursement on the outlay on the bridge, and of beneficial results to the community of Peterborough.

Yours, etc.,
Semper Fidelis.

CHISTMAS GIVING SHOULD NOT BE A RACE

Canon Davidson Points Out the Need of Moderation

Yesterday at St. John's, Canon Davidson expressed admiration of the widespread enthusiasm with which people were entering into the generous spirit of Christmas-tide. While doing so he pointed out certain modern excesses which threatened to interfere seriously with the happiness of the Christmas season.

Christmas giving had come to be extended far beyond its original and proper channels and people thought it their duty to provide for relatives and acquaintances generally, as well as many connected by business ties. In so doing were we not rolling up great burdens for ourselves and laying them upon others affected by our example. While the motive of this was good, the effect was to make Christmas a season of anxious thought, difficulty and great financial strain, and its approach was apt to cause feelings of positive alarm. The real Christmas giving should not mean giving beyond our means or any race to keep up with others.

People should set themselves to remove any unavoidable strain and to disencumber this blessed season of what threatened to smother its sweet simplicity and Divine nature. For our guidance we might well remember Bethlehem, the Shepherds and the Manger Child.

The preacher pointed out that no one, however poor, need be debarred from the beautiful Christmas duties and pleasures. A postage stamp would carry an appreciated message of cheer and good will and it was small, rather than costly gifts, which produced Christmas merriment.

In conclusion, Canon Davidson urged that the definitely religious and supernatural side of Christmas day should be emphasised. After all, the centre of the day was Jesus Christ Himself who, on His own birthday, should surely receive the worship and personal adoration of all Christian people.

Women's and Misses Coats

Many Dollars Less Than Usual Prices

139 Coats at practically half price;
And 48 Coats at two thirds of their regular value.

ONE HUNDRED AND EIGHTY SEVEN IN ALL, which are two large purchases of Women's and Misses' Coats of this season's very latest, and most approved designs.

And they are selling at these ridiculously low prices, because the manufacturers have experienced difficulty in clearing up their stocks, and consequently on these Coats, a very low figure was accepted.

Therefore, each of the three lots into which these Coats are divided, is a marvel of value; while no less remarkable is the great variety of styles and novelty cloths that are procurable.

While considering that prices are cut in two, or reduced one third on Coats that are excellent value at ordinary figures, the extraordinary merit of the lowered prices must appeal to every woman who would buy with economy. Here are the descriptions and prices that pertain:—

68 Coats Worth up to $16 for $8.44

In this assortment the Johnny Coats occupies a prominent place And there is also the general utility Coat and the storm Coat, the materials being heavy checks, tweeds, etc., some of the styles having trimmed backs, others the belted effects.

There are many with fancy collars, many with the convertible collar, and a choice is given between straight or cutaway fronts. Worth up to $16, there is a big saving at $8.44.

80 Coats worth up to $20 and $25, for $13.59.

They are made of splendid Tweeds, Zibelines, Chinchillas, Bouclés and Brocaded Matelasse, in a pleasing range of colours which include greys, browns, blues, black and green mixtures.

Nothing short of around $20 and $25 would purchase the degree of perfection in style and workmanship, one finds in these Coats, some of them having smart collars and facings of velvet, others the modish cutaway front, kimona sleeves and convertible collars. This line is of exceptional merit at $13.59.

38 Coats Worth up to $13.00 for $7.83.

These Coats show a smart collection of checks and stripes in browns and greys with a number of other plain, serviceable cloths in seasonable colours.
Some are cut full length, others three quarters; while there is a choice of either cutaway or square shaped fronts.
Many are made with cuffs, and belted effect, the convertible collars being either velvet or self material.
The actual worth of these garments is up to $13.00; their superior value for $7.83, being evident at first sight.

A pretty array of Gifts in Whitewear on the second floor.

PRESENT MEMBERS OF SALVATION ARMY BAND

Christmas Greetings to Friends a Reminder of Annual Serenades.

The Salvation Army Band is sending seasonable greeting cards to their friends. The past year has been the best in its history, the membership mounting to 44 and a saxophone section having been added. The bandsmen give their service gratuitously in assisting the corps work and the Christmas serenades afford one method of raising sufficient funds to meet expenses.

The present personnel of the band is as follows:

Soprano Trumpet—G. Thomas, (Librarian).

Bb. Trumpet—W. Northcote.

Cornets—W. Peryer, W. Dep. Bandmaster; N. Ayling, J. Smith, C. Gadd, H. Payton, B. Braund, F. Gray, Jr.

Fugal Horns—J. Thomas, E. Dolman.

Tenor Horns—S. Richardson (Librarian), E. Sergeant, F. Gray (Orderly), F. Wells, W. Jones.

Mellophones—T. Yost, E. Jones.

Baritones—F. Gandy, W. Payton, J. Forsythe.

Trombones—A. Sandford, V. Boorman, T. Brooks (Treasurer), E. Hensley (Secretary).

Saxophones—J. James, R. Brown (Sergeant), R. Seif, W. Leader, A. Moyns.

Euphoniums—F. Robinson (Correspondent), Wes Boorman, H. Wells.

Bombardons—W. Boorman, J. Cunningham, G. Robinson, H. Parnell.

Bass Viol—W. Naish.

Monster Basses—H. Gray, J. Richardson.

Drums and Cymbals—J. Tillcock, A. Bohn.

ENGLISH MAIL WAS DELAYED

Twelve Hours by Chance—British Mails Now Landed at St. John Instead of Halifax

HALIFAX, N.S., Dec. 15.—In an article on British mails Saturday the Daily Echo contends that had the Royal George this week landed her mails at Halifax instead of at St. John the people of Peterborough would have had their English correspondence twelve hours sooner than they did.

This conclusion is viewed as follows:

Suppose the sister ships, Royal George and Royal Edward left Bristol side by side on the same day, December 3, and proceeded side by side to the point of divergence of Sable Island, the Royal Edward, bound to Halifax and the Royal George to St. John, here is what would happen.

How It Works Out.

The Royal Edward would have arrived at Halifax on Wednesday, Dec. 10, at 7:30 p.m., Halifax time. Her mails would have been in St. John at 6:55 a.m., Thursday morning, while the Royal George was steaming up the Bay of Fundy, nearly four hours away from Partridge Island. Proceeding to Montreal by the C.P.R., the mails carried by the Royal Edward would have been on the last lap of their journey, within a little more than one hundred miles of Montreal, before the Royal George mails were entrained at St. John.

"These are facts which cannot be disputed. The first voyage of the Royal liners from Bristol to Halifax last year took 5 days 20 and one-half hours. The first voyage of the Royal liners to St. John this year took 7 days 7 hours and 30 minutes. The mileage made on the first voyage on the Royal liners from Bristol to Halifax last years was 2,441. The mileage made on the first voyage of the Royal liners from Bristol to St. John this year was 2,700. The saving in distance to Halifax was 259 miles.

Docking Difficult.

In Halifax the Royal Liners can dock at any stage or any time of the day without the assistance of tugs. In St. John the docking is contingent upon the availability of at least two tugs and the suitability of the tides. The average time for docking and entraining the mail carried by the Royal George in Halifax would be about 3 hours and 45 minutes, in St. John it took six hours.

It took the Royal George nearly seventeen hours to cover the extra 259 miles of the distance from Bristol to St. John over Halifax. A mail train maintaining an average speed of 36 miles per hour, which was the time made by the train carrying the Virginia mail, would have covered over 600 miles while the Royal George was steaming past Halifax to St. John.

SAID CHURCH WAS HER OWN PROPERTY

Special Wire to The Examiner.

LONDON, Ont., Dec. 15.—Great excitement prevailed during the evening service in St. Peter's Cathedral yesterday, when a well-dressed young woman coolly forced her way through the crowded congregation to the pulpit and calmly ordered Monsignor Alyward, who was about to start the sermon, to vacate the church, as, she said, it was her own private property.

She was a member of the congregation, and was found to be suffering from a fit of temporary insanity.

A MERRIE CHRISTMAS AT HOOPER'S THREE STORES

Grand Welcome to Santa Claus, Kris Kringle and All Yuletide Visitors

Hooper's Oldest and Established George Street Store

It will be of interest to the many customers of Mr. T. H. Hooper, longest established confectioner, baker and caterer, to know that his three confectionery establishments and large bakery have been working night and day to keep up with Santa Claus orders.

Just a few days before the great Christmas festival, Mr. Hooper is prepared to the "peak load" with a cornucopea full of new dainties and delicacies—a horn of plenty, brimming and overflowing with the best of confections, pastry and cake.

There are Christmas cakes, iced and ornamented; fruit and nut cakes; tarts and jelly cakes; macaroons and lady fingers, short cakes and ginger cakes, pound and sponge cakes, and buns and biscuits of many varieties.

There are bon-bons and chocolates, without a rival for daintiness and flavour—the utmost in candy. Creamy insides and centres in imported candy, fruit candy, molasses candy, cream caramels, milk chocolates, and Christmas stockings, with a fine assortment of toys, crackers and table confections. Hooper's home-made taffy, which has been a favourite in Peterborough for over 25 years, put up in numerous forms, with a pleasing, blending of flavou not found in other brands of taffy.

Then there is Hooper's home-made breads—white, brown, cream loaf, and other fancy loaves, which he claims to be "the aristocrats of the dining table." Cleaniness and skill are the rocks upon which Hooper has built the wide and ever-increasing sale of his bread.

Then, if you want to be relieved of the worry of looking after the Christmas catering or afternoon teas, receptions, banquets, etc., Hooper has the facilities, and can give satisfactory service. If it is a wedding, all the better. He makes a specialty of artistic almond icing wedding cakes, and no matter how fastidious the hostess, her most exacting demands can be met.

All over his spacious three stores, Mr. Hooper will be found ever ready to meet the demands of the buying public. The sooner you come the greater will be your pleasure. Never put off till to-morrow what you can buy at Hooper's to-day.

CHRISTMAS GIVING TOO OFTEN A BURDEN

Do Not Make It a Hardship and Do Your Shopping Early

At both services at St. Luke's Church, yesterday, the Rector, Rev. F. J. Sagers, spoke a few words on behalf of the clerks in the City stores, urging his parishioners to do their Christmas shopping early and not leave it to the rush of the last two or three days.

He also addressed a few remarks to his congregation on the matter of Christmas becoming a burden to many, instead of a real joy, by way of the fact that people often gave presents that they could ill afford. In this way Christmas giving in some instances, had become burdensome, and the pleasurable elements that should characterize this day were thus eliminated. It was the remembrance that counted after all, and this could be accomplished in a way that meant no hardship.

SODALITY RECEPTION AT THE CATHEDRAL

Twenty-seven Young Ladies Received Into the Sodality of the Blessed Virgin.

An impressive ceremony was witnessed last night in St. Peter's Cathedral, when twenty-seven young ladies joined the Sodality of the Blessed Virgin, thus consecrating themselves to the service of Jesus through His Immaculate Mother. Rev. Father Phelan officiated at Vespers, after which a sermon on the Blessed Virgin's life was delivered by Rev. Father Galvin. At the conclusion of the sermon, the young ladies, all robed in white and each carrying a lighted taper, advanced to the sanctuary rail, where, in the presence of His Lordship Bishop O'Brien, they made the accustomed promises to be true children of Mary in their every thought, word and deed. The Bishop then invested each of them with the ribbon and medal of the Sodality, and in a few choice words, exhorted them to be faithful to the promises they had made, and to prove themselves on all occasions worthy children of the peerless Virgin, whom they had taken as their [illegible]

SYLVIA PANKHURST FREE ONCE MORE

Special Cable to The Examiner:

LONDON, Eng., Dec. 15.—Miss Sylvia Pankhurst was released from Holloway Jail to-night in a very weakened condition. She has refused to eat, drink or sleep for four days. In Devonport to-day the Suffragettes caused a three hundred thousand dollar fire damage in a wood yard, and in Yorkshire soldiers from the barracks had action from the fire was called out to help extinguish the flames.

"In your Majesty's name a noble woman is being done to death; we call upon your Majesty to stop the crime before it is too late." That was the message referring to Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst's last arrest that the suffragettes to-day telegraphed to King George, according to a statement from Mrs. Dear Fox, at to-day's weekly meeting of the Women's Political Union in Knightsbridge Hall.

Stringent Laws On Immigration

Special to the Examiner.

WASHINGTON, D.C., Dec. 15.—By a vote of two to one, the House of Representatives Immigration Committee to-day reported favourably the Burnett Immigration Bill, with its stringent provisions barring from entry into the United States all Asiatics, militant suffragettes, advocates of sabotage and anarchists. The literary tests requiring all aliens coming in to read and write at least one language was also included.

SUPPLY OF MEN FOR MINISTRY IS FAILING

A letter from the Bishop of Toronto was read in all the Anglican churches of the city yesterday, asking for a greater number of men for the Canadian ministry. The supply of young men was falling short of those needed. The letter urged that Canada should offer a greater number of young men, to constitute a greater ministry for the needs of the Dominion.

Little Peeps Into Civic Affairs

Ald. Green has indirectly stated that he is in favour of the city considering the purchase of the Peterborough Street Railway.

It is reported that four candidates will run for the Reeveship of Douro.

The final meeting of Smith Township Council was held this morning. Indications point to contests in the Township this term. Reeve Garbutt and his Councillors apparently have given every satisfaction.

Peterborough citizens will take quite a little interest in the North Monaghan elections.

It is generally understood that there will be only two candidates for the vacancy on the Water Commission. They are Mr. Robert Hicks and Mr. J. B. McWilliams.

Another day gone and nothing definite for the Otonabee power users. The "glooms" will enter some 800 homes after January 1.

The Court of Appeal will sit to-morrow at 10.30 in the Judge's Chamber to hear 27 appeals against the Voters' List.

Two weeks from to-day is the Municipal nomination day. Elections follow a week later.

PIANOS FOR CHRISTMAS

The ideal gift is a piano for Christmas. Nothing could be more acceptable, nothing more enjoyable, nothing so endurable, as a Nordheimer or Steinway piano. The special advantages being offered just now by Mr. F. Whitehouse, the active district agent for these high-class instruments, with warerooms at No. 379 Water Street are worthy of prompt attention. Terms and conditions have been made particularly attractive for holiday buyers, and the demand created has kept the factories exceptionally busy. Any time, during the day or evening, Mr. Whitehouse will be pleased to have a call from those contemplating a piano purchase during the present favourable conditions. See half page announcement on ninth page of to-day's Examiner.

KING CASE WAS DISMISSED TO-DAY

JUDGE EDMISON PRACTICALLY REJECTED THE EVIDENCE OF TWO DETECTIVES BECAUSE OF THEIR POTATIONS.

Costs in Levasseur Case Placed at $7.60.

Judge Edmison dismissed the charge against Mr. Dave King, Norwood, of selling liquor in a local option district on Fair Day, 15th October. Mr. King is a hotelkeeper in Norwood, and the complaint was founded on a report from two Ontario Department detectives, Solomon and Greeen, that they had secured liquor at the hotel.

Judge Edmison discounted their testimony on the grounds that they wer intoxicated when they left Toronto on the evening of 14th October, and that they apparently disposed of a quart of whisky which they secured from Mr. J. Levasseur.

The charge was dismissed without costs.

His Worship placed the costs in the Levasseur case at $7.60, allowing nothing for Solomon and Green, the so-called "detectives," on account of their conduct.

Levasseur had pleaded guilty to a charge of selling liquor at Norwood, and was fined $100. The fixing of costs was left unsettled until to-day because of the close connection between the cases.

MIGHT WELL LET TANGO PASS

Peterborough, Dec. 15, 1913.

Editor Examiner:

Dear Sir,—We hear frequent rumours that Peterborough Society (or a certain section of it) is trying to introduce the tango.

It is not the purpose of the writer to pass judgment on this much discussed craze, but call the attention of of Peterborough society to places and institutions that deem it decidedly undesirable.

Press despatches indicate that the better class of English Society has no use for the tango. It has been placed under the ban in both the English and German courts. The Duchess of Connaught has set Canadian society a good example by excluding it at Rideau Hall. It is lso excluded at the Kingston Military College, Kingston Yacht Club and Queen's University.

If the dance is objectionable in social circles of above standing, Peterborough society can well afford to let the crane pass or sink to its natural level. While local attempts at its performance may have been more ludicrous than entertaining, we claim it is the first duty of society to provide the best in all classes of social intercourse.

Yours truly,
A. Father.

No Reason for Thanks,

Clergyman (indignantly)—You say you haven't anything to be thankful for? Why, look at your neighbour, Hayes; he has just lost his wife by influenza.

Burke — But that don't do me any good; I ain't Hayes.

COURT LITTLEJOHN: ATTENTION!—A full attendance of the Members of Court Littlejohn C. O. F. is requested for To-morrow Evening in S. O. E. Hall.

ARTHUR HAWKES IS SATISFIED

Special Wire to The Examiner.

TORONTO, Dec. 15. — "Canada First" Hawkes who, on Saturday, got a total of seventy votes in the South Lanark election, seemed quite jovial this morning. He said apparently he had been doing nothing while other fellows were going 'around with the collection plate getting votes. He will lose, he said, including his deposit, about four hundred dollars, but was quite satisfied. He said his main object was to get his "Canada First" propaganda going, and he had accomplished this to an admirable degree.

WEDDING BELLS

JORY — KIDD.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. John L. Kidd, Cottesloe, was the scene of a happy event on Wednesday, Dec. 10, when their daughter, Mary Adeline, was united in marriage to Clayton Wesley Jory.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. M. L. Hinton of Warsaw.

The bride was given away by her father and looked very beautiful attired in a dress of white shadowed lace over white silk, veiled with pink ninon with touches of Dresden. She carried a bouquet of white carnations, orange blossoms and smilax, and wore an embroidery veil with orange blossoms.

The wedding march was played by Mrs. Telford, sister of the bride.

Over ninety guests sat down to a sumptuous repast. The number and value of the many presents (one being a cheque for $100), showed the high esteem with which the young couple were held. The groom's gift to the bride was a gold watch, and to the pianist, a gold brooch, set with pearls.

The young couple left on Thursday morning by automobile for Oshawa and points west.

OBITUARY

BABY CURVIN.

The infant child of Mr. and Mrs. Curvin died in Nicholls' hospital yesterday. The parents, who reside in Campbellford, will have the sympathy of the community.

The funeral was held this afternoon.

REV. MR. CREIGHTON.

The remains of the late Rev. Mr. Creighton, who died in Port Hope on Saturday, were brought to the city via the G.T.R. this morning and taken to Belleghem's undertaking establishment. The body will be sent to Burkton Junction this afternoon for interment.

MRS. CHAS. GRAVELLE.

An old and highly respected resident of Bridgenorth passed away yesterday afternoon in the person of Mrs. Chas. Gravelle. The deceased who was born in Quebec, moved to Bridgenorth between forty and fifty years ago, and had lived there ever since. Her husband predeceased her many years ago. Five sons and six daughters survive.

The funeral will take place to-morrow morning to Ennismore cemetery.

JOHN JOHNSON.

The death occurred shortly after noon to-day, of Mr. John Johnson, at his home, 545 Aylmer street.

The deceased was 57 years of age, and for 25 years has been a highly respected resident of this city. He was a faithful member of St. Andrew's Church. He was born in Clarke Township.

He is survived by a sorrowing wife and one daughter, Mrs. A. Somerville, of Hamilton. Four sisters and one brother, all in the United States, also survive.

The funeral arrangements will be announced later.

THE LATE MRS. DOUGHERTY.

Yesterday morning at five o'clock the death occurred of Annie Hobson, wife of Mr. Daniel Dougherty, at her home, 574 Aylmer Street, City. Her death came suddenly, for although she had been in poor health for some time, she had been doing the housework, and no sign of her death was given on Saturday.

The late Mrs. Dougherty was born in Barrie, Ont., 41 years ago, and came to this City about twelve years ago. Since that time she has resided in this City, where she has come to be respected by a large number of friends. Mrs. Dougherty was a faithful member of St. Paul's Church.

She is survived by her husband, her father, Mr. Johnson Hobson of Barrie, four brothers, and two sisters. The brothers are Johnson of Toronto, John of North Bay, Thomas and Robert of Barrie. The sisters are, Mrs. Chas. Harris, of Grenfell, Ontario, and Mrs. Albert Stundon of Barrie.

Four daughters, Hattie, May, Sadie and Helen, and one son, John, all at home, survive her.

The funeral will be held to-morrow afternoon at 2.30 o'clock from the family residence, to the Little Lake Cemetery. The Rev. R. Pogue of St. Paul's Church, will officiate.

FIVE DRAWN GAMES IN BIG LEAGUE GROUP

Saturday's Results in British Soccer More Particularly Remarkable for the Tied Score Feature---Scottish Leaders Unchanged--Watford Out of Cup.

Five of the games in the First Division of the English League played Saturday ended with drawn scores. The great battle was between the "Spars" and the "Villans" at Aston, where the game ended 3 all. Blackburn Rovers, the leaders, only managed to take one point away from Oldham, while Manchester United had to be satisfied with dividing the points with Bradford City at Old Trafford. West Bromwich Albions were the only first league team to win away from home. They downed Sheffield Wednesday by 4 to 1. It was, indeed, a bad day for Sheffield, as the Uniteds were also beaten by Newcastle. Preston North End came out of their shell and surprised Derby County by defeating them 2 to 1. The North End have now won 3 games out of 17.

"Peacocks" at it Again.

The "Peacocks" came back after their defeat of last Saturday and jumped on the "Fishermen" at Elland Roads Saturday. The score was 4 to 2.

Notts County retained their lead at the head of the second division table by defeating the "Babes" at Nottingham. Bradford also put a 3 to 0 score up at the expense of Lincoln City. Clapton Orient surprised the "Arsenal" and the latter dropped to fifth place.

Swindon Town will maintain their lead in the Southern Division. The club has now played 16 games and won 12, losing only 1. This is indeed a record to be proud of. Only five of the Southern League games were played, owing to a large number of the clubs being engaged in the fifth qualifying round of the English Cup competition. Cardiff City put one over on Queen's Park, at Cardiff, by beating them 3 to 0. Brighton and Hove had to disgorge two more points on their own ground Saturday, West Ham defeating them by 1 to 0.

Scottish League Unchanged.

The three teams at the head of the Scottish table, Celtic, Hearts and Rangers, were all successful again, though Hearts were the only team to win by a margin of more than one goal; they beat Kilmarnock by 3 to 0. Hibernians made the largest score of the day, 6 to 0, against Hamilton A.

Watford Out of Cup.

Watford were put out of the running for the English Cup by Gillingham of the Southern League. The minor clubs are now being knocked out as the first round proper approaches. Glossop got a 4 to 1 decision over Carlisle while Gainsboro beat Crewe 2 to 0.

The following are the results of Saturday's games:

INSTRUCTIONS ISSUED TO THE O. H. A. CLUBS

The following instructions have been sent out to all clubs of the Ontario Hockey Association, to be read carefully and kept for reference:

Each club is responsible for the eligibility of its players.

Junior players must be under 20 years of age, January 1, 1914.

Certificates are revocable by the association without notice.

"Don't put off until the last minute the registration of players.

All certificates must be countersigned by the secretary of the association.

Each player must have a certificate signed by himself in ink, and by the president and secretary of his club.

Birth Certificates for Juniors.

In addition all junior players must furnish official birth certificates from the Parliament Buildings, Registry Office, or church records. These shoul be sent in with the playing certificates and not separately. No junior will be allowed to play until this is done.

Official birth certificates filed last year for eligible junior players desiring to play this year will not require to be renewed.

Clubs are requested to pay particular attention to the lighting of their rinks and to the condition of the goal nets. Both must be perfectly satisfactory to the referee or there will be trouble for the home club.

No junior player will be eligible to again play in that series who plays more than one intermediate or one senior game in that season.

The Residence Rule.

Under the residence rule, a player must be a bona fide and continuous resident of the town to which his club belongs since August 1, 1913. The exceptions are students, teachers, and sailors. The latter must play where they were living last January.

Players living in rural districts or police villages must play in their nearest O.H.A. town.

No player who has received an O. H.A. certificate shall play in an exhibition match for another club without first receiving permission from the association.

No player shall play for more than one club in the association year, nor shall he sign a certificate for more than one club.

Any club intending to default a match must give three days' clear notice to opposing club and the association. Failure to give such notice will cost the offending club $25, in addition to all expenses.

A Default Puts a Team Out.

A club defaulting any match debars itself from further competition. All scheduled matches played by such club will count as played, and all unplayed matches will count as wins to the teams scheduled against the club defaulting.

Every club must file a list of officers with the association. Do this at ance and save a lot of unnecessary correspondence.

O.H.A. clubs playing in another association must give precedence to O. H.A. scheduled matches.

A junior may play one intermediate or one senior game with his own club, and an intermediate player may play one senior game. Two games will disqualify the player from competing in the lower series.

Failure to start a game on the scheduled hour will cost the offending team or teams a fine of $10.

All clubs are required to register their playing colours with the association. Send these in with the list of officers.

Expenses of Visiting Clubs.

Expenses of the travelling club are 10 cents per mile for one way for eight men, which amount must be paid by the home club.

The junior birth certificates must be official documents issued by the Registrar-General's Department at Parliament Buildings, Toronto, or by a local registrar, or an extract from a church baptismal record, certified to by the clergyman in charge.

Any club refusing or failing to play the club against which it is matched debars itself from further competition.

Notice of the result of each match must be sent to the association by the victorious club through the referee.

The Referee's Fee.

Referee's fee is $5, in addition to an allowance at the rate of 10 cents a mile one way for all distances. The minimum of fee and allowance is $8, except in the case of a local referee. After the group winners are returned the association appoints all referees. Each club is to pay half the referee's expenses.

In case of a club playing its home game and defaulting the return game, the penalty will be the payment of a sum sufficient to completely cover the expenses of the visiting club in the first game, such expenses to be hotel and 'bus bills for ten men and one-half the referee's expenses.

72 Hours' Notice for Referee.

Clubs failing to agree upon a referee must give the association seventy-two hours' notice of their match, and an official will be sent; otherwise both teams will be ruled out of the competition. Either club may send in the notice. Clubs should agree on a referee whenever possible, and save trouble for themselves and the association.

Protests must be in duplicate and signed by the president or secretary; must be filed with the association within 48 hours of the match protested, and must be accompanied by a deposit of $25. Defending club has 36 hours to file a defence. Service personally or by registered post will conform with the rule. Protests on questions of fact will not be entertained, as the referee's decision is final.

W. A. HEWITT, Secretary.

HOCKEY WORKOUT AT RINK TO-NIGHT

Hockey candidates are reminded of the work-out to-night at Brock Street rink. All junior players are asked to be on hand in order that the O. H. A. certificates may be signed. Until the ice comes, the juniors will continue to work out three times a week at the rink. The squad have two weeks' work under their belts now and are in pretty fair shape at the present time.

MORE ABOUT PETERBORO' IN THE OLD DAYS

To the Editor, The Examiner:

Your interesting account of times in Peterborough forty years ago as furnished by the gentlemen who loaf around the weigh scales' parlours of the market clerk, while true in substance and in fact, is chronologically in error. Those stirring times date away back to the fifties and sixties. Forty years ago the town was in a modern state of civilization, and Hell street was no longer known by that name, but had acquired its present name of Charlotte street. The quarterly fairs, too, had passed away, which were the appointed times for most of the disturbances. During the Russian war wheat had risen to two dollars and a half per bushel, and lumbering operations were at their height. Perry's Saw Mills at Nassau ran night and day and were the largest in the world, but of course would not compare with some of the similar structures of recent times. Money flowed in every quarter and everybody was happy, especially when there was a fight on.

High prices for living did not obtain in those days. Eggs were four pence per dozen, and butter the same price per pound. As for taxes,—well, it would bring the blush of shame to our present extravagant Council, did they but know how low they were.

Yours, etc.,

One to the Manner Born.

First Junior Game Here On Jan. 6th---Schedule Drawn Up

The local junior O.H.A. team will play their first game of the season here on January 6th, three weeks from tomorrow night with the week known Kingston Frontenacs as their adversaries. The following schedule has been adopted for this district in the junior series:

Jan. 6—Kingston Frontenacs at PETERBOROUGH.
Jan. 13—PETERBOROUGH at Cobourg.
Jan. 16—Cobourg at Kingston.
Jan. 23 — PETERBOROUGH at Kingston.
Jan. 26—Kingston at Cobourg.
Jan. 30—Cobourg at PETERBOROUGH.

J. P. Bond, secretary of the local club and convener of the district, is presiding over a meeting at Port Hope this afternoon at which the intermediate schedule for the district will be drawn up. On account of the fact that their new rink may not be completed in time, Whitby has asked that they be allowed to play their first games away from home, and they may open the season here, January 2nd being the possible opening night.

CITY LEAGUE NOTES

Thef our Junior City Leagues have met with great success in their sale of season tickets and the problem of financing the proposition has been solved by the kindly reception which the fans of the city have accorded the youngsters.

All the teams have ordered new uniforms and they will present a classy appearance when they take the ice for the first time.

Here are the colours:

Alerts—Purple with orange trimmings.

Boston Exploits—Purple with white trimmings.

Wanderers—Red with white trimmings, and a blue band around the sweater.

Y.M.C.A.—Blue and white.

Managers of the teams are requested to secure the birth certificates of the players as soon as possible. If these cannot be obtained from the church which the boy attends, send a list of the names to the Deputy Registrar General's Department, Toronto, enclosing 25c for each name, and ask that the birth record be examined and certificates returned. This important matter should be attended to at once.

It is likely that there will be a meeting of the League this week to draw up the schedule and make other arrangements for the season.

The League will probably open on Wednesday, Jan. 7th.

Canada's salmon hatchery at Harrison Lake, B.C., is the largest of its kind in the world.

AN ERROR CORRECTED.

Through a typographical error in the article referring to Mr. Gordon Campbell leaving 'Varsity for a business career, the inference was left that Mr. Peter Campbell was to accept a position with the staff of R. C. Matthews and Co. This, of course, was a mistake, Mr. Campbell having no thought of severing his connection with the Bank of Toronto here. Mr. Campbell's son, however, is leaving 'Varsity to take a position with the well known bond dealers.

ST. JOHN'S SUNDAY SCHOOL.

At the termination of the session of this school, yesterday afternoon, the Superintendent of the School, Mr. C. E. Jamieson, paid a well-deserved tribute to Miss Margaret Flowers, who, for a very considerable time, has been one of the teachers. He spoke of her long, indefatigable, faithful service and felt sure he voiced the feelings of all present when he expressed the universal regret that her Sunday avocations as organist at All Saints' Church, impelled her to sever her connections with St. John's Sunday School. Miss Flowers will be much missed. She has earned the esteem of all who have come into contact with her.

Farmers Are Interested In Banquet

Arrangements for the big farmers' banquet which is to be held in the Oriental Hotel next Saturday afternoon at 1 o'clock, to hear the speakers from the farmers' organizations of Western Canada, indicate that it is likely to prove a great success. Only a limited number of tickets is available and already, it is understood, the greater part of these have been placed. Reeve Anderson, of Keene, who has handled a number, sent word to-day that his had all been taken and he wanted twice as many more. These could not all be sent him. Warden Garbutt has also disposed of his and asked for more.

The Western farmers are in Ottawa to-day waiting on the Dominion Government. They will attend big meetings in Toronto on Wednesday and Thursday, where they will confer with leading Ontario farmers, and a portion of them will be in Peterborough on Saturday next. Warden J. H. Garbutt will preside at the banquet. Arrangements have been made by which it will be possible for those who do not succeed in obtaining tickets for the banquet, and who would like to hear the speakers, to obtain free admission to the banquet hall while the speakers are speaking.

TO PROTEST AGAINST THE EMBARGO

Examiner Special:

OTTAWA, Dec. 15.—The Dominion Government has sent two officials of the Department of Agriculture to Washington to protest against the embargo placed on Canadian potatoes because of the powdery scab disease. It is contended this disease is not serious and is more prevalent now in the United States than in Canada.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

Mrs. Wm. Buller is visiting her daughter, Mrs. Harold E. Burns, Parry Sound.

Mr. and Mrs. W. K. Herstone and family are leaving on Wednesday to spend the winter in California.

Mr. R. D. Collins, of the Molson's Bank, Port Arthur, is in town visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Collins.

The many friends of Mr. Wm. O'Leary, caretaker of the Chemong Lake bridge, will regret to learn that he is very seriously ill.

Mr. Edwin Rogers, Inspector of Asylums, Toronto, was in the City yesterday, the guest of his brother, Mr. R. B. Rogers, Hunter Street, East.

Miss Traill and Miss Mary Traill, of Lakefield, who have been visiting Mr. and Mrs. Collins, left yesterday on an extended visit to the West, and will not return until spring.

The many friends of Mrs. (Rev.) Keith will be pleased to learn that she is now convalescing steadily in Nicholls Hospital from her recent illness, and hopes to be home soon.

Mr. Geo. R. Ross, formerly of W. J. Kent's drug store, has passed the Ontario College of Pharmacy examinations with first class honours, leading the class in the Botany and Physics.

TOOK PART IN SHIP CONCERT

The Examiner has received a letter from Mr. W. H. Clurton of Peterborough, written on board the liner Empress of Britain, bound for Europe. Mr. Clurton recited "The Wreck of the Julie Plante" at the concert on board the steamer in aid of the Liverpool Seamen's Orphans' Institution.

Stock Markets

A. H. Stratton & Co., Brokers, report the following:

Developments combine to suggest the wisdom of seeking buying opportunities in the standard railroad stocks with good margin of safety over dividend requirements. The week just ending has produced an unusual disturbance in the New Haven dividend passing, but we have reasons for believing that events now transpiring are having a very beneficial effect on the policies of the administration at Washington in the direction of modifying the radical tendencies toward capital. The promise of higher freight rates is much better than it was a week ago. The currency reform is very near being enacted into a law that will give better results than the one under which banking operations are now being conducted. Liquidation of labour is progressing with the trade reaction and the politician only remains to be liquidated. U. P. and Edg. are selected as the best purchases among high price stocks. G. Q. and N. P. are in demand for foreign account. Eries are well recommended. Industrials continue to be discriminated against.

MAY DEAL IN FISH

Ontario Government Plans to Compete With Exploiters

TO PROHIBIT THE EXPORT?

TORONTO, Dec. 16.—As a result of the speech made by Hon. W. J. Hanna last week that the Provincial Government might do some fishing on its own account, suggestion is made around the Parliament Buildings that the Government might enter the fishing business in provincial waters and sell the product at cost in municipal markets.

Inquiry in Government offices into the probable details of such a scheme elicited the information that this would be a death stroke at the operation of the fish trust in the provincial boundary waters. The most of the fish caught by Ontario fishermen are exported to U. S. markets, and it is considered that the Government has as good a right to prohibit the export of fish as the export of sawlogs. In that event the next step would be to withdraw all commercial licenses, and thus put an end to private commercial exploitation of the fish in Ontario.

This would make the Government the sole vendor of fish. With the view of organizing the service from the standpoint of efficiency, only experienced or "legitimate" fishermen would be employed. Those who fish while the game is profitable, deplete a preserve and leave off when luck is poor, without regard to the restocking of the waters will have no part, and will be forced to give up. With this control of the fishing industry, the scheme as outlined provides for shipment to municipal distributing centres.

There is said to be no constitutional difficulty in the province prohibiting the export of fish.

While the consideration of this matter has not passed beyond a tentative stage it is probable that it will appear in some form before the Legislature when the House assembles in the New Year.

No Confirmation of Outrages.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 16.—Except for a telegram from American Consul Lether, telling of threats of expulsion of Spaniards and confiscation of their property, the State Department up to late yesterday had received no official communication concerning reported indignities to other foreigners by Mexican rebels at Chihuahua City.

Secretary Bryan said there had been no interference with Consul Lether's telegrams by the Constitutionalists, and that so far as he had been able to learn, no threats had been made to any of the foreign consuls.

TO REFORM LAW COURTS.

Legal Practice Too Full of Delays Says Commission.

LONDON, Dec. 16. — Sweeping changes in the administration of law are recommended by the royal commission on Delay in Law Courts, whose final report was issued last night. Some of the most striking proposals are: Abolition of grand juries; long vacation to be reduced to two months; no Assize to be held unless there are three prisoners; judges in London to sit longer hours; "speedy trial list" to be formed of cases where there is no defence; judges to retire at the age of 7 years, or after six months' absence; judges to be allowed on to retire after ten years' service on condition that they serve if they are called upon during such a period as would make up fifteen years' service; all retired judges to be supernumerary judges; pensions after five years' service or less to be £1,500, with £200 a year extra for every extra year's service, the maximum to be £3,500, i.e., fifteen years' service. Circuit judges, when unable to sit through illness or other cause, will be relieved at once by a supernumerary judge or commissioner, no judge to be sent from London or diverted from the regular work in London.

In London the supernumerary judge will be called in if necessary in case of temporary illness. The Court of Criminal Appeal is to have power to order a new trial.

Dealing with delays in London and lengthy trials, reference is made to the growing tendency to adjourn cases for the convenience of "fashionable counsel," who like to "spread themselves over a trial for weeks." There will be little disagreement with the chief proposals of the report.

Saskatchewan's Referendum.

REGINA, Sask., Dec. 16.—Provided that no fewer than fifty thousand Parliamentary electors of Saskatchewan cast ballots at a plebiscite on the second Monday in December next year on a bill for the abolition of the bar, the majority of the votes cast will ensure the enactment of the measure. Its passage will mean the closing of every bar, but will leave the wholesale dealers alone.

Bylaw Results in Winnipeg.

WINNIPEG, Dec. 16. — Final results of the bylaw voting show that five were carried and four lost. The former were: Power extension, isolation hospital, public lavatories, fire stations and schools. Those defeated were: Parks, Elmwood incinerator, general hospital and controller referendum.

Brantford Pioneer Dead.

BRANTFORD, Dec. 16.—James McKenzie, an old and highly-respected resident of this city, died at his home, 15 Read street, yesterday. He was born in Ireland 75 years ago, and had been a resident of Brantford for over fifty years.

CRASH IS IMPENDING

Business Conditions in Mexico Are Ominous

TAMPICO IS RECOVERING

MEXICO CITY, Dec. 16.—Business conditions here are exceedingly sluggish to-day in view of what is considered an impending crash. Merchants state that business during the holiday season will probably be less than in any month this year, leaving many concerns with a large supply of stocks on which they will be unable to realize even at a great loss. Practically all business houses to-day have posted a notice that they will not accept bills of the state banks in payment for purchases.

According to existing legislation the law does not require them to accept state bills, but it is expected that Huerta will soon issue a decree making the acceptance of state bills compulsory, as otherwise the loss would amount to many millions. The banks except the Banco Central, which is the holding bank for the majority of state institutions, have posted a notice yesterday that they are accepting bills from the banks of Chihuahua, Guanajuato, San Luis Potosi, Hidalgo, Queretaro, Cohuila and the Oriental of Puebla. It is expected that these will be followed by Sonora and Durango within the next few days. All these banks are subsidiaries of the Central, except the Oriental, Hidalgo and Sonora. The financial situation is considered extremely critical.

Tampico Is Normal.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 16.—The following message, dated 2 p.m. yesterday, was received from Rear Admiral Fletcher: "Business resumed, and normal conditions Tampico and vicinity. Water supply renewed, and no indications of further disturbance. Cannot return refugees to Tampico until weather moderates. German steamer Cecelia leave today. Legician will be delayed for present. Summer will arrive outside 6 p.m., and Ward Liner will return Tuesday."

BILL HAS MAJORITY.

Currency Bill Passes First Test in Triumph.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 16.—A victory for the Administration forces in the first test of strength on the currency reform bill marked yesterday's session of the Senate. The vote, 40 to 35, tabled a substitute offered by Senator Hitchcock, for section two of the Administration bill, proposing a system of four regional banks, with a possible increase to eight, the regional bank stock to be owned by the public.

The defeat of this amendment practically assured the adoption of the Owen plan, which provides for from eight to twelve regional banks, with the stock owned by the national banks that become members of the respective regional banks. The Democratic leaders claimed that the result of the test vote, involving one of the most important features of the fight, indicated the complete success of the Administration measure.

May Be Discussing "Holiday."

LONDON, Dec. 16.—Winston Spencer Churchill, First Lord of the Admiralty, will spend a three weeks' Christmas vacation in Germany, on what is described as a private visit. On the way to Germany he will spend two or three days in Paris, presumably to become acquainted with the new Ministers.

Much curiosity has been aroused as to whether Mr. Churchill's visit is connected in any way with his recent proposals for a "naval holiday."

Mayor R. W. Leonard—Chairman of the Transportation Railway Commission, who has adopted the suggestion of Colonel Sam Hughes, that wealthy Canadians do something privately for the development of the Canadian militia. Major Leonard will build and endow a big residence and drill hall at Queen's University. It is expected that other wealthy Canadians will do similarly for other Canadian universities.

Wood Alcohol Blamed.

NEW YORK, Dec. 16.—The New York committee on the prevention of blindness sounds an alarm by the report yesterday that more than half of the cases of eye weakness among men of this city may be traced to the barber shops. It is alleged that bay rum and other face lotions used in some shops contain wood alcohol, and that the inhalation of the fumes or drops of liquid in the eyes causes serious trouble. There is already a law prohibiting the use of such lotions, but the committee on blindness has found it to be rarely enforced. The aid of the inspectors of the health department has been summoned in the crusade to be waged for enforcement of the laws.

TO IMPROVE PRETTY HAIR AND BEAUTIFY UGLY HAIR

Harmony Hair Beautifier, a delightful liquid hair dressing, is just what it is named—a hair beautifier. No matter how pretty your hair now is, it can be made to look even better by using Harmony Hair Beautifier. To those who mourn because the hair is stringy, dull, lustreless and homely, Harmony Hair Beautifier will prove a real blessing and pleasure. It seems to polish and burnish the hair, making it glossy, silky-soft and more easy to put up in graceful, wavy folds that "stay put." It overcomes the oily smell of the hair with a dainty, true-rose fragrance, very pleasing to the user and those around.

Very easy to apply—simply sprinkle a little on your hair each time before brushing it. It contains no oil, and will not change the color of the hair, nor darken gray hair.

To keep hair and scalp dandruff-free and clean, use Harmony Shampoo. This pure liquid shampoo gives an instantaneous rich lather that immediately penetrates to every part of hair and scalp, insuring a quick, thorough cleansing. Washed off just as quickly, the entire operation takes only a few moments. Contains nothing that can harm the hair; leaves no harshness or stickiness—just a sweet cleanliness.

Both preparations come in odd-shaped, very ornamental bottles, with sprinkler tops. Harmony Hair Beautifier, $1.00. Harmony Shampoo, 50c. Both guaranteed to satisfy you in every way, or your money back. Sold in this community only at our store. The Rexall Store—one of the more than 7,000 leading drug stores of the United States, Canada and Great Britain, which own the big Harmony laboratories, Toronto, where the celebrated Harmony Perfumes and Toilet Preparations are made.

Farmers Will Demand That the Tariff Be Reduced

TO SEE PREMIER TO-DAY

OTTAWA, Dec. 16. — Representatives of the Western Grain Growers, together with Ontario delegates to the National Council of Agriculture, arrived yesterday and will be received to-day by the Prime Minister and the Cabinet. They are here to demand the removal of the duties upon wheat, flour and wheat products, free agricultural implements; a reduction in, or removal of the duties upon farm products, lumber and cement, and an immediate increase in the British preference.

A number of the matters to be dealt with to-day in respect of the tariff are to be found in the resolutions passed by the Western Grain Growers at Brandon last October, which declared as follows:

"1. That we urge the Parliament of Canada to increase at its first session, the British preference to at least 50 per cent., and to provide for a gradual increase from year to year until we have free trade with Great Britain in five years.

"2. That Parliament accept the offer of the United States of a free interchange of all agricultural and animal products between Canada and the United States.

"3. That all foodstuffs not provided for in the above offer of the United States be transferred to the free list.

"4. That agricultural implements, lumber and cement be transferred to the free list.

"5. That, pending the passage of legislation asked for herein, any duties now imposed under the Canadian customs tariff, which are the means of countervailing duties being imposed against any food products of the country by any foreign country, be immediately removed.

"6. That any tariff or trade concession granted to any other country be immediately extended to Great Britain."

Among the delegates are: C. E. Flatt, Tantallon, Sask.; J. A. Maharg, Moose Jaw, and F. W. Green Moose Jaw, representing the Saskatchewan Grain Growers' Association; E. Carswell, Red Deer; Rice Sheppard, Edmonton representing the United Farmers of Alberta; R. C. Henders, Culross; Roderick Mackenzie, Winnipeg, representing the Manitoba Grain Growers' Association; James McEwing, Drayton, and W. S. Good, Brantford, representing the Ontario Grange.

MAY FINISH PACT.

Fisheries Treaty With U. S. Again Under Discussion.

OTTAWA, Dec. 16.—What may be regarded as the final effort of Canada and the United States to reach an amicable and mutually satisfactory agreement as to the regulations for the future government of international inland fisheries, commenced here yesterday, with the arrival in Ottawa of Dr. Hugh M. Smith, chief commissioner of United States fisheries. If the present negotiations fail, then each country will just have to get along as best it can under the present friction-creating conditions.

Some three years ago the Washington authorities appointed Prof. David Starr Jordan as a commissioner to open negotiations with Ottawa, with a view to finding some satisfactory basis of agreement. A treaty was drafted but the U. S. refused to sign it without extensive alterations.

Some time ago Hon. J. D. Hazen warned the Washington authorities that unless they showed some sincere inclination to remove the difficulties which stood in the way of coming to an agreement, Canada would withdraw from the treaty altogether.

Recently President Wilson has shown evidence of a desire to reach an agreement, and the presence in Ottawa of Dr. Hugh Smith points to a speedy termination of the difficulties.

WAS OLDEST ORANGEMAN.

William Scott Dies In Milverton In 94th Year.

MILVERTON, Ont., Dec. 16.—Wm. Scott, the oldest Orangeman in the Province of Ontario, and probably in the Dominion of Canada, died at his home near here on Saturday, and his remains were interred in Greenwood Cemetery, Milverton, yesterday, under the auspices of the L.O.L. of the District of Mornington, of which he was for many years an honorary member. A large concourse of Orangemen were present, among them being Sheriff Magwood of Stratford, who took part in the service at the grave.

Mr. Scott was a native of Sligo, Ireland, and came to Canada in 1820. He is survived by his wife, but has no blood relations in America. He was in his ninety-fourth year and had been a member of the Orange Association for over seventy-four years.

Committed For Trial.

ST. CATHARINES, Dec. 16. — Dr. Hall, veterinary surgeon and agent of the General Animal Insurance Co. for Grimsby, and Harry Smith, of the same village, were yesterday committed for trial by Magistrate Campbell on the charge of conspiring to defraud the company out of $520 on account of a stallion named Don, valued at $1,000. No evidence was offered for the defence.

Great Destruction Reported From New Hebrides Islands.

MELBOURNE, Australia, Dec. 16. —Despatches from Noumea, capital of the French Colony of New Caledonia, report that great destruction has been wrought by a volcanic eruption in Ambrim Island, of the New Hebrides group. Six new craters were formed on the west coast Dec. 6. The following day Mount Minnie collapsed and many villages were overwhelmed by streams of molten lava. The majority of the inhabitants sought refuge in canoes and boats, and a steamer rescued 500 of them.

No casualties are reported among the white population, whose numbers are small, but it is feared that many natives in the interior perished.

Ambrim Island is about 50 miles in circumference and is somewhat sparsely inhabited.

Violent Shock In Japan.

TOKIO, Dec. 16.—The strongest earthquake in several years occurred here yesterday and was felt over an extensive area. Houses in Tokio and Yokohama were violently rocked and the people were greatly alarmed. So far as can be learned there were no casualties, and the damage was confined to windows and bric-a-brac.

The yearly average earthquake record for Tokio is 96, according to the result of observations extending over 286 years. During the last 52 years only two severe shocks have been experienced, one in 1884 and the other ten years later.

Circumstantial Evidence.

"You say you met the defendant on a street car and that he had been drinking and gambling," said the attorney for the defence during the cross-examination.

"Yes," replied the witness.

"Did you see him take a drink?"

"No."

"Did you see him gambling?"

"No."

"Then how do you know," demanded the attorney, "that the defendant had been drinking?"

"Well," explained the witness, "he gave the conductor a blue chip for his car fare and told him to keep the change."

"That Affair Next Door"

By ANNA KATHARINE GREEN

"As he made no effort to conceal his feelings, she must have become immediately aware of the change which had taken place in them. But however affected by this, she gave no sign of relenting in her purpose. On the contrary, she persisted in her determination to retain his letter, and when he remonstrated with her and threatened to leave town before her marriage, she retorted by saying that, if he did so, she would show his letter to his brother as soon as the minister had made them one. This threat seemed to affect Franklin deeply, and while it intensified his feeling of animosity towards her, subjected him for the moment to her whim. He stayed in Four Corners till the ceremony was performed, but was such a gloomy guest that all united in saying that he did the occasion no credit.

"So much for my work in Four Corners."

I had by this time become aware that Mr. Gryce was addressing himself chiefly to the Inspector, being gratified no doubt at this opportunity of presenting his case at length before that gentleman. But true to his special habits, he looked at neither of us, but rather at the fretted basket, upon the handle of which he tapped out his arguments as he quickly proceeded:

"The young couple spent the first months of their married life in Yonkers; so to Yonkers I went next. There I learned that Franklin had visited the place twice; both times, as I judge, upon a peremptory summons from her. The result was mutual fret and heartburning, for she had made no progress in her endeavours to win recognition from the Van Burnams; and even had had occasion to perceive that her husband's love, based as it was upon her physical attributes, had begun to feel the stress of her uneasiness and dissatisfaction. She became more anxious than ever for social recognition and distinction, and when the family went to Europe, consented to accompany her husband into the quiet retreat he thought best calculated to win the approbation of his father, only upon the assurance of better times in the fall and a possible visit to Washington in the winter. But the quiet to which she was subjected had a bad effect upon her. Under it she grew more and more restless, and as the time approached for the family's return, conceived so many plans for conciliating them that her husband could not restrain his disgust. But the worst plan of all and the one which undoubtedly led to her death, he never knew. This was to surprise Franklin at his office and, by renewed threats of showing this old love-letter to his brother, win an absolute promise from him to support her in a fresh endeavour to win his father's favour. You see she did not understand Silas Van Burnam's real character, and persisted in holding the most extravagant views concerning Franklin's ascendancy over him as well as over the rest of the family. She even went so far as to insist in the interview, which Jane Pigot overheard, that it was Franklin himself who stood in the way of her desires, and that if he chose he could obtain for her an invitation to take up her abode with the rest of them in Gramercy Park. To Duane Street she therefore went before making her appearance at Mrs. Parker's; a fact which was not brought out at the inquest; Franklin not disclosing it of course, and the clerk not recognising her under the false name she chose to give. Of the details of this interview I am ignorant, but as she was closeted with him some time, it is only natural to suppose that conversation of some importance took place between them. The clerk who works in the outer office did not, as I have said, know who she was at the time, but he noticed her face when she came out, and he declares that it was insolent with triumph, while Mr. Franklin, who was polite enough or calculating enough to bow her out of the room, was pale with rage, and acted so unlike himself that everybody observed it. She held his letter in her hand, a letter easily distinguishable by the violet-coloured seal on the back, and she filliped with it in a most aggravating way as she crossed the floor, pretending to lay it down on Howard's desk as she went by and then taking it up again with an arch look at Franklin, pretty enough to see but hateful in its effect on him. As he went back to his own room his face was full of anger, and such was the effect of this visit on him that he declined to see any one else that day. She had probably shown such determination to reveal his past perfidy to her husband, that his fears were fully aroused at last, and he saw he was not only likely to lose his good name but the esteem with which this younger and evidently much-be was accustomed to be regarded by this younger and evidently much-loved brother.

"And now, considering his intense pride, as well as his affection for Howard, do you not see the motive whier this seemingly good man had for putting his troublesome sister-in-law out of existence? He wanted that letter back, and to obtain it had to resort to crime. Or such is my present theory of this murder, Miss Butterworth. Does it correspond with yours?"

XXXJ.

SOME FINE WORK.

"O perfectly!" I assented, with just the shade of irony necessary to rob the assertion of its mendacity. "But go on, go on. You have not begun to satisfy me yet. You did not stop with finding a motive for the crime I am sure."

"Madam, you are a female Shylock; you will have the whole of the bond or none."

"We are not here to draw comparisons," I retorted. "Keep to the subject, Mr. Gryce; keep to the subject."

He laughed; laid down the little basket he held, took it up again, and finally resumed:

"Madam, you are right; we did not stop at finding a motive. Our next step was to collect evidence directly connecting him with the crime."

"And you succeeded in this?"

My tone was unnecessarily eager, this was all so unaccountable to me; but he did not appear to notice it.

"We did. Indeed the evidence against him is stronger than that against his brother. For if we ignore the latter part of Howard's testimony, which was evidently a tissue of lies, what remains against him? Three things: his dogged persistency in not recognising his wife in the murdered woman; the receiving of the house keys from his brother; and the fact that he was seen on the stoop of his father's house at an unusual hour in the morning following this murder. Now what have we against Franklin? Many things.

"First:

"That he can no more account for the hours between half-past eleven on Tuesday morning and five o'clock on the following Wednesday morning than his brother can. In one breath he declares that he was shut up in his rooms at the hotel, for which no corroborative evidence is forthcoming; and in another that he was a tramp after his brother, which seems equally improbable and incapable of proof.

"Second:

"That he and not Howard was the man in a linen duster, and that he and not Howard was in possession of the keys that night. As these are serious statements to make, I will give you my reasons for them. They are distinct from the recognition of his person by the inmates of the Hotel D——, and added to that recognition, form a strong case against him. The janitor who has charge of the offices in Duane Street, happening to have a leisure moment on the morning of the day on which Mrs. Van Burnam was murdered, was making the most of it by watching the unloading of a huge boiler some four doors below the Van Burnam warehouse. He was consequently looking intently in that direction when Howard passed him, coming from the interview with his brother in which he had been given the keys. Mr. Van Burnam was walking briskly, but finding the sidewalk blocked by the boiler to which I have alluded, paused for a moment to let it pass, and being greatly heated, took out his handkerchief to wipe his forehead. This done, he moved on, just as a man dressed in a long duster came up behind him, stopping where he stopped and picking up from the ground something which the first gentleman had evidently dropped. This last man's figure looked more or less familiar to the janitor, so did the duster, and later he discovered that the latter was the one which he had seen hanging for so long a time in the little disused closet under the warehouse stairs. Its wearer was Franklin Van Burnam, who, as I took pains to learn, had left the office immediately in the wake of his brother, and the object he picked up was the bunch of keys which the latter had inadvertently dropped. He may have thought he lost them later, but it was then and there they slipped from his pocket. I will here add that the duster found by the hackman in his coach has been identified as the one missing from the closet just mentioned.

"Third:

"The keys with which Mr. Van Burnam's house was unlocked were found hanging in their usual place by noon of the next day. They could not have been taken there by Howard, for he was not seen at the office after the murder. By whom then were they returned, if not by Franklin?

"Fourth:

"The issue, for the possession of which I believe this crime to have been perpetrated, was found by us in a supposedly secret drawer of this gentleman's desk. It was much crumpled, and bore evidences of having been rather rudely dealt with since it was last seen in Mrs. Van Burnam's hand in that very office.

"But the fact which is most convincing, and which will tell most heavily against him, is the unexpected discovery of the murdered lady's rings, also in this same desk. How you became aware that anything of such importance could be found there, knowing even the exact place in which they were secreted, I will not stop to ask at this moment. Enough that when your maid entered the Van Burnam offices and insisted with so much ingenuousness that she was expected by Mr. Van Burnam; and would wait for his return, the clerk most devoted to my interests became distrustful of her intentions, having been told to be on the lookout for a girl in grey or a lady in black with puffs on each side of two very sharp eyes. You will pardon me Miss Butterworth. He therefore kept his eyes on the girl and presently espied her stretching out her hand towards a hook at the side of Mr. Franklin Van Burnam's desk. As it is upon this hook this gentleman strings his unanswered letters, the clerk rose from his place as quickly as possible, and coming forward with every appearance of polite solicitude,—did she not say he was polite, Miss Butterworth? — inquired what she wished, thinking she was after some letter, or possibly anxious for a specimen of some one's handwriting. But she gave him no other reply than a blush and a confused look, for which you must rebuke her. Miss Butterworth, if you are going to continue to employ her as your agent in these very delicate affairs. And she made another mistake. She should not have left so abruptly upon detection, for that gave the Clerk an opportunity to telephone for me, which he immediately did. I was at liberty, and I came at once, and, after hearing his story, decided that what was of interest to you must be of interest to me, and so took a look at the letters she had handled, and discovered, what she also must have discovered before she let them slip from her hand, that the five missing rings we were all in search of were were hanging on this same hook amid the sheets of Franklin's correspondence. You can imagine, madam, my satisfaction, and the gratitude which I felt towards my agent, who by his quickness had retained to me the honours of a discovery which it would have been injurious to my pride to have had confined entirely to yourself."

"I can understand," I repeated, and trusted myself to say no more, lest as my secret felt upon my lips.

"You have read Poe's story of the filigree basket?" he now suggested, running his finger up and down the filigree work he himself held.

I nodded. I saw what he meant at once.

"Well, the principle involved in that story explains the presence of the rings in the midst of this stack of letters. Franklin Van Burnam, if he is the murderer of his sister-in-law, is one of the subtlest villains this city has ever produced, and, knowing that, if once suspected, every secret drawer and professed hiding-place within his reach would be searched, he put these dangerous evidences of his guilt in a place so conspicuous, and yet so little likely to attract attention, that even so old a hand as myself did no think of looking for them there."

He had finished, and the look he gave me was for myself alone.

"And now, madam," said he, "that I have stated the facts of the case against Franklin Van Burnam, has not the moment come for you to show your appreciation of my good nature by a corresponding show of confidence on your part?"

I answered with a distinct negative "There is too much that is unexplained as yet in your case against Franklin," I objected. "You have shown that he had motive for the murder and that he was connected more or less intimately with the crime we are considering, but you have by no means explained all the phenomena accompanying this tragedy. How, for instance, do you account for Mrs. Van Burnam's whim in changing her clothing, if her brother-in-law, instead of her husband, was her companion at the Hotel D—?"

You see I was determined to know the whole story before introducing Miss Oliver's name into this complication.

He who had seen through the devices of so many women in his day did not see through mine, perhaps because he took a certain professional pleasure in making his views on this subject clear to the attentive Inspector. At all events, this is the way he responded to my half-curious half-ironical question:

"A crime planned and perpetuated for the purpose I have just mentioned, Miss Butterworth, could not have been a simple one under any circumstances. But conceived as this one was by a man of more than ordinary intelligence, and carried out with a skill and precaution little short of marvellous, the features which it presents are of such a varying and subtle character that only by the exercise of a certain amount of imagination can they be understood at all. Such an imagination I possess, but how can I be sure that you do?"

AN HISTORIC EDIFICE.

Old Christ Church, Amherstburg, Is Being Restored By Rector.

One of the most interesting of the journeys taken by the members of the Ontario Historical Society during their recent convention at Chatham was the trip to Old Christ Church, Amherstburg. Having served as a sanctuary for one hundred and four years, this venerable brick edifice may well be called the mother of Episcopal Church life in the Province of Ontario. Within the past two years steps have been taken to restore the building and render it safe for public worship, and under the enthusiastic assistance of the present rector, Rev. A. B. Famey, the work has been "well and truly" done. Built at a time when all buildings were the product of men's hands alone, the old brick church has stood remarkably well the strain of wind and weather for a century. When the ceiling was removed during the process of restoration, the frame of the roof, constructed of massive, hand-hewn beams, was found to be as sound as the day on which it was laced together by the builders of a bygone time. A new ceiling has been put in, the walls have been reglazed and decorated with symbolic designs, and the old worn floor has been covered with a preserving element, durable and noiseless. The following extracts from The Amherstburg Echo of March 3, 1912, are of interest as relating to the proposed restoration:

"There will be about seventeen lights hung from the ceiling at intervals of about ten feet. The work on these is being done by hand, in keeping with the ceiling, and the lights will be of wrought-iron lantern design, open at the top and bottom, but with sides of amber-colored cathedral glass, that will be restful to the eyes and will throw a golden glow throughout the whole interior. Each face of the light will be divided in nine squares, separated by wrought-iron bands.

"It has been discovered that the inner doorway of the vestibule was at one time the outer door. It has a very fine colonial fanlight, and the doors are perfect specimens of stately colonial architecture. It is proposed to move them to the outer doorway, refinish them, and preserve them for another hundred years to the people of the town who have so many memories connected with them. The thought that Christ Church, Amherstburg, is the oldest brick structure in use in Ontario has stimulated the people to make it a historic and memorable spot for all time to come."

England's Lord Chancellors.

The lord chancellor under the early English kings used to live in the palace and had a regular daily allowance, his wages, as it appeared from one of the records, being 5 shillings, a simnel cake, two seasoned simnels, one sextary of clear wine, one sextary of household wine, one large wax candle and forty small pieces of candle. In the time of Henry II. the modern treasury spirit appears to have begun to walk abroad, for in the records the allowance of 5 shillings appears as if subjected to a reduction if he dined away from the palace and was thereby forced to provide extras, then indeed he got his 5 shillings. But if he dined at home he was not allowed more than 3 shillings and sixpence.—London Answers.

Cossack Troubadours.

Like the Spaniards, the Cossacks have a class of troubadours who instead of walking from village to village ride on horseback with their gusly and give performances of music and song in front of houses. They are treated with respect and rewarded generously according to their talents. There are also women troubadours among the Cossacks, and their performances in the pleasant surroundings of a garden or in a street scene are impressive.

British Death Duties.

Death duties on property in the British Isles, whether belonging to natives or foreigners, are progressive ranging upward from 1 per cent on estates of the value of between £500 and $2,500, 2 per cent between $2,500 and $5,000, 3 per cent between $5,000 and $25,000 and 15 per cent on estates of $5,000,000 and over.

There are also legacy and succession duties, varying in percentage.

ADVERTISE IN THE EXAMINER

A GORGEOUS STATE COACH

The Lord Mayor of London Goes to Inauguration in a Grand Vehicle

In the eyes of the children the state coach for the use of the "Right honorable, the Lord Mayor of the City of London," seems to have come straight out of fairyland. Its magnificence and grandeur are by no means imaginative or mythical.

Built in the year 1757 it was first used by Sir Charles Asgil, then Lord Mayor, on November 9th of that year. Seated in its splendid interior he was drawn by six fine roan horses to Three Cranes and, attended by barges of the City Companies, proceeded from there to Westminster. It was at Westminster that the inauguration ceremonies were performed in those days.

The beautiful panels of the state coach were painted by the famous Cipriani, and the heraldic designs by Cotton, one of the first members of the Royal Academy. Cotton was also coach-painter to King George III. The under-carriage is very richly carved and gilt. The body is suspended by four leather braces fastened with beautifully-designed gilt-buckles, which bear the City arms.

The state harness, after being in use for one hundred years, was renewed at the time of the Coronation of King George V., at a cost of $1,175. It weighed 117 pounds for each horse, and it was found difficult to procure horses strong enough to carry it, in addition to pulling the coach, which itself weighs four tons. The new harness weighs about one-third less than the old. Some of the one-hundred-year-old brass mountings are used on the new set, the remainder rest in the Guildhall Museum.

Mathematics in the Orient

The Japanese mathematician, Yoshio Mikami, writing of the development of mathematics in the Far East showed that the Orientals on the Pacific were already acquainted, as early as the third and fourth centuries of our era, with facts and theories in mathematics which were unknown in Europe several centuries later. As early as the middle or latter half of the sixth century the Chinese were in possession of all the rules for handling vulgar fractions, being in this a thousand years or so ahead of Europe.

Farmers in the British Isles suffer an annual loss of $160,000,000 through bad weather. Hailstorms alone cost the whole agricultural world about $300,000,000 a year.

Errand boys were so scarce in Ashford, Kent, that a tradesman offered silver watches as an inducement to applicants.

Thought Nothing But Death Would End Her Misery.

WAS TROUBLED WITH Heart Disease.

Mrs. J. D. Talbut, Owen Sound, Ont., writes:—"I have been a great sufferer from heart disease, and leaking valves. I have had resource to every kind of treatment I could think might help me, including the skill of several doctors. I suffered so for years that at times I have felt that nothing but death could end my misery. I was advised by a friend, who had suffered untold pain and misery, just as I had, and had been cured by Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, to give them a trial, so I decided to do so. I am delighted with the result, as I am now completely cured, and can eat and sleep as I have not done for years.

You are at liberty to use my name at any time as I am convinced they are the best pills on the market for any form of heart disease."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50 cents per box, or 3 boxes for $1.25, at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

A SIAMESE ACTRESS

The people of Siam are passionately fond of music, the theater and dancing. The plays, as staged in Siam to-day, are very different from ours. They make no effort to illustrate the thoughts and actions of the people of to-day. The subjects are all myths and fairy stories taken from the oldest Siamese traditions and folklore. The serious male parts are played by women. The costumes are made up largely of spangles and jeweled ornaments.

A great part of the entertainment consists of dances intended to portray love, victory or defiance and ballets of fantastically dressed women and men march and dance back and forth, representing armies, processionals and flights of angels. The woman in the picture, who wears wings, represents an angel.

SIMPLIFIED SPELLING

Immigration Commissioner Thinks It May Aid in Naturalization

In an interview with Mr. J. Bruce Walker, Commissioner of Immigration at Winnipeg, the conversation turned on the assimilation of the large foreign immigration.

"For the assimilation of varied nationalities nothing can equal," said Mr. Walker, "the use of a common language. But the English language has to them a strange pronunciation and a freakish method of spelling, so they seek to retain their respective mother tongues. My experience among foreigners has brought this conviction that in the Canadian west, into which natives of Europe are pouring in annually increasing numbers, the need of some rational simplified form of spelling is a necessity."

"What objections do you find to the reform of spelling?"

"Well, the matter is not generally considered. The teacher struggles through the labyrinth of difficulty in teaching the foreign youngster because he is allowed or knows no easier method. I am in hopes that the propaganda of the Simplified Spelling Society will permeate the educationists of our west and awaken them to the need of some reasonable principle of spelling."

WHY KEEP ON COUGHING?
Here Is A Remedy That Will Stop It

Do you realize the danger in a neglected cough?

Then why don't you get rid of it?

Yes, you can shake it off, even though it has stuck to you for a long time, if you go about it right.

Keep out in the fresh air as much as you can, build up your strength with plenty of wholesome food, and take Na-Dru-Co Syrup of Linseed, Licorice and Chlorodyne.

TREASURERS AT BUCKINGHAM

Three Vaults at the Palace Contain Many Valuables

The treasure vaults on the basement floor of Buckingham Palace are three in number, and their contents are of almost fabulous value, comprising the vast accumulation of jewels, armor, statuary, pictures, furniture and other art objects which have come into the possession of the royal family through various channels during the last two centuries, and for which no accommodation can be found in the public and state apartments of the royal residences. The contents of the third vault may almost be termed priceless. Of gold ornaments alone there are over six thousand, weighing considerably over a ton in all, and many individual items would bring thousands of dollars in the open market. Most of these treasures came to Queen Victoria as gifts from other sovereigns.

Killed at Prayers

While saying her prayers on the bed, a three-year-old child named Winifred Holman, of Eastbourne, rolled off on the floor and received injuries which proved fatal.

IF KIDNEYS AND BLADDER BOTHER

Take Salts to Flush Kidneys and neutralize irritating acids

Kidney and Bladder weakness result from uric acid, says a noted authority. The kidneys filter this acid from the blood and pass it on to the bladder, where it often remains to irritate and inflame, causing a burning, scalding sensation, or setting up an irritation at the neck of the bladder, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night. The sufferer is in constant dread, the water passes sometimes with a scalding sensation and is very profuse; again, there is difficulty in avoiding it.

Bladder weakness, most folks call it, because they can't control urination. While it is extremely anoying and sometimes very painful, this is really one of the most simple ailments to overcome. Get about four ounces of Jad Salts from your pharmacist and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast, continue this for two or three days. This will neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer is a source of irritation to the bladder and urinary organs which then act normally again.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, harmless, and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is used by thousands of folks who are subject to urinary disorders caused by uric acid irritation. Jad Salts is splendid for kidneys and causes no bad effects whatever.

Here you have a pleasant, effervescent lithia-water drink, which quickly relieves bladder trouble.

THE OWL TO FLOURISH

Bounty on Big Horned Species Removed in West

No more bounties will be paid by the British Columbia Government for the destruction of the big horned owl. This owl is supposed to be very destructive of game birds, and this may have been the case in the past, but the rabbits have now come back and the big horned owl finds himself once more in a land of plenty. As he is said to even prefer rabbit to grouse, there is no longer any particular object in having him destroyed.

The bounty, which was two dollars per owl, proved unexpectedly expensive, $18,000 being paid out in a few months. Some enterprising hunters are said to have made as much as a hundred and fifty or two hundred dollars a month from this source. Moreover, the government is convinced that a certain amount of fraud was practised and that the harmless little horned owl has frequently been made to do duty for his big horned cousin at two dollars per head.

MEDICINE IN CHINA

Very Unscientific Methods Are Employed by Native Doctors

We find in China a traditional system of medical practice of great antiquity, says a writer on the subject. No years of preparation are required for a Chinese practitioner. . . All he needs is a 'doctor-book'—a manual of prescriptions bought or inherited. He looks at the patient's tongue, feels his pulse, and, without further examination he is ready to turn over a few leaves of his book and announce the ailment and its remedies. They always feel the pulse in both wrists. That of the left arm is the indication for diseases of the heart, liver and kidneys; the right one belongs to the lungs, spleen and other organs. The liver consists of seven lobes and is the seat of the soul. If a dishonest man falls ill they diagnose a displaced heart, because a just and upright man's heart is always in the middle of his body.

A list of drugs in ordinary use would include cockroaches, rhinoceros skin, silk worms, crude calomel, asbestos, rhubarb, full grown roses, moths, maggots, centipedes, shell fish, caterpillars, toads, lizards, etc.

Much medical work is done in connection with work in the temples; lots are cast for the drug, and the prescription indicated by the idol is written down by the doctor and this comes with a double authority.

The chief surgical instrument is the acupuncture needle, used to produce counter-irritation. There are one hundred spots known to surgeons in which it can be stuck without causing immediate death. Often they do not hesitate to insert it in the eyes, lungs or abdomen. The results of such practice with unsterilized needles, in the filth and uncleanliness of the average Chinese home, may be easily imagined.

DR. WU TING FANG

Glating upon the glories of China. This man, at one time Chinese Minister to Washington, and noted the world over for the brilliance of his intellect, declares that China, having dropped the fetters of royalty, will become the greatest of all the nations of the earth. Education of the masses is needed, he declares. What a force China will be with three hundred millions of educated people!

Tips From Victims

Public executioners used to add very considerably to their official salaries by the collection of tips from their victims, and a man of any rank was expected to hand his executioner anything from $20 to $250. If the tip were liberal enough, it was possible to defeat the ends of justice. The famous Jack Ketch once confessed to having accepted $105 from a notorious criminal, in consideration of which he gave him an opportunity to slip off the scaffold and mingle with the crowd. Whereupon Ketch made a feint of pursuit, seized a white-faced little tailor from among the spectators and strung him up instead!

It is not generally known that the Port of London Authority keep a "staff of cats" to deal with the plague of rats at the docks. Five hundred cats are kept, and they are found to be far more effective than poison in the warfare with the rats.

NEW PAPER MATERIAL

Elephant Grass May Prove a Substitute For Wood Pulp

Almost every month of every year brings a report of the discovery in some distant part of the world of a new paper making material, which is expected to take the place of wood pulp. One of these discoveries was made in Uganda, Africa, and the Imperial Institute of London described in a report on the subject a series of experiments made with this new material, which is known as elephant grass. The marshlands of tropical Africa are thickly covered with this grass, which grows to a height of from six to ten feet and has proved a source of trouble and expense to agriculturists, as it grows rapidly after the shoots above ground have been burned or cut down. A sample of dried mature elephant grass was sent recently from Uganda to the Imperial Institute with the object of ascertaining its suitability for the manufacture of paper. The consignment, which weighed 177 pounds after being air dried, yielded a pulp of good color, composed of ultimate fibre rather longer than those of esparto grass and about the same length as those of bamboo pulp. It furnished a fairly good paper, which the British experts expect to be able to improve so as to make this material a suitable and probable substitute for wood pulp.

A PAGE OF THE BEST HUMOR OF THE WEEK

One the Milk Route.

"What are you giving your cows now in the way of galactagogues?" asked the Irvington professor of the milkman.

"Oh," said the milkman, who has just been graduated from Purdue and is not to be stumped by any Butler College pedagogue, "their sustenance is wholly of vegetable origin, rich in chlorophyl and opulent in butyraceous qualities."

"A pint, if you please," said the professor.

"Git up!" said the milkman.

The Price of Truth.

D. Cady Herrick, at a luncheon in Albany, said of the truth:

"The truth is rarely palatable. They who would bring overmuch truth to bear on their profession or trade are usually corrected after the manner of young Jones.

"Young Jones, a cub reporter on the Cinnaminson Scimitar, wound up an article about a town meeting with the words:

"'Mr. Smith then rose and made a few feeble remarks, during which the audience dispersed.'

"The editor of the Cinnaminson Scimitar snorted when he saw that sentence. He dashed his blue pencil thru it fiercely; then he wrote in its place:

"'The last speaker was our eminent fellow-citizen, Mr. George William Smith, who, in crisp and well-chosen sentences, reviewed the subject under discussion, giving to it that clear, well-considered and logical treatment which has made Colonel Smith one of the foremost orators of our state. The audience dispersed after expressing warm approval of his polished and eloquent utterances.'

"'There!' said the editor. 'That's how to do it!'

"But the reporter sullenly retorted,

"'The difference between our versions, sir, is the difference between the true and the false.'

"'No!' snorted the editor. 'It's the difference between old Smith dropping his paper and quitting me out of seventy-five cents a year or coming in here and buying one hundred marked copies to send round to his friends.'"—Washington Star.

Use For It.

"Pa, I don't see why I have to study algebra. I hate the stuff!"

"I know, my boy; but keep at it. You may have to figure out your income tax some day."—Detroit Free Press.

A Tryout.

Mrs. Newrich (who has advertised for a Christmas pianist): "So you are the music teacher that answered my advertisement?"

Pianist: "Yes, ma'am!"

Mrs. Newrich: "Well, sit down and play a couple of duets, so that I can see what you can do!"

The Reason.

"Why does Miss Screamditi always close her eyes when she sings?"

"Well, you know she is so tender hearted that she cannot bear to see any one suffer."

"Well, good-bye, old chap. When will you do us the pleasure of dining with us again?"

"Now if you like!"—Le Rire.

One Requirement.

"I don't see how it is," Jenkins began, eyeing the tramp and his performing dog with frank envy. "Here is this mongrel of yours doing all these tricks, and there is my dog, with a pedigree a yard long, that can't be taught a single thing! I've hammered at it till I'm tired, and he can't even be trusted on to roll over when he's told to."

"Well, sir, 'tain't so much the dog," the tramp replied confidentially. "You have to know more'n he does, or you can't learn him anything."

Proof Positive.

Merchant: "Have you collected the bill of Smith?"

Collector: "Have I collected it? I called at the house and found that seven Smiths lived there. Six declared they owed nothing, and the seventh kicked me out of the house."

Merchant: "That's the one! Go back and get the money!"

Oh! These Husbands!

Mrs. Muggins: "My husband is the laziest man on earth!"

Mrs. Guggins: "Do tell me! I wonder if he is lazier than Mr. Guggins."

Mrs. Muggins: "Indeed he is! Why, he even ordered soft coal for the furnace, because he thought it would be easier to shovel than hard coal!"

Upsetting Duck.

While visiting his uncle in the country, Wee Willie was much interested in watching the ducks "tipping up" in a pond.

"They're most all young ones, aren't they?" he observed to his uncle.

"Why, no, boy; they're old ones. What makes you think they are young?"

"I thought they were young," Willie explained, "because they don't seem to be able to swim without upsetting."

The Neighborly Spirit.

The neighborly spirit is an excellent thing to cultivate, altho not, perhaps, as it is cultivated in the following story:

"How do you like your new home?" a friend asked a man who had recently moved into the village.

"Pretty well!"

"Have you called on your neighbors yet?"

"No," the newcomer admitted. "I haven't! But I'm going to if any more of my wood is missing."

No Secret.

Von Ratz: "Yer know, I haven't paid out a cent for repairs on my old car."

O'Catz: "Yes, so the owner of De Stew's garage told me."

What He Did!

Grace: "I told him he must not see me any more."

Her Brother: "Well, what did he do?"

Grace: "Turned out the light!"

Somebody on the Job.

Wise Fresh: "No woman ever made a fool of me!"

Senior: "Who did?"

Next Move?

He: "Since you lost that bet, I think I can claim the forfeit."

She: "I really don't know what you mean; and, besides, some one might see us!"

Shiftless.

Subbubs—What kind of people are the Nextdoors?

Outaways—He's negligent and shiftless. The garden hose he loans me is full of holes, and he never thinks of fixing it!

Very Different.

"Thirty cents a word for this stuff?" exclaimed the editor. "I wouldn't think of it."

"Sir, I am a famous author."

"That's just it. You are a famous author, not a famous pugilist or a successful spitball pitcher."

THE SEVEN AGES OF MAN.

Transient.

"They tell me you've lost your hired man."

"Yep; best farmhand I ever had."

"Sho! What was th' matter?"

"Nothin'. John's a German, you know, and these here Germans hev what they call the wanderlust. It's somethin' that keeps 'em movin' from one place to t'other, an' don't let 'em stay long anywheres."

"How long had John been with you?"

"Only seven years."

Every One.

"Every one has some secret sorrow," said the philosophic friend. "Yes, even the fattest and jolliest of us has a skeleton in his midst."

A Free Thinker.

Tommy—Paw, what is a free thinker?

Paw—An unmarried man, my son.

How He Got It.

"I understand Whipple has adopted a political career."

"It was the other way about. A political machine adopted Whipple, and now his career is assured."

How He Did It.

"How do you always keep the office clock right?" the foreman was asked.

"I set it in the morning by the time the boss arrives and set it again at noon and night by the time the help quits."

Proof.

"It is wrong for an old man to marry a young fool."

"But how is he to know that she is a fool?"

"When she says yes to his proposal, he ought to know it."

Sequence.

Teacher: Now, children, can you tell me what are the national flowers of England?

Class: Roses.

Teacher: And France?

Class: Lilies.

Teacher: And Spain?

(Silence for a minute—then small voice at back of the schoolroom:)

"Bullrushes, ma'am."

Sometimes It Is.

It was the hour of the spelling lesson, and the teacher was pronouncing the words while the small persons in front of her laboriously wrote them down. According to the usual custom, she called for volunteers to define each word as it was written down.

"Lunch," she said. "Now, who can tell me what 'lunch' means?"

There was a long period of silence, then a hand went up.

"Well, Johnny, you may tell us what lunch is."

"A lunch," said Johnny, "is what you have for dinner when your father is away."

The Reason.

A little girl of seven or eight years stood one day before a closed gate. A gentleman passed slowly. The little girl turned and said to him:

"Will you please open this gate for me?"

The gentleman did so. Then he said kindly:

"Why, my child, couldn't you open the gate for yourself?"

"Because," said the little girl, "the paint's not dry yet."

When She Began to Think.

"Biddy," said Pat timidly, "did ye iver think o' marryin'?"

"Shure now," said Biddy, looking demurely at her shoe—"shure now, the subject has niver entered me mind at all, at all."

"It's sorry Oi am," said Pat, and he turned away.

"Wan minute, Pat, said Biddy, softly; "Ye've set me thinkin'."

Royal Gorge.

"Did you have a merry Christmas?" inquired the visitor.

"Yes, ma'am," replied Willie. "They had to send for the doctor."

What It Means.

Hip: "What does it mean to say that a girl is as pretty as a picture?"

Hop: "Merely a frame of mind."

Gigantic Laborer: "What did yer want to split about me to the foreman for?"

Smaller Laborer: "Well, I 'ad to; I got to do my dooty, ain't I?"

Gigantic Laborer: "Oh, doin' yer dooty, was yer? Well, Nelson lorst 'is eye thru doin' his dooty, didn't he?"

He Had His Opinion.

Willie: Grandma, I like Santa Claus better than God; he gives us nicer things.

Grandma: Why, dear, God gives us our hair, our teeth, and our eyes to see with.

Willie: He didn't give you much hair, and you bought your teeth, and you can't see without your glasses.

She: But God gave me lots of hair and nice teeth, but I lost them.

Willie: How did you lose them?

She: Well—er—God took them back.

Willie (solemnly): Grandma, God must be a awful Injun giver!

An Important Point.

Travel invariably adds charm to the conversation of an agreeable person, but sometimes renders a bore more tiresome than ever.

"And I stood there, Aunt Bessie," said the old lady's slow-speaking, but long-winded nephew, who had been talking on incessantly for the past two hours about his summer in Switzerland, until the old lady's eyes began to droop in the lamplight—"and there I stood, Aunt Bessie, with the abyss yawning in front of me."

"Francis," said Aunt Bessie, speaking as one who has kept long silence, "was that abyss a-yawning before you got there, or did it begin to yawn afterward?"

The Other Kind.

The captain of one of the ocean liners was showing a young lady friend of his over the ship during one of his eastward trips. As they passed thru the steerage, he called his fair companion's attention to a big, husky Irish emigrant, who was putting away with knife, fork, and spoon a bountiful supply of corned beef and cabbage, combined with other articles of diet. The captain, eyed him for a moment, then, addressing the young lady, said:

"Just look at the enormous amount of food that fellow is consuming."

"I supopse, captain," said the fair young girl, with a beaming smile, "he is what you sailors call a stowaway."

Bah!

Judge: "And you mean to say that you opened the pen and stole those sheep, and didn't know a thing about it? Why, man, where were your wits?"

Culprit: "I don't know, your honor. They must have been woolgathering!"

She Knew.

Fashionable Lady: "Give me five yards of this goods, please."

Clerk: "But madam, will not need more than half a yard for a veil."

Fashionable Lady: "I don't want it for a veil. I want it for a dinner gown!"

New Line of Art.

The red-headed and dissatisfied boarder was a large man, with a large appetite. After dinner he went out into the narrow yard, shook both his fists at the silvery moon, hurled several imprecations toward the congress of the stars, and burst forth into a picturesque and voluminous flood of abuse, which was devoted entirely to the landlady.

One of the other boarders, who had been at the house a long time, thereby accumulating a pallid look and a palate with corns on it, drew near timidly and ventured to ask what the special kick was.

"What's the matter?" echoed the large man. "That old dame's the first woman I ever knew who could literally paint food on a plate!"

A Retort.

Prof: "A fool can ask more questions than a wise man can answer."

Stude: "No wonder so many of us flunk in our exams!"

Home Campaign.

"Our stenographer is a wise one."

"How now?"

"While the other girls were fooling around at the sea-shore, getting themselves engaged to ribbon clerks, she remained on the job and got affianced to the boss."

Speed.

"Waiter," said Gloom, who had waited fifteen minutes for his soup, "have you ever been to the Zoo?"

"No, sir!"

"Well, you ought to go. You'd enjoy watching the tortoises whiz past."

The Limit.

"And is she really homely?" we ask.

"Homely!" is the reply. "Why, she's so homely that if you'd go to Canada to make love to her they'd surely deport you as looney!"

The Right Material.

Parent: "Agatha, I feel that you wer unwise in refusing young Mr. Simplisimis."

Agatha: "Why, mother, he's such a weak little man!"

Parent: "Exactly! The meek way in which he accepted his dismissal proved that he is of the stuff from which satisfactory husbands are made!"

Good Business.

Crawford: "So you approve of the custom of exchanging presents?"

Crabshaw: "Most assuredly! When we were married we got 17 sets of nut picks as wedding gifts, and we've managed to work them all off as Christmas presents."

Stage Property.

Dominie: "Did you get all the pretty things that were on the Christmas tree?"

Freddie: "Not much I didn't! They gave me only the ones they couldn't put away for next Christmas."

Different.

Aunt: "Bobby, how can you be so selfish with your apple? Don't you know that a pleasure shared is a pleasure doubled?"

Bobby: "Yes, but an apple shared is halved!"

Unreliable.

"What do you call your dog?"

"Stock market."

"What a peculiar name! Any particular reason?"

"I should say so. Most unreliable dog you ever saw. You can never tell what he's going to do next."

Reducing the Tax.

Manufacturer: "What we must do now, my boy, is find some way of reducing the tax on silk stockings."

His Son and Heir: "I have it, father! Give a bottle of anti-fat with each pair."

Magistrate: What! You knew that the lady's necklace was made of imitation pearls! Then why did you steal it?

Swell Mobsman: Well, you see, I knew how pleased she would be if anyone took it for the real thing.

Advertising Pays.

"Does advertising pay? I lost a five-dollar bill on the street."

"Well?"

"I advertised, and so far I have received three five-dollar bills."

Post Mortem.

I suppose," said the sympathetic neighbor, "that you will erect a handsome monument to your husband's memory?"

"To his memory?" echoed the tearful widow. "Why poor John hadn't any. I was sorting over some of his clothes today and I found a pocketful of letters I had given him to post."

A Bulgarian officer who had lost a leg in the recent campaign was complaining of his hard case to a civilian. "At all events," the latter said, consolingly, "you have the happiness of thinking that by your efforts your countrymen were enabled to plant a foot in Turkish territory." "Perhaps," replied the officer, "but I still regret it was mine."

Film Company's Manager: Well, what can I do for you?

Caller: I have here a tragedy in blank verse, sir, which I sent to Mr Herbert Tree, but he has returned it with the note that the lines would have more success in a cinema. Can you do anything for me?

He: "Women have better complexions than men."

She: "Naturally!"

He: "Oh, no, artificially——"

Ahem!

"Waiter," ordered the fussy-looking customer, sniffing the air suspiciously, "never mind bringing that order. I never can eat when there's a smell of fresh paint around."

"If you'll just wait a few minutes," replied the waiter, "them two young ladies will be going."

Serene Confidence.

"I suppose," said the employer, "you think you could teach me to run my own business."

"Probably," replied young Mr. Freshwell. "But it would take time."

Even Worse.

Husband: "My love, we must get rid of that cook. Did you ever see a worse-looking chop than the one I've just put on my plate?"

Wife: "Yes, dear; the one you've just put on mine!"

One on Father.

"James, there's a burglar down stairs! I'm going for help."

"Wait a minute, I'll go with you."

Hostess (to young guest): You won't have another piece of pie, Bobbie; why, you must be suffering from loss of appetite.

Bobbie: No'm; I'm suffering from a promise to my mother.

Poor Papa!

Mrs. Crawford: "How's your Christmas money coming out?"

Mrs. Crabshaw: "Splendidly! I've all my presents bought except one for my husband, and I've thirty cents left."

The Lesser Evil.

Briggs: "You must have a lot of trouble keeping your wife dressed up in the height of style."

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

Adelia York's Pride

One Good Deed Deserves Another

By CLARISSA MACKIE

Adelia York looked very despairingly around her immaculately clean and quite bare pantry. Cooking utensils were arranged in orderly neatness, and the everyday china was shining on its particular shelf, but of provisions there were none to mention.

The bread box was empty as well as the cake box and the cooky can. The tea canister held only a dust of tea on the bottom, and the coffee jar had been empty for two weeks.

This was the day that Adelia had held out against for weeks. Little by little her store of ready money had dwindled until at last there remained only 15 cents in her little beaded purse.

Adelia was proud, and she was now poor, since she had received a letter from New York saying that the railroad stock whose dividends provided her modest income was quite worthless now. Without the semiannual dividend, which was due now, Adelia was penniless. She owned the little house where she lived, for she had inherited it from Aunt Rebecca York, whom she had nursed through an irritable and eccentric old age and whose death did not bring to light half of the securities which her will had named as Adelia's portion.

"I must go to Mr. Brown and see if I cannot get a loan on the house," sighed Adelia as she closed the pantry door and sank weakly into a rocking chair.

To her dismay, the office door was locked and a card on the door said that Mr. Brown had gone to Albany on business and would return two days later.

Adelia smiled bitterly as she turned away. Mr. Brown had been her last hope. He was the principal business man of the little village, and to none other would she have confided the desperate condition of her affairs. Foolish she might have been, absurdly proud she undoubtedly was, but the Yorks were all that way, and Adelia was a York to the very marrow of her [illegible]

She stepped slowly up the brick-paved street toward her little home now and then pausing to give greeting to some friend or neighbor.

Miss Cherry Downs popped her head out of the door and urged her to come in and stay for supper.

"I'm all alone, Adelia," she insisted "I'm going to have some warmed over succotash and a peach shortcake. I feel too mean for anything eating it alone."

Adelia flushed warmly, but she shook her head. "I'm sorry, Cherry, but I put some biscuits to raise, and I must get home at once. Thank you just the same," she ended, hurrying away.

Adelia hastened home, conscience stricken at the untruth she had spoken about the biscuit. Her pride was at the bottom of it all, she told herself remorsefully as she entered the house. Her mouth had watered at Cherry's invitation to supper, but pride had risen like a wall before her.

"I wasn't too proud to tell a lie." She lashed her conscience with this thought.

She felt faint and cold and almost ill from lack of food. The hens had suddenly ceased to lay, and she was glad of it. She had revolted against eggs, but they had kept up her strength.

Adelia went out to the back porch to bring in her bread and tea which the groceryman must have delivered by this time. There were some cans of fruit in the cellar left over from last winter. She decided that she would have a cup of tea and some bread and beach plum jam for her supper.

On the wooden bench on the back porch was a big basket, and it was generously heaped with packages and parcels of groceries.

Adelia gasped. The new man had made a mistake. He had left somebody else's order, and her miserable pittance of bread and tea had gone elsewhere.

She lugged the basket into the kitchen and locked the door. Then Adelia York did a strange thing. She put all the packages away in her pantry and hid the basket in the cellar. Whap she panted up the stairs once more she looked into the pantry and made inventory of the provisions. There were flour and sugar and butter and baking powder, tea and coffee and crackers and rice and cereal, jars and cans of dried beef and codfish, and wrapped in a separate paper was a fine porterhouse steak.

Adelia stood with locked fingers and compressed lips. These things belonged to her neighbor, Mrs. Mason. The Masons were generous livers. What would Mrs. Mason think of her? What would any one think of her?

Adelia's pride forbade her giving in to her pleading conscience. She stepped briskly around, her red lips closed in a tight line of resistance, preparing the evening meal. When she sat down to it she ate heartily, eating the juicy meat and drinking the fragrant coffee until her hunger was appeased.

It was not until she had washed the dishes and put them away and sat down with folded hands that Adelia actually realized the enormity of her offense.

The next morning she arose very early, and without eating a morsel she went to the china cupboard in the dining room and took down Aunt Rebecca's britannia teapot. This teapot was Adelia's most cherished heirloom and had belonged to her grandmother before Aunt Rebecca possessed it.

Mrs. Mason had admired the teapot more than once and had hinted that if Adelia ever desired to sell it she would like to have an opportunity to become its owner.

"It will hurt me more than anything else to give this up," said Adelia to herself as she wiped off the shining treasure, "but I guess that pride of mine will have to pay for it. I shall give it to Annie Mason right now in exchange for those things, and I shan't accept anything more than the value of that food. I've often seen grandmother pour tea from it, but Aunt Rebecca never used it that I remember. It's odd how she asked for it the day before she died and went to sleep with it in her hands. Poor Aunt Rebecca! She was so eccentric. But she mean't well, I'm sure."

Wrapping the britannia teapot in her little red shawl, Adelia went through the orchard to the little gate in the fence that opened into Mrs. Mason's vegetable garden.

Annie Mason was on her knees pulling beets. Her rosy face grew rosier when she saw Adelia standing there pale and ill looking.

"What is it, Adelia?" she asked quickly. "Is anything the matter?" She sat back on her heels and shook the earth from a monster beet root.

Adelia's voice trembled with emotion.

"I've got to see you alone, Annie," she said hurriedly. "It's very important."

Mrs. Mason arose with difficulty, for she was very stout, and with a troubled expression on her comely face she led the way to the house and into the sitting room.

"There ain't a soul to home this morning. They've all gone off, Adelia. What 'on earth's the matter?" She dropped into a chair and waved Adelia into another.

Adelia unwrapped the shawl and set the britannia teapot on the table before she spoke.

"Annie Mason, I've got a confession to make," she said in a low, shamed tone. "I've been short of money ever since the railroad went to smash and they stopped dividends. I was too proud to borrow money on the house or to get in debt, and I've been hungry—just plain hungry. So yesterday when I got home I found a big basket of groceries on the back porch and—and—I was so hungry I kept them!"

She paused tragically.

"Well?" gasped Mrs. Mason.

"Well, they're yours, Annie Mason, I'm sure they are. All I had ordered was a loaf of bread and 10 cents' worth of tea, and I've kept your provisions, and to pay you back for them and to punish myself for being so wickedly proud I've brought over the britannia teapot. It's for you!" Adelia sank back in her chair, and her lips were very white.

Mrs. Mason said not a word then, but she flew around and brought a pillow for Adelia's head and a little glass of blackberry wine. When the color came into Adelia's cheeks Annie Mason leaned over her frail neighbor and spoke impressively.

"Now, don't you dare say a word, Adelia, till I'm through. I want you to know that I haven't forgotten how you helped me when the children had the measles last winter and all the kind and neighborly things you've done since we've been here. And somehow I knew that you was having some temporary trouble, and yesterday morning when I was giving my grocery order I said to the new man, 'My neighbor, Miss York, forgot to tell you all she wanted this morning, and you can just add these things to her order.' And then I made up a list, and those you found on the porch were your own, Adelia York. I won't hear a word against it! What's the use of having neighbors if they can't help each other out? 'Neighbor' means to be 'near to,' and the time to be near to is when we're in trouble. Don't you dare cry, Adelia York!"

Mrs. Mason was crying herself as she spoke, and after she and Adelia had mingled their tears and had grown a little calmer the older woman suggested that they drink a cup of tea made in the britannia teapot.

Adelia dried her eyes and smiled, and Annie Mason went to the kitchen sink to wash out the teapot.

"The spout's all stopped up, Adelia," she called. "Just bring me that knitting needle off the table, will you?"

"I declare, it's stuffed with paper!" she exclaimed as she pried with the needle. "What the land!" She drew forth the needle and with it a wet and crumpled roll of paper.

Adelia opened it carefully. "Aunt Rebecca must have put something in it," she said in a dazed tone as she flattened out the engraved certificates of stock.

"I'll bet it's those missing securities!" cried Annie Mason excitedly. "Well, your Aunt Rebecca would be likely to do that. Didn't you tell me she had the teapot in her room the day before she died?"

Adelia nodded. Her eyes were heavy with tears. "It's all so wonderful, Annie. I mean my awful pride and then my yielding to temptation to take your provisions, not knowing you had given them to me, and then my [illegible] myself by giving you the teapot and finding the securities. But there's one thing I value more than all the money, Annie Mason," she ended wistfully.

"What's that?" asked Mrs. Mason cheerily.

"The understanding what 'neighbor' means—being 'near to' each other," replied Adelia.

SMALLPOX AND DIPHTHERIA

There is less dread of these diseases now than formerly, because everybody knows they can be prevented, one by vaccination, the other with antitoxin. You can keep from having colds, grippe, bronchitis, pneumonia, catarrh, typhoid fever, rheumatism, and other dangerous cold-weather ailments, if you put your system into a proper healthy condition to resist disease.

Rexall Olive Oil Emulsion helps the body produce substances which prevent the growth of disease germs in the blood, thus putting the system into a healthy condition to resist disease. WAS SUBJECT TO SEVERE BRONCHITIS.

Doctors Only Gave Temporary Relief.

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup CURED HIM.

Bronchitis is generally the result of a cold caused by exposure to wet and inclement weather, and is a very dangerous inflammatory affection of the bronchial tubes. Neglected bronchitis is one of the most general causes of consumption, so cure it at once by the use of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup.

Mrs. C. G. Dring, Hamilton, Ont., writes:—"Our little boy has been subject to severe bronchitis ever since birth, and different doctors claimed to be only able to relieve him temporarily. A neighbor advised us to use Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, so I got a bottle, and after the third dose noticed a decided change, so kept on with it, and a couple of bottles were enough to completely cure him. Now we always keep a bottle on hand, and give it to him as soon as we notice him troubled with a cold, after which it disappears as if by magic. We recommend it to all our friends who find it is just as good as I say."

Price, 25 and 50 cents a bottle.

Be sure and get the genuine "Dr. Wood's" when you ask for it. Put up in a yellow wrapper, three pine trees the trade mark, and manufactured by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

"SLOW" IS RIGHT.

"My dear," said Mr. Bickers to his wife, "I saw in the papers today a decision of a Virginia court that the wife may, in some cases, be the head of the family." "John Henry," replied Mrs. Bickers, "the courts are sometimes very slow in finding out things!"

An Extension Telephone

IN THE RESIDENCE, if the main telephone is downstairs an Extension Telephone upstairs will add greatly to the usefulness and convenience of the service. Upstairs or downstairs a telephone will be close at hand and the necessity of stair-climbing eliminated.

Incoming and outgoing night messages are often emergency or highly important calls. An Extension Telephone upstairs in or near the sleeping apartment will save much time and add greatly to your comfort and protection.

IN THE OFFICE, an Extension Telephone on your desk will save you much time and annoyance. It is most inconvenient to be constantly called on to leave your desk to answer a telephone call at a telephone far removed from the work in hand.

With an Extension Telephone on your desk, telephone calls can be sent and received conveniently with practically no loss of time. With its aid you will be able to accomplish more during the busy office hours.

The additional expense of an EXTENSION TELEPHONE is trifling—only a few cents a day.

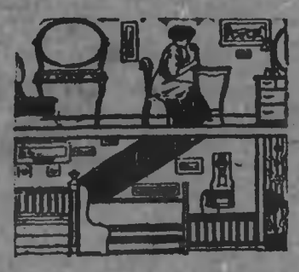
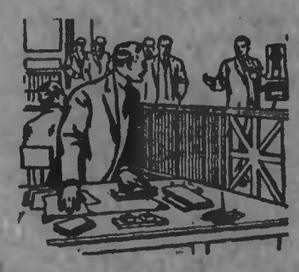
"SLOW" IS RIGHT.

"My dear," said Mr. Bickers to his wife, "I saw in the papers today a decision of a Virginia court that the wife may, in some cases, be the head of the family." "John Henry," replied Mrs. Bickers, "the courts are sometimes very slow in finding out things!"





An Extension Telephone

IN THE RESIDENCE, if the main telephone is downstairs an Extension Telephone upstairs will add greatly to the usefulness and convenience of the service. Upstairs or downstairs a telephone will be close at hand and the necessity of stair-climbing eliminated.

Incoming and outgoing night messages are often emergency or highly important calls. An Extension Telephone upstairs in or near the sleeping apartment will save much time and add greatly to your comfort and protection.

IN THE OFFICE, an Extension Telephone on your desk will save you much time and annoyance. It is most inconvenient to be constantly called on to leave your desk to answer a telephone call at a telephone far removed from the work in hand.

With an Extension Telephone on your desk, telephone calls can be sent and received conveniently with practically no loss of time. With its aid you will be able to accomplish more during the busy office hours.

The additional expense of an EXTENSION TELEPHONE is trifling—only a few cents a day.

How to Have the Best Cough Syrup and Save $2, by Making It at Home.

Cough medicines, as a rule, contain a large quantity of plain syrup. If you take two ounces of granulated sugar, add one cup of warm water and stir about 2 minutes, you have as good syrup as money could buy.

If you will then put 3½ ounces of Pinex (50 cents' worth) in a 16-ounce bottle, and fill it up with the Sugar Syrup, you will have as much cough syrup as you could buy ready made for $2.50. It keeps perfectly. Any housewife can easily prepare it in five minutes.

And you will find it the best cough syrup you ever used—even in whooping cough. You can feel it take hold—usually stops the most severe cough in 24 hours. It is just laxative enough, has a good tonic effect, and taste is pleasant. Take a teaspoonful every one, two or three hours.

It is a splendid remedy, too, for whooping cough, croup, hoarseness, asthma, chest pains, etc.

Pinex is the most valuable concentrated compound of Norway white pine extract, rich in guaiacol and all the healing pine elements. No other preparation will work in this formula.

This recipe for making cough remedy with Pinex and Sugar Syrup is now used and prized in thousands of homes in the United States and Canada. The plan has often been imitated, but never successfully.

A guaranty of absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded goes with this recipe, if the genuine Pinex is used. Your druggist has Pinex, or will get it for you, if you ask him. If not, send to The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

BRIEFS FROM THE WIRES.

The "Salome" company went on the rock at Hamilton after the performance at the Grand on Saturday.

Martin J. Sutton, head of the famous seed firm of Reading, Eng., is dead; aged 63. He was one of the best known agriculturists in England and France.

Jonas Howe, a prominent citizen of St. John, N.B., and for many years a member of the furniture manufacturing firm of J. & J. D. Howe, died yesterday; aged 74.

Four persons were killed and 24 injured by the crushing of a passenger train in a tunnel which collapsed during a slight earthquake near Chemnitz, Germany.

The steamer Cristobal left New York yesterday, heavily loaded with the first of the big guns to be sent to the Isthmus for the fortification of the Panama Canal.

Devere Hall, described as a lawyer, of Detroit, Mich., either leaped or fell ten storeys to his death from a room in the Hotel Marie Antoinette, New York, yesterday.

Ernest Tribelhorn, president of a New York real estate concern, was fined $500 and sentenced to 25 days in jail yesterday for renting an apartment which he knew was to be used as a disreputable resort.

"TIGER" IS LAUNCHED.

Mystery Ship of British Fleet Taken To Water at Clyde.

GLASGOW, Dec. 16.—The British battle cruiser Tiger, known as the "mystery ship," was launched yesterday at the Clyde Bank shipbuilding works, where her keel plate was laid on June 20, 1912.

Details of the new vessel have been guarded most strictly by the Admiralty. It is known, however, that her engines are designed to give the hitherto unattempted horsepower of 100,000, calculated to develop a speed which will eclipse that of any naval vessel afloat.

Unofficial reports give the Tiger's dimension as: Length over all 700 feet, beam 90 feet, displacement about 30,000 tons.

Her armament is said to comprise eight 13.5 inch guns in pairs in turrets on centre line, and 12 6-inch guns in casemants, with two 21-inch submerged torpedo tubes.

BYLAWS DEFEATED.

Chatham Ratepayers Refuse to Bonus Industries.

CHATHAM, Dec. 16.—Both the industrial site and Saginaw Match Co. bylaws were badly defeated yesterday by Chatham ratepayers. Only 272 voted for the industrial site, and opposed to it were 837. For the Match Company bylaw 549 were in favor and 550 opposed it. In order to carry the bylaws it was necessary to secure a two-thirds majority of the ratepayers voting. The industrial bylaw provided for the raising of $25,000 for the purchase of three acres in the western part of the city, and bordering on the industrial spur, for factory sites. The other was for bonusing the Sommers Bros.' Match Co. of Saginaw, Mich. The vote was comparatively small, and yet it was fair, considering that few rigs were out.

Pople Escapes Gallows.

WINNIPEG, Dec. 16.—Victor Pople, who was sentenced to hang for the murder of the infant daughter of Eva Willis, has been reprieved. His execution was to have been on Friday, but word was received in the city yesterday afternoon commuting the sentence to life imprisonment.

German Derelict Found.

EMDEN, Germany, Dec. 16. — An iron vessel floating bottom up off Schiermonnik-Oog, an island in the North Sea, is believed to be the German steamer Varvik from Lubeck. The pilot's body has been found, but there is no trace of the crew of 30.

Big Montreal Firm Fails.

MONTREAL, Dec. 16. — Brophy, Parsons & Rodden, Ltd., wholesale dry goods merchants of Victoria Square, went into liquidation yesterday. The statement of the liquidator estimates the assets at $264,000, and liabilities of $216,000.

SONG WRITERS EASY.

Music Publishers On Trial For Swindling Beginners.

NEW YORK, Dec. 16.—Poets and songwriters from far and near are under subpoena to testify in the trial, begun yesterday, of Robt. J. Kellogg, president of the Kellogg Music Co. of this city, under indictment for using the mails to defraud.

The Government charges that Kellogg inserted advertisements in many periodicals offering to publish on liberal royalties poems and songs of all sorts. In some cases, it is alleged, the Kellogg Music Co. offered to set the songs to music. The advertisements lured many songwriters to reply, it is charged, and further correspondence induced some of them to send the Kellogg firm money on its representation that the songs sent in were masterpieces and would have wide popularity. The money, it is alleged, was to have been used in pushing the sale of the songs, but this was not done.

One of the songs cited by the Government as an illustration, was written by a Louisiana lawyer, with the sinking of the Titanic as his theme, "The Ocean Severed the Tie That Bound the Two in Twain," was the title of this composition. The author was informed that it was "a whale" and bound to make a hit.

Intrigue Against Churchill?

LONDON, Dec. 16.—(C. A. P. Cable.)—The Liverpool Courier, which is often well informed on inner political movements, gives prominence yesterday to a story of an intrigue against Hon. Winston Churchill, which is alleged to be proceeding amongst the Liberal party. The Courier points out how several most important ministerial papers have recently shown a hostile attitude towards Churchill and prophesies that he will eventually leave the Ministry to form an independant following.

Hope To Make Premier "Buy."

CALGARY, Dec. 16.—The Calgary Ministerial Association held a meeting yesterday behind closed doors, at which it was decided to start the fight for the abolition of the bar in the three prairie provinces. A committee on correspondence was appointed to endeavor to secure the cooperation of the temperance workers of Manitoba and Saskatchewan.

EATING RELIEVES STOMACH TROUBLE

A Prominent Physician's Advice.

"Eat good foods and plenty of them. Dieting, in many cases, is almost criminal. Get back to normal. To do so you must have the proper quantity of nourishment. You need it for brain or physical work. Probably there is nothing the matter with your stomach except acidity. That is merely an abnormal secretion of acid in the stomach. Neutralize that acid and your stomach trouble will end at once. Neglect may mean misery if not cancer of the stomach. Do not take patented medicine or pepsin tablets for dyspepsia. Simply take a neutralizer of acid. Decidedly the best neutralizer is ordinary druggist's bisurated magnesia. You can get it at any drug store for a few cents. Take a teaspoonful in a quarter glass of water after each meal. The relief will be immediate."

To Celebrate Centenary.

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., Dec. 16.—Observance of the centenary of the Battle of Lundy's Lane on July 24, 1914, was planned by the Niagara Falls Historical Society at a meeting last night. Nothing definite was decided. Commemoration of the battle will take place on Drummond Hill, the scene of the struggle between the American and the British troops in 1814.

Agree on Peace Treaty.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 16. — Secretary Bryan and Chevalier Van Rappard, the Netherland Minister, yesterday agreed upon the terms of a peace treaty embodying the principles of the arbitration plan announced early in the present administration. This will be the seventh of the peace treaties and the first negotiated with a European nation.

YOU CAN HAVE A WEALTH OF BEAUTIFUL HAIR

HERPICIDE

Nothing equals an aureole of beautiful hair as a frame for a pretty face. Without a background of nice hair a really pretty face frequently becomes plain and, with it, unattractive features assume life and beauty.

Every woman can increase her natural charm by using Newbro's Herpicide. Herpicide makes hair beautiful. The dandruff germ saps the vitality of the hair. Herpicide applied intelligently and regularly checks this destruction of hair life and prevents the hair from falling out, giving it a snap and lustre, a soft, silky fluffiness which can be acquired in no other way.

Newbro's Herpicide in 50c and $1 sizes is sold by all dealers who guarantee it to do all that is claimed. If you are not satisfied your money will be refunded.

CATTLE MARKETS

UNION STOCK YARDS.

TORONTO, Dec. 15.—Receipts of live stock at the Union Yards were 208 cars—3674 cattle, 1992 hogs, 2356 sheep and lambs and 139 calves.

Butchers.

Choice steers sold at $8.50 to $8.90; good steers, $8 to $8.50; medium, $7.75 to $8; choice heifers, $8 to $8.25; common heifers, $6.75 to $7.25; cows, $4.50 to $7.25; bulls, $4.25 to $7.50.

Stockers and Feeders.

Stockers and feeders were in demand, as usual, and the demand was greater than the supply.

Choice steers sold at $6.50 to $7; medium steers, $5.50 to $6.25; stockers, $4.75 to $6.25.

Milkers and Springers.

Receipts of milkers and springers were moderate, and prices were very firm, ranging from $55 to $100 each. The bulk of sales ranged from $65 to $90 each.

Veal Calves.

The calf market was never stronger as prices higher. Choice veals, or, at least, the best on sale, sold at from $10 to $11.50; good at $9 to $10; medium, $7 to $8; common, $5.50 to $6.50.

Sheep and Lambs.

Sheep, ewes, sold at $5 to $6; culls and rams, at $3.50 to $4.50; lambs, $8.75 to $9 per cwt.

Hogs.

Selected hogs were reported at $8.50, fed and watered.

MONTREAL LIVE STOCK.

MONTREAL, Dec. 15.—At the Montreal Stock Yards west end market, offerings this morning were 1500 cattle, 500 sheep and lambs, 1500 hogs and 300 calves.

This was Christmas market day, and consequently the display of cattle was quite large, but the percentage of extra choice and choice steers for this particular trade was smaller than in former years, and prices ruled much higher. The general feeling for all grades was stronger, and the advance in prices was fully 50c per 100 pounds. Two carloads of 20 head each, bought in the Toronto market at $10 per 100 pounds, or $4500 for the lot, were offered here at $10.50, for which buyers bid $10. Other sales of choice steers were made at $9 to $9.25 per 100 pounds. Good steers sold readily at $8.25 to $8.50, and fair stock ranged from $7 to $7.75 per 100 pounds. A much stronger feeling has prevailed in the market for all lines of small meats, owing to the limited supply and the keen demand for the same from both butchers and packers. Prices advanced 50c to 75c, and sheep $5c to 55c per 100 pounds.

The tone of the market for hogs was stronger, owing to the small supply of fresh and prices advanced 25c per 100

SOME USEFUL RECIPES

Salmon Croquettes.

One and one-half pounds canned or fresh salmon, juice of half a lemon, dash of cayenne, two tablespoons butter, parsley, one teaspoon salt, one tablespoon chopped parsley, one pint milk, three tablespoons flour, slices of lemon.

Chop salmon fine; season with salt, parsley, lemon juice and cayenne. Mix well. Rub together flour and butter; stir in boiling water. Let cook two or three minutes, add the salmon; stir until heated; take up, turn out on a dish to cool. When cold and firm, form into croquettes, roll in grated bread crumbs, dip in beaten eggs, then again in the bread crumbs, and fry in boiling fat. Serve very hot; garnish with parsley and thin slices of lemon.

Pepper Mash.

Two heads of cabbage, half dozen large onions; chop up fine, put half cup salt on and let stand over night; then drain. Add a little red pepper and mustard seed and two cups of sugar. Put in jars and cover with vinegar. This is a delicious relish with any kind of meat.

SKELETON OF TURNBULL STORE IS TAKING FORM

First Building on George Street in Which a Structural Steel Framework Has Been Used—Operation of Riveter Attracts Citizens.

WORK IS ADVANCING

The clanging rab-tab-tab of a compression riveter used in the construction of the steel skeleton of the Turnbull building at the corner of Simcoe and George Streets conveys a metropolitan touch to the City. It is a noise associated with growth, although this thought may not impunge upon the average mind to which the experience is more of a curiosity than food for deeper reflections.

In a big growing city like Montreal or Toronto, the incessant clamour of steam riveters is a commonpalce. The linking together of the steel framework of skyscrapers rising on every hand has robbed this evidence of activity of its novelty.

Attracts Citizens.

Here, however, it is new and attracts hundreds of passersby. The implied contrast may be taken to mean that Peterborough is not a big City, but it is developing sure and specific signs of greatness.

The Turnbull building, like the Phoenix, is rising from its ashes, and when completed will doubtless be conspicuous in comparison with adjacent stores.

Already the steel workers under Mr. Douglas, are bolting together the girders on the second stories. For the information of the uninitiated it may be expained that the steel work is first bolted together. The riveters follow, withdrawing the bolts, and making the structure solid by driving rivets in all the holes provided.

The Operation in Detail.

The latter operation is well advanced on the ground floor. A stationary engine and compressor on the south side of the building furnish the power for the riveting machine. Over on the north side of the building a blacksmith has a movable forge. One employee is armed with the noise producing air hammer; another places the rivet in position and holds it there with an iron implement while the hammer is flattening the red hot bolt of iron. There is still another workman. He performs the grandstand stunts that distend the small boys eyes and make him wish he had the job. This is the young man who catches the rivets as they come flying through the air from the forge.

A Spectacualr Touch.

The blacksmith noses around among the coals with a pair of tongs, grasps a rivet that looks well done and shoots it twenty or thirty feet in the direct ion of the "catcher." The latter's mit is cone-shaped and is made of tin or some such material. The glowing bolt bounces into the closed funnel. The "catcher" nips it with a pair of tongs which he passes on to the assistant, who quicky inserts it through two contiguous holes. He then holds it in position and the man with the riveter opens fire.

Such is the operation which is taking up the attention of those who followed the progress of the giant cement mixer and the gambols of the asphalt roller a few short weeks—or is it months—ago.

You will observe that five men are engaged in the production of the noise and it sounds like it. But for all that there is a welcome ring to the riveter. Would that there were half a dozen of them up and down the street, busy as red-topped woodpeckers on a big, hollow beech tree.

HOPE FOR USERS OF OTONABEE POWER

Assurance is Practically Given That There Will Be No Break in Lighting Service on January 1

MEETING IN TORONTO

It is understood that a meeting of representatives of the Electric Power Company and the Hydro-Electric Commission is being held in Toronto to-day in regard to providing light for the customers of the Otonabee Power Comuany. Alderman Buller stated that this was the object of the meeting, and it is likely that arrangements will be made for these customers similar to the provision for those on the Peterborough Light and Power Company's system.

Mayor Bradburn mentioned this morning that there was no need of the Otonabee customers worrying about light. Alderman Johnston has made practically the same statement. Evidently the matter is being seriously taken up by the city and the Hydro-Electric officials, and the citizens on the Otonabee Power lines may be promised that there will be no break in their lighting service.

CANADA'S CREDIT SUFFERS

British Confidence in Canadian Securities Goes Down and the Interest Rate Goes Up

Canada's credit is distinctly suffering under the spectacular and inept management of Hon. W. T. White, Mr. Borden's Finance Minister. During fifteen years, Hon. W. S. Fielding had carefully guarded the credit of the Dominion as one of its most precious assets. Loans were avoided as far as possible, and when they were required, such was the confidence inspired by Hon. Mr. Fielding's methods, that he was able to negotiate loans at rates varying from 2 1-2 to 3 1-2 per cent. These loans were invariably regarded as gilt edged securities and were eagerly taken up by the British investing public. It was this ready appetite for Canadian Government securities which kept the interest rate down. It was the excellent condition of Canadian finance and Hon. Mr. Fielding's modest demands on the money market that whetted the appetite of the British investors.

Canadian credit thus stood high until the defeat of the Laurier government in 1911. It has remained for the Borden government, which came to office with loud protestations of economy to antagonise the big financial interests at London because of its inordinate and incessant demand for loans. Where Hon. Mr. Fielding's offerings were welcomed as opportunities for sound investment and sold at a premium, Hon. Mr. White's latest $20,000,000 loan was so coldly received that the "Pall Mall Gazette" referred to it as "The biggest fiasco that has been seen for a long time past in any part of the world." The London Morning Post was an even sharper critics, declaring that the Canadian Finance Minister had so clouded his financial methods that the English lenders could not find out the real standing of the Canadian Government debtor. It is further intimated that Hon. Mr. White had first tried to borrow $30,000,000, but was brusquely told that he had dipped into the loan market too often and had better curb his appetite by at least $16,000,000. As a result when the Canadian loan was put on the market the British investing public bought just $3,400,000 worth. The balance of $16,600,000 remained on the hands of the underwriters, who will have to carry this mass of undigested securities until the public buys them. And this, with a Canadian Government loan at 4 per cent., which was placed with the underwriters at 97!

BIG OPERA COMPANY SAILS

Quinlan Organization Will Be Seen Here Early in the New Year

A cable has been received to the effect that the Quinlan English Grand Opera Company sailed on Monday, Dec. 15th, per S. S. "Makura," from Sydney, en route for Vancouver where they will commence their 30th Dominion tour. This colossal organization consists of two hundred members, including their own special orchestra of sixty instrumentalists and 500 tons of baggage and scenery. The Quinlan Company will be here in this City early in the New Year.

DID NOT PROVE BLACKLISTER WAS ON LIST

And as a Result Magistrate Dumble Dismissed Charge—Ex-Detective Weller Fined For Assault

TO-DAY'S POLICE COURT

In this morning's police court, ex-Constable and ex-C.P.R. Detective Weller was found "guilty" of assault, on the complaint of a young boy named Matthew Clelland.

Mr. G. N. Gordon defended Mr. Weller and the boys looked after their own side of the case, so successfully as to secure a conviction. Mr. Weller was fined $1 and costs, amounting in all to $3.25.

According to the evidence of the youthful complainant, he was walking toward home on Albert Street last Friday afternoon with two other boys, when Weller sprung on them from behind and caught the complainant. He shook him for several minutes. Then, when Weller was feeling in his pocket for his book he tried to escape, but Weller caught him. There were marks on his neck yet, he said, and Weller had torn his tie off his neck. When he was arrested, Mr. Weller did not tell him what his offence had been, and did not tell him he was a constable. He put the witness down on his back, and tried to make him go down the track. At the time, the witness said, Weller was under the influence of liquor, and his breath smelled very strong of intoxicating beverages.

Four other boys were called and corroborated the boys evidence.

In defence Mr. Jas. Middleton and Detective Newhall, in the witness box, said that they were with Weller that afternoon and saw absolutely no trace of his being under the influence of liquor.

The defendant, in the witness box, said that as he was going past an alleyway, a piece of ice hit him on the face. He looked up the alley and saw two boys whom he took to be Clelland and another one of the witnesses. That was why he arrested him, and the boy resisted him. He admitted that he had two drinks on the morning of Friday last.

The two boys swore that they did not throw ice and were not in the alleyway.

The Magistrate said the evidence warranted a conviction and the defendant was fined $1 and costs.

A blacklister residing in Monaghan, who was fined $10 for being drunk while on the blacklist yesterday, appeared again this morning, charged with the same offence.

Two constables swore the man was under the influence of liquor yesterday when arrested.

"Is that the case?" asked the Magistrate.

"Yes," answered the Chief.

"Well, it's dismissed. There is no evidence that he is on the blacklist," said the Magistrate.

And before the Chief could get his breath, the prisoner was freed.

Alex. Thompson, charged with vagrancy, was given an hour to get out of town.

Twenty years ago there were about 112,000 French Canadians in Ontario; now about 225,000, with a preponderant voice in 15 counties. In a century, Ontario will, it is estimated, have 2,000,000 French.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier a Guest of Honour Among His Political Opponents—Principal Speakers at unique non-political gathering at Toronto on Tuesday, December sixteenth. Canadian and University figures at Laurier-Varsity banquet. Of the seven figures in the picture Professor DeLury, toastmaster, President Falconer, and Sir William Ralph Meredith, the Chancellor, are all strong Conservatives, the latter being formerly leader of the Ontario Conservatives. Hon. W. J. Hanna is Provincial Secretary in the Whitney Administration. Sir William Mulock was formerly Postmaster-General in the Laurier Administration. The University College "Lit" honoured Sir Wilfrid Laurier in Convocation Hall, Toronto, when the society celebrated its diamond jubilee. Graduates, undergraduates, and friends of the University, 600 in number, were present. This was the largest dinner in the history of the University College. Ten years ago Sir Wilfrid attended a similar function, but has not paid a visit since.

FATAL FIRES IN TWO BIG U. S. CITIES

Salvation Army Industrial Home in Cincinnati Burned Down and Three People Lose Their Lives

A NEW YORK BLAZE

Special Cable to The Examiner:

CINCINNATI, O., Dec. 16.—A fire which swept the Salvation Army Industrial Home, here, to-day resulted in at least three deaths and drove scores of men, women and children, panic stricken, from floor to floor of the building, while they fought people who tried to rescue them. The dead include O. W. Sundall, the manager of the place, who lost his life trying to rescue the books. There were 138 people in the place when the fire alarm was given.

Three Dead in New York.

NEW YORK, Dec. 16.—Thos. McManus, Jr., a fireman, who was having his day off, was burned to death with his mother and sister in a fire which destroyed their apartment building on Amsterdam Avenue early this morning. Twenty other people had narrow escapes. There are indications that the flames were of incendiary origin. Several other large apartment blocks were threatened, but the vigorous work of the firemen saved them.

CINCINNATI, Dec. 16.—Five bodies have now been recovered from the Salvation Army ruins. Four others are still missing.

MORE ENTRIES IN THE RACE FOR OFFICES

Mayor Bradburn to Run for Public Utility Commission and Mr. J. J. Hartley for the Mayoralty

HOT CONTESTS CERTAIN

MAYOR BRADBURN, in the field for Public Utilities Commission.

MR. GEORGE BALL, a candidate for the same office.

MR. J. J. HARTLEY will run for the Mayoralty.

Mr. HARRY MORGAN, an aldermanic candidate for the Centre Ward.

These were the features of to-day's developments in the municipal arena. Mr. J. J. Hartley's entry into the field will make the Mayoralty contest a three-cornered fight. Mr. Hartley's announcement to the electors is printed elsewhere in the Examiner and disposes of all doubt as to whether or not he would be in the field.

Mayor Bradburn has announced that he will be a candidate for the Public Utility Commissionership, and Mr. Geo. Ball this morning reiterated his decision to remain in the fight, so that there will be a quadruple battle between ex-Ald. Robt. Hicks, Mayor Bradburn and Messrs. Ball and McWilliams.

Mr. Harry P. Morgan, formerly of the Peterborough Hardware Co., has announced himself as a candidate for the alderman for the Centre Ward.

BISHOP FALLON IS DENOUNCED

Stand on Bilingual Question is Criticized

Examiner Special:

MONTREAL, Dec. 16.— Denunciations of Bishop Fallon for his stand on the bilingual question in Ontario, and the defending of Orangemen in regard to teaching French, were launched by the speakers at a meeting of the members of the St. Jean Baptiste Society last night in the Monument National. The feature address was delivered by Dr. J. K. Foran, K. C., Ottawa, on the question of "Dual Language in Canada," but spirited speeches were also made by others. President Asselin scored some of the French papers for their indifference to the cause of their race in Ontario and denounced Bishop Fallon of London for his opposition to the French language. Rev. Father Brosseau was more scathing in his reference to Monsignor Fallon.

FARMERS ASK FOR SWEEPING CHANGES

Deputation Waits Upon Premier and Cabinet to Urge That an Amplified Reciprocity Treaty Be Put Into Effect With the United States.

LOCAL MAN THERE

OTTAWA, Dec. 16.—A vigorous arraignment of the present protectionist system, coupled with a demand for a sweeping revision of the tariff were, the main features of the memorial presented by the representatives of the Dominion Council of Agriculture to Premier Borden and his Cabinet this morning. The memorial which was read by Roderick Mackenzie, Secretary of the Manitoba Grain Growers, was supplemented by a number of resolutions dealing with the questions of various importance to the agricultural community. The Ontario members stood with Western members in their demands. The demands made by this year's deputation contemplated even more sweeping tariff revisions than were contained in the memorial of 1910. The deputation contend that reciprocity which still stands on the statute book of the United States should be accepted by Canada. By this pact many food products were not placed on the free list, while there was only a slight reduction in agricultural implements. Cement was not on the free list, while there was only a slight reduction in agricultural implements. The deputation contends that the terms of the pact be amplified by such additions so that the necessities of life might as nearly as possible be made free to the consumers. All food products not so dealt with in the reciprocity pact should, according to the memorial, be placed on the free list. The deputation declared itself as opposed to the putting into effect of sample markets until such a time as all terminal elevators have been taken over by the Government. An amendment was asked to the Railway Act to place the responsibility upon the railways for the filling of stock. At present, it was pointed out, the onus of proof of the filling was upon the farmer. It was resolved that the Government appoint a Utility Agent whose task it should be to adjust disputes between farmers and commission houses and elevators. The following were the representatives from Ontario in the deputation, E. C. Drury, former Master of the Dominion Grange, Ot. Crearar, President of the Grain Growers Grain Company; George Chipman, Editor of the Grain Growers' Guide; W. C. Wood, President of the Ontario Grange; Mr. McEwing of the Ontario Grange; Mr. Flatt of Tantleton, and H. B. Cowan of Peterborough, Editor of Farm and Dairy. Fred Green said the cooperative movement was simply a desire on the part of the farmers to help themselves by doing away with part of the cost of that which they purchased and to add to the price of that which they produced and sold without increasing the cost to the consumer. They found difficulty in operating under the joint stock companies act and desire regulation which would make it easy to form trading companies. "We want to hitch the apple growers of the East to the grain growers of the West, and so interchange products," he said.

Mr. Drury quoted the census figures to show how population had decreased in the representative counties of Ontario during recent years. The decrease, he thought, was not due to the decrease of efficiency. In 1881 the farmers raised grain and primary products generally. Now mixed farming was in force, and the turning of the primary into heridary products required more industry and efficiency. Mr. Drury stated that not only had the quantity of agicultural population but the quality, had declined. The early settlers of the fine class had gone away and their places were taken on by an inferior immigrant class. Education was at a lower ebb among the farming classes. Farms, he contended, had not been able to make proper returns upon the capital invested or the efficiency given. The farmers had to deal in a market with world competition and world prices, and have had to buy in a market where prices are enhanced. "What industry," asked Mr. Drury, "could have lived under the conditions which the farmer labours under. He has to put all his necessities under enhanced prices."

"Due to what?" asked Mr. White.

"Due to the tariff," Mr. Drury replied.

SUING FOR $20,000

Aftermath of the Collapse of the Turnbull Store

The Toronto Globe says:

Action was entered yesterday by John Kelly of Norwood for $20,000 damages for the death of his wife, who was killed in the collapse of the Turnbull store at Peterborough on August 28. Negligence on the part of Frederick Might, proprietor; W. J. Johnston, contractor, and John E. Belcher, the architect, is alleged.

The Examiner learns that Mr. Might's interests will be looked after by the firm of Hall, Hayes and Hall, while O'Connell and Corbett are acting for Mr. Johnston, and Peck, Kerr and McElderry for Mr. Belcher.

CIVIC NOTES AND A FEW OTHERS

Mayor Bradburn says that the boys who follow the horses should not overlook a sure thing proposition that will be open in a certain civic department when the snow melts from the pavement next spring.

Petitions are being circulated among the citizens in support of the granting of a ten-year franchise to the Otonabee Power Company.

Several of the policemen can throw their batons at fleeing boys as effectively as if they pulled a trigger, according to two incidents recently reported. It must be great fun to wing a youth on the run.

Mr. W. S. Robinson is regarded as a strong aldermanic candidate in the South Ward.

At 9 a.m. to-day Mr. R. T. Jeffrey, the Hydro engineer, and Mr. L. Burpee, a C.G.E. electrical expert, held a consultation to discover who put the kibosh in Hydro.

MAJORITY RULE.

Sir James Whitney can have no sympathy with the Saskatchewan Government, which has no use for the three-fifths' majority popular swindle. Saskatchewan has decided that if a bare majority of the 50,000 electors vote for abolition of the bar, legislation will be passed wiping out every bar of the Province. A plebiscite is to be taken on the second of December, next year. The British principle of majority rule seems to be good enough for Saskatchewan.

DO YOU KNOW?

That in the last ten years Canada's population increased by immigration alone 34 per cent? The best record the United States ever made in a similar period was 24 pre cent.

That the annual immigration increases Canada's population by six per cent. The best record the United States ever had for one year was two per cent.

That 674,305 Americans have located in Canada in the past seven years, bringing with them cash and effects equal to $775,350,405, or $1150 per capita?

NO CHICKENS FOR HAWKES.

The newspapers are poking fun at Mr. Arthur Hawkes for his failure in South Lanark—he only got seventy votes and had to pay for his experience by the forfeiture of his $200 deposit. But he gets the value of that in the advertising he has received, and he has learned something, too, that may be useful to him. He has learned that the Conservative party has no use for the "British Born," except when they want to exploit a bogus loyalty cry. Many men have made a sorrier beginning than Mr. Hawkes. Disraeli, afterwards Prime Minister of Great Britain, and Lord Beaconsfield, when he rose to make his first speech in parliament was nowhere; instead of making a speech, he made a flat failure. If Mr. Hawkes equips himself with a balance wheel he may come to the front yet. We have members of parliament who, in the matter of mental ability, are not intellectually fit to brush Hawkes' boots. We may yet hear more of Mr. Hawkes. As to his maiden attempt, how could we expect Hawkes to make a good catch when chickens are so scarce that we can't get enough eggs of our own laying for an omelette—have to import them from fifteen thousand miles.

THE CONSUMER FIRST.

A big deputation of farmers and grain growers, representing Ontario and the west is in Ottawa demanding the removal of the duty from wheat imported into Canada, thus taking advantage of the offer contained in the new United States tariff. The Toronto News says "there is a duty of ten cents, except to such countries as admit United States wheat and wheat products free. This means that Canada would have to admit American flour free and open Canadian mills to the competition of the big American companies." Poor Canadian millers. They should be big enough by this time to stand against every possible competition. They are doing pretty well. They are able by the help of the tariff to make every Canadian pay toll to them. The tariff permits them to put such a price on flour in this country that, as a matter of fact, Canadians have to pay for the flour made from their own wheat, in their own mills, a bigger price than the British consumer has to pay for the same Canadian flour, with the cost of transportation three thousand miles and commission added. The removal of the duty on wheat, and the consequent free admission of United States flour may make the millers work a little harder for their dividends; but the poor consumer will get the advantage. How is that for fair play and a step towards reduction of the high cost of living? If the Government and Parliament are in power and in the House in the interests of the people, and not as agents of the combines, they should think of the consumer first.

SPENDING AND SAVING.

The chief cause of the high cost of living is the high price of food materials, artificially and directly enhanced by the imposition of customs duty. Here we have the fact, but there are contributory causes that intensify the trouble. We all have extravagant habits in that we spend large sums for purposes that are not necessary to comfortable living. Both children and adults have these habits, and we see money wasted on things that lessen the capacity for purchasing necessaries. With money in our purse, one finds prices high; but without money we have actual deprivation, or debt, the next worse thing. If one notices we find the pinch comes when the winter comes. There are thousands of idle and hungry men in Winnipeg and other western cities. Many of them are the harvest labourers who helped gather our 200 million crop. They got high wages and went to the cities and spent them in riotous living. Of ocurse they suffer for their improvidence. But amongst ourselves we find wage-earners in the summer, and others too, spending to the last penny forgetful of the coming winter. Picnics, excursions, picture shows, holiday making that cannot be afforded, and other forms of spending money, for non-essentials, scatter the cash and leave the winter to be faced with bare larders, empty fruit jars and empty purses in many cases. Why do we do these things? Simply because many of us are foolish; we have formed habits of extravagance, from our youth up. We sniff at simple tastes and the simple life, and like simpletons, we do things from habit that we can't afford to do, and suffer in consequence. We are uneducated to one of the essential things that lead to happiness. We are not taught and trained to practice economy, we are not taught and encouraged to form habits of thrift and saving. If we had savings banks, in our schools, children would grow up educated practically in the value of small savings. Where the school savings banks are in operation we have scores of children with tidy little savings to their credit, which in time of family stress or sickness, give relief and forestall the necessity of the disagreeable and humiliating acceptance of charity. Many a family is in want this winter; many a family is "hard up" this winter, and many a family is chronically hard up, through habits of thriftless spending. They have got into the habit, learned it from their parents, were never shown a better example as might be done to the coming generation by the establishment of school savings banks. We have with us the high cost of living. We can't help that, but we can make ourselves better able to meet the burdens it lays upon us. If we husband our resources wisely, forego extravagant and needless expenditures, we shall have money in our purse which will help us to meet the demands from the high cost of living. We shall realize the truth of the old song:

Wherever you wander, whatever you do,
You'll find your best friend is a dollar or two.

HOW TAXATION TOUCHES THE XMAS DINNER

When the Christmas dinner is being prepared, the Canadian housewife, with her butchers' and grocers' bills on the hook over the kitchen table in front of her, might moralize on these facts:

On every pound of currants that goes into the Christmas cake or the Christmas pudding the Government increases the cost by 2 cents a pound in customs tolls. Last year the total tax on dried currants imported was $81,422.73.

If dates are added the Government collects a toll varying from half a cent to 2½ cents per lb. Last year this tax aggregated $21,906.47.

Raisins, a necessity of the Christmas dinner table, cost the consumers 2-3 of a cent more for every pound because of customs. The total duty last year was $162,819.17.

Sugar, that absolutely indispensable article, is subject to a general customs tax of $1.08 per hundred lbs. On imported sugars last year the Canadian consumers paid in duties no less than $4,162,672. Here is one item alone where the tax on food means on an average over two dollars per year added directly to the cost of living for every family. Indirectly it means much more than that amount.

At the present time eggs are being imported in large quantities to meet the local shortage of supplies. If they could be brought in free of duty the price to the housewife would be reduced by the amount of the customs duty, viz., 3 cents per dozen. Last year the total duty paid on eggs was $387,123.48.

From Chicago and other meat packing centres come bacon and hams, canned meats—and poultry, meat extracts, tinned soups, etc. On these the rate of duty is 20-27½ per cent ad valorem or 2 to 3 cents per pound. Last year the total customs tax collected was $1,040,547.78. And this tax is on a restricted importation which allows the local canning and packers combines to keep up prices the whole year round.

On the Christmas turkey there is a tax of 20 per cent, or one-fifth of the total price and on cranberries for the sauce a duty of 25 per cent. No less than $32,897.50 was taken by the Government in duty last year on cranberries alone.

On all the imported spices used by the housewife there is a customs tax of from 12½ to 27½ per cent ad valorem or of from 3 cents to 10 cents per lb. The total customs tax last year on spices, including mustard, was $95,350. On vinegar the duty is 15 to 17 cents per gallon and last year the amount collected was $22,152.52. On pickles $116,651.97 was collected and on sauces and ketchups $101,207.71.

Imported fruits and imported vegetables also jump in price to the consumer the moment they meet the customs man. The canned variety bought at the grocers cost from 1½ cents to 2¼ cents per lb. more than they would cost if the duty were removed. Last year Canadian consumers added in customs duties alone $896,262 to their bills for this item of food.

If dainties such as figs, grapes or nuts should be thought of in connection with the Christmas dinner, a tax will have to be paid on all these; last year $24,316.38 was collected on figs, on which there is a duty of 55 cents per 100 lbs.; $124,945.29 was collected on grapes, the rate being 2 cents per lb.; $14,078.41 on nuts of different kinds. On candies and confectionery $406,024.63 was collected, and on biscuits, $52,522.31.

Perhaps if the cost of living continues its steady upward flight the housewife will be forced to restrict the Christmas dinner to prunes and rice. But even here she will not escape the Government's tariff toll. On rice the general customs tax is 75 cents per 100 lbs. Last year the total duties amounted to $81,979. On prunes the tax is 2-3 of a cent per pound and it added $59,617.42 to the total cost of foods stuffs. Even on tapioca and sago there is a tax of 27½ per cent, and $32,887.17 was taken by the tax collector last year on these items alone.

The Liberal tariff policy of free food would wipe out all these unnecessary taxes. The Borden Government says the taxes should be continued and the national expenditures increased.

Last year the Borden Government collected more than 11 million dollars in taxes on food. It did not need to add these eleven millions to the cost of the high price of living, for last year the surplus of revenue over all expenditures was 22 millions—though the expenditure was made the largest in the history of the Dominion by the Borden Government's extravagance.

KICKING THE LADDER.

"Are there no British-born in South Lanark?" jeeringly asks The News, which two short years ago was rooting for Mr. Hawkes and his British-born followers. It does not take some folk long to kick from under them the ladder by which they have risen.—The Globe.

EDITORIAL

Looking at the advertising in some of our City papers just now, one would think you could buy Furs at half their regular price, which is obviously an untruth. One has only to have these goods sent down on approval, and to look carefully into their merits, to find, in our own City, without any cutting in price, in many instances, that they can get better values in Furs.

We don't pose as a philanthropic institution, yet any article in Fur that is now being advertised in these "Slaughter Sales of Furs" can be had at Barrie's at equally as low prices and in some cases lower prices. The values quoted in a great many of these Furs are largely more fiction, or else they are "Out-of-Style" Furs which any one would be glad to dispose of at a loss.

All ordinary matter, other than letters for despatch by any of the above mails, to insure connection, should be posted at the General Post Office one hour before the indicated time of closing.

By studying the local train timetables in conjunction with the above one can get an approximate idea as to when mail will arrive in the Old Country. For instance mail posted in Peterborough not later than 4 p.m. on Dec. 17th, will leave Toronto at 5.20 a.m. the following morning for New York.

INFORMATION CONCERNING THE WOMEN'S COUNCIL

The National Council of Women of Canada, whose first President was the Countess of Aberdeen, was organized in September, 1893.

A local council was formed last Spring with twenty-nine affiliated societies which represents a membership of about six hundred.

Its single definite aim is the promotion of the interests of women and children. The Women's Council is at present agitating for the appointment of a Police Woman in Peterborough, reasons for which will be published from day to day in these columns.

Certain people are opposed to this; some for reasons that will be readily understood by an intelligent public, such as civic economy, the absence of morality in our midst.

We ask the sympathetic attention of the general public to acquaint themselves through these columns with the reasons.

Doubtless many anonymous letters will be published by people whose illegitimate interests will suffer through such an appointment. The need for civic economy will be strongly urged. We hold that the health and the moral safety of our children have the first claims upon public funds.

List of affiliated societies:

PECULIARITIES OF CHINESE PHYSICIANS

Chinese Custom Forbade Dissection of Bodies—Doctors Thus Have Been Ignorant of Anatomy.

HAVE REVERENCE FOR DEAD.

The introduction into China of Western knowledge is destined to work a complete revolution in medical and surgical practice in the Flowery Kingdom. One of the things that is going and now nearly gone is what is called "acupuncture," or pricking with needles. This mode of treating disease consists in sticking long needles of silver or gold into the body or members of the sufferer, and then pulling them out, as housewives sometimes test their cakes with a broom straw to see if they are done.

Reliable authorities tell of many cases in which this heroic system has brought about cures. Perhaps the patient was scared into being cured, and decided to get well rather than be stuck any more. It is declared that the Chinese doctors are able actually to penetrate the heart and other vital organs with their needles without causing death, and that the process does not cause any considerable amount of pain.

A large amount of hocus-pocus and superstition is mixed with Chinese medicine. Some of the Chinese remedies are undoubtedly of value, but in most cases they are employed with but much reference to their actual medicinal effect. For example, ginseng is widely used, but the roots that are most highly prized and that are supposed to be the most efficacious are those that happen to grow with two prongs to the roots so as to resemble more or less the human form. The meat of black dogs is supposed to be good for consumptives and even in Canton the traveller often sees black dog carcasses still for sale. Orange peel is believed to be a very fine medicine; the peels have such a market value, in fact, that oranges are commonly sold with the peel taken off.

The Mongolian physician after feeling one pulse, then the other, perhaps both together, possibly may decide that a little dried grasshopper is the proper medicine to be used. On ther hand, if the Celestial of the native school supposes, by the action of the pulse, that the diseased condition requires some other form of treatment, the Chinese drug store near at hand possesses almost everything under the sun as a prescription.

Oftentimes the debilitated patient is said to need a particularly rare and unusual medicine, as for example, some preparation consisting of the pulverised dry bones of a tiger; treatment is considered very commonplace when the native physician prescribes only such ordinary things as dried leaves, roots, stems, dried flowers, the bark of trees, &c.

Th Chinese doctor possesses many ideas peculiarly his own. There is much mystery and impressiveness in his manner of treatment. According to Mongolian medicine the Chinese believe that the human heart is more likely to become inflamed at noon during the summer season, than at any other time. Likewise they regard the human ear as suggesting conditions of the kidneys, while the mouth and lips indicate the condition of the spleen and the stomach.

"Dr. John" Chinaman has evolved a wonderful system of diagnosis that depends on twenty-four main varieties of pulse, but entirely aside from these there are twenty-seven other special and minor varieties that prognosticate death. One fundamental reason why the Chinese of to-day is utterly ignorant in knowledge of human anatomy is because of the ancient custom of the yellow man neither to dissect nor to study the muscles and internal organs of the human body. The basis of this reluctance to investigate the human body is in the ancestor worship which exists.

The Chinese revere the dead to such an extent that when the demise of a Chinese occurs he is buried for three years. At the end of this time the body is dug up and the bones placed in a vase. The vase and its contents are then interred for all future time.

SAD, BUT TRUE.

"Yes, I'm married. I married a perfect genius!"

"Oh, well, I wouldn't feel badly about it. I suppose someone has to marry them."

BISHOP TO RUN THEATRE.

Albert Chevalier Has Scheme to Reform the Stage.

LONDON, Dec. 14.—Bishops have before this "run" public houses, wherefore why not an Episcopal theatre? The suggestion comes from that admirable comedian, Mr. Albert Chevalier.

"Let the Bishops of London and Kensington," advised Mr. Chevalier, "and others interested in the keeping of public entertainments up to the standard of their views, let them run a theatre and a music hall, engage a manager of experience, insist that their views concerning what is decent and what is indecent shall be observed, allow nothing to be staged of which they do not approve—make all this known to their followers, then give a good show, and it would not surprise me to find in a very short time that the Bishops were in possession of two of the most paying concerns in the City of London.

"In making this suggestion I take it that each of the Bishops has a sense of humour. Without it neither should enter into the entertainment world. Once there, however, even their congregations would not forgive them should they prove dull.

"They would find plenty of artists willing to appear and capable of entertaining their audiences without shocking any susceptibilities, and who knows, the managerial Bishops might even draw to their churches through their theatrical enterprise. Incidentally, it might lead to the gathering together once more of many intelligent play lovers who do not crave for the abnormal in art, music or the drama."

A PERSONAL APPLICATION.

"Say, Parson," said Elder Berry, at the Church Board meeting, "here are the resignations of all of the quartette choir."

"My, my," said Dr. Fourthley in distress, "what is the trouble?"

"Your announcement on Sunday morning," replied Elder Berry, sternly, "you know you said 'Providence having seen fit to afflict all our choir with bad colds, let us join in singing "Praise God from Whom All Blessings Flow.'"

Annual Meeting Of The W.F.M.S. Of St. Paul's

Encouraging Reports Were Presented From Different Officials

The 37th annual meeting of St. Paul's W.F.M.S. Auxiliary was held on Friday afternoon, Dec. 12th, in the Lecture Room of the church. About 130 ladies were present including a number of visitors from the other churches.

Miss Dickson, the president, occupied the chair and after devotional exercises the different annual reports were presented, all showing substantial progress.

The secretary's report was read by Mrs. Harstone.

The financial statement presented by Mrs. McKee shows a balance in the bank of $913.26.

The Mission Band reports read by Miss Mattie Robertson show a balance of $290.25.

The president gave a most interesting address, basing her remarks on "Some impression of the great Congress and missionary meetings held in Toronto last summer.

Mrs. McClure, who has laboured in China for over 25 years then addressed the meeting and was listened to with keen interest as she told the story of the great transformation now taking place in China, and the urgent need of the help of all Christians to give them the Gospel in laying the foundation of the new republic. At the close of this address she was tendered a hearty vote of thanks, moved by Mrs. Allan and seconded by Mrs R. R. Hall.

The following officers were elected for next year:

President—Miss Dickson.
Hon. Vice-President—Mrs. Robt. Innes.
1st Vice-President—Mrs. Pogue.
2nd Vice-President—Mrs. Roger.
Secretary—Mrs. Harstone.
Treasurer—Mrs. McKee.
Organist—Mrs. Logan.
Librarian—Miss Ferguson.
Executive—Mrs. R. R. Hall, Mrs. Turner, Mrs. Allan, Mrs. Graham, Mrs. Mowat, Mrs. Keyes, Mrs. Munro, Mrs. Mason, Mrs. Shook, Miss Kingan.

SECRETARY'S REPORT, 1913.

St. Paul's W.F.M.S.

To the President and Members of St. Paul's W.F.M.S. Auxiliary:

In the Providence of God another year of service has gone and in reviewing the work of this, the 37th year of our Auxiliary, your officers are pleased to report quiet, steady progress, the result of faithful effort and willing service on the part of the membership, and return thanks to God for His goodness and mrecy.

The work of our Auxiliary has been conducted along practically the same lines as in former years, the meetings being held regularly throughout the year on the second Friday of the month, with the exception of August, with an average attendance of 57, being a slight decrease which is to be regretted. We again urge all members to make an effort to be present at the monthly meetings, as faithful stewards, meeting the obligations we have assumed and upholding the work for which we stand responsible.

The Annual Praper meeting for Missions was held on Jan. 10th in the lecture room of this church, and this year took the form of a union meeting of the three Auxiliaries of St. Andrew's, Knox, and our own church. Beginning the year's work with this meeting of prayer and consecration means a spiritual uplift to those who are privileged to attend, but we must remember our prayers are real only when we do what we can for the cause of missions.

The Annual Presbyterial meeting was held in this church on the 21st and 22nd of May. There was a large attendance of delegates, and the statement of the year's work very satisfactory. At this meeting we were privileged to have with us Dr. Mackellar, of India, who gave a graphic word picture of the "Needs of India," and the conditions under which the women of India live, and a most urgent appeal for many more workers for the foreign field.

At our last annual meeting we were fortunate in having with us Miss Robson, now working among the Chinese in Toronto, but formerly connected with the "China Inland Mission."

The Northwest supplies were sent to the Cecelia Jeffery School this year, and the response to this request was most generous, consisting of a bale of old and new clothing, and other supplies, valued at $56.17, and a cash donation of $6.15 for boots.

The Literature Secretary reports the distribution of 110 "Tadings."

The "Interior" was again sent to our missionaries in India and the "Missionary Review" taken for the use of this Auxiliary.

The Annual Thank-offering meeting which is held in October is still a special feature in the year's work, and it is very gratifying to report this year the largest offering in the history of the society, the amount being $768.60. This splendid offering is an evidence of the sympathetic co-operation of many who are unable to attend the meetings, and we desire to thank all who have contributed so liberally to this fund.

The Text-Book, "China's New Day," has been studied throughout the year and most instructive papers have been prepared by the members, and we regret that all of the women in the congregation do not attend and receive the benefit. The marvellous awakening in China to-day is no doubt in part, the result of faithful seed-sowing, and this vast Empire shaking off its slumbers and realizing its giant strength, must have the Christian ideal of life or prove a menace to the world. Dr. Grant says "Let us capture China for Christ, and we will have won the world for Christ." May we realize the meaning of this urgent appeal, and determine our attitude in regard to the work for the coming year.

We are pleased to report an increase in membership of five, the number now being 134. This is most encouraging and we hope to be able to register a substantial increase from year to year until every woman in the congregation becomes a member.

We again mourn the loss of two faithful members, whom a loving Father has called home. Mrs. George Taylor, who departed this life in June last was an interested member of this Auxiliary and in loving memory of her interest in the work her usual Thank-offering was handed in by members of her family. Again this year a great sorrow has come to our Auxiliary just before our annual meeting. A few days ago Mrs. Wm. Taylor, a friend and co-oworker, was called to higher service. We desire to express to the sorrowing friends our warmest sympathy and deep appreciation of their faithful lives.

While the year's work has been most satisfactory and we rejoice at the progress made, we cannot afford to stand still in these progressive and stirring times, when opportunities are many at home and abroad the doors of foreign countries are open to those who will carry the vitalizing power of the Gospel message, but perhaps the greatest need of to-day is trained teachers and doctors to carry on the work in these non-Christian lands. The women of these foreign lands face a danger line to-day through the new-born ideas of liberty, they need our help, for the sabre of the future of these great lands for who can estimate the power of a Christian womanhood in moulding, the new India, or the new China, or the new Japan for Christ.

If the motto of our society "The World for Christ," is to be realized, it will be because Christian women have understood the meaning of service and are willing to serve, rather than be served.

P. HARSTONE,
Secretary.

ACCUSES THE COUNCIL OF EXTRAVAGANCE

Independent Ratepayer Makes Charges Against the Business Methods of the City Fathers

The Editor of The Examiner:

Sir,—From statements that have appeared in the public press, it is quite clear that at the beginning of this year the indebtedness of the City of Peterboorugh was no less than $1,562,519.00 and that for this last four years at least the City's indebtedness has been increasing at the rate of $125,000.00 a year. It is also quite clear that our annual tax bill this year is $135,000.00 greater than it was five years ago. We also note that in 1909 our rate of taxation was 19 1-2 mills on the dollar, and that the annual rate this year is 25 mills on the dollar which represents an increase of 5 1-2 mills on the dollar. The City's assessment has been increased no less than $3,200,000.00 more than it was at the close of 1907.

Enquiries have been made as to how much has been added to the City's indebtedness during the year of 1913 and no information has come from any member of the City Council. The ratepayers of Peterborough would do well to ask every one of the retiring members of the City Council who are seeking re-election what that increase is and, for what liabilities has the City of Peterborough been committed by the present Council. It will not be surprising if the City Council have not during the year 1913 endeavoured to commit this City to a further increased indebtedness of over half a million dollars. The Finance Minister of the City was asked to make a statement showing the financial record of the Council during the present year and to show to what extent the indebtedness of the City has been increased this year and for what liabilities the ratepayers of Peterborough have been committed to, but on that point he has been as dumb as an oyster.

In the Finance Minister's statement it appears that the cost of our municipal government was $1300.00 in 1868. That is now increased up to $5000.00 and that is ony an estimate.

From what can be seen by an outsider on the surface it is perfectly clear that the present Council has been a most extravagant one. For instance if a deputation went to Toronto, instead of there being one or at the most two members of the Council sent, nearly the whole City Council would go at the expense of the City. Extensive visits have been made by numerous deputations to different parts of Canada and the United States at the expense of this City under one pretext or another. It would be interesting to know how much money has been expended and actually frittered away in pleasure jaunts during this last year.

The present City Council cannot claim that they have been a business Council because when a little bit of pavement was laid on George Street and Hunter Street it was delayed until the fall of the year when the frost was liable to set in and leave our streets in a most wretched state. Moreover the laying of the little bit of pavement that was laid was delayed so as to give as much inconvenience any annoyance to our merchants as it was possible during their busy season.

Another great trouble with the present Council is that it is too much of a family compact. There is no independent criticism and the ratepayers are not taken into the confidence of the City Council. What the ratepayers want in the City Council are independent members who will fearlessly expose extravagance and mismanagement. One member of the City Council, namely, Ald. Langford, did suggest retrenchment in some things but the rest of the members of the City Council in a reckless manner and with a jaunty laugh told him "to go way back and sit down."

Would it not be well for the ratepayers of Peterborough at the present election to tell every retiring member of the City Council by their votes on election day that their services are no longer required.

Yours, &c.,
Independent Ratepayer.
Peterborough, Dec. 16th, 1913.

RECORD REAL ESTATE DEAL

Special Cable to The Examiner:

LONDON, Eng., Dec. 16.—Thirty-four million pounds sterling, the greatest real estate transaction on record, is said to have changed hands this morning when the purchase of nineteen acres of property in the middle of London, by Henry Mallaby, M.P., from the Duke of Bedford, was consummated. The estate includes the property on which Drury Lane, as well as many other big theatres and hotels stand, also the Bow Street Police Station and other public institutions which have lease hold rights.

Another Horse Case At Cobourg

Mr. Daniel O'Connell, Dr. Johnston and Dr. Rogers returned from Cobourg on Saturday evening where they were attending the general sessions of the Peace and County Court before Judge Roger. They were interested in a horse case, Quinn vs. Curle. They were absent more than half the week and the case was not begun until Saturday. A horse deal is the cause of the action. Dr. Johnston was called in to give medical testimony, and while listening to the first case on the docket, Dickinson vs. Austin, another horse case, he was asked to give an opinion on the evidence brought forward. Ten veterinary surgeons were involved in the first case. The second is proceeding.

EARLY SKATERS ARE WARNED TO BE CAREFUL

Ice Is Not Thick Yet and Some of the Younger Boys Are Venturesome.

It should be unnecessary to remind the first skaters of the season that the ice on the canal and river is not thick yet. Yesterday afternoon on an arm of ice between the C.P.R. spur line and the mound of earth thrown up by a dredge, there were about twenty boys playing hockey. The most of them skated where the ice appeared to be firm, but several small boys were venturing within ten feet of the open water and one hundred yards from their fellows. Many of the young people have been skating on the canal, bringing back reports that the surface was as glare as glass.

In 1760 there were 60,000 French Canadians; now, about 3,000,000.

MR. W. S. ROBINSON'S POSITION ON THE BRIDGE PROBLEM

Suggests Two Other Sites Where a Bridge Could Be Built

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Dear Sir,—In looking over the columns of your esteemed journal of date, December 12th, my attention was drawn to a letter signed "We Who Know," wherein the writer makes a slap at yours humbly for being opposed to the by-law re the construction of a bridge at Dalhousie Street, costing some $78,000.00, to connect the south end of East Ward with the South Ward, wherein he quotes the Scripture text "to love thy neighbour." Let me say to my unknown friend that it is just because I love my neighbour that I am opposed to the bridge.

Let me point out for the benefit of "We Who Know" that there has been an agitation for some years going on re the building of a high level bridge at Hunter Street, to avoid the dangers of the shunting to and from the mills of the Quaker Oats Co. And may the shunting ever increase to and from said mills.

As I was pointing out this agitation has been going on and will to my mind, continue till such times as said Bridge is built and when built will be the main artery of communication between the East and West of our City. And, in the face of all this, would it no become the height of folly for the citizens to vote the sum asked for, to build a bridge, the terminus of which would be right in the midst of all the C. P. R. shunting to and from the Quaker Oats Mills, the freight sheds and yards of the Railway, involving as it would the provision for a swing and gates at the crossing to protect the public.

Come now and let us reason together, says common sense and see if there is not a cheaper and more feasible way of building the desired link of communiration and, in doing so, let me say that I have taken the trouble to look over the map of the City, showing, as it does, the course of the river, also the many points where a bridge could be built at a very much less cost than the one proposed. There is a most admirable spot for a bridge at the south end of what is known as Burnham's Point, crossing over Point St. Charles, utilizing Rink Street as an outlet and by opening up Crescent Street through to the Lake an outlet could be provided there. Then there is the alternative of building a bridge at the end of Townsend Street, connecting the new wharf and bridge, in which no doubt the Government could be interested to contribute a portion of the cost. Either of these sites could be used in conjunction with George Street, which is shown on the plan of Burnham's Point, running north over the C. P. R. on the high bridge now in use by the Peterborough Lumber Co., connecting, as it does, with Maria Street, Engleburn and Burnham Street, East City.

And now, Sir, as this letter has grown beyond my original intention, with the apology for trespassing thus far upon your patience, I will leave the subject just here; and subscribe myself,

Yours truly,
W. S. Robinson.

WANTS THE ASSESSMENT MENTIONED

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Dear Sir,—You furnish your readers with a list of cities and towns in Ontario, including Peterborough, showing the taxes per capita in each, but you do not say whether it covers frontage or special taxes, and as it does not cover outstanding debentures and other indebtedness it would be of more interest to know the assessment of each municipality named, as the basis of taxation is on the assessment and as it has been repeatedly stated that Peterborough is the most highly assessed city of its size in Ontario, if not in Canada, please give the assessment of each.

A Green Or White Christmas

Weatherman Can Make No Prophecy as Yet

Away back in the early days, when grandmother and grandfather were children, it was not so very unusual to hear jingling bells on Christmas Day. Snow and sleighing came earlier then. However, as the years have rolled by, "green Christmas" has been the feature, and, as the weatherman remarked this morning, heavy snowfalls very seldom come until late in December or early in the New Year.

"Can you venture any prophecy as to what the weather will be on December 25th, this year? Will we have sleighing or skating, or is it going to be mild?" queried the newspaperman.

"Too far ahead — much too far ahead," answered the weather prophet, "I do not know, but for my part, I hope it will be mild."

Sleighing Nine Years.

In looking back over the records, an official discovered that since the year 1854, there have only been thirty-one Christmas days, on which the ground was covered with a "white blanket." "It would be something unusual, something out of the ordinary," he said, "to have sleighing, or even to see any depth of snow on the 25th of December. In only nine instances has the sound of bells reigned supreme at Yuletide, in the past 58 years. True, we had snow in 1906. In that year sleighing was fair, but the sun put in an appearance and made the roads slushy."

That means that on 27 occasions since 1854, Christmas day has been termed a "green" one. No person had nerve enough to take a guess at what would be served at the coming Yuletide. One, however, went far enough to say that he thought there would be good skating, but was unable to give any reason, other than to make reference to past seasons, in the majority of which, he said, it was cold enough to form good ice.

GAVE ADDRESS ON JOHN WESLEY

Enjoyable Meeting of George Street Methodist Church Last Night

A very enjoyable meeting of the George Street Epworth League was held last night in charge of the Missionary committee. About two hundred were present and listened with close attention to an address by Rev. Mr. Peever on John Wesley.

The speaker sketched the origin of Methodism, pointing out the very rigid discipline of the early church and its diversified activities including regular Sunday services, class meetings (characteristic of the Methodist Church), religious instruction for children, shelters for children and the aged, and secular instruction for all ages.

In conclusion Rev. Mr. Peever stated that three features made the Methodist Church the greatest Protestant Church, salvation free to all, every member an outlook committee, and every member wholly consecrated to the work of the Master.

The lecture was illustrated by sixty coloured slides.

A duet by the Misses Hanson was an appreciated feature of the programme.

The next meeting will be held on Monday, Dec. 22, 1913, which will be Christmas cheer night. The members are bringing food, clothing or money for distribution among the needy.

The Christmas number of "Criterion," the official organ of the League will be on sale. The meeting will be of a social nature and all friends of the League are cordially invited.

THE DOOR THAT ALWAYS OPENS

"The Door that always opens" is the title of the latest illustrated booklet issued by Dr. Barnardo's Homes. It contains the life stories of a day's admissions told in a very readable fashion. Here is one of them:

"In the dark hours comes little Teddie, found in the street at two o'clock in the morning, burning with fever. Not even Dr. Barnardo's Homes could save him, and we can see that he must die. But nobody could know how pitiful some of his last words would be. His good nurse kissed him like a mother. 'Why did you do that?' said the astonished boy; and then, 'Nobody—never—kissed—me—afore.'"

For nearly half a century the door of Dr. Barnardo's Homes has opened to all destitute children. Many of them come in a pitiable condition — afflicted, suffering and miserable. 78,000 children have passed through the Door, and the majority of them have been trained in various ways to take their places as useful citizens in the Homeland, and as supporters of the flag in the Dominions beyond the seas. But think for a moment what would have become of these Boys and Girls if they had not found a haven within the shelter of these Homes! Almost every hour of an ordinary working life some helpless child is struggling to reach the Door. It has never yet remained shut. But it is harder and harder to keep it open, and the cost of living is more and more. Half-a-sovereign will prop it open for a minute.

The Christmas season is approaching. Spare a little of your good cheer for the orphan and the homeless, the suffering and the sorrowful little people o' our land. Gifts of all kinds, money, clothing, blankets, toys, etc., will be welcomed by the Honorary Director, Mr. William Baker, M.A., L.L.B., at Headquarters, 18 to 26, Stepney Causeway, London, E.

MAGISTRATE EDMISON'S JUDGMENT IN KING CASE

Reliability of the Evidence of the So-called Detectives is Questioned in the Decision on Liquor Case.

A SUMMARY OF CASE

Following is the complete judgment of County Magistrate Edmison in the case of Elias Williams vs. D. W. King:

The defendant, who keeps a hotel or public house in the Village of Norwood, is charged with having sold liquor on the fifteenth day of October last, without thel icense therefor by law required.

The only evidence against the defendant is that Harry Solomon and Arthur G. Green, who are said to be special officers, sent down from Toronto by the department to act as detectives, and give evidence in case they should discover that any liquor was sold by the defendant or anyone else, on the day above mentioned, which was the day of the Norwood Show Fair, and these so called detectives both swear that they were served that day with whiskey over the bar of the defendant's hotel, and if their evidence is true the defendant should be convicted, but the evidence put in on behalf of the defendant, creates serious doubts regarding the reliability of the evidence of the two so-called detectives, as it clearly shows that they were very much under the influence of liquor themselves when they boarded the train at the Don Station to go to Norwood on the night of the fourteenth, so much so, that they were refused a seat in the parlour coach, although many seats were unoccupied.

They arrived at the Norwood Station after midnight of the fourteenth or in the morning of the fifteenth and remained for several hours in or around the station, then went to the defendant's hotel, to get a bed. Why they remained so long at the station instead of going direct to the hotel, is not explained. It may be they were so much under the influence of liquor that they were afraid to go to the hotel fearing they might be refused admission. After spending a few hours about the station, however, they went to the defendant's hotel and secured a bed, and after resting a few hours they got up and went out to the Show Fair grounds where they were engaged taking photographs, and while there, they bought or procured a large bottle of whiskey containing about a quart, from one Lavasseur. It is not clear where they drank all that bottle of whiskey, but likely a part of it on the fair grounds and the remainder of it in the hotel after they returned, but they evidently drank it somewhere as the bottle was found empty lying between them in the hotel.

Sometime after they returned from fair grounds and I think I may safely assume that after drinking a quantity of whiskey they would scarcely know what they were doing and we can scarcely believe the defendant would be so foolish as to give them more liquor over the bar, they being strangers to him and he knowing that he would be liable to be heavily fined if discovered doing so. Then the evidence shows there were only three men behind the bar that day, namely; the defendant himself, his son, and a brother-in-law, and all three swear positively that they did not serve the two so-called detectives or either of them or any one else, with whiskey that day. The taking of their evidence and also considering the conduct of the two so-called detectives from the time they left Toronto until they returned, I feel I cannot safely convict the defendant on their evidence, and I therefore dismiss the complaint against him and the only question for me to consider is who should pay the costs.

The defendant and Lavasseur, who sold the bottle of whiskey to the two so-called detectives on the fair grounds, were summoned to appear before me on the same day and at the same hour, each of them respectively being charged with a breach of the Liquor License Act, on the fifteenth day of Oct. last, at Norwood, and on the twenty-first of November last they appeared before me for trial, the complainant being represented by Mr. Moore and the defendant by Mr. Gordon. The case against Lavasseur was first called, when he, through his counsel, pleaded guilty and was convicted, the question of costs being reserved until the case against the defendant, King, would be disposed of. The case against King was then called, when he, through his counsel, pleaded not guilty, and stated he was not ready for trial and applied for an adjournment for one week in order to subpoena his witnesses, and after some discussion the adjournment was granted. The only witnesses present that day being Solomon and Green, the two so-called detectives, and they were there to give evidence if required in both cases, and if both defendants had been convicted and fines and costs imposed, and if the witnesses had been adjudged entitled to be paid a proper proportion of the amount would have been chargeable against each defendant. I think, however, that on the final hearing of the case against King, the evidence then put in on behalf of the defendant showed the conduct of the witnesses, Solomon and Green, while coming from Toronto to Norwood, and returning, and while in the Village of Norwood, to be such as to disentitle them to any fees or remuneration for their attendance at the hearing of either case. And their information in the case having been laid by the inspector at the instance on request of the Department or the Provincial Inspector, it is not customary, or usual, in such cases to order costs to be paid by the informant, and I do not feel that it would be right for me to do so in this case, and especially as the complainant under ordinary circumstances, and according to the usual practice, would be entitled to recover from the defendant, certain costs of the day when the adjournment was granted which would be a set-off against any costs that might be allowed now against him and all things being considered, I have come to the conclusion that my duty is simply to dismiss the complaint in this case without costs, and to make no order for the payment of any costs of the day to the complainant when the adjournment was made, and the conviction against Lavasseur will be with all proper costs except the costs of the two so-called special officers, Solomon and Green, who are not to be paid as witnesses in either case, as the evidence shows that on the day in question they were at least among the first to violate the law, and had they been prosecuted before me, I fail to see how they could have escaped conviction and punishment, but the time has now elapsed when that might have been done, and all I can now do is to deprive them of all such fees and remuneration as they might have been entitled to had they conducted themselves properly. The costs against Lavasseur as taxed and allowed by me are $7.66.

DROVERS' SEASON IS ABOUT WOUND UP.

The shipping of cattle by local drovers is practically concluded for this year. There were two car loads sent away this morning, and there may be a few odd cars between the present and 1st January, but the holiday spirit has hit the market, and the drovers will prepare for Santa Claus.

J. J. Hartley for Mayor

TO THE ELECTORS OF THE CITY OF PETERBOROUGH:

Ladies and Gentlemen:—

At the urgent request of a large number of the ratepayers I have consented to be a candidate for the position of Mayor for the year 1914. Being born and lived my whole life in Peterborough, and a whole life's savings being invested in Peterborough, I naturally have a deep interest in the welfare and prosperity of the city.

Should I be elected I promise you that I will guard to the very best of my ability the interests of the ratepayers and will oppose all unnecessary expenditure.

I will do my utmost to keep down the ever-increasing rate of taxation, consistent with the needs of the growing municipality.

I may say that I am in favour of municipal ownership, and in favour of having all city work done by our own people, instead of bringing in outsiders to do it. I will endeavour to see that the ratepayers get value for every dollar that is expended. I have had considerable experience in municipal matters, having served ten years in the Council and fourteen years on the Board of Education, being chairman of that board for two years. I was also chairman of the Board of Health for several years, so that you will see that I am not without a fair share of experience.

Should you do me the honour to elect me Mayor of our city, I will do my best to serve you to the very best of my ability.

Yours respectfully,

J. J. HARTLEY

WANT MR. T. W. OKE TO RUN

Mr. T. W. Oke, East City, has been approached by a number of ratepayers in the Fifth Ward to run as alderman in that ward. Mr. Oke is owner of the Peterborough Furniture factory situated in East City, and has been a resident for a number of years. He is giving the matter his consideration. If there is sufficient pressure brought to bear on Mr. Oke there is no doubt but that he will be a candidate.

SIR WILFRID AT TORONTO

Special to the Examiner.

TORONTO, Dec. 16.—Before it was light this morning, Sir Wilfrid Laurier arrived in the city from Ottawa to the first visit he has made to the University of Toronto since 1906. He will be the guest of honour of the Arts dinner to-night, the sixteenth anniversary of the Literary and Science Society of the University. During the day Sir Wilfrid met a number of University men, including President Falconer, the heads of affiliated colleges and the members of the Faculty. The distinguished leader of the Opposition will be in the city for two days. His engagements for to-morrow have not yet been made.

The above officers will be duly installed at the next regular meeting, January 16th, 1914.

SCHMIDT DENIES THAT HE IS INSANE

Special Wire to The Examiner.

NEW YORK, Dec. 16.—When his counsel announced that he proposed to show that Hans Schmidt, the ex-priest, was insane when he murdered Anna Ammueller, the prisoner sprang to his feet and violently protested that he was sane, and lawyers well knew it. The court attaches had to drag him down to his chair.

30 KILLED IN EXPRESS WRECK

Special Cable to The Examiner:

VIENNA, AUSTRIA, Dec. 16. — Thirty men are reported killed and thirty-five seriously injured to-day near Darnow, when the express train ran by a block signal and collided with a work train bearing eight hundred men to their homes. All those responsible for the accident lost their lives in the smash up.

MURDERER LYNCHED

Special Wire to The Examiner.

WILLISTON, NORTH DAKOTA, Dec. 16.—Frank Culbertson, recently convicted of the murder of three men in family feud, was taken from the jail to-day and lynched.

SATISFACTORILY EXPLAINED.

They were talking about the knack that some people have of making easy explanations the other night, when Congressman Warren Gard, of Ohio, told of an incident along that line.

Some time ago a young husband noticed that the milk they were getting was not up to the lacteal standard, and suggested that his wife make a few caustic remarks to the dairyman on the following morning.

"By the way, Nellie," said the young husband during the conversation that followed his return home that evening, "did you speak to the dairyman about there being no cream on our milk?"

"Yes, dear," answered little wifey, "and he explained the matter very satisfactorily."

"He did, did he?" responded hubby. "What did he say?"

"He said," answered wifey, "that he always fills the bottles so full that there is no room at the top for cream."

Results of Draw For First Round Of English Cup

LONDON, ENG., Dec. 16.—The draw for the first round of the English Cup final of which will again this year be played at Crystal Palace, was made at the offices of the Football Association this afternoon, when fifty-two clubs were excused from the qualifying stages, and those which had fought their way through the early rounds were chosen to make up thirty-two matches on January 10:

KICKED THE GLASS OUT OF RESTAURANT DOOR

Was Captured by the Proprietor and Then Escorted Home by Police Sergeant

An intoxicated young man, apparently by his accent, a native of bonnie Scotland, created a considerable amount of excitement, in the neighbourhood of the Venice Cafe, about 1 o'clock this morning. He wandered into the kitchen and caused so much trouble that he was ejected. In a spirit of revenge he deliberately kicked the plate glass front door in and took to his heels. Mr. Peel, the proprietor of the restaurant, gave chase and nailed the disturber with a "flying tackle" near Central Park. With the assistance of a way-farer the man was brought down George Street in the direction of the Police Station until the procession met Sergeant Brown and a Constable. The Sergeant relieved Mr. Peel of his prisoner and took him home, apparently, as he was last seen escorting the man out Brock Street.

It is presumed that there will be a Police Court case, although no charge had been laid up to noon today.

Police methods, are evidently not always the same. Hallow-e'en night ten youngsters were arrested, locked up for the night and refused permission to telephone home—a somewhat different proceeding from this morning's affair.

Pointed.

"Have you ever noticed one odd thing about blunt people?"

"What is that?"

"They are the ones who generally come to the point."

SUCCESSFUL DE LAVAL SALES CONVENTION

The De Laval Monthly says: The Twentieth Annual De Laval Sales Convention was held at Chicago November 17-21, and was attended by all those on the Pacific Coast and in Canada.

The purpose of this Convention was to more thoroughly familiarize the De Laval field organization with the policies of the Company, and strengthen the De Laval forces for better work in the field and better and more efficient service both to De Laval agents and De Laval users.

At these Conventions superintendents have an opportunity to come in contact with the management of the Company and the heads of the various departments, with the result that the management becomes more familiar with field conditions and with the needs of agents and users; and the salesmen are able to profit by the wider and larger experience of the executive heads of the organization.

During the period of the Convention every superintendent was required to spend a certain amount of time in the De Laval shops in order that he might keep posted on every new feature of De Laval machines and familiarize himself with the best and latest methods of making adjustments and necessary repairs.

The remarkable success and prestige of the De Laval Company in the cream separator field is largely due to the loyal co-operation of all the units which go to make up the organization, from general manager to canvassers and agents in the field.

In addition to this co-operative spirit which exists throughout the whole organization there must also be considered the idea of service. It has always been the policy of the Company to make every possible effort not only to the end that every agent for the Company should have all the assistance and help possible in enabling him to dispose of the machines purchased from us, but that this idea of service extend further to the actual user of the machine; and the De Laval idea of service contemplates as far as possible that every De Laval user, no matter how remotely situated, shall have full and satisfactory service from his machine as long as he continues to use it.

This is the policy which has made The De Laval Separator Company pre-eminent in the cream separator field throughout the world, and which the management of the Company at our recent Chicago Convention endeavoured to impress upon the minds of every representative of the Company at the Convention.

The year 1913 which is drawing to a close has been one of triumph and achievement for the De Laval Company, even in the face of a general slowing-up of other lines of business, and if the policy and plans promulgated at our Chicago Sales Convention are followed out during the coming year we have every reason to believe that our separator sales for 1914 will out-distance 1913 even farther than 1913 has out-distanced 1912.

CITY LEAGUE NOTES

There is keen rivalry between the City League teams and just now the possession of several players is claimed by a couple of teams. The players in question are on the fence right now and it probably will not be known just who they are with until the certificates are presented.

Fred Graham, the speedy little Lakefield youngster, who played such a good game against the Thistles last winter, is in town, and will wear the purple and white uniform of the Boston Exploits. Graham is not eligible for the local O.H.A. team, or he might be given a trial as he is very fast. He is a corner and when he puts on a little more weight will be hard to keep off any junior team.

Mike Coughlin, brother of Jerry Coughlin, of last year's Peterborough team, will play for the Wanderers. The latter are the dark horses of the Junior League, and may spring a surprise on the talent.

Bert Hendrick, who played for St. Michael's College Juniors last year, is counted on by the Alerts.

Among the Wanderer players is Max Patterson, who was on the lineup of the Bell Telephone Mercantile League champions in 1912.

The Y.M.C.A. will probably have the services of several of the Collegiate team.

Hockey--That's All

There is hockey galore on the cards this winter. The Peterborough Intermediate and Junior O. H. A. teams will play eight home games in January. And there are the Junior City League, Bank League and Mercantile League.

Wilson, the Oshawa Junior goalkeeper, who played against the Petes youngsters last season, worked out with the Ontario's professional team in Toronto yesterday.

MERCANTILE HOCKEY.

Adjourned Meeting of the League to Be Held To-morrow Night.

The adjourned meeting of the Mercantile Hockey League will be held at the Y.M.C.A. rooms to-morrow (Wednesday) evening at 8:30 o'clock sharp. All interested in this league are particularly requested to keep this date open and to be on hand at the advertised time, as several important matters will be dealt with so that the league may be placed on a good, firm, working basis.

On a Sleep Strike.

LONDON, Dec. 16.—Miss Sylvia Pankhurst, the militant suffragette agitator, since her incarceration on Dec. 10, has adopted the more drastic method of adding a "sleep strike" to her "hunger and thirst strike."

According to some of her comrades of the militant suffragette organization, she accomplishes this by continually walking, and one of her friends says she expects her release shortly as she must be on the point of collapse by this time.

BASEBALL

NEW YORK, Dec. 13.—Joe Tinker, former manager of the Cincinnati Reds and member of the famous trio, Tinker-Evers-Chance, of the Chicago Cubs, to-day has the distinction of being the highest-priced ball player in the game. By paying $25,000 for Tinker's services President Ebbetts of Brooklyn topped all previous prices for players, and only the agreement of Tinker to the deal is awaited to make him a member of the Dodgers. As Tinker is to receive $10,000 of the purchase price as a bonus it it is believed he will accept.

As a result of deals put through by National League magnates four managers believe they have strengthened their teams, and the general opinion is that the league race will be more evenly balanced next year.

The Giants obtained Bob Bescher, outfielder of Cincinnati, for substitute Catcher Hartley and Thirdbaseman Herzog, who is expected to manage the Reds. Bescher is the leading base stealer of the National League. With Bescher in the centre in place of Snodgrass, New York will have one of the fastest outfields in the league. Burns will be in left and Murray in right. It is believed Snodgrass will go to St. Louis, as the Giants owe the Cardinals a player for Otis Crandall, who was taken back after the McLean deal of last summer.

Pittsburg traded Ed. Konetchy, first-baseman of the Cardinals, in a deal involving a half-dozen players. Pitcher Bob Harmon and Thirdbaseman Mike Mowrey also went to Pittsburg, and Firstbaseman Miller, Infielders Dolan and Butler, Robinson, pitcher and outfielder Wilson of the Pirates went to St. Louis.

JOE TINKER

Twenty-five thousand dollar baseball player sold by Cincinnati Nationals to Brooklyn Nationals. He gets a ten thousand dollar bonus in connection with his transfer.

Tinker Will Accept.

Chicago, Dec. 13.—The $10,000 bonus offered Joe Tinker if he signs a Brooklyn contract took all the [illegible] out of the statement by the ex-Red leader two days ago that he would play with Chicago or Pittsburg next year or not at all. Tinker admitted to-day that the proposition was tempting. He refused to say definitely whether he would accept.

GILLESPIE for MAYOR

To the Electors of the City of Peterboro:

Ladies and Gentlemen—At the urgent solicitation of many of my business and personal friends, I have consented to become a candidate for the position of Mayor of your City, and respectfully solicit your votes and influence.

As in the past, I shall not make any rash promises to gain the vote of any elector, but, if elected, my attitude on every question will be to stand firm for the best interests of our Progressive City.

Having been interested in Peterborough all my life, and one of your Alderman for five years, I may fairly claim to be in close touch with every section and every interest of the Municipality, and familiar with its needs and ambitions.

I believe that in all respects the will of the people should prevail; that a vigorous but economical administration is the best administration, and that if your Chief Magistrate is able to devote a fair proportion of his time to his civic duties, it will not be to your disadvantage if he brings with him the experience and energy he displays in the conduct of a large and successful business of his own.

If my success in the Council during the past five years has in the main met with your approval, I shall esteem it an honour to have your further approval and support in the coming contest.

Yours respectfully,
G. A. GILLESPIE

VALUE OF TIME IN NEW YORK.

In no other metropolis of the world are similar expenditures contemplated for traffic purposes, and here one touches elemental reasons. Not only is the physical conformation of New York without a parallel, but nowhere else may be found a public so dominantly insistent, so temperamentally avaricious, on the subject of time. Moments spent in transit must be cut down to the irreducible minimum, no matter what prodigality of the same fleeting commodity may ensue. To illuminate this, consider an actual occurrence. An Englishman who recently dropped in at a friend's office on Twenty-seventh Street was asked to dine. At the nearest subway station they took a local train to the Grand Central, there dived across the platform into an express, which disgorged them at Seventy-second Street, where they entered another local that finally deposited them at the door of the Gothamite's apartment on Broadway and Seventy-ninth Street. Followed then a smoke, a refreshing drink, and a most leisurely dinner. Half way through his dessert, the Briton looked at his host.

"I've been wondering why we took three trains to get here?"

"Why? We saved four minutes!"

The Briton pondered. "I say," he questioned, thoughtfully, "what are you going to do with them?"

In Nova Scotia, 50,000 French; in Prince Edward Island, French increased 4,000 in 10 years, while total population decreased by nearly 6,000.

WILL NOT TURN ON HYDRO LIGHTS THIS EVENING

The Hydro-Electric lights will not be turned on to-night.

This was the definite statement from Alderman Johnston this afternoon at 3:30 o'clock to The Examiner. Everything is in readiness at the sub-station. The power was turned on at 1:11 o'clock this morning, in the primary circuit of the transformer and one hour later the juice was turned into the street lamps. A "ground" in the west circuit for the lamps on the west side of George street and an "open" in the east side circuit had given the employees a busy day trying to locate them in time for an opening to-night. The trouble is of a minor nature, but Alderman Johnston did not wish to present only part of the circuit to-night.

"There will be nothing doing until everything is ready," was Alderman Johnston's final assertion.

ELECTION OF OFFICERS

At the regular meeting of Court Langton, No. 344, C.O.F., held Dec. 15, the following officers were duly elected for the year 1914:

Past Chief—Bro. J. J. Hartley.
Chief Ranger—Bro. R. Lockey, acc.
Vice Chief Ranger—Bro. A. Hope, acc.
Recording Secretary — Bro. Wm. Stevens, acc.
Financial Secretary — Bro. Sam. Kemp, acc.
Treasurer—Bro. Wm. Payton, acc.
Chaplain—Bro. A. Finney, acc.
Senior Woodward—Bro. H. Shurter, acc.
Junior Woodward—Bro. B. Johnson, acc.
Senior Beadle—Bro. A. Bishop, acc.
Junior Beadle—Bro. C. P. Lansenby, acc.
Physician—Dr. McClelland, acc.
Auditors—Wm. Abbot, A. Finney.

Court Langton has had a prosperous year and is in a good financial condition.

IT DOESN'T PAY.

It doesn't pay to be a grouch,
It doesn't pay to wear a frown;
Nobody ever made his pile
By knocking every one in town.
There are some better reasons why
A man should smile upon his way,
But here is one, financially
A gloomy visage doesn't pay.

There's money in a cheerful smile,
A fortune in a cheerful word,
And money often reaches souls
That finer things will leave unstirred
And so I put it up to you,
Don't mope and while along your way,
If it is money you desire,
A gloomy visage doesn't pay.

'Twere better that you smile, because
You wish to cheer your fellow man,
And speak the cheerful word, to help
A weaker brother, if you can.
But if these reasons don't appeal
To you, I write it down to-day,
There's money in a happy face;
A gloomy visage doesn't pay.

HOCKEY! THAT'S ALL.

Wilfred Stratton, of Peterborough, made a good impression with Varsity at the first practice yesterday. The Mail says: "Varsity have a lot of likely junior O.H.A. players, with Stratton looking like the pick of the lot. He is a player after the stamp of young Wilson, the Kenora boy, and is very fast."

There will be no workout at Brock Street Rink to-morrow night, the players taking advantage of the ice on the Canal to get some skating. There will, however, be a big practice on Friday night, and every player is expected to be out.

BANK IS BESIEGED

Panic Has Set In Among Public of Mexico City

BIG ESTATES ARE SEIZED

MEXICO CITY, Dec. 17.—Thousands of people formed lines yesterday at the doors of the Banco Central owing to the refusal of all banks except that one to redeem state bank notes. Practically every bill in the city issued by an outside bank was brought to the Central Bank for redemption.

Many of the people in the lines expressed the intention of closing their accounts because of the stories in circulation as to the Central Bank itself being unsound, although the bankers issued a vehement denial of the rumors.

The Central Bank is the pivot organization of a chain composed of most of the state banks, but already the paper of six outside banks has been refused on account of lack of funds in the Central. It is assumed that the paper of others will be refused when the deposits of outside banks have been exhausted.

Villa Confiscates Property.

JUAREZ, Mexico, Dec. 17. — All the property of Luis Terranzas, sr., Enrique Creel and Juan Creel, including banks, mines, vast areas of land, thousands of head of cattle, homes and personal effects, were ordered confiscated to the rebels in an official decree issued by Gen. Francisco Villa yesterday.

Mr. Terranzas, now a refugee in the United States, is one of the richest men in Mexico. His holdings of about two-thirds of the State of Chihuahua are said to place him among the most extensive land-holders of the world. The combined estate of the Terranzas and the Creel brothers, [illegible] millions of dollars. Enrique Creel was formerly Ambassador from Mexico to the United States.

Refugees Return to Tampico.

VERA CRUZ, Dec. 17.—Rear Admiral Fletcher, in command of the American warships at Tampico, reported yesterday that normal conditions prevail there, and that the weather had moderated sufficiently to permit the transfer of all the refugees from the battleships to the transport Sumner for return to Tampico.

The marines who were temporarily placed aboard the gunboat Wheeling and the scout cruiser Chester have been sent back to the battleships.

CARTAGE CASE HEARD.

Railway Board Reserves Decision on Freight Service.

OTTAWA, Dec. 17.—Just about fifteen minutes before the Railway Commission adjourned last night at 6.45 o'clock after hearing arguments and suggestions anent the question of future practices of railway companies regarding cartage facilities since half-past ten in the morning, it looked as if the officials of the railways would consent to continue the present cartage system for another six months, instead of cutting it off at the end of this year as proposed, but the suggestion fell on stony ground and judgment in the case before the board was reserved.

W. T. Gundy, vice-president of the Toronto Board of Trade, suggested the six months' extension, but J. W. Leonard, assistant general manager of the C.P.R., wouldn't give it consideration.

To Get Immigrants.

TORONTO, Dec 17.—With the object of attracting to New Ontario a greater number of reputable British citizens than have hitherto taken up residence in the northern districts, two immigration officers will spend considerable time in England during the coming winter. John Farrell will leave for the old country next week and he will be followed shortly by J. M. Clark.

ROYAL Baking Powder Absolutely Pure

There is a remarkable interest in Home Baking and Cooking throughout the land.

This is a most encouraging indication that the battle against impure, improper food is going to be won.

The credit for the victory will belong to the women of the country.

Home cooking has the backing of science and the approval of fashion. It adds to housekeeping a pride; to our food, healthfulness.

It is acknowledged by experts, and by the women who know, that the best cooking in the world to-day is with the aid of Royal Baking Powder.

Owing to our large staff and the fact that we are working day and night keeping up with our orders we are able to promise orders taken on or before THURSDAY, DEC. 18th for Xmas delivery. This is absolutely the last call we can make.

BEDFORD SELLS OUT

London Landlord Gets $50,000,000 For Nineteen Acres

IN HEART OF METROPOLIS

LONDON, Dec. 17.—One of the biggest private real estate deals on record was completed yesterday in the purchase of the Duke of Bedford's block of freehold property in the centre of London for something like $50,000,000, by Harry Mallaby-Deeley, a Unionist member of the House of Commons for the Harrow division of Middlesex.

The exact figures were withheld by the agents, but experts, basing their calculations on the cost of acquiring the property for the Aldwych and Kingsway improvement, which amounted to $22,200,000, estimate the sum which changed hands yesterday at $50,000,000.

The estate covers nineteen acres, and, roughly speaking, stretches east and west from Kingsway to St. Martin's lane, near Trafalgar Square, and north and south from Long Acre to the Strand. It includes the Royal Opera, the Drury Lane, the Aldwych, the Strand and the Lyceum Theatres, several hotels, Covent Garden Market, Bow Street Police Court, the National Sporting Club and a number of great printing establishments.

The ground has been in the possession of the Bedford family since 1554, when it was granted to them by King Henry VIII., at the time of the dissolution of the Roman Catholic religious communities and the confiscation of their property.

The purchase makes the previous deals of Mr. Mallaby-Deeley pale into insignificance, although in July, when he acquired the St. George's Hospital site, opposite Hyde Park, for $2,350,000, he caused a sensation, and he had previously bought a Piccadilly hotel for $2,500,000.

This sale means that one of the great estates in London is being broken up. The metropolis is practically divided among nine peers—the Dukes of Portland, Bedford and Westminster, the Marquises of Exeter, Salisbury, Northampton and Camden, the Earl of Craven and Viscount Portman.

CARDINAL RAMPOLLA DEAD.

Noted Ecclesiastic Passes Away at Age of Seventy.

ROME, Dec. 17.—Cardinal Rampolla, former Papal Secretary of State, died last night.

Cardinal Mariano Rampolla (Count del Tindaro) was born at Polizzi, Sicily, in August, 1843. He entered the Papal service in 1870; became Counsellor of the Papal Embassy at Madrid in 1875, and Papal Nuncio at Madrid in 1882. He became Cardinal-priest and the Secretary of State in 1887.

Cardinal Rampolla was appointed

CARDINAL MARIANO RAMPOLLA.

Secretary of State by Pope Leo XIII., and at the conclave for the election of a successor to Pope Leo was the predominant figure until Austria exercised an old prerogative, the right to enter an objection to the election of a given candidate for the Papacy. Cardinal Rampolla led on the first and second votes.

Of late Cardinal Rampolla figured as a possible successor to Pope Pius. Since the conclave Cardinal Rampolla had lived in retirement in the Palace of St. Martha, just behind St. Peter's, and had devoted his time to the departments dealing with matters of doctrine, dogma, and internal administration of the Church, holding aloof from affairs pertaining to the foreign relations of the Holy See.

Victim Still Unidentified.

GUELPH, Dec. 17.—The identity of the unfortunate man whose body was found mangled on the G.T.R. tracks, just outside the city limits last week, still remains a mystery. County Constable Elliott stated he had communicated with the names and places that were written on the dead man's papers and notebook, but all failed to give any clue as to his identity. At the adjourned inquest yesterday the jury brought in a verdict of accidental death.

Carl Bergmann, who has been manager of the Dominion Bank at Berlin for the past four years, has been appointed manager of the Guelph branch, to succeed the late Mr. Dampop.

Premier Borden Makes General Reply to Farmers

OPPOSITION IS PRESENTED

OTTAWA, Dec. 17.—Free wheat flour, potatoes, cement and lumber and agricultural implements were demanded from the Government yesterday morning by the grain growers of the west and representatives of the Dominion Grange from the Province of Ontario. The acceptance of the reciprocity arrangement of 1911 was also urged, together with an immediate increase in the British preference and ultimate free trade with Britain.

As soon as the deputation appeared at the East Block yesterday morning they were confronted by a deputation consisting of fruit growers and cattle men, headed by Senator F. D. Smith. It was finally agreed that the farmers should first put in their case, and that the counter deputation would be heard in the afternoon. The grain growers and the representatives of the Dominion Grange consumed between two and three hours in presenting their case.

In the course of the memorial presented by the deputation, it was stated:

"This consolidation of individual companies into combines, and combines into trusts has the further effect of centralizing capital and power in the hands of a few individuals. By an interlocking of directorates the same men control our banking institutions, our loan companies, our insurance companies, our transportations. It is stated on good authority that Canada's economic structure is in control of about 23 capital directors who are members of 90 of the 121 corporations of Canada having a capitalization of $500,000 or over.

"We ask that all foodstuffs be placed on the free list as we believe that the taxing of food is a crime against humanity. The crying need of Canada to-day is increased production of agricultural products for export and cheaper living. You cannot increase farm production without decreasing the cost of production and providing competitive routes for export and wider markets.

"Continuing to tax the people to add to the Government pay roll additional men to teach farmers how to farm and provide for other lavish expenditure of money will not do. Canada spent hundreds of millions of dollars to provide waterways and other transportation facilities, yet it costs more to bring our grain to Liverpool now than ever before."

In his reply, Premier Borden expressed pleasure at receiving the deputation, and promised every consideration of the arguments presented, and as to the statement of conditions. As to the grain sample and weighing, those matters would be considered by Hon. Mr. Foster. The question of a railway claims agent had not been made specially clear, and the question of ocean rates was not free from difficulty in the matter of control. The effective means available to Parliament naturally involved much difficulty. The matter had been taken up, and the suggestion of the mother country for an enquiry accepted.

Dealing with co-operation, Mr. Borden said it was naturally desirable, and he had been much impressed with what had been said. Then, so far as the Railway Act was concerned, it was hoped that some consolidation of the Railway Act would be made this session, and the question would then be considered.

Mr. Borden was not prepared to say he agreed with all that had been said. It was probably true that in all countries the result was due to a variety of causes. Close consideration would also be given to what had been presented and said in regard to the cost of living, having regard to the interests of the whole country. The Premier was not prepared to say to what extent the Executive could deal with this question.

After the first deputation had had its hearing the second was given its turn.

Erland Lee, the president of the Ontario Grain Growers, urged that the farmers of Ontario wished to maintain their home markets by protection.

Mr. Bole of Brampton, a stock raiser, contended that the morning delegation did not represent one per cent. of the population. The cry came mainly from people who had done well under the tariff as it is. He absolutely opposed any change in the tariff and urged the maintenance of its stability.

Daniel Johnston, of Forest, spoke strongly against the tariff on fruit being reduced, arguing that it would lead to extensive dumping of the American products. Last year they had shipped 320,000 barrels of apples to the west.

That the free entry of foreign fruits would be the death knell of the fruit industry in Niagara summarized the argument of J. R. Hastings of Winona.

The Grain Growers left last night for Toronto, where they will take part in the deliberations of the Ontario Grange to-day and to-morrow.

WAS ALWAYS CRAZY.

Schmidt's Defence Is Presented In New York Court.

NEW YORK, Dec. 17.—Mr. Olcott, counsel for Hans Schmidt, told the jury yesterday that he would show that in 1904 Schmidt got in trouble in Germany for a foolish and profitless forgery and only escaped punishment by his father's promise to put him in an asylum. From this institution the defendant escaped and came to the United States.

Heinrich Schmidt, the father, was the first witness for the defence. He is a prosperous-looking man of about 65 years. He described himself as a railroad inspector.

The father described how at the early age of eight the prisoner exhibited marked religious peculiarities. He erected an altar and kept the vestments of a priest in his room.

"He used to catch his mother's geese," said the father, "and cut off their heads. These he would put in his pocket and then play with the blood, imitating religious ceremonies."

DENIES ANY PROMISE.

Hon. Mr. Duff Says Guelph Arena Announcement Was a Canard.

TORONTO, Dec. 17.—Hon. James Duff last night denied that he had promised on behalf of the Government to build a new arena for the Guelph Winter Fair.

"Neither Mr. Hanna nor myself mentioned such a thing, and no person had any authority for making such an announcement," he said. "There is absolutely no foundation for such a statement."

HAS BIG RESOURCES.

Manitoba Possesses Plenty of Power Sites Says Report.

OTTAWA, Dec. 17.—The report prepared by the water power branch of the Interior Department for Mr. Justice Robson, who is investigating the whole problem for the Manitoba Government, shows that there are eight distinct power sites on the Winnipeg river where 409,700 horsepower can be economically developed, all within 80 miles of Winnipeg and within feasible transmission distance of Portage la Prairie, Brandon and all the other commercial centres in the southern part of the province. There are three sites now under development, representing 199,000 h.p. In addition there are several important power sites on the Winnipeg and English rivers over the boundary in Ontario, but within easy transmission distance of Winnipeg. In the northern part of the province there is an enormous amount of power where development is feasible, and only a market is needed. These are at the Grand Rapids on the Saskatchewan river, and such rivers as the Churchill, Nelson, Berens and others. Such a wealth of water power, the report states, seems to ensure the industrial future of Manitoba, especially Winnipeg, Portage la Prairie and Brandon. The increasing price of good steam coal out there makes the water power all the more valuable.

Extra Room Not Required.

OTTAWA, Dec. 17.—Hon. Mr. Pelletier states that it will not be necessary to increase the accommodation of the postoffices in any of the cities because of the parcel post. The mail matter will be handled so quickly that extra room will not be required. Staffs, presumably, will have to be somewhat augmented.

It has been sugested that birds habitually make use of storms in traveling from one part of their range to another. It is pointed out that if a bird cannot find shelter it must be more comfortable on the wind than on the ground during a storm, because in the fiercest gale it flies in a moving medium, like a swimmer in a strongly flowing river.
